BRITISH RY. MEN STRIKE TONIGHT

London, Sept. 26, (C.P.R.)--Conference between railroad men's representatives and the Government for an attempted adjustment of differences on the wage question to-day resulted in failure and a general strike on railroads has been ordered to take effect tonight at midnight.

SECOND ANNUAL CONVENTION OF I.O.D.E. WAS REPRESENTATIVE

Hastings Invaded by Army of Lady Patriots---Next Convention at Havelock.

The second annual convention of the chapters of the I.O.D.E. in this district was held in the Town Hall, Hastings, on Thursday afternoon and evening.

A very large delegation was present from the different chapters and a most inspiring business meeting was held in the afternoon. The chair was gracefully filled by Mrs. P. Howard, Regent of the local chapter, and on the platform with her were, besides the executive of the chapter, Mrs. Bruce, the new president of the National Chapter, Mrs. Smith, of St. Catharines, the educational secretary, and Mrs. Stewart, of Perth, the organizing secretary.

Mrs. Howard, in opening the session, on behalf of the local chapter, addressed words of welcome to the visitors, after which the reports of the different chapters were called for in the following order.

Money Raised.

Norwood, with a membership of 90, reported a total raised during the year of $1385.40 and is offering $500 towards a war memorial for the fallen heroes, also $500 for prize to the pupil, who would take highest marks in history at entrance exam.

Warkworth raised $1180.02 and also gave $5.00 for history prize. This chapter has purchased a vacant lot and presented it to the town to be used for a memorial park. In this order there were 7 persons who knit 100 pairs of socks and 4 who reached the high mark of 200 pairs during the war. Peterborough (57th) gave an encouraging report, but did not report total amounts raised. Cobourg did not give total, but reported a great work for the year, also offering 3 prizes in history.

Havelock, through their regent, Mrs. Vance, gave one of the brightest reports of the afternoon, not in the total raised, $879.79, but in the activity of the members. Mrs. Vance said that there were no slackers in their Chapter now that the war is over. She claimed that there was as great a need for work as ever.

Colborne—Not represented.

Brighton—Not represented.

Campbellford gave a grand total of $2400.00.

Otonabee Chapter—Good report; no total.

Norham—Not represented.

Everett Birdsall Chapter, Cottesloe, reported the society in good condition and claimed the honor of having the oldest member in the district, a lady of 89.

It was decided to send greetings from the convention to this aged member.

Madoc—No report.

Jr. Chapter, Campbellford — No report.

Major Heamett Chapter, Peterborough—Absent.

Stewart Chapter, Otonabee—No report.

Peter Robinson Chapter, Peterborough—No report.

Hastings total could not be obtained, but the report showed that a great work had been done. The Chapter has presented 50.00 to each of the four churches of the town to assist in erecting some suitable war memorial. A beautiful pearl necklace was presented to Nursing Sister Helen Fowlds. A picture of the boy who had made the supreme sacrifice was procured, framed, and set up in the rooms and is much appreciated. During the war 3000 pairs of socks were knit and sent overseas.

Claims of the Order.

After the report Mrs. Bruce, president, was called on for a short address and in a very intelligent way presented some of the claims of the order, which is planning to raise a large sum to be used as a war memorial. She said this was not a resting time, but a testing time, and it would be the duty of the order to play an important part in the Canadianization of the foreigner, and in the up-building of the Empire.

Next Convention.

Just here a cordial invitation was extended to the convention to hold its next meeting in Peterborough.

Mrs. Vance also gave a very pressing invitation to Havelock and in

SIX HUNDRED THOUSAND MEN WILL BE AFFECTED BY NATION-WIDE WALK-OUT

Government Plans to Carry Mails by Airplanes, and Put Motor Cars, Trucks, Buses into Commission to Retain Communication Between Cities and Towns—Locomotive Engineers Employed During the War Will Run Principal Mail Service Routes

London, Sept. 26.—The strike of British railway employes called for at 12 o'clock tonight owing to the Government and the union's executive failing to reach an agreement in conference, will affect probably more than 600,000 men. The Government has arranged to have mails carried by airplanes, and to have large motor cars from Government services made available for the conveyance of supplies to big towns which will be seriously affected.

PLANS OF GOVERNMENT.

The locomotive engineers have announced that they would join in the strike, but it is said that the Government has arranged to have many men who drove engines during the war make runs on the principal mail service routes. Tens of thousands of extra automobiles, trucks and buses will be turned out on to the great highways of England to carry passengers and freight from place to place.

HOPED AGAINST HOPE.

Leaders of the National Union of Railwaymen expressed confidence this morning that an order for a general strike would not be necessary, as a result of today's conference with Premier Lloyd George and other members of the Cabinet. The executive committee of the union conferred for a long time before proceeding to the Ministry to resume negotiations.

ARRANGEMENTS STOOD.

Conference members of the committee stated that the resumption of negotiations had not altered any arrangements already made in connection with calling the strike. Should such action become necessary, local secretaries would call out the men at midnight in the event of such orders being received from the central body.

CROWDS AWAIT ED RESULTS

When J. H. Thomas and other members of the executive committee of the union arrived at the Ministry at noon, immense crowds had assembled awaiting the result of the momentous discussions. George Nicoll Barns, Minister without portfolio, attended the conference for the first time. The others who were present were George P. Roberts, Food Controller; Edward Shortt, Secretary for Home Affairs; Sir Eric Geddes, Minister of Transport, and Sir Auckland Geddes, Minister for National Service and Reconstruction.

The Cabinet had held a meeting before it opened its conference with the union representatives.

AT FULL PRESSURE.

All the Cabinet Ministers worked at full pressure in an effort to prevent what was recognized as promising to be the most momentous strike that has ever occurred on British railways. Likewise, before the break took place, James Henry Thomas, railwaymen's leader, declared in answer to an inquiry, "God knows I am trying hard to bring about a settlement."

Immediately after the breach Thomas began a consultation with his colleagues of the railwaymen's unions.

REMARKABLE ADDRESS BY PREMIER CLEMENCEAU ON SEVENTY-EIGHT BIRTHDAY.

Paris, Sept. 26.—Premier Clemenceau's remarkable address in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, in which he asked for ratification of the peace treaty with Germany, was made on his seventy-eighth birthday.

Recalled Crisis.

The Premier recalled how at one crisis the Allies had to decide whether to defend Calais or Paris. "A few days later," he continued, "Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain asked me what I had decided. I replied: 'France made Paris. Paris made France. I would burn Paris to save France.'"

LOOT RECOVERED TO-DAY

$71,000 Stolen From Ocean Limited in Hands of Police.

Quebec, Sept. 26.—The $71,000 in currency which was stolen from the mail coach of the Ocean Limited was recovered early today, according to a statement made this morning by Detective Walsh of Quebec City.

DEAD ON ROAD

Mr. Wakeford, who owns a large flour mill at Canton, a few miles north of Port Hope, was found dead Wednesday night on the side of the road between his mill and Mrs. Challender's residence, where he had been boarding.

The coroner was called, but after making full investigation into all the circumstances of the case, did not consider an inquest necessary. A brother and the deceased's mother live in Hamilton, where the remains will be interred. Mr. Wakefield had lived in Canton about 10 years and was a highly respected citizen.

DECLARES 200 PER CENT PROFIT MADE ON SALE OF FALSE TEETH

Aluminum Plate Costing Ten Cents Sold For Thirty Dollars, Says T. W. Rogers

Montreal, Sept. 26.—A practical demonstration of alleged overcharging was made by T. W. Rogers at the Board of Commerce enquiry here. He produced a piece of apple pie, cut in the usual triangular style, which he declared had been purchased by him at Bonaventure Station for 15 cents. He produced the receipt from the vendor, and contended that with eight pieces cut from an apple pie that figured out at $1.20 the pie, and there would have to be something more than ordinary apple to make a pie as valuable as that.

At the request of the board the witness left the receipt with them, but they told him they might eat the pie. They will look into the matter before leaving.

False Teeth Come High.

Dr. Gaston Maillett, of a local dental institute, produced as Exhibit 1 a case of sets of false teeth, contending that teeth were as much a necessity of life as food, and that it was very near to food anyway, and therefore the board could go into the matter. He opined that a set of teeth could be purchased wholesale for 40 cents, the same as the army had done, and the necessary rubber to make the plate cost about 60 cents, while a complete set of teeth could be made and sold for $5, and the dentist even then made 200 per cent profit.

He produced an aluminum plate which he said dentists charged $30 for, but which did not cost more than ten cents.

Judge Robson asked if Dr. Maillett was alleging a combine and claiming that dentists were charging exorbitant fees to people.

Dr Maillett said he wanted to put the facts before the board.

The matter was taken under advisement.

KILLED BY BROTHER

While out shooting in what is known as the big flats a few miles north of Tweed, James Sexsmith, a 12-year-old son of Wm Sexsmith, was shot in the back by his twin brother. A companion, William Lucas, was with them. Just how the accident occurred they could not tell. The gun must have been a full cock, and the brother unawares of it. The shot entered the back, spreading in all directions, some passing through the body. The shooting took place at just the same hour as a sister of the two lads was being married at Tweed. The victim lived till one-thirty, dying shortly before a doctor could reach him.

TEN MORE YEARS OF HIGH COST OF LIVING IS NOW PREDICTED

More Production Urged as the Cure—Labor Unrest Attributed to Workers' Sense of Neglect

Chicago, Sept. 25.—A return to pre-war prices cannot be expected for a number of years, if at all, Dr. A. C. Miller, member of the Federal Reserve Board, declared in an address here today before the American Association of the Baking Industry.

"Prices may be expected to decline, but the more than 100 per cent. advance which they have scored in the past five years will not be retraced short of at least a similar period, if not, more likely, a period of ten years or more," said Dr. Miller. "The most considerable relief in sight may be expected to come with diminishing exportation of foodstuffs and other articles of general consumption to Europe with the termination or, at any rate, reduction in the volume of the credits which Europe has had at its disposal in the American market during the past two years. Food should certainly become cheaper, and insofar as food is the most important item making up the budget of the working classes, there should be an appreciable diminution in their cost of living and the cost of living problem.

"The ultimate and complete solution, however, will come only as the volume of purchasing media created in the last five years is reduced and the volume of goods produced is increased. This solution, however, will take time, and in the interim we shall continue to have a more or less acute and troublesome cost of living problem. Some method of dealing with it in a practical manner is therefore one of the first and necessary steps to be taken toward the revival of industry in the United States and the improvement of the industrial situation generally. Until some satisfactory method of dealing with the wage problem as it has been affected by the rising cost of living is worked out there will be unrest, industrial strife and retardation of the processes of industrial recovery that will be costly in their effects to the nation and costly to the world.

"The one thing that the United States cannot afford at this time is suspension of industry through failure to establish a good working relationship between employers and employed.

"Cost of living has developed into much more than a cost of living problem because until quite recently no definite and competent program for dealing with it has been undertaken. The fact that the Government and the nation have drifted without admitting that there was an industrial situation which ought to be studied and remedied as quickly as conditions would permit not unnaturally established in the minds of the working classes, many of whom were suffering real hardships because of high and advancing prices, a feeling that now that the war was won and over their condition and needs had ceased to be a matter of national concern, but also with the problem of restoring the faith of the average working man in the disposition of the country at large to concern itself with his welfare.

"It is time, therefore, that earnest thought should be given to the present industrial unrest. Something must be done to help labor meet the cost of living problem, but beyond that something substantial must be done to put labor in a better frame of mind on the larger question of its future economic position. We need a constructive policy in labor matters. Labor should be given an objective—an attractive objective—toward which to work in order that hope and contentment, as well as wages, may be its portion in American industry."

ITALY MUST NOT ANNEX FIUME

WOULD BE FOLLOWED BY OTHER OCCUPATIONS OF A PROHIBITIVE NATURE.

Rome, Sept. 26.—Tomasso Tittoni, foreign minister, declared during a meeting of the crown council today that the Peace Conference would not permit Italy to annex Fiume because such action would authorize the Czecho-Slovaks to occupy Techen, Jugo-Slavs to move forces into Klagenfurt, the Greeks to claim Tharce, and the Roumanians to annex Banat.

MEN RETURN TO WORK

Another 40,000 Steel Workers May Be Called Out Monday.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Sept. 26.—There was little apparent change in the steel strike situation today, although officials of the steel companies reported more men returning to work at various points.

Union officials said, "All solid steel." Forty thousand workers in the Bethlehem steel plants may be called out Monday.

MUST HAVE VOICE IN CONDITIONS

THIS IS PARAMOUNT ISSUE IN STEEL STRIKE, DECLARES SAMUEL GOMPERS.

Washington, Sept. 26.—The right of employes to have some voice in determining the conditions under which they work is the paramount issue in the strike of the steel workers, Samuel Gompers, president of the A. F. of L., told the Senate investigating committee today.

"It has been said that most of the men taking part in this strike are of foreign birth and not naturalized citizens. That may be and no doubt is true. The largest proportion of steel corporation employes are of foreign birth, but these men were brought here by the companies," said Mr. Gompers.

WIRE FLASHES

London, Sept. 26.—Unless something unforeseen happens, British forces will have been entirely withdrawn from the Archangel country by the end of the month.

Copenhagen, Sept. 26.—American marines landed from a torpedo boat and compelled Italians to evacuate Trau, Dalmatia. Jugo-Slavs took over the town.

ENQUIRY INTO HIGH COST OF LIVING RESUMED BY BOARD OFCOMMERCE

Vice Chairman O'Connor Replies to Criticism From the Members of House of Commons.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Sept. 26.—Evidence of the connection of "Canadian Packers, Limited" with allied packing interests of the United States will be presented to the Board of Commerce, enquiring into the high cost of living, according to the statements of W. H. Price, K.C., the Ontario Government's Counsel, when the Board, which resumed its sessions here today.

Highly Important.

For the first time in this city Judge Robson, chairman of the Board sat with W. F. O'Connor, K.C., vice-chairman, and the presumption is that the Board expects to hear something highly important at this session.

Replies to Strictures.

Vice-chairman O'Connor took occasion to reply in general terms to strictures aimed at him by the members of the House of Commons the day. In brief, he explained that he did not say all things he was said to have said, or do nearly all the things he was said to have done, and he added, in justice to the press, that no newspaper published statements attributed to him.

Geneva, Sept. 26.—A movement is on foot here to make the eldest son of the former emperor ruler of Hungary.

ASKS CO-OPERATION FOR VICTORY LOAN DRIVE

SIR HENRY DRAYTON SAYS OBLIGATION TO SOLDIERS MUST BE FULFILLED.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Hamilton, Sept. 25.—Urging unanimous co-operation in the forthcoming Victory Loan campaign, Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, addressed delegates at the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress today.

Some Mess.

Sir Henry said: "There has been a war, and there is a mess to clean up. There are commitments to our soldiers which must be fulfilled to the last letter.

"There is not a man in this audience who does not want to see everything possible done for returned soldiers. A working capital must be provided for Canadians that the wheels of industry do not cease to turn."

Delegates H. J. Halford, of Hamilton, and James Simpson, of Toronto, urged the election of Labor's own candidates to the Provincial and Federal Houses.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

FRIDAY, SEPT. 26, 1919.

THE RED TRIANGLE DRIVE.

"THE RED TRIANGLE DRIVE" of the Y.M.C.A. next Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 30 and Oct. 1, to raise $7,500, should commend itself to every citizen—man and woman—in a position to give. The work of caring for soldiers overseas and on the way home is not altogether finished, while its "Looking Forward" program has started off vigorous in health and clothed in a future of much promise. Great War Veterans speak in glowing terms of pleasures and comforts made possible for them abroad by the Y.M.C.A., and eagerly anticipate a continuation of Red Triangle privileges at home. Each local extends free membership to every returned soldier for six months, and it is mainly in support of the service called for by this gift of membership that Peterborough is asked to contribute $7,500 next week.

This Red Triangle Campaign, begun in May this year, has the endorsation of His Excellency, the Duke of Devonshire, Sir Robert Borden, in fact of the majority of men in high places, and now that the drive has reached Peterborough, it is to be hoped that this city will rise to the occasion and contribute handsomely. In looking backward, the association's work overseas stands forward as a bright oasis in the shadows of death, offering war-weary defenders of their country the comforts of home and the joys of clean and healthy relaxation. At the front, in the four-corners of the earth—wherever the British flag was flying in defiance of British enemies—in England, on train and boat in transport service, there the familiar "Y" was found with all its attendant care for the boys in khaki; then can we wonder that on returning to civilian life our citizen soldiers retain a warm spot in their hearts for the Red Triangle, and fully appreciate that opportunity for continued affiliation made possible by public contributions.

As an instance of work done by this Red Triangle in behalf of returned soldiers, we will refer to that by the Toronto club up to March last as follows: 649 men were placed in employment, 152 claims—amounting to $6,950.37—for pensions, back pay, war service gratuity etc., were adjusted, and 11,159 men helped in various ways between January 1 and March 27. And such commendable work is still going on.

Then the Young Men's Christian Association is now a great reconstruction agency. It has emerged from the war with an experience in social service unparalled in the history of any institution except the church. It has gained a knowledge of work among men that should make it one of the foremost reconstruction agencies in Canada today.

Under the most trying circumstances it has "won out," earning the esteem and confidence both of the men it served and the generous people at home who committed huge sums of money to its stewardship.

Vast quantities of war stores and machinery are being sacrificed as of no further use, but the Y.M.C.A. was not a "war industry" or an emergency institution, and it would be a calamity if the unique knowledge and experience gained by the Association through its war work were scrapped with the shells and guns.

An outstanding lesson of the past four and a half years is that the real task of the Y.M.C.A. has only begun, and its heavy war budgets would not seem justifiable today if the service rendered the troops in the field were not made the guide and inspiration of its regular service, similar in spirit, throughout the cities, towns, villages and rural communities of the Dominion.

Fortified by the success of its work for the men in khaki, the Association presents a program of social service for men and boys which, in its moral aspect, is the biggest thing in Reconstruction at present before the people.

HOW LONG CAN THEY DO IT?

THERE IS IN CANADA current opinion that it costs the Government $1.03 to get $1 of gross revenue from the railroads which have been emancipated from the capitalistic class. A deficit of $50,000,000 in 1919 is the forecast. This straightway gives rise to conjecture as to what the true relation of cost and revenue would be if some courageous Administration reached down to the bottom of our own Government operation of the roads.

Thanks in part to the peculiarities of the Canadian situation, the private Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific have contributed nobly to the Government's experiment in railroad operation. This and other causes have steadily lifted the percentage of cost to gross revenue. Today it is 89 per cent. for the Grand Trunk and 81 per cent. for the Canadian Pacific. The percentage thus actually discloses the shocking scandal of surplus, rather than the uplifting inspiration of deficit.

Monthly statements, duly audited and certified, show that the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk can still operate on their own motive power. The exact status of the Government roads is not so clearly revealed. Why it is not is a matter of conjecture, friendly, invidious, or neutral, as may be. Some irreconcilables want to know how they are to reach a conclusive audit of Canadian Northern, making a true capital investment basis for figures. Others say there is an operating deficit of more than three per cent.

What if it be so that the more wheels turn round and the faster they go, the more money they lose? If it costs three cents net loss to take in a dollar, isn't the taxpayer there to pay it? And doesn't the paltry three cents go at once back into circulation? "As long as he has a dollar left to burn, why shouldn't the taxpayer writhe and turn?"

A staunch supporter of a western co-operative grain concern with a long and honorable record of losses used to refer to its "turnover" as its "turnunder." Happily free of the embarrasament of literary cult, he has given the Government railroad auditors a book heading, accurate and novel. They should be satisfied and so should the taxpayers. For, as a facetious inquirer for Government figures says, "If a taxpayer is not to pay these taxes, what is he for?" But how long can they do it?

QUININE AND CAMPHOR.

EMERGENCY is calling on the chemical industry again. In anticipation of a return of the grip epidemic, the manufacturers and importers are striving to meet the increasing demands for products that are essential in combatting the malady, says the New York Commercial. Of course, this is exerting a strong upward price trend. Quinine, for example, has taken a jump, for it is one of the medicinals the healing art cannot do without in its ministrations under the conditions probably soon to confront the people. Happily, if the disease does get a foothold this winter, it will be much milder than it was last winter. The market which the contingency is creating is nothing to cause alarm. The supply will be greater than it was last year, for the ocean lanes are open and Holland will not forbid exports from East India possessions. The markets for camphor, asafoetida, acetanilid, formaldehyde and disinfectants, also necessary in combatting influenza, occupy, relatively, the same position that quinine occupies. We must expect to pay high prices for the principal ones of these products, for they are exceedingly limited in supply and their source is the opposite end of the earth. Besides, they require high skill in refining and compounding, and these are factors the public should consider when the druggist must be paid. With quinine at $1.25 an ounce, it is not difficult to figure out the result as represented in a physician's prescription.

HEARTS ARE TRUMPS.

MR. HERBERT N. CASSON of London, England, a well-known newspaper man, in his book entitled "Labor Troubles and How To Prevent Them," finds that welfare work, profit sharing, or shorter hours do not solve the problem of labor unrest. Nor does a general higher level of wages satisfy: rather it causes more strikes than low wages. In many cases the wastage of labor turnover is greater than the wastage of strikes, he states. The normal turnover is about thirty per cent a year, but for fifty-seven firms in Detroit the labor turnover averaged more than two hundred and fifty-two per cent. To train new workers costs from $25 to $200 so that labor turnover is a considerable factor in increasing costs of production. Mr. Casson urges the need for industrial training. Again, he says:

"In the game of life hearts are trumps—not clubs as the Germans vainly imagined. Successful business is honeycombed with sentiment. Germany was defeated because she played the body against the soul; the lower nature of man against the higher. This is the most terrific object lesson of modern times. These four great fallacies: that labor creates all wealth; that profits are theft; that capital opposes labor; and that high production is against the interests of the worker, have all got to be exposed and downed."

WAR CRIMINALS EXPOSED.

THAT THE MURDER of Archduke Francis Ferdinand was merely seized as a pretext by Germany and Austria both of whom had previously determined on war, is clearly established by recent revelations. The Socialist Government of Austria has compiled and published a Red Book presenting suppressed or partly suppressed documents in the Vienna Archieves that completely establish the guilt of the ministerial council of the Hapsburg dominion, under the malign influence and leadership of Count Berchtold, the Foreign Minister at that time. The council, it is shown, deliberately decided on July 7, 1914 to provoke an armed conflict, with Serbia and face the anticipated consequences, war with Russia and with the Balkan states sympathizing with Serbia.

Count Berchtold had resolved on another coup—similar to that which annexed Bosnia and Herzegovina to Austria in violation of the Treaty of Berlin—designed to strengthen the position of the Hapsburg dynasty.

Neither he nor his colleagues at any time had the slightest intention of accepting any settlement whatever with Serbia. They so worded their ultimatum to Serbia as to be practically sure of a conflict, in which they fully expected a military triumph and augmented power for Austria. War was what they wanted, and war they had to the uttermost—all-but five years of unutterable slaughter, pestilence and atrocities. But the mills of the gods grind surely, if slowly, and the Hapsburg dynasty and Austria-Hungary have been hoisted by their own petard, dismembered and destroyed, both royal house and empire.

And what of Germany? Her government has not shown the courage of that of Austria in regard to publishing the secret documents which would disclose the part former Emperor William and his advisers played in events leading up to the war. But for all that we are morally certain, from information which has leaked out in an unofficial way, that they were co-partners with Austria in willing the war, in the hope of Germany's aggrandizement of that world-power for which she had schemed and in expectation of which she had educated her seventy millions for forty years.

Germany, too, has been a chief sufferer from her own evil scheming. But 'tis not enough! Are those arch fiend at whose doors lies the responsibility for drenching this world in blood and misery and anguish to go unpunished? The chief culprits stand exposed, why not apply to them a punishment to fit the crime?

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

NEGATION WILL NOT ANSWER.

(Boston Transcript.)

If we are to combat bolshevism or socialism or any excesses on the part of Organized Labor or capital, we cannot do so successfully by mere negation. We must affirm while we borrow, and must strengthen the foundations of civil and social life while we repel assaults upon it.

WAGES AND PRICES.

(Hamilton Spectator.)

Speaking of conditions in England, Mrs. Will Crooks asserts that the wives of workingmen would rather have $10 a week with pre-war prices than $25 and present prices. "They don't want wages to go up; they want prices to go down," she says. And the same remark is largely applicable to the situation in our own country.

MILLBROOK

(Special Correspondence.)

2.30—Rally Day service.

W. M. S. Service.

The re-opening service of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Millbrook Methodist Church was held in the church parlors on Wednesday afternoon last.

The heralds on the watchtower brought the latest news for July, August and September and Rev. S. T. Tucker gave the women a stirring call to participate in the United Nation Forward Movement Compaign, which includes 20 per cent. increase in membership, 20 per cent. increase in offerings and a volunteer for the active work of the mission field. This appeal was strengthened by a song, "Go Tell the World of His Love," sung by four of the Mission Band girls.

Our new president, Mrs. (Rev.) S. T. Tucker, was welcomed to the society, and given a chance to enjoy a social good time with the members.

A special membership contest between the Eastern section of the circuit and the Western section, added interest to the occasion, and resulted in favor of the West end.

Huge Sunflower.

Rev. Joseph Wilks has a sunflower 13 feet high, the flower of which is 14 inches in diameter and 43½ inches in circumference.

Rally Day.

Sunday, Sept. 28th, is Rally Day in the Millbrook Methodist Sunday School. Rev. Frank Langford, general secretary of the Sunday School Department of the Methodist Church will preach, morning and evening, and address the S. S. in the afternoon. Special music by a choir under the direction of Miss Elson and Miss Hetherington. Orchestra in attendance. The war memorial shield will be unveiled at the S. S. session. Mr. Tucker will also give an address.

The collection is in aid of the Sunday School Aid and Extension Fund.

A special invitation has been sent to the other Sunday Schools on the circuit.

From Overseas.

The many friends of Corp. Walter McIvor will be pleased to learn he is home from overseas.

Harvest Festival.

The Harvest Thanksgiving services will be held at Trinity Church, Marsh, at 10.30 a.m., and 7.30 p.m. (Standard Time) next Sunday. The offering at both services will be given to the Church Improvement Fund. The Thanksgiving services at Christ Church, Baillaboro, will be held on Sunday, Oct. 5, at 10.30 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.

Bowling.

Winners in the Final Game.

On Thursday evening, Sept. 18th, the final game of the series for the silver cup, was played. The following composed the two rinks: W. O'Brien, Wes. Hutchinson, S. E. Eakins, H. L. Burnham, skip; H. Richards, A. Richards, B. Richards, C. W. Richards, skip.

The game by ends:

Richards	10114000202103
Burnham	04000311010040

It was one of the most interesting and closest games of the season, as the score indicates. Immediately at the close of the game, Dr. Lee, the honorary president, presented the cup to the skip of the winning rink, and also delivered a splendid address congratulating the winners and also Mr. Burnham and his rink for their splendid playing.

The opponent skips replied thanking Dr. Lee for his commendation remarks, and stated they hoped that next season there will be even more interest taken in bowling. The hearty singing of the National Anthem brought a very pleasant evening to a close.

(Special Correspondence.)

Omemee, Sept. 25. Dr. Kenneth Laidley, accompanied by Mrs. Laidley and family, motored from Montreal last week and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Griffin.

Mr. Fred Parker has the distinction of being the first Omemee citizen to receive a letter by aeroplane, he having received one last week.

Mrs. R. Bradley attended the Lindsay fair last Friday.

The Misses Verna Williamson and Emily Thompson were visitors to Lindsay last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Shaw, of Oshawa, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Cottingham over Sunday.

Miss Lulu Bushnell, of West Hill, spent the week-end with Lindsay friends.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Stillman were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Claxton in Lindsay last week.

Rev. Mr. Herrington attended the district meeting in Lindsay last Thursday.

Mr. E. L. Morcombe motored to Whitby on Sunday.

Miss E. Jewett spent the week-end with friends in Lindsay.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Connell attended the county fair on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Mahood motored to Lindsay on Saturday.

Miss Maye McConnell and Miss Ruby Paul attended the fair in Lindsay on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Parsons attended the big fair on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Balsam, of Whitby, were the guests of their daughter, Mrs. C. L. Morcombe, over Sunday.

Mrs. Morcombe, Sr., returned home after a pleasant visit with Oshawa friends.

Mr. Fred. Orser, of Midland, is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson.

Mr. D. Stinson was among the many who visited Lindsay on Saturday.

Mr. Harry Bradley, son of Mr. Jos. Bradley, left Omemee on Friday for Toronto where he will enter upon a course in the Dental College.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Shaw, of North Bay, are spending a few days in the village.

Col. and Mrs. J. J. H. Fee were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Cook on Sunday.

Mr and Mrs. Roy Cornell, of Peterborough, are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cornell.

Mr and Mrs. Harry Lamb and esse, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cornell, returned from a pleasant week's motor trip to Toronto, Beaton and points west.

Mrs. Arthur McCrea and son, Elmer, are visiting at "Tullylark," the home of Mrs. McCrea, Sr.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bushnell spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. I. Laidley in Lindsay.

Epworth League.

The Methodist Epworth League Rally was held on Monday evening. Music, addresses and contests made up the program. An old-time photo guessing contest caused much amusement.

The serving of refreshments and the social hour spent by all was most enjoyable and many new members were recruited to swell the membership roll.

Soldiers' Reception.

The soldiers' reception spoken of last week will take place on Wednesday evening, October 1, in Coronation Hall. Capt. John Garbutt, of Oshawa, will be the speaker of the evening, and a good program is being prepared. Come prepared to give three rousing cheers; a tiger and a tiger spot, if need be, for our boys.

Airplane Visit.

The aeroplane, which passed over Omemee on Wednesday, was in charge of Capt. Salter, a young Peterborough man who has the distinction of having received the Croix de Guerre and the Legion of Honor, having to his credit fifteen German machines. Capt. Salter was shot through the thigh while flying low over the German trenches. When Capt. Salter was leaving Peterborough for Lindsay last week an Omemee young lady visiting quite near his home, had the offer of an air flight to her home. On being asked why she did not accept, the answer was, "Oh, mother would have die of fright if I had come home that way."

MR. ROBERTS CAUGHT 23IN. BASS

Large Fish Weighs 6¾ Lbs. Will be Exhibited at Payne's Drug Store.

Mr. A. G. Roberts is the proud possessor of a very large bass caught by himself on August 21st last, near the Magnetawan River, 36 miles north of Parry Sound. The bass weighs 6¾ lbs. is 23 inches in length and 16 inches around the girth. It has an exceptionally large mouth. It was caught on a steel casting rod 6 feet in length with a common dew worm as bait. The fish has been cleverly mounted by Mr. E. Elcome and will be on exhibit in the window of Payne's drug store for a few days. Mr. Elcome states that it is the largest bass he ever mounted.

HOPE OF GERMANY LIES IN HER LEADING INDUSTRIAL GIANTS

Amsterdam, Holland.—It is easy to classify the leaders of Germany today by type. This is perhaps the greatest indictment that can be brought against its leading men, according to a correspondent of the Chicago Daily News. Types—large groups of men resembling each other, gyrating in the same circle; perambulating text books and faintly galvanized dogmas rather than individual leaders, individual thinkers—this is the distinguishing phase of German politics. Perhaps it was always so, and is so everywhere else. But in Germany the thing is sharply obvious.

A country wrestling with dogmatic distinctions—distinctions between the soviet idea as interpreted by Marx and the soviet idea as interpreted by Lenin, between the "rate" or council system as evolved by Wissel and the "rate" system as evolved by Daumig—such a country is inclined to produce dogmaticians rather than leaders. The result in the last year in Germany has been the rise of a large body of professors. These professors have been fighting each other. Occasionally their constituencies rush into the street and fight each other and the matter gets into the press under the headline "revolution." To date the excitement, squabbling and shooting in German politics has been chiefly the obbligato to a classroom wrangle over theories. Socialist has fought and butchered socialist, utilizing in his attack the weapons which theoretically he most hates—militarism, armed forces, military dictatorship and the like.

Compromising Socialist Passing.

In German politics there is to be found today the fast vanishing type of Philipp Scheidemann Disillusioned socialists seeking to let the masses "down easy," afraid to come out in the open and announce that socialism and the socialization of industry are things which experience has revealed to them as impractical, but endeavoring to retain their positions as "mass spokesmen" by precedent to theories in which they no longer believe and are unable to put into practice. The present government of Germany consists in part of this type including Ebert, Bauer, Noske and the rest.

This is then the type of the sincere doctrinaire, the man who believes with spiritual or fanatical devotion in the theoretical ideals of the "proletariat inheriting the earth." Hugo Haase is the ablest of these men. He is almost an anomaly. He combines with a passion for abstract theoretics a passion peculiarly German, a shrewd business and penetrating political insight. Such men are associated most of the intellectuals of Germany.

Sparticists Fail to Thrive.

The type once represented by Liebknecht survives among a lunatic fringe in the German state. This fringe is known as the Spartacist party. Possessed of neither shrewdness nor constructive vision, they manage to keep politically afloat by sheer noise. They are un-German, even as the majority of American socialists are un-American in character. They are a sort of hangover of the Russian revolution, a transplanting of something actually native to Russian mental soil to German mental soil. They have failed to thrive in Germany.

These three types cover the socialist cycle. Outside the socialist theory are to be found numerous groups, some interesting, many boring, many stupid. The most promising of these is the Theodor Wolff-George Bernhard type. Both are publicists. Neither has any affection for socialism. Both desire a country modeled upon practical democratic principles. They are not idealists. They were strongly in favor of "U" boats and annexations during the war. But still they belong to the world's idea of sane, intelligent men.

There is then the type of the Reventlow-Passadowsky-Gen. Hoffmann element. Germans living in a past, brooding over the vanished might and splendor of the kaiser's empire, clear headed, most of them are able to penetrate the hoakum which passes as idealism in and out side of Europe. This type has no particular affection for the kaiser. It is interested in the monarchical-capitalist system of government. It worships the idea of armies, navies, youth and courage and dash. It is not interested in industry and before the war fell out with the kaiser because of his tendency to admit industrial men into high places of state and favor.

Industrial Men Hope of Nation.

There is next the imperialist, Hugo Stinnes is the climax of this type. Politically blind, vigorous bodied and practical minded, Stinnes represents the industrial hope of the nation. These are the men who are doing the actual work in Germany today. Whether this work is for the good of the country events will later prove. They are fighting revolution and unrest by trying to start the factory wheels going again.

The German intellectual, before the war the most sharply drawn of all German types, is today scattered. There are men like Prof. Harnack, famous theologian; Prof. Brentano, the sociologist, who have shut themselves up in their studies and decided to let the nation go on without them. There are others, like Prof. Bonn, Baron von Gleichen Maximilian Harden and Breitscheid, who have deserted everything for the political arena.

WHY DO WE SLEEP?

There Is Much Yet to Be Known About It.

Some of the most usual things are also the most wonderful, but just because they are familiar it never occurs to us how wonderful they really are.

In all the complex arrangements and inter-workings that go to make up human life, there is, perhaps, none more remarkable than that by which at regular intervals our consciousness is blotted out, the activities of our bodies and minds cease, and sleep alone possesses us. Yet since this miracle happens in the ordinary every day of his life, the wonder of it never strikes us. We do not stop to ponder on it and to ask what is it that happens when life is thus almost completely interrupted.

Why do we sleep, and more, why do we wake again?

Like most natural phenomena that appear so simple the explanation is hidden from us. The physiologist tells us that sleep is a "synaptic dissociation of neurons." It may be, but we are not much the wiser for that, even if we know both what is a neuron and what happens to it when it is synaptically dissociated. No, we do not know just what sleep is nor why it happens.

It used to be thought that sleep happened because the circulation of blood through the brain grew so feeble that this, the seat of consciousness, could work no longer and sleep took the place. Many years ago, indeed, a surgeon studying the subject watched a failing circulation of the brain through a hole in the skull of a sleeping animal. Yet this is only effect, not cause. The brain has less blood because it sleeps; it does not sleep because it has less blood.

More recently it has been thought that during the active day we make, by the activity of our muscles, a poison which has the peculiar action of deadening mental action. This gradually accumulates in us till by the time that sleep is due at night, the brain is overpowered. This argument is supported by the familiar fact that there are many poisons, drugs of the "dope" class, for example, which are certainly capable of producing sleep.

Sleep is a necessity of life no less than is food. No man has ever succeeded in ever keeping awake for more than a few days continuously. If he is forced to do so, as in ancient Chinese tortures, where constant tickling of the feet made sleep impossible, he falls at last into a comatose state from which he never awakens.

There is no greater misery than an unwilling wakefulness, and no sweeter boon than the untroubled sleep that nightly brings us fresh and invigorated to the next day's task.—M.D., in London Express.

A Master of Style.

Mr. Asquith, in his presidential address to the English association at Bedford College, London, some weeks ago, dealt with the life and writings of Sir Henry Wootton, the friend of Isaac Walton. It was by poetry alone, said Mr. Asquith, that Wootton still lived, and the reason why his short poetic pieces possessed enduring power of appeal was because they possessed the sovereign quality of poetic style. Style in poetry, even more than in prose, was an art—one might even say an artifice. It was sought out, thought out, and wrought out. It did not fetter inspiration, though there might be inspiration without it. It was at once a posture and a vehicle—incommunicable, almost indefinable, and yet never to be mistaken. Among all the classic poets, whether Greek or Roman, Virgil was the great example.

English poetry was specially rich in the great masters of poetic style. Shakespeare must always live in a class by himself; but with that reservation, by far the greatest master of poetic style, in the sense in which he used the word, was Milton. They could not open a page of "Paradise Lost," "Lycidas," "Comus," or any of the sonnets without finding a wealth of examples. Keats and Tennyson picked up and carried on the torch, and he claimed a place, even if a subsidiary one, for Walter Savage Landor.

Wootton was not, either perhaps as man or as poet, of heroic stature or of far-reaching range, but he was not suffering from the pessimism of senility—when, to an old-fashioned ear, there seemed to be a fine and often an almost arrogant disorder in the outpourings of the contemporary muse, it might not be amiss to go back now and again to the great masters of poetic style.

Constantinople and Moslems.

The proposed erection of Constantinople into a neutralized State under the authority of the Christian great powers is most distasteful to Islam, writes Lothrop Stoddard in the World's Work. While Constantinople is not a Moslem "Holy City" in the sense of Mecca and Jerusalem, it is yet held in deep veneration by all True Believers. Under Moslem rule since its capture by the Turks in 1453; Constantinople, or "Stamboul," to give it its Moslem name, has been both the capital of the Ottoman Empire and the temporal centre of the Mohammedan world, the seat of the Caliphate, thus occupying in Islam a position analogous to that held by Rome on Western Christendom. It is easy to see how Moslems will regard the passing of their Rome under Christian sway. Besides these religious objections, there is also the nationalistic dislike felt by Ottoman Turks and the other members of the "Pan-Turanian" bloc at the loss of the historic seat of Turkish power and glory. The Turks' definite expulsion from Europe will be a blow not easily borne. The effect of Islamic protests is already seen in British proposals to leave the Turkish sultan some show of authority in Constantinople.

There are at present four paper textile mills in operation in Sweden, the machinery equipment of which is entirely German.

Surely Drafty.

There are all sorts of different ways of bringing a thing home to people. Take the case, for instance, of a member of the Essex district council in England, recently, who wanted to enable his fellow-councilors to realize the shameful disrepair of a certain cottage near by. It was so drafty, he said, that tunes could be played on a mouth organ moved up and down along cracks in the walls.

Didn't Quite Understand.

Little John and his mother were visiting at the minister's home one day, when John picked up a Testament from the table. The minister's wife said: "You must not play with that book, for it is God's book." A week later, while at the minister's home again, he spied the book and said: "Why doesn't God come and get his book?"

AFTER SUFFERING A WHOLE YEAR

Mrs. King Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Iola, Kansas.—"I was a constant sufferer from female trouble for about a year. I had pains in back and stomach, in fact all over me, and was all rundown. A friend of mine was cured of the same trouble by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it and it gave me health and strength and made a new woman of me. I cannot praise your Vegetable Compound too highly, and you may publish my testimonial as it may be the means of helping some other suffering woman."—Mrs. IRENE KING, 105 West Campbell Street, Iola, Kansas.

The great number of unsolicited testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratory, many of which are from time to time published by permission, are proof of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, in the treatment of female ills.

Every ailing woman in the United States is cordially invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for special advice. It is free, ready to bring you health and may save your life.

Delays in Installing Telephones

THERE have been unavoidable but no less annoying delays in filling orders for new telephones.

During the period January 1st to August 23rd this year, owing to business and other changes following cessation of the war, 26,800 telephones were taken out and 46,700 installed. The moving season brought a flood of orders for moving telephones, more than 13,300 being dealt with at one exchange alone.

With such a rush of work coming as it did when our staff was still depleted, it was perhaps not to be wondered at that some orders for new telephones should be held up. The net gain in installations to June 30th this year was a full 100 per cent over the same period last year, a result that few business men would have predicted.

Our aim in this matter of new installations, as in all other features of our business, is to be of maximum service to the community, cutting delays and inconvenience to a minimum.

PETERBOROUGH'S GREATEST STORE

FUNERAL OF LATE JAMES J. DUFFUS

The funeral of the late James J. Duffus took place from the family residence, 269 Romaine street, at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, Sept. 24th, to the Sacred Heart Church, where requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. J. J. O'Brien. Rev. Fr. Galvin performed the service at the cemetery, assisted by Rev. Fr. McAuley.

It was one of the largest funerals ever held from Sacred Heart Church, and the large gathering of sympathizers and friends who turned out to pay their last respects to the deceased was a silent tribute to the esteem in which he was held. The pallbearers were Senator George McHugh, Lindsay, Messrs. John Lang, ex-M.P., Keene, Thomas Christie, Norwood, Robert Fair, Richard Nicholls, Peter Milloy, Louis Downer and John Grady, Peterborough. The honorary bearers were aWrden John McIntosh and Mr. Geo. B. Nicholls, representing the County Council, also Mr. J. T. O'Connell.

The deceased was a member of the Holy Name Society, the Canadian Extension and the Altar Society.

Among those from out of the city who attended the funeral were Messrs. Richard Spratt and Michael Egan, Lindsay, Mathew Galvin, of Campbellford, Monsignor Casey, of Lindsay, Father Leonard, Kinmount, Father Meagher and Mr. Patrick Clancy, Lindsay.

JAMES CLANCY.

The death occurred in Detroit yesterday of James Clancy, aged 21, formerly of this city.

Deceased leaves to mourn his loss his parents, Mr and Mrs. James Clancy, 714 Water street, two sisters, Eva, of Detroit, and Mrs Joseph Primeau, and four brothers, John, Fred, William and Harry.

Before going to Detroit deceased was employed in the office of the Quaker Oats Co. His death was very sudden and unexpected, resulting from an attack of acute indigestion.

The funeral will take place from the home of his father Water street, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock to St. Peter's cemetery.

FRUIT-GROWING IN CANADA

In a vigorous plea for the development of the fruit-growing industry in Canada, Mr. G. W. Echlin, writing in the Farmers' Magazine, declares that with the development of the canning industry fruit growers have suddenly become aware that what was once a hobby is now a great national asset of untold commercial value. He contends that probably no other agricultural pursuit is destined to reach; such a dignified and importane level as that of fruit growing. "It is a certainty," he says, "that the farmers of Ontario are not awake to one of the golden opportunities of the age when they neglect to plant new orchards each year or care for those they already have. . . . Little more than one-third of the fruit canned in the Dominion is home-grown. . . . About fifty thousand bushels of pears alone will be imported into Canada from as far west as the State of Washington this year, so that the orders of the canneries can be filled. It would appear that there is nothing short of a criminal short-sightedness on the part of farmers to allow such a state of affairs to exist long. . . .

"Nine times out of ten, when one opens a can of strawberry jam or preserves from the Canadian factory, the fruit has come from Maryland, for some of the other southern states. Thousands of tons of strawberries are yearly imported into Canada for canning purposes, buyers starting early for the scene of the southern crops so as to be on the ground when the fruit is at its best. Every time the customer purchases a can of this fruit he pays for these expensive trips of the cannery buyers, as well as the duty on the goods and the excess price which such foreign berries naturally bring. As high as $10 per crate was paid this year for strawberries imported."

A further incentive to fruit growing is provided in the energetic campaign now being conducted for public support of the home market. The Canadian Trade Commission recently made a particular appeal to the women of Canada to support home industries. In doing so it submitted a partial list of commodities imported into Canada from the United States, including the following:

Green apples	$1,528,000
Berries (blackberries, etc)	685,000
Cherries	107,000
Plums and prunes	1,227,000
Cranberries	102,000
Grapes	441,000
Peaches	496,000
Quinces, apricots, pears, etc	691,000
Total	$5,277,000

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if bladder bothers you.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acid in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

SERB SHOT AND KILLED

His House Under Suspicion of Being a Sniping Post.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Farrell, Pen., Sept. 25.—Luke Grogan, a Serbian, was shot and killed by state troopers here when the police searched his house under suspicion of it being a sniping post from which shot have been fired at a steel plant.

LIQUOR FINES

Four ews Each Fined $500 With Costs at Brockville.

Brockville, Sept. 24.—Louis Shine and Solomon Blatt, Montreal; B. Kozup and Fred Mahernak, Oshawa, the four Jews arrested at Prescott for violation of the Ontario Temperance Act, were each fined $500, which, with costs, made a total of $2,250. They wired to their friends for this amount, which was paid today in the local Police Court.

M. Souch, of St. Catharines, another whiskey runner, caught with 16 bottles, paid a fine of $200. Ira Miller, of Mallorytown, who figured in an attack upon License Inspectors Taber and Sykes at Lansdowne Fair, pleaded guilty to three charges and was assessed $235.

STABBED, WILL DIE

EDITOR'S MAIL

To the Editor The Review:

Sir,—The word of caution uttered by Ald Turner at recent meeting of Council is both judicious and timely Something of this sort was also the burden of the remonstrance made by Trustee Gordon as to the excessive proposed cost of the new school and equipment.

While no one will doubt the good intentions of the Board of Education, looking to be adequate in handling this proposition, and viewing the future requirements of the city, it will not do to assume that because there has as yet been little or none of public expressed objection that such is not thought of.

Many have expressed the idea as remarked by Ald Turner, and before by Trustee Gordon, that we may be putting too many eggs into the one basket considering the price of eggs Many do hold to this view, and many are right Because of which

The section outside the city around Bronson is served as a township suburb by May's School House. Just now it is inadequate for purposes. The township, anticipating that the section will presently come into the city and take the school with it, is reluctant to build and add to the capacity of the school. The township is level-headed in its position. The new school, when opened will not relieve the congestion for it will not be open to pupils outside the city.

It is true that when unions comes about pupils may attend the new school but a claim will immediately be made to enlarge the May School on the ground of convenience. Shall we have to exploit another bylaw to raise funds.

It is this approaching situation that impresses citizens as to the advisability of removing some of the eggs from that basket. To lessen the capacity of the new building from twenty to fourteen rooms and be ready and willing to enlarge the May School by six rooms when the time comes.

This proposition may look like anticipating the future, but that is exactly what the Board is putting forward, only in a way of concentration in one building. Let us not concentrate just now but procrastinate, to our ultimate good.

So far as either approval or dissent from the public is concerned, look at the situation. Your Council spent eight months of honest, tedious and painstaking effort to get down the cost of the bridge to within reasonable distance of the bylaw voted amount. Nights of discussion, reams of publicity from people in the press. Silos full of unsolicited advice. Mandates from this, that and the other public bodies. Now along comes the School Board and plunks down a proposition to spend quite as much as the voted amount for the bridge on one school and on one expresses surprise.

Shall we say that the Council should adopt the methods of the Board. If so why not adopt the Board itself. Put the Council where the Board is and we may be jolly well sure that it will not spend as much as the overhead bridge will cost, because it has to raise the money and the Board has not. Is it because the Board is working on a vision and the Council on another million-dollar issue of new debentures when the projects in hand are cleaned up.

We can often size up a proposition by comparing it with something else. Why should this school cost three hundred per cent. more than the Turnbull building. As much as three such buildings, even with the stated advances in material and wages. Steel is lowered in cost. The Turnbull building provides ample light, is absolutely safe, is gracious in appearance and in appointments. And has nearly the floor capacity of the proposed school. If it were on a suitable lot it could at an expense of $15,000.00 be turned into a perfectly appointed and capacious school.

Shall we assume, and such assumption may be right, that lack of remonstrance comes from the fact that the long gamut of increasing prices and costs people have become dulled and saddened. That "what's the use" is the prevailing remark. That things have got so costly that the tail and hoofs might just as well go with the hide. That this latest demand is only another of the blows that killed father.

Respectfully,
F. H. DOBBIN.

SECOND ANNUAL

her bright and humorous way, said that, although the town was not large it was very much alive. The result of the ballot was in favor of Havelock.

Question Drawer.

A question drawer was then opened and many interesting questions were given and gracefully answered by Mrs. Bruce.

The afternoon session closed by singing the National Anthem after which tea was served to the delegates in the I.O.D.E. rooms. Needless to say this part of the program was very enjoyable.

Evening Session.

A very large and representative audience assembled in the evening when the chair was again ably filled by Mrs Howard.

After a few introductory remarks the several speakers were called upon to address the audience and were each made the recipients of a beautiful bouquet of flowers presented by dainty little white-clad maidens, and which were received with much grace.

The speakers in order were Mrs. Col Birdsall, Mrs. Bruce, Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Smith, who each presented their claims clothed in choice language and presented with much earnestness. The addresses were interspersed with vocal and instrumental selections which added much to the pleasure of the evening. After a vote of thanks to the different speakers, the National Anthem was sung with much enthusiasm and a successful convention was brought to a close, all the delegates feeling that "it was good to be there," and looking forward with pleasant anticipation to the next meeting in Havelock."

ENID BENNETT in "Partners Three"

DAINTY ENID BENNETT'S LATEST PHOTOPLAY "PARTNERS THREE" A STIRRING STORY OF DESERT LIFE

Popular Paramount Star Ideally Cast in Role of Exceptiona Strength Which Affords Her Rare Opportunities For Dramatic Effort—To be Shown at the Allen Theatre Friday and Saturday

Driven by necessity, Agnes Cuyler, a refined girl, is compelled to accept a position as dancer in a cafe and dance hall. While dancing among the tables one night, Grant Haywood, a drunkard and coward, seizes her and attempts to kiss her. She slaps his face and for this insult to a patron, she is summarily discharged.

Haywood, who is smitten by the girl's charms, follows her out of the resort, pleads remorse, beg her forgiveness and promises to make amends. Disgusted with her life, she ultimately accepts his offer of marriage, and they go westward.

When it is too late, Agnes discovers the real character of her worthless husband, who is an abusive sot. As they are driving across the desert in an automobile, she tries to prevent him from drinking a whiskey flask, whereupon Haywood brutally throws her out of the machine and leaves her to make her way to town as best she may.

Losing her way, Agnes falls exhausted and is found by Hassayampa Hardy, a desert rat, who takes her to his abode dugout. In the town, Haywood becomes fever-stricken and delirious, so that if he had purposed to do so, he is in no position to tell anyone of his wife's plight in the desert. Agnes tells her story to Hardy, and it developes that he had been defrauded out of a valuable mining claim by Haywood, for which he had sworn to kill him. When Agnes recovers her strength, Hardy takes her to Sandflat, where she obtains employment as waitress in a railway eating house.

While serving table one night, Agnes meets Arthur Gould, a penniless young man of education, who is forced by ill health to live in the desert. When she gives him food, he is thrown out of the restaurant. She gives him refuge in her own cottage, whereupon the tongue of scandal gets busy. Hardy arrives in town after striking it rich, and he forestalls the scandal mongers by taking Agnes and Gould with him to his dugout.

Haywood sees Hardy scooping up his rich ore, and meeting Agnes, hypocritically tells her that he has reformed. After stealing Hardy's claim notice, he induces Agnes to return with him to town. Unknown to her, he has drained the water barrels, thereby forcing Hardy and Gould to return to town.

Gould falls exhausted, and Hardy proceeds to the town for assistance.

While dusting Haywood's coat, Agnes discovers the stolen claim notice. She accuses him, and a quarrel follows. Haywood is choking her when Hardy bursts into the door, Haywood escapes by means of a window, and, followed by Hardy, flees into the desert. Hardy shoots a hole through the gasoline tank of Haywood's auto, and then, when Haywood is seeking to drink water from a canteen, Hardy perforates it with a bullet.

Haywood sinks exhausted, and when Hardy is satisfied that his enemy's end will be that to which he had escaped his wife some weeks previously, he returns to his dugout to find Agnes and Gould safe. He tells them the story of Haywood's fate and it is quite apparent that the friendship of Agnes and Gould has ripened into love.

In addition to this splendid photoplay the Allen will show the first episode of the new serial, "The Red Glove." The policy of the new theatre with its beautiful decorations, good music and better class pictures is attracting more friends daily. By opening the doors early, everyone is secured of a good seat and a splendid program of pictures every day.

REAL MUSICAL TREAT AT GRAND

It is not every day that the music-lovers of Peterborough are given a treat as that provided by Don Alfonso Zelaya, the eminent Spanish pianist, at the Grand this week. Zelaya, who is a native of a certain South American republic, is a most wonderful pianist and his performance last night was greatly appreciated by the big audience which greeted him. Not only does he play classical music by some of the old Spanish masters, but he played some of the popular rag-time, though he did deplore the fact that people seemed to appreciate this latter style of music more than they did the real article. In addition to his piano numbers Zelaya has quite an amusing monologue on the "Phsycology of Music". He will appear at all performances for the rest of the week.

Pretty Emmy Wehlen is again a feature at the Grand, this time in a picture entitled "A Favor to a Friend." Another feature film, entitled "The Woman Under Cover," starring Miss Fritzi Brunette, and the popular Vod-o-vil Movies conclude a most entertaining program.

"THE WOMAN UNDER COVER"

A picture-story of a very distinctive character and one that will interest an audience in spite of itself was unfolded at the Grand last night in "The Woman Under Cover". While this is a play wide and deep in its breadth of intake and possessed of a touching charm for all till it holds a very special message for those in any way connected with or interested in the press. The accuracy with which the life of news paper office and press room is pictured in the different scenes is above the reproach of the most critical scribe. It is all there in detail even to the most minute finishing touche and in watching it one can almost breathe the tense air of the new room and sense the surpressed excitement that permeates its atmosphere.

"Alma" is a lovable and somewhat mysteriously interesting personality on the screen. She is an idealist of a very commendable type. One who is convinced enough to live out her fine conception of justice in that he is ready to crush even her dearest personal interests for the sake of duty. Hers is a complex and thoroughly pleasing character a character extremely sensitive and yet strong enough to break over the rules of convention in a worthy cause. This part is excellently interpreted by the pretty little actress, Fritzi Brunette.

LOVE AFFAIRS OF YOUNG LADIES

PRETTILY TOLD IN "HIS BRIDAL NIGHT," A MUSICAL FARCE CREATION.

The speed limit is likely to be exceeded when the musical farce, "His Bridal Night," comes to the Grand Theatre, on Saturday, Oct. 4, matinee and evening.

Produced last year it served to crowd the theatres of the principal cities where it played and public and critics pronounced it a brilliant package of fun, done up in gay colors. Probably the most attractive part of the story is its youthfulness, as it concerns the love affairs of two very young ladies, twin sisters, whom none can tell apart. One of the twins is married in the first act, quarrels with her husband and convinces herself that she prefers her sister's sweetheart. The other girl upon discovering her with the young man, determines to teach her a lesson and without thinking of the embarrassing possibilities that might ensue impersonates the bride and begins the wedding journey with the bridegroom. The bride becomes repentant and then enraged upon discovering that she has been left out of her own honeymoon, and follows them with the other young man. When they arrive at the cottage in Tuxedo, the husband is still at a loss to tell which is the bride and the young man can not tell which is his sweetheart when both are together. The girls being angry with each other and also with the young men refuse to set matters right and the humorous complications are many.

The story sounds risque, but it never outsteps the bounds, the humor of the situations being used with splendid restraint by that expert farceur, Margaret Mayo, whose "Twin Beds" met with merited success. Robert Knight will portray the role of the distracted husband. The Crisp Sisters, twins in real life are the twins of the play. Bertha Julian will play the chaperon the aunt who loses her charges; Charles Bennett is the mystified lover and Frank Cullen will be seen as the butler.

EVERY SENNETT STAR COMEDIAN

WILL BE SEEN IN "JACK CANUCK IN BERLIN" AT GRAND THEATRE.

Every Sennett face and figure that has come to national fame through the productions of the king of film comedy will be seen in Sennett's greatest production greater even than his recent screen sensation, "Mickey" a burlesque on German royalist pretension titled "Jack Canuck in Berlin," which comes to the Grand Theatre on Thursday and Friday next.

This is the first time since "Fatty and the Broadway Stars" by the same producer, that he has permitted his whole array of stellar talent to appear in one comedy. It includes Charlie Murray, Ben Turpin Ford Sterling, Marie Prevost, Phyllis Haver, Chester Conklin, Eva Thatcher, Bert Roach, the famous bunch of California rosebuds, the Sennett bathing beauties, and (specially engaged) Bothwell Browne, noted stage impersonator of female characters, who is the pivotal point of the fun.

Browne, as an American aviator in feminine disguise, "vamps" Wilhelm, the safety-first Crown Prince Hindenburg and other court figures gets "the papers," and returns safely to America.

The usual Sennett comedy is in two reels. "Jack Canuck in Berlin" is in five, and is called an hour of continuous hilarity.

THRILLING SCENES ABOUND IN THIS FEATURE STARRING ALICE JOYCE

"The Cambric Mask," the Alice Joyce Picture Saturday, which will be seen in the Empire Theatre on Friday and Saturday, is a swift-moving romance centering about the activities of a band of White Riders and there are many thrilling scenes in which Miss Joyce, beautiful Vitagraph star, has an opportunity to show a skill and daring in the saddle that will surprise most of her film admirers.

In one scene, Miss Joyce's screen sweetheart has been seized by the Riders and is being taken to a swamp to his death. To save him she winds herself in a sheet, and wearing a white cambric mask, joins the band. Ranging her horse alongside that ridden by the man she loves she is able in the darkness to cut the ropes at his wrists and also to hand him a pistol.

When the swamp is reached she stampedes the horses of the other riders by charging among them and as the pistol battle that ensues roll escape after a wild ride through the night. The scene is splendidly photographed showing Vitagraph's beautiful star in a most unusual role.

The feature is adapted from the novel of the same title by Robert W. Chambers and was directed by Tom Terriss. In the supporting cast are Herbert Pate, Maurice Costello, Roy Applegate, Bernard Siegel, Jules Cowles, Martin Faust, and Florence Deshon.

THE RED GLOVE PACKED WITH THRILLS, WILL BE SHOWN AT THE ALLEN FOR THE FIRST TIME TO-DAY

Those who are going to follow the newest serial treat of Marie Walcamp fame have some thrills in store for them. Corilla servants, a disappearing band of villains called "The Vultures," a hidden valley where the vultures literally disappear from sight, a pool of lost souls and crackerjack love story are features of the newest Universal serial, "The Red Glove," filmed from Douglass Grant's splendid novel, "The Fifth Ace." The first episode will be shown at the Allen on Friday and Saturday, and the succeeding ones every week on the same days.

Having scored splendidly in three Universal serials, Marie Walcamp has just completed the fourth and from all advance reports it is the best of the lot. It was adapted from Douglas Grant's well-known novel of western life, "The Fifth Ace," and when completed was called "The Red Glove" for the reason that the secret of the location of "The Pool of Lost Souls" was inside of an old red glove. Don't miss the opening episode.

OPEN NIGHT AT Y.M.C.A.

The Y. M. C. A. is now ready for the coming Fall and Winter season and the friends of the Association are invited to visit the building, during the course of this evening, and see the recent improvements which have done much to facilitate supervision and add to the appearance of the Association.

No set program has been arranged but a team of old timers just returned from overseas service will meet a team of ex-Collegiate boys in basketball. The line-up will be as follows:

Old Timers	Ex-Collegiate
Walter Flowers	Ross Pogue
Art. Horsfield	Tom Pogue
Claire Stuart	Fred Brooks
Chalmer Nicholls	Jack Thirnbeck
Elmer Brown	Allan Stevenson

It is certain that with such a line-up many spectators will be present to see the match. The ladies are also invited to be present and will be guided through the building.

HELD FOR MURDER

Toronto, Sept. 25. Twice during the night, Fred Hanson, charged with the murder of William Hansen, a Dane, at a house on St. Andrew's street, tried to hang himself in his cell at West Dundas Street Station. He was continually watched after his second attempt by the station duty man. It is understood that after he had recovered from his intoxication he was very despondent.

The body of the murdered man was removed from Grace Hospital to the Morgue, yesterday, and it is believed the inquest will be opened tonight.

LAKEFIELD FAIR ONE OF THE BEST IN PETERBORO COUNTY

High CIAss Exhibits and Special Attractions---Gate Receipts Exceed Those of Last Year

The 65th anniversary of the exhibition of the Lakefield Agricultural Society was held on Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept 23 and 24.

Record crowds brought satisfaction, not only to the directors, but to every citizen of Lakefield. It was proof that the people of Lakefield and vicinity are solidly behind the management in their efforts to make the Lakefield exhibition one of the best in the country.

Despite the threatening and disagreeable weather, the lure of the exhibition proved irresistible to quite a number of citizens and the general opinion is that Lakefield fair shows improvement each year.

The Exhibits.

The exhibits of fancy work were numerous and dainty.

The showing of garden produce were good, which shows that nature has been generous to the toilers of the soil.

The judge of poultry states that the showing of poultry this year is much better than the previous year, regarding class as well as quantity.

The outside exhibits of stock were also better than last year.

Midway Attractions.

The midway offered its usual attractions including ring the cane, knock the Kaiser and etc.

Refreshments.

R. H. Alford had the monopoly of the grounds for refreshments and handled the crowd in a very capable, manner, supplying the visitors from "hot dogs" to ice cream cones.

Hot dinner and tea were served in the exhibition building.

Indian Band.

The Chemong Band was in attendance. A football match was played between Chemong and Lakefield during the afternoon.

Ford Cars.

Ford motor cars and 1-ton motor trucks were demonstrated by Mr. J. J. Duffus.

Cut Glass Showing.

For the Housekeeper.

The J. C. Turnbull Company had some very interesting exhibits. For the housekeeper in the line of stoves, kitchen cabinets and wear-ever illuminum ware. The stove on exhibit was the Tropic range, made by the Adam Hall Limited, Peterborough. Mr. Telford exhibited for the company.

Musical Exhibits.

The musical exhibit of the Peterborough Heintzman Hall was in charge of the enthusiastic salesman, Mr. G. Hutchinson. The samples chosen for this display were a Cecilian player piano, the Canada and the Heintzman Upright, also an attractive Cabinet Brunswick Victrola.

The firm's city showrooms, Heintzman Hall, Royal Bank building, corner George and Hunter street, Peterborough, are open evenings. A hearty welcome awaits all visitors.

Hardware Showing.

The Lakefield hardware was represented by Mr. Roy Robinson. Mr. Robinson presented to the public samples of Bird & Son's Paroid roofing, Neponset twin shingles, Neponset wallboard, etc. A stove and Sharples suction-feed cream separators were also on display. The good points of these were demonstrated by the representative.

Electrical Exhibit.

The newly constituted electrical firm, Messrs. Miller, Powell & Watson, to be known as "The Electric Shop," set a good pace on the fair grounds by their well arranged electrical exhibit, lighting the exhibition building for the evening performance. The members of this young firm are all practical electricians, with their place of business at No. 438 George street, formerly Alexander & Miller.

Electric lighting on the farm received important attention from this firm and the installation of rural lighting outfits is a hobby. The Delco system, which has been demonstrated at the fairs by the late Alexander & Miller firm is now taken over by "The Electric Shop." Mr. Hicks represented for the "The Electric Shop."

$7,500--THE RED TRIANGLE DRIVE--$7,500

PETERBOROUGH'S SHARE

The great work conducted for "Our Boys" "over there" and in looking after their comfort in England before sailing for home, as well as on the troopships, and later on the troop trains and in the demobilization centres and military hospitals in Canada, will be completed by April 1st, 1920. In the meantime, money—considerable, of it, although not as much as before—is required to carry the work to a successful conclusion. Peterborough's share is only $7,500. This is mostly for the National Red Triangle Fund, but it includes an allowance that was set aside to place our local Y.M.C.A. in first-class shape to look after the needs of over 200 returned men who are now usingour Peterborough Association—has given its local returned men a six months' full membership ticket free of charge, and tens of thousands of them are using these privileges. We want the men to know and feel that we are glad to have them back home with us.

THE WORK IN CANADA

In Canada, a great work, much of it by voluntary assistance, has been conducted. In one year in Ontario and Quebec—67 places served. These included: 39 hospitals, 11 barracks, 14 camps and three Red Triangle Clubs.
1,090 cinema entertainments were given.
1,066 religious meetings and 316 Bible classes held.
1,755 decisions for Christ were made.
2,188 athletic events were staged.
45,691 coats and kits were stowed free.
41,890 books were distributed.
183,218 meals were served.
2,697 meals were supplied free.

REV. ALLEN DELIVERS HELPFUL ADDRESS AT HARVEST FESTIVAL

Sacred Edifice Beautifully Decorated—Memorial Tablet to Fallen Heroes Dedicated

In their beautifully decorated church, and amid an atmosphere reflecting a plentiful harvest of grain and fruit, the congregation of St. Luke's Anglican Church held their annual harvest festival last night. It was a beautiful service throughout, both music and chanting having a certain fervor that conveyed a sense of the spiritual.

Besides the thanksgiving service this was the occasion of the dedication of a handsome memorial tablet of those who had fallen in the war. Rev. Mr. White, pastor of the church, spoke of those heroes of St. Luke's. Eight of the congregation had paid the supreme sacrifice, and of these five had been active members of the Sabbath School. This is also, he said, a special thanksgiving for the devotion displayed by our soldiers during the terrible struggle.

The sermon of the occasion was delivered by Cannon Allen of Millbrook, one of the oldest clergy in this district. He commenced by expressing his great joy in being able to be present to participate in such service of thankfulness to God.

Seeking for Worldly Gain.

The business men of today are always looking for some enterprise that has a good think in it. They are seeking to obtain riches, wealth and luxury. But the apostle said: "It is good to give, not to receive," to render thanksgiving unto God for all his mercies. "God's gifts are so vast we can't thank him enough." "It is a good thing to give thanks with our lips, but it is much better to give thanks with our lives." The speaker went on with an appeal for the people to give thanks by giving up their lives for Him and for his service and donate our lives in all devotedness to His service.

"Thanksgiving is a large and important part of Godliness." "When we think of God we think of gifts cast upon us." "It is impossible for any Christian to believe in God without having a thankful heart."

Present Day Topics.

Then the speaker turned his thoughts and remarks to things of today. Everywhere in the newspapers on the street and in all places people are thinking greatly of things that have to do with the world as it is at the present time. The people are largely characterized with a great ambition to become rich with worldly goods. It is not their eternal welfare with which they are concerned but with how to get along in this world.

How to Get Contentment.

We are continually hearing and speaking of restlessness and discontent of our times. We have heard of the terrible massacre and cruelty of Russia and from everywhere news of strikes are coming to us. "But over all restlessness is found rest by the Godly man. Money is the root of all evil but Godliness with contentness is great gain."

We hear people speaking of what a wonderful country this is; what great wealth is contained in our vast domains. But there are those who rise above these material things and think of what is Godly and right. What an imperfect view of life it is to think solely of how to get our daily bread. "There is great sorrow for those who make worldly life their all. But how different it is for those who trust in the living God." The idea of the Christian life is not fully realized by many."

Contrast With Two Worlds.

But we must not hide ourselves from the world. God put us into this world to be sociable to our fellow men. "We must get in contact with two worlds," declared the speaker. "We must form an invisible contact with things spiritual." We honor our leaders and soldiers but we must also honor the leaders and soldiers of the cause of Christ. A Christian is he who is in close touch with both worlds.

True Profit.

We hear a great deal about profits and profiteers at this time. The apostle says that "Godliness is profitable unto all." We have God's promise of life in this world and in the world to come.

If we follow God we are not promised worldly wealth and riches, but they usually follow. It is men and women of a modest Christian character that attain the best positions in life. It is the modest character that comes from Godliness that guarantees success," and the promise is fulfilled alike to rich and poor.

Let Us Reap Our Harvest.

Let us reap the harvest of the blood that has been shed for us upon the fields of France and Flanders. Shall we throw away all that our boys have fought and died for. Let us partake of all that betokens of Godliness. Let us all realize our personal responsibilities in these matters and be content with such things as we have. Let us all dedicate ourselves to God and be not governed by things worldly.

Cannon Allen ended this beautiful, strong, helpful address with the quotation from the Gospel, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and all things shall be added unto you.

Rev. Mr. White conducted the service, assisted by Rev. Mr. Grobb. Mr. Cecil Devey very ably conducted the organ and the choir and congregation did much to brighten the service by the enthusiasm with which they entered into their part.

GOVERNM'NT TO USE ARMED FORCE

ALARMIST REPORTS SAY CIVIL WAR IS IMMINENT IN ITALY

Nationalists and Militarist Factions Opposed by Socialists Navy Said to be Dissatisfied With Anglo-French Attitude

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Rome, Sept. 27.—Alarmist reports are current in this city, one of them being that civil war is imminent. On one side would be ranged nationalist and militarist factions, which would be opposed by the socialists. Several generals are credited with the intention of heading the militarist faction with a view to controlling the government, it being said that they believe the weakness of those in power since the armistice has caused the present deadlock. Some of these generals have already been mentioned as being in league with Capt. Gabriele D'Annunzio before the Fiume raid, with the object of overthrowing by force the Nitti cabinet and replacing it with a military dictatorship.

Navy Dissatisfied.

The navy is reported as being even more dissatisfied than the army, having, according to naval officers' statements, suffered more from the lack of consideration of their Anglo-French colleagues, who have acted as if they were masters of the Adriatic, and have favored the Jugo-Slav claims.

Foreign Minister Tittoni is said to have expressed the belief that the first thing to be done in the present serious situation was for the cabinet to resign.

BRITISH RAILWAY STRIKE WILL TIE UP COMPLETELY ALL SUBWAY LINES TODAY

Union Officials, in Quitting the Conference With Government, Have Closed the Door to Further Negotiations---Summoning of Parliament is Demanded by People—All England Placed Under War Regime—Strike a Wanton War on Society

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Sept. 27.—The railwaymen's strike, which went into effect at midnight, will affect six hundred thousand employes. The Government will use all its resources to control the situation, and with armed force if necessary.

Others Will Join.

J. H. Thomas, secretary of the Railwaymen's Union, says the miners and transport workers will join in the strike.

Tie Up Subways.

Inquiries at all steam railway stations in London this morning received the uniform reply, "No trains running," as a result of the strike order issued at midnight by the National Union of Railwaymen. While a number of the underground lines in the city continued operating during the early hours today, it was declared that the decision of the underground motormen's union last night to support the National Union of Railwaymen will result in a complete tie-up of the subways today.

No Strike in Ireland.

The Government having failed in its negotiations with the union to adjust the situation, is said to be prepared to operate the railways with armed forces, if necessary, but its definite program for meeting conditions before the country has not yet developed. It has issued orders placing all England under a war regime, so far as food and fuel are concerned, and it was stated yesterday that the mails would be carried by airplanes. So far, employes of the Irish railroads have not struck.

Disquieting Features.

"One of the most disquieting features of the situation is the possibility that the miners and transport workers, who, with the railwaymen, form what is known as the "Triple Alliance," may also strike. Government spokesmen declare the action of the union officials in quitting the conference with the Cabinet has "closed the door" to further negotiations. On the other hand, President Cramp of the union declares the organization is ready to continue conversations.

Summon Parliament.

Several papers, commenting upon the strike, urge an immediate summoning of Parliament, and there are some indications that this will be done. It is contended that the nation does not know the full story, and that only searching debates in the House of Commons will reveal it. All shades of opinion in the London press, except the Labourite Herald, condemn the National Union of Railwaymen's action, which, in declaring a strike, is described as a "wanton war on society and an attempt to starve the country into submission." An appeal to the people to support the Government in its fight to a finish is made.

No Shadow of Excuse.

The Daily News, which is always sympathetic to Labor, says: "There was no shadow of the semblance of an excuse for the strike," adding "There is ground for hope that the sense of the wantonness of the wrong done the nation may bring a swift end to the strike."

J. H. Thomas, union leader, and certain of his colleagues, are credited by some newspapers with having tried to avert the strike, which is attributed in these quarters to alleged extremists who captured control of the executive committee of the union.

Walked Out in Body.

So far as could be learned at noon members of National Union of Railwaymen had walked out in a body and that the stoppage of service was complete. Subway trains had come to a complete standstill shortly after ten o'clock. In the big freight yards motor cars driven by soldiers were carrying off perishable articles which arrived on late trains from outlying sections.

C. T. Cramp, president of the Union, interviewed Sir Eric Geddes Minister of Transport, this forenoon. This is considered an indication that the men and the Government still maintain friendly terms toward each other. Mr Cram declared shortly after noon that his presence at Whitehall this morning had nothing to do with the re-opening of negotiations. None of early newspaper trains left London, but the management of newspapers anticipating a strike, made arrangements two to three days ago to distribute papers by motor cars and motor lorries. Several members of the Cabinet went to Downing street this forenoon and remained there in continued consultation throughout the morning keeping in touch with the strike situation.

THREE MILLION WORKERS ARE AFFECTED BY BRITISH STRIKE

Ben Tillett, Labor M. P., Declares a Monstrious Conspiracy to be at Root of Trouble—Government Committed to Carry Goods of Profiteers Free.

Hamilton, Sept. 27. More than three million workers will be affected by the British railway strike, in the opinion of Ben Tillett, the British Labor M.P.

"The root cause of the trouble," says Mr. Tillett, "lies in what is considered a monstrous conspiracy between the railways in collusion with the Government, to maintain an impossible condition of living for the workers. The railways, I believe, welcome the possibility of a strike, as this would relieve them of their pension obligations to their old employes.

"The direct cause of the present breach is that although an agreement was reached last April and ratified in May to the effect that a certain standard of wages should be given, it has taken the Board of Trade, the railways and Sir Eric Geddes all this time to make their arrangements. The Government has already committed itself to the profiteer traders to carry their goods for nothing, and to convenience these profiteers they inconvenience the whole country.

"Canadian bacon by the millions of pounds is rotting on the docks and has to be used for soap making and millions of dollars worth of other commodities are being permitted to waste in like manner, due to the way in which the railways have been allowed to control all transportation affairs to their wishes, which are daily more seriously distorting the entire transportation industry and causing an all round loss of carrying efficiency. To all these things the Government appear to have consented, and in handling them they appear to have been struck with palsy. Had such a policy been adopted during the war the Germans would have overwhelmed us in a minute.

"The cruel irony of it is that the merchants, traders and manufacturers are suffering no loss through it, and the state is bearing the expense so that the profiteers may continue to rob the country by holding up the prices of food. They are simply asking for revolution."

Asked for an estimate of what the loss would be daily, Mr. Tillett replied: "It is almost inconceivable. I can say, however, that it would run into the billions of dollars in an incredibly short time. I feel sure, however," he said, in conclusion, "the Government will be brought to book and must fully realise the situation. If they don't do so, it will mean civil strife."

103 ARE INDICTED IN RACE RIOTS

CHARGES ARE MURDER, ARSON AND ASSAULT — EVIDENCE STRONG AGAINST NEGROES.

Chicago, Sept 26.—All told there are now 103 indictments for murder, arson and other offenses against persons charged with taking a hand in the race riots which began on July 29 and ran three days. The rioters killed 39. Four victims lingered and died since the riot week. These are figures from a summary by State's Attorney Hoyne issued today.

The amount of work done jointly by State's Attorney Hoyne's office and that of Attorney-General Brundage in the collection of evidence neglected by the Chicago police department is indicated in the number of indictments against white defendants, according to an unofficial survey. When the riot grand jury began work, it appeared that the sum total of evidence gathered by the police was over-whelmingly against the colored participants. The actions that now rest against white men are the result, almost wholly, of the special efforts of the state's attorney and the attorney-general.

"About 600 witnesses have been brought in and questioned by the investigation department," says the summary. "Written statements have been taken from about 800 persons by assistants from the state's attorney's office. This testimony is bound in eight volumes, comprising about 5,000 pages, all indexed on cards so that the exact status of any particular case can be learned by reference thereto."

COMPANIES AND MEN MARKING TIME

GENERAL INFLUX OF MEN TO STEEL MILLS EXPECTED NEXT WEEK.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Pittsburg, Sept 27. The close of the first week of the steel workers' strike was not expected to see any radical changes in the situation. Both sides today virtually marked time, waiting for Monday, when both steel companies and strike leaders expect a change. Steel company officials said they did not expect any considerable number of men to return to the mills, but did look for a general influx with the beginning of the new week.

BOMB EXPLODED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Parry Sound, Sept. 27. A German bomb on exhibition at the fall fair was accidentally exploded yesterday, killing James Alvis.

ORGANIZATION OF REFERENDUM --MOVEMENT HERE IS COMPLETE

Chairmen of Wards and Sub divsion Chairmen Appointed—Campaign Well Under Way.

This week finds the organization of the Referendum Movement in Peterborough practically complete. An immense amount of work has been done, and while a lot of it has been done without flourish or demonstration it will be none the less effective. Friends of the movement can rest assured that nothing that will help is being overlooked, and while there is as yet some things to perfect the back of the campaign has been broken and well on the way.

Fifty committees have been selected and are at work. These include the Executive Committees, Five Wards Committees and Forty-four Committees, assigned, one to each polling division or polling place for the district immediately surrounding the location.

In the usual municipal or indeed political election, the twenty-two polling stations in the city generally suffice. But as the possible vote, this time, is over one hundred per cent. more than ever before accommodation has to be provided. The full list of stations will be announced.

The War Committee takes care of the ward organization. The Polling Division Committee of the interests in the division. By this means nearly six hundred good men and women are at work and already the results begin to show. Several of the sub-committees have already completed the canvas of the territory and report an overwhelming majority for what is termed "the four noes." In several district assurances were freely given that will warrant the conclusion that there will not be one adverse ballot cast in that section.

Following is the completed list of committees and the officers having matters in charge:

MEN'S COMMITTEE.

South Ward.

Chairman R. C. Braund, 53 Park street.

Sub-division Chairmen.

Poll 2 H Turner, 29 Park street.

Poll 3 C. A. Kidd, 29 Crescent street.

Poll 4 M Cain 163 Alymer street.

Poll 5 Robt. Cruikshank, 589 Sherbrooke street.

West Ward.

Chairman W. Shiner, 111 Margaret avenue.

Sub-division Chairmen.

Poll 10 E Walton, 507 King street.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT OFFERED STANDARD WAGE TO STRIKERS

Equal to an Average of Hundred Per cent Over Pre-War Pay---Irrespective of Fall in Cost of Living.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Sept 27. Sir Robert S Horne, Minister of Labor, last night summarized the Government's standpoint in controversy with the National Union of Railwaymen as follows:

A new standard wage was proposed by the Government to an average of at least one hundred per cent. over pre-war wages, and guaranting to every adult worker irrespective of any fall in the cost of living, a permanent minimum wage of 46 shillings per week, compared to 18 to 20 before the war, extra payments for Sunday and night duty and overtime, which would equal another 20 per cent. on the pre-war wage. A reduction in the hours of labor from ten to eight and in some cases from twelve to eight. In any event, the men would, until December 31, continue to receive their present aggregate earnings, and in the meantime the Government would continue negotiations. There has been no question of reduction of the present wage on December 31, if the cost of living remains the same, in which case the men would receive the full aggregate wages they now receive as long as the extra cost of living does not fall 110 per cent. below the normal and remain there for three months.

DEADLOCK IN STRIKE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Sept 27. A deadlock exists in steel strike, both claim to be confident everything quiet at all large centres.

FEWER APPEALS IN COUNTY

Work of Enumerators in Townships Appears to be Accurate.

The work of completing the voters' list in the country is being rushed with the utmost zeal and thoroughness. Two townships have already been covered and the appeals were not very numerous. The work of the enumerators appears to have been very accurate in those parts of the county, and the enumeration board hope to have the "whole business cleaned up by October 5."

ADELINA PATTI DIED TODAY

VOICE OF QUEEN OF SINGERS THRILLED GREATEST CONTEMPORARIES OF HER DAY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Sept 27 Adelina Patti, the Prima Donna, died this morning at Craig-Y-Nos Castle, Penycae, South Wales.

Mme. Adelina Patti reigned for forty years as queen of singers and her marvellous voice thrilled the greatest contemporaries of her day. Mme. Patti as a child of seven years made her debut at Tripler Hall in New York, singing "Arias" from Barber in 1850.

RE-ORGANIZE SERGT.'S MESS

At an enthusiastic meeting of sergeants of the 57th Regiment, held in the messroom yesterday evening, it was decided to reorganize the mess at once. An organization meeting will be held next week, of which notice will be given.

ACQUITTED ON MURDER CHARGE

CROWDS IN COURT HOUSE CHEERED WHEN JURY BROUGHT IN VERDICT.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Kingston, Sept. 27 After being out three hours the jury returned a verdict acquitting James Hartwick of murder of his brother Stephen Frederick Hartwick, near Parkham.

Sensational Trial.

This was the result of a sensational trial in which Fred Hartwick's wife gave evidence against her father-in-law. The court room was crowded even at an early hour, when the verdict was brought in this morning. When the foreman announced the verdict there was great applause, which Justice Lennox rebuked, saying it was no credit to them. There was affectionate scenes when Hartwick reunited with his family in the court room. He has been in jail since February, and remarked, "Now I suppose I had better go down street and buy a straw hat."

FIVE TEAMSTERS STILL ON STRIKE

The five teamsters employed on the bridge who struck yesterday afternoon for one dollar an hour are still off today. They claim that a team and heavy wagon is worth more than one dollar a day above the amount allowed for a single horse. When asked this morning how this would affect the work on the bridge Mr. Townsend replied that it would make practically no difference to them as far as carrying on the work was concerned. A strike of five men hardly seems sufficient to do much harm to a work like the bridge especially when there are still four or five teamsters at work at their old wage.

PROFITS OF BIG U. S. PACKERS REPORTED UNREASONABLY HIGH

Three Times as Great as in Pre-War Years—Recommendations Made by Commissioner Hoover.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—Maximum profits for the five big packers under limitations prescribed by the food administration during the war "were unreasonably high," and from two and one-quarter to three times as great as those in prewar years, according to a report made to President Wilson by the federal trade commission June 28, 1918, but withheld from the public at the request of Food Administrator Hoover. A copy of the report, with letters sent by Mr Hoover and the commission to the president, was transmitted to the senate by the commission in response to a resolution by Senator Norris (rep.) of Nebraska.

To Compute Profits on Net Worth.

Recommendations made by the commission included:

"That net worth (actual invested capital represented by stock issued and surplus) as of Nov. 1, 1917, be the basis upon which the allowed rate of profit be computed for all packers, large and small.

"That the normal rate for the five chief packers be 7 per cent. on net worth, with one-half of 1 per cent increased allowance for every 10 per cent. increase in weight slaughtered, and one-half of 1 per cent decrease in rate for every 10 per cent. decrease in weight slaughtered, the maximum profit allowed not to go above 9 per cent.

"That the maximum allowed the smaller packers be 9 per cent., increasing on a sliding scale to 11 per cent., but without a decreasing scale.

Would Turn Excess Over to U. S.

"That profits in excess of the prescribed rates be either turned over to the treasurer of the United States or applied against further government purchases."

In his letter to the president, dated July 8, 1918, Mr Hoover said he did not believe that any useful purpose is served "by public ventilation of interdepartmental disagreements as to governmental policy," and added:

"If congress passes sufficiently strong excess profits legislation it will automatically correct the situation and meet the views of both the trade commission and ourselves. My proposal is, therefore, that the whole matter shall be laid aside until the action of Congress is determinable."

Earnings on Borrowed Capital.

In another letter Mr. Hoover said: "The food administration regulations permit earnings upon borrowed as well packers' own capital, whereas the trade commission proposes that no profits should be allowed on borrowed capital. This appears to us to strike at the base of most business enterprises. As we understand it, a large part of the commerce and trade of the country is founded on the earnings of an excess sum on borrowed capital over the bare interest cost, and we feel that if this principle proposed by the trade commission were laid down as a precedent, it would produce an absolute state of panic in the United States."

LENOR THINKS HE IS DEAD

Frenchman Saved from Execution to Face Caillaux Cannot Stand.

Paris, Sept. 27. Pierre Lenoir, whose execution was postponed last Friday morning by the authorities, will, it is expected, be confronted by Joseph Caillaux, former premier, today. According to the Echo de Paris, Lenoir is in a state of most extreme weakness and unable to stand, being obsessed with the idea that he has been executed.

BOTH RE-ELECTED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Hamilton, Sept. 27.—President Tom Moore and Secretary Draper, were re-elected by acclamation by the Trades and Labor Congress.

GIVES TWENTY MILLIONS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Sept. 27.—John D. Rockefeller gives twenty million dollars for improvement of medical education in the United States.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

SATURDAY, SEPT. 27, 1919.

WHAT ABOUT A CONVENTION?

OF COURSE, it can be taken for granted that West Peterborough Liberal-Conservatives are not going to allow the election to go by default to the other party; but is it not time a Liberal-Conservative convention to nominate a candidate was in sight? Time is short enough in any event to conduct a campaign, and surely the widely-published Conservative activities in ridings adjacent to Peterborough and throughout the whole Province should have, one would have thought, quickened the West Peterborough party into campaign energy

THE UNION GOVERNMENT.

THE UNION Government in Canada served the purpose for which it was formed (war work), and on the whole served it well, is the opinion of the Montreal Daily Star, which adds: To go on with the war it needed a strong pull, a long pull and a pull all together, and this could not be done without concessions from strong party men. When the Unionist Liberals joined the Conservatives under Sir Robert Borden, the remuant of the Liberal party looked on. United action was secured by coalition. To have had wranglings and bickerings over war measures would have hindered and hurt the cause.

The time is approaching when the old party lines should be and will be re-established. In every country where constitutional government exists there are two parties, and sometimes half a dozen, but nearly always two with strong organization and definite policies.

One by one the Liberal members of Parliament, the supporters of the Union Government's war measures, have broken away. Only a few of these have re-joined the Liberals, but the others have become obstacles in the path of progressive government.

Canada needs the policy of Macdonald and Cartier quite as much today as it did in 1878, when the National Policy was put in force after the election forty years ago. The National Protective Policy gave Canada its first chance as an industrial self-supporting country. It gave to the mechanic a home market for his labor. It gave the farmer a home market in feeding the hundreds of thousands of artizans needed to carry out the policy. It gave traffic to our railways, employment for an army of bookkeepers, stenographers and clerks of every grade. It was the workingman's friend; without it Canada would have been a fringe of the United States a breeding place for emigrants to the Republic.

Protection under proper control helps to cheapen the cost of living. Foreigners, in an endeavor to secure our markets, have at times dumped goods all over the Dominion to undersell the product of our local industry. They will do it again or attempt it. The consumers' approval of these dumped goods would be temporary and illusory. The moment the local Canadian industries were destroyed by the dumping process now high prices would be charged by these foreign invaders of our market, and our home industries would be paralyzed or weakened, leaving the mechanic no choice but emigration. Canada's only policy for increasing population and for becoming a great nation is the fostering of home industries with sufficient safeguards against mergers and ample security for free competition

THE HOUSING SCHEME.

THE PROVINCIAL housing scheme has not been embraced by municipalities with the enthusiasm one might have looked for. In no municipality which reported progress in this regard to Peterborough's City Council was there evidence of that readiness on the part of working men to take advantage of the opportunity offered to acquire a home on the instalment plan, when that plan these days would not give them one in keeping with modern tastes for approximately less than $3100, excluding lots, for that is the average working out of the figures presented. In fact, wages and materials are so high that it does not appear profitable to the average working man to invest in real estate on the loan system. Were a house to cost $3100 to build, his home would stand him, exclusive of lot, not far short of $4000 in most localities, and comparing that price with figures which obtained before the war, he naturally looks for a big drop in values long before he had the property paid for. This would mean a dead loss both in interest and capital to any one saddling themselves with a comparatively large and long-standing debt at a time when values are in all probability at their highest water-mark.

However, the scheme as a whole is a commendable one, and reflects that thought for the masses by governments and municipalities of which there has been too little in the past. And the movement, while new to Canada, is not so to the old world. Holland, for instance, has met the housing problem with a vigor and aggressiveness which astounds the Anglo-Saxon visitor. Without commissions, enquiries, officials or ministers, the Dutchman has houses to meet his requirements. In this respect he is head and shoulders over other nationalities, but how it is done seems to be his own secret so far.

A correspondent, after a visit to Holland, says: "It would do the heart of the reformer good to wander through Amsterdam and Leyden and some of the other places, and see not isolated houses, or samples of communities, or even streets, being erected, but whole districts springing up as it were by magic. These houses are not solidly built. That is not the Dutch way. But they are there, and the workmen are living in them, and if you talk to the people who are concerned with the production of the efforts made in England, they smile in a kindly sort of way and think you are pulling their leg.

"When I looked at all those evidences of common sense and capacity, it seemed that the only way to help my own country would be to plead with the Dutch, as an act of grace, to let us have, at least for a time, those who made the arrangements for the houses, those who planned them, and those who actually built them."

In face of the foregoing the Provincial Legislature might profitably send a commission to Holland to take a leaf out of the Dutchman's book on the housing proposition

THE WORLD'S COAL.

ACCORDING to the Vossische Zeitung, contracts have been placed with the United States for the supply of American coal to Germany. Before the war, some 54 per cent. of all the coal reserves in Europe were estimated to be in the German Empire, while Great Britain possessed about 24 per cent., and France less than 10 per cent. The alteration of the Franco-German frontier, brought about by the peace treaty, has, however, made a big change in this respect, and with the mines of Lorraine at her disposal, it is likely that France has more than doubled her coal reserve at the expense of Germany. The United States, of course, will have no difficulty in sending to Germany all the coal she can buy, for within the territory of the great American Commonwealth there is waiting to be mined over 4,000,000,000,000 tons, or, approximately, 50 per cent. of the known coal reserve of the entire world. The coal reserves of Great Britain are reckoned at something over 200,000,000,000 tons, or only about 2.5 per cent. of the world's total, sufficient of last barely three centuries at the pre-war rate of consumption.

When this paper says the United States will have no difficulty in supplying Germany with all the coal she can buy, it does not reckon with the problem of mining the coal. The 4,000,000,000,000 tons of black diamonds below the earth do not relieve the situation unless the mines are worked to sufficient capacity to meet the demand. And how is that going to be effected with shorter working hours, apparently not made good by an equable increase in the number of miners? So far, we are not yet in sight of the day when, by reason of coal exhaustion, we shall be impelled to seek some other agency for heat. But we are face to face with the question of mining in sufficient quantities and finding efficient transportation facilities to serve the world. Peterborough is not so far from the mines, as distances go on this continent, but let anybne who is anxious as to next winter's coal, phone the local coal offices for fuel, and he or she will hear a reply that will foreshadow conditions this coming season far from reassuring.

NO VISIBLE IMPROVEMENT.
(Buffalo Commercial.)

With the coming of prohibition it was confidently expected in some quarters that our methods and manners would improve, but for some reason or other wild men seem to be growing wilder.

MAY EXPLAIN IT.
(Kingston Whig.)

If the House sits over thirty-one days each member gets $2500; if it sits less than thirty-one days they get twenty dollars a day. That may explain the long-winded speeches which are entirely superfluous to the real work being done in Parliament.

MIGHT WELL ASK.
(Toronto Mail and Empire.)

The miners in the United States want a six-hour day and a five-day week. However, they have been beaten by their radical brethren in England. Some of these are now demanding a four-hour day. Why should the mines be worked at all?

A SUPERIOR ACCOMPLISHMENT.
(Utica Observer.)

A fourteen-year-old girl, Martha Brissette, of Butte, Mont., has established herself as the best bread maker in her home city and she is attracting more attention at the Montana State Fair than she would by wearing summer furs, extremely tight skirts and powdering her face.

WAITING FOR PERFECTION.
(New York World.)

That turdy English democrat, former Food Cohtroller Clynes, voices a reasonable opinion when he says: "I would rather begin with an imperfect League of Nations than not begin at all." Those who urge us to wait for perfection do not wish to "begin."

AS VIEWED FROM BUFFALO.
(Buffalo Express.)

The Canadian Trades and Labor Congress is meeting in Hamilton, Ontario, and the 800 delegates are being urged to do their utmost to allay the unrest in the Labor field. The radical element got their femon in the Winnipeg strike, and there has been a noticeable improvement in the situation in the Dominion since then

WELL KNOWN CHARACTERS.
(Christian Science Monitor.)

One wonders, in reading the description of the bronze panel in honor of Bret Harte, which will soon be unveiled by the Bohemian Club of San Francisco, if there is any man now writing in America whose characters would so immediately arouse a sense of recognition as "Jack Hamlin," "Yuba Bill," "Tennessee's Partner," the "Heathen Chinee," "Miggles."

GENERAL WELFARE FIRST.
(Montreal Gazette.)

One of the weaknesses of triumphant democracy is that under it men with votes think they should get anything they want when they want it, and that if they shout loud enough and long enough and with sufficient violence of demeanor they can get it. The effect is wholesome when someone in a responsible position lets it be seen that the general welfare comes before everything else.

THE "FIXED INCOME" VICTIMS.
(Philadelphia Record.)

The large group of fixed income is constantly being crushed between the opposing ambitions of the warring classes. The farmer demands his 2.26 per bushel of wheat and declares he will do no planting unless he gets it. This raises the price of living, and the industrial worker counters by demanding more pay. He gets it, and the high wages in the industrial centres lure farm labor from the land. The farmer complains that even at $2.26 per bushel the raising o fwheat is not profitable. It is an endless chain, and the burden of the chain is upon the men and the women and the little children in the homes that enjoy but a "fixed income." The farmer and the industrial worker are striving to secure for themselves enough to make life worth living; these others are fighting merely to keep alive.

EDITOR'S MAIL

INDIVIDUAL CONTROL

The Editor Review:

Dear Sir,—Every Ontario elector should read the clear, detailed account of the experience of Sweden in dealing with the liquor problem which appears in the September number of the American Scandinavian Review, published at 25 West 45th St., New York

The Swedes had total prohibition during the war, following a system of Government control. It proved a failure; intemperance increased; illicit stills could not be controlled. They have now adopted what is called the Bratt System of Individual Control. This has been so satisfactory that it is about to be adopted by Norway. The sale of liquor is confined to a few companies controlled by the local authorities. These companies must pay all profits over five per cent. to the Government. Every person who wants to purchase liquor must first obtain a license to buy from the nearest vendor. The license limits the amount which may be purchased. It may be refused for good reasons, and may be cancelled if the license is abused. Every license bears the signature of the purchaser, and has coupons attached which are held as vouchers for liquor sold. A card system is kept by the vendor, with the record and duplicate signature of every licensee.

A committee of sensible men could easily formulate a scheme along these lines which will fit this province. The underlying principle is control of the consumer. I have given the outstanding points of this system. There are other regulations which make the control complete. The young man and the weak man can be absolutely protected, and pure Government liquor will be purchased at a reasonable price by the certificate of the Government in time for an emergency, instead of bad liquor, too late, by a doctor's certificate.

Every man of common sense will resist with all his might the attempt to make the referendum a dog fight between prohibition and the bar. There are a few zealots, whose slogan is 'Prohibition or Bust, and Damn the Consequences.' The rest of us want to vote for what is best for the country. We know that no Government can cope with the illicit stills; liquor is too easily made. We know that hundreds of our best citizens who never broke the law before are breaking it now with a clear conscience. We know that people are poisoning themselves with drugs. And we know that, as sure as day follows night there is bound to be a reaction if total prohibition is suddenly forced upon the Province as a settled policy. The only reason that any of us are considering prohibition at all is that we will not have the old bar system back at any price, and up to now no alternative plan has been placed before us. Here is the alternative control of the consumer in place of control of the vendor only. It is a sane solution of the problem at any rate in dealing with spirituous liquors.

The practical question now is—how shall we vote on this referendum? Obviously, we must first clear the decks of existing legislation by voting 'Yes' to the first question, 'Are you in favor of a repeal of the Ontario Temperance Act?' Some people would make us believe that his vote will restore the open bar as it previously existed in Ontario This is a false cry plainly invented to drive people to vote for the present Act against their convictions It would stultify the whole referendum. The old license law was repealed by the Ontario Temperance Act, there are no outstanding licenses, and no stretch of the imagination can make an affirmative vote on this question serve as a mandate to permit the sale of any liquor over the bar.

Yours truly,
ERNEST HEATON.
Editor of Heaton's Annual.

CHILDHOOD CONSTIPATION

Constipated children can find prompt relief through the use of Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which never fails to regulate the bowels and stomach, thus driving out constipation and indigestion; colds and similar fevers. Concerning them Mrs. Gaspard Daigle, Demain, Que., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets have been of great benefit to my little boy, who was suffering from constipation and indigestion. They quickly relieved him and now he is in the best of health." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cts. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TRANSITION TIME TO PROVE TEDIOUS

VICTORY LOAN 1919 WILL SUPPLY MONEY TO PUT CANADA ON A PEACE BASIS.

Do you remember in the early days of the war, way back in 1914, when the recruiting sergeants had little to do, and the men flocked to the colors willingly and quickly? Do you remember how the boys from shops and offices doffed their pinch-back coats and their overalls and appeared in uniform? Do you remember how quickly a disorderly mob of civilians was turned into an orderly army of soldiers?

But that was war.

To-day it is different. From peace to war was done in a flash. From war to peace is another thing. Men shattered in body and spirit cannot be put back at their shops and desks as easily as they were withdrawn. The transition period is on Canada, and it is a tedious performance. But it is the performance of a duty and the payment of a debt. It is Canada's debt of honor.

Victory Loan, 1919, will supply the funds to change the country back from war to peace. The money that the people lend will be used to re-establish these war-sick soldiers of ours back to care-free desk men and husky mechanics. The dollars that Canadian citizens will gladly give will be utilized to train the maimed and crippled veterans so that they may earn an honest living and as well—nay better than they did before they went "over there."

Alcohol is a Poison!

No Man Ever Revived Who Swallowed Five Ounces at a Single Dose

FOR centuries the human race has been under a delusion about alcohol. Modern Science has pronounced alcohol a deadly narcotic poison.

Five ounces of alcohol will kill a full-grown healthy man within ten hours. Taken in smaller but repeated doses alcohol lets him live longer but gets him in the end. All alcoholic beverages are poison, slow or swift but sure.

Medical Science Has Established These Incontrovertible Facts

Alcohol is a racial poison.

Alcohol is a blight on the home.

Alcohol injures the individual and lowers his vitality.

No man ever revived who swallowed five ounces of alcohol at a single dose.

The unconsciousness or coma produced by alcohol if not broken within ten or twelve hours is followed by practically certain death.

Alcohol as medicine has been expelled from the American Pharmacopoeia upon the authority of the American Medical Association comprising 81,000 physicians of the United States.

Pneumonia is fatal to alcoholic patients.

Alcohol lowers resistance to disease.

Alcohol lowers the efficiency of the liver, kidneys, heart, arteries and nervous system, and produces organic disease.

Deaths among moderate drinkers in the prime of life exceed those among total abstainers by 74%.

2.51% Alcohol in Beer Makes it Poison

(2.51% Alcohol by weight equals 5.46% Proof Spirits)

Witnesses—

MAJOR DR. J. W. McCULLOUGH
Secretary Board of Health for Ontario

"The Public should learn that alcohol is a poison in the same class with opium, cocaine, and other deadly drugs. The money annually wasted in alcohol would pay the public health bills of a continent over and over again."

DR. CHARLES J. HASTINGS

"Of the various habit forming drugs, alcohol stands out as pre-eminently the greatest curse to humanity. The role played by this drug in the lowering of efficiency and in the actual production of organic diseases is such as to make it essentially a problem of preventive medicine and one demanding immediate action by administrators of Public Health.

LATE DR. J. T. GILMOUR
Formerly Superintendent of the Ontario Reformatory, Guelph

"I have never known a single case of wife murder that was not committed under the influence of liquor."

THE BEER of the Ballot contains 2.51% alcohol by weight, 118% stronger than the Ontario Temperance Act allows, and five times as strong as the limit allowed for beer defined as non-intoxicating in Great Britain and the United States.

Three glasses of the Beer of the Ballot contains as much alcohol as a glass of whiskey.

Beer drunkards are coarser, lower, and more disgusting than wine or spirit drunkards because beer specially attacks the finer faculties of the brain, and stagnates the natural processes of waste elimination in the body.

The evils of beer are the evils of alcohol, and "then some."

When you are asked by the Referendum Ballot if you are in favor of beer containing 2.51% alcohol by weight—which is equal to 5.46% proof spirits—in shops, bars, or anywhere else, or if you favor repealing or amending the Ontario Temperance Act, vote

"No!"—Four Times—"No!"

And Sustain the Ontario Temperance Act as It Stands

SAVE yourself, save your family, save your country for the destiny God intended, unhandicapped by "booze".

Be careful mark your ballot after each question with an X under the heading "No" or your vote will be lost to Temperance.

GIVE PUBLIC A SHARE IN TRACK PROFITS SUGGESTS J. K. L. ROSS

If Horse Racing is Prohibited in Canada Breeding of Thoroughbreds Ceases.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 25. "If horse racing is to be entirely prohibited in Canada it is my firm opinion that the breeding of thoroughbreds will be killed," said Commander J. K. L. Ross, owner of many famous race horses, in the course of evidence he gave today before Dr. J. G. Rutherford, who is investigating racing on behalf of the Dominion Government.

Mr. Ross had been asked this question by W. E. Raney, K.C., appearing on behalf of the Social Reform League:

"What public interests have been served by the amendment of the Criminal Code of 1910 when sanction was given to betting on race courses either by bookmakers or pari-mutuel machines?"

By the expression "betting business" Mr. Raney said he meant just those two means of betting.

Commander Ross further contended that if betting in some form or another were not allowed it would be useless to have race meetings, and by sanctioning the "betting business" the authorities were only allowing horse racing to be carried on, and in a friendly the breeding of good horses in the country to be carried on as well.

Pressed to express his opinion as to the best form of betting, bookmaking or pari-mutuel machines, Commander Ross replied that he thought pari-mutuel machines were better.

Give Owners Percentage.

"I would suggest," said Commander Ross, "that the race track owners be allowed to take a certain percentage from the pari-mutuel machines, that the owners should be allowed a fair percentage on the money they have invested, and that the rest, the profits, be given to the public, hence

FIVE SIMPLE RULES OF EFFECTIVE DISPLAY

There are five guiding principles where the Cheltenham Hardware Company, of Atlantic City, follows in the disposition of its goods and the arrangement of its store.

First. Luxuries to the fore; necessities in the background, but in view.

This applies both to window display and counter display; and so far as practicable to the arrangement of the store interior itself.

The theory is that customers come in the store anyhow for their necessities. They hunt for them. It is only necessary to make the hunting easy by putting the necessities where they will see them. If is luxuries, on the other hand, which attract them into the store when perhaps they did not intend to come in.

Hence the luxuries and the novelties should be placed in the front of the window, in the front of the counter case and, on the counter case where possible, the departments of the store which handle these items should be placed closest to the entrance.

Second. Show only a few of each kind.

The manager of a "five and ten" found that when he had an article he wished to push hard he actually slowed up sales by displaying it in too great profusion. Customers got the notion that the store had so much of that article in stock that they could buy them just as well tomorrow or next week. This applies to counter as well as window display. It is only under exceptional circumstances that any good purpose can be served by putting the entire stock in view. Besides this tendency to slow down sales it robs other articles of display space.

Third. Don't make the show window a stock room or a catalog of all the store offers.

Crowding many things together unless there is some other feature, such as sweeping price reductions, to hold the shopper's attention, only serves to confuse. A few articles can be displayed to much better advantage than a multitude of things jammed together.

Fourth. Wherever practicable, let cards answer questions.

Prospective buyers see an article and develop a desire for it, but often some question concerning it arises in their minds which they may never give voice to. Cards which answer the questions most likely to arise boost sales strongly; for instance: "Is an electric fans. "It needs no oil" on vacuum cleaners, "No, it won't clog."

When a show window pulls a prospect into a store it is generally a specific article in it that is responsible. Sales are speeded by having the window display articles prominent and within easy reach at the sales counters.

TORONTO MAN HAD GIVEN UP HOPE OF EVER GETTING WELL—TANLAC RESTORES HIM.

"My wonderful improvement since taking Tanlac has astonished many persons who knew how sick I was before," said W. H. Huston, of 6 Lavell street, Toronto, Ont.

"I had suffered from stomach trouble for seven or eight years," he continued, "and couldn't get a thing to relieve me. My appetite failed, nothing agreed with me, and gas would form on my stomach and bloat me up terribly. My heart would palpitate so I could hardly get my breath, and finally I got so bad off that I had to quit working. I fell off considerably in weight, and felt that my case was hopeless.

"Since taking Tanlac I feel like a new man. I have gained eight pounds, my appetite is just fine, and I eat three big meals every day and haven't a sign of indigestion. A few bottles of Tanlac have done me more good than everything else I have ever taken put together, and I never miss a day from my work now. I am glad to recommend Tanlac, for it certainly fixed me up all right."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Dentles, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

"HOW DID WE RUN THAT SALE LAST YEAR?"

One of the largest stores of Pittsburgh, Pa., conceived the idea of planning sales one year in advance, as fixed sales events. For example if the office furniture sale is now in progress, salesmen, clerks and others can take record of the possible improvements to be made and submit collectively this information as the basis of next year's sales, as the notations were made while the matter was fresh in the minds of the interested parties.

USES STRONG LANGUAGE TO SELL SOUR DRINKS

H. P. Hood & Sons have twenty-seven creameries in Boston, and are known as dairy experts. The distributing stations give them virtually a retail trade and they are advertising Hood's buttermilk as the drink for Mr. Man. The basic idea was considered worthy enough to use unusually large newspaper space, with special pen and ink illustrations.

But here is the daring part of the campaign. It deliberately "talks turkey" to the man who has been accustomed to drinking something very much stronger. Words are not minced.

The heading of one of the series of ads reads: "Goodby Shaky Nerves," then is no beating it—Keep your brace! Cooperate to Hood's Cultured Buttermilk, a food, a drink and a medicine all in one."

The headline is hand lettered and the words "Shaky Nerves" sketched on with a shaky, quivering line.

"It's never too late," continued the copy, "to correct past faults or errors. The man, woman or child who makes Hood's buttermilk an important part of their diet will never feel the need of any artificial stimulant to keep them from sagging down from top-notch speed all their fine active years, and will live it with more smoothly and swiftly."

SPLENDID CARE IN VISITORS LETTER

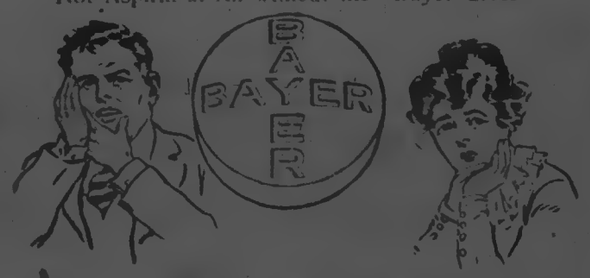
Shreve, Crouch & Low Company 147 Tremont street, Boston, believe that the testimonial, if it is humble, makes a very superior appeal and with elaborate hand embellished ornate frames to incorpate them, is reproducing some of the correspondence it receives. A characteristic ad is headed, "One Collector Wrote" and proceeds to drive home an unforgettable merchandising moral.

"Gentlemen—Last summer in your store I feasted my eyes and desires on a beautiful highboy of Italian make. The price pleased me and I fully intended to purchase it, but procrastinated, then forgot. Last week I had the shock of finding it ensconced in the home of a friend. Too late then I realized what I had missed. Frankly, in my friend's house the highboy looked worth two or three times as much as your price. My purpose in writing is to pay a tribute to your stock and also to ask if you ever show me another such bargain to remind me of what I missed to my delight."

The writer's experience was by no means unusual. Good antiques, the only kind we sell, are increasingly hard to obtain.

ONLY TABLETS MARKED "BAYER" ARE ASPIRIN

Not Aspirin at All without the "Bayer Cross"



For Colds, Pain, Headache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuritis—the genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over nineteen years, is Bayer—or you are not taking it. Now made in Canada. Aspirin at all. Handy tin boxes containing 12 tablets cost but a few cents. Druggists Aspirin" in an unbroken "Bayer" package. All Larger "Bayer" packages.

There is only one Aspirin—"Bayer"—you must say "Bayer"

Aspirin (the trade mark of Bonyer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid) Aspirin means Bayer manufacture to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark "Bayer Cross."

The war has left waste a large part of [illegible] Europe. The pieces of American olden time which we offer are not easily found in antique shops; therefore we are proud of the rare things shown on our third floor. We shall be glad to have you spend a leisurely hour examining them. You need feel under no obligation to purchase. Should you find your heart's desire, however, to remember that your neighbor may have an eye as discriminating as yours. An antique in your house is a treasure; in a friend's house it might be an agreeable gift.

The [illegible] man climbs the harder he may fall.

PROTECT YOURSELF

THIS is the Season of the Year when every person should strengthen and build up the system in order to ward off Influenza, La Grippe, Coughs and Colds. For some months we have been investigating and testing the merits of Cod Liver Oil in combination with hypophosphites and creosote, and we now take pleasure in announcing to the Canadian People that we have under the name of "BORDO" the Blood-builder a preparation that while pleasant to take, will strengthen the system, aid digestion, keep you, healthy and vigorous, "BORDO" the Blood-builder can be given to young and old and will not disturb digestion in the least. It is highly recommended for the treatment of Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Nervous Debility, Influenza, Anaemia and to strengthen the system in general after sickness or other ailments has left the constitution in a weakened condition

"BORDO" is not a Cure-All but the Manufacturers have every confidence in doing what we claim for it. In cities like Peterborough we appoint only one Agent and it is NOW ON SALE AT

WHAT IS A CURE?
IS IT A TEMPORARY OR PERMANENT CONDITION?
Let us [illegible] to have ticks. Is the [illegible] of things a cure? You [illegible] of disease from your system and is restored to [illegible] state of health—but you have received a cure. Why? Because as long as disease germs are present in the universe you may be attacked again.
Take for example a man has a terrible headache for days. It has driven him almost insane, sapping his energies and making life impossible of working, he tries [illegible] prescriptions, and finally finds a preparation that relieves him at once. Immediately he says, "I'm cured!"
Six months later he goes to bed, gives a groan, and says, "Here's my old headache back again, that medicine wasn't [illegible]—or does he say, "Another attack, well I soon knock that out"? No, contrary to the use of the remedy that relieved him before.
This is one of the many cases of Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis, Neuralgia. That is why we say "Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules" remedy these diseases. They are 99% effective by actual record.
Ask your Druggist or write us for our new booklet. It is free, explaining and costs you nothing. Templetons, 142 King West, Toronto. We mail it on receipt of price.

Hot Water for Sick Headaches
Tells why everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it before breakfast.
Headache of any kind, is caused by auto intoxication—which means self-poisoning. Liver and bowel poisons called toxins, sucked into the blood, through the lymph ducts, excites the heart which pumps the blood so fast that it congests in the smaller arteries and veins of the head producing violent, throbbing pain and distress, called headache. You become nervous, despondent, sick, feverish and miserable, your meals sour and almost nauseate you. Then you resort to acetanilide, aspirin or the headaches which temporarily relieve but do not rid the blood of these irritating toxins.
A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drank before breakfast for a while, will not only wash these poisons from your system and cure you of headache but will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary canal.
Ask your pharmacist for a quarter pound of limestone phosphate. It is inexpensive, harmless as sugar, and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant.
If you aren't feeling your best, if tongue is coated or you wake up with bad taste, foul breath or have colds indigestion, biliousness, constipation, or sour acid stomach, begin the phosphated hot water cure to rid your system of toxins and poisons.
Results are quick and it is claimed that those who continue to flush out the stomach, liver and bowels every morning never have any headache or know a miserable moment.

JAPS COLONIZING AMERICAN COAST

SEATTLE MAN TESTIFIES NIPPONESES ARE CONTROLLING BUSINESS.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—The Pacific Coast is becoming a Japanese colony, Miller Freeman of Seattle told teh House immigration committee.

Japan is violating the immigration barriers to this country intended to be raised by the so-called "gentlemen's agreement," Mr. Miller and W. S. McClatchy of Sacramento, Cal., testified. They urged the adoption of a policy of absolute exclusion by teh United States, and the deportation of Asiatics already in this country.

Mr. McClatchy declared the situation on the Pacific Coast was only an example of what would happen elsewhere, finaly resulting in the United States being made "a Japanese province."

"The Japanese Government is issuing passports under any head except labor," asserted Mr. Freeman.

Business in Seattle is being absorbed by the Japanese with the support of their government, Mr. Freeman said. Forty-seven per cent. of Seattle hotels are Japanese owned, he added, as are twenty-five per cent. of the groceries and practically all of the best farming land near Seattle. In Seattle city market is under Japanese control; laundries are being rapidly absorbed, and the "movie" theatres are being bought, Mr. Freeman said.

Misfortune comes in pairs for the man whose opponent holds three of a kind.

$7,500 THE RED TRIANGLE CAMPAIGN $7,500

Next Tuesday and Wednesday, September 30th & October 1st

Will you Please see that Peterborough makes good this amount in a Whirlwind Campaign—The Last that will be made by the Red Triangle for War Work purposes. This Campaign should have been conducted in this City last Spring to assist in carrying on much needed War Work while the Soldiers were returning to Canada and it has been found necessary to operate in large Cities where Returned Men may have many needed and appreci- . . ted requisites . .

THE RED CROSS ADVISORY BOARD has taken in hand the matter of the Canvass, and will Call upon the Citizens of this City, feeling they will be handsomely met

WHAT THE RED TRIANGLE IS STILL DOING IN CANADA

SERVICE FOR RETURNING MEN

On Transport

A Y.M.C.A. Secretary travels on each transport and 25 of these men are constantly engaged in this work. They carry supplies, games, literature, gramophones, lanterns, etc., for the educational and recreational entertainment, and religious activities of the troops. Each Transport Secretary has been chosen because of special qualifications for the work.

At Disembarkation Ports

Special Y.M.C.A. staffs at all these points—Halifax, St. John, Quebec and Montreal—meet returning men and attend to their needs in many ways, including the distribution of free drinks and eatables. Where men are detained in port, concerts, movies and hospitality in homes are provided.

On Troop Trains

A Y.M.C.A. Secretary travels with every troop train right through to destination. He carries equipment for the serving and entertainment of the men and as far as circumstances allow, his program is similar to that carried on by the Transport Secretary. Free distribution of fruit, drinks and eatables en route is made regularly.

Red Triangle Clubs

At many large centres of population from Halifax to Vancouver, Red Triangle Clubs or Huts have been either specially built or leased for the accommodation of returned men. At these centres board and lodging are provided at rates below cost, and there the returned man finds "a home from home" until he is ready to proceed to his location.

For Convalescent and Wounded Men

Y.M.C.A. Secretaries are operating "Y" programs in 65 Canadian Military Hospitals, as well as in Camps and Barracks.

Membership in Local Y.M.C.A.'s

In addition to the Red Triangle Club service in the larger centres, every local Association in Canada extends its membership privileges to returned soldiers for six months entirely free of charge.

WHAT THE RED TRIANGLE LOOKS FORWARD TO DOING

BOYS' WORK

The National Boys' Work Committee will supervise and promote work among the boy members of the Y.M.C.A.'s in Canada, and will work with the National Advisory Committee for co-operation in Boys' Work in Canadian Standard Efficiency training among the 50,000 Protestant teenage boys in the Dominion. The value of the promotion of the four-fold program under Christian leadership in connection with Bible Study groups, conferences, summer camps, the work among boys in High schools, employed boys, boys on the farm, and special groups of under-privileged boys, will be a great factor in making good the awful war-shrinkage of Canada's manhood over (60,381 dead; 150,709 wounded); by bolstering the country's boy-power in ideals of Canadian citizenship.

TOWN AND COUNTRY WORK

This new Department of the National Council will promote Y.M.C.A. work in co-operation with the church and other agencies among the boys and young men of the open country, villages and larger towns, not served by city types of Association buildings. This work will be organized on a non-equipment basis and will be a serious and practical effort to provide attractions in rural life and thus stem the migration into the cities.

INDUSTRIAL WORK

The Industrial Department will promote work in all parts of the country, and funds to assist local Y.M.C.A.'s to specialize in work among operators in the factories and plants in their communities. These funds will also be used to inaugurate work among men engaged in lumbering, mining and other specialized and isolated industries. What the Y.M.C.A. did for the boys in the trenches, the Industrial Department will do for the great army of workers at home.

OTHER DEPARTMENTS

Y.M.C.A. work will be actively prosecuted among railroad operatives. Canada's future leaders in universities and colleges will be cared for by the Student Department. The promotion of a large program of physical activities conducted by Y.M.C.A.'s within their buildings will be undertaken by the Department of Physical Education. Sex Education will form the program of still another Department.

RELIGIOUS WORK

Whilst there is not distinctively "Religious Work Department," a large portion of the activities of all Departments is devoted to various phases of work which are more or less definitely religious in character. A special fund provides for stimulating and standardizing this work throughout the country, and co-ordinating it with the churches.

REMEMBER THE BOYS AND YOUNG MEN OF CANADA ARE AN ASSET TO THIS COUNTRY AS NEVER BEFORE

DON'T MISS THESE BATHING BEAUTIES

LIVING FEATURES WITH "JACK CANUCK IN BERLIN" AT GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

"Jack Canuck in Berlin" will be seen at the Grand Theatre, beginning a limited engagement at that big playhouse Thursday and Friday, matinee and evening, and that isn't all.

With Sennett's latest and biggest production will come the Mack Sennett girls—the Bathing Beauties who till now have never been permitted under the terms of their contract to appear professionally outside the seclusion of the Sennett studios.

It is pointed out, that this combination of a motion picture masterpiece with living participants appearing in an attractive and appropriate act on the stage represents a feature utterly new to the world of motion photography.

An act, beautifully costumed, elaborately lighted and tastefully staged has been provided and in it the pretty girls of the Sennett studios will step into the full glare of the footlights.

The plot of "Jack Canuck in Berlin" is not a war-plot, but a policy plot. Its policy is one of the elements that makes of this latest Sennett production, his biggest and most important creation. The kaiser, long held as the "Bogey Man of Civilization" is shown up in "Jack Canuck in Berlin" to be just what he is, a pitiable spectacle of an inflated egotist, vicious in mind and depraved in habits. He will not suffice to intimidate a timorous child who has seen "Jack Canuck in Berlin" for there he is divested of the vestments that hid his soul, and that is done not so much in spirit of tragedy or serious drama as in the spirit of travesty and burlesque; for Producer Sennett believes with Alexander Pope that ridicule and satire are the most effective weapons in the world to employ when the over-estimated and the over-praised are to be given their true and just appraisement. The story works out in the mood of high hilarity, and it is crammed with those farcial and dramatic surprises that make everything in films from the hand of Sennett a screen delight.

The principals in this organization are supported by a tremendous company and individually and collectively give a rapid, flawless performance. Following are some of those who occupy the leading roles:

PAULINE FREDERICK FEATURING AT EMPIRE

COMING MONDAY AND TUESDAY OF NEXT WEEK—A STAR OF FIRST WATER.

I was born in Boston
Several years ago, but I did not care much for Beans
Or Ibsen, so I got a ticket for New York
And rode to Broadway as fast as I could.
I would have had the ticket long before that except that Beans were high.
But I was famished instead.
I could tell you a lot about managers, and Charles Frohman and art.
But I'd rather talk about photoplays
My first was "The Eternal City" By Hall Caine. I liked that picture.
And so did Famous Players and so Did Paramount,
And I've been with Paramount since then and played
Vampires and Grande Dames and Ingenues.
But best of all I like vampires-
They're so vampish
And I love to "register" revenge and twist
My fingers in Grim Despair
And strafe the hero with a piercing glance and hatpins—
And after "The Eternal City" I did other things.
Including "Sold"—
And then I quit the stage for better or for worse.
But mostly it's been better—and I'm glad
I did.
And took up screen work and played in "Zaza," "Bella Donna," "Lydia Gilmore," and then I wove a web of wiles in "The Spider."
Next, as "Audrey," wild wood nymph. I led a sylvan life.
Until "The Moment Before" brought me back to town
And "The World's Great Snare"
I was "The Woman in the Case" and afterwards,
"Ashes of Embers," till "Nanette of the Wilds."
Took me to "The Slave Market"
"Sapho" I adored—
While "Sleeping Fires" "The Love That Lives" and "Double Crossed" I worship
That's all I've done that's interesting.
Except some stunts on horseback
And some motoring
My hair is brown just muddy brown but my eyes are big and dark
And unfathomable.
I like that word don't you?

DOROTHY GISH IN "BOOTS" NOT AFRAID OF A MOUSE

POPULAR PARAMOUNT STAR IS SEEN AT HER BEST — AT ALLEN MON. AND TUES.

If you were a slavey in a London boarding house, and your job was to take orders from every one who had lodging there, and if one of the boarders ordered you to feed her pet mice, and you did, and one of them got out of the cage and ran right at you—well, now, just what would you do

That is the situation that confronts Dorothy Gish when "Boots," her newest Paramount picture, will be shown at the Allen next Monday. And to make matters worse, Miss Gish knew that the horrible camera was being turned every second and that all attempts she might make to get away from that mouse would be indelibly registered on the film.

That had not been arranged for in the story, and it wasn't quite fair. Of course, she didn't think that all out during the moments when she was threatened by this tiny rodent running around loose on the stage, because she was trying to listen to Elmer Clifton, her director, and at the same time save herself from the ferocious beast that insisted on getting right under her feet every time it had an opportunity.

There were tables and chairs and other things in the room and Dorothy made good use of them. The mice, by the way, have a lot to do with the story, and when the scene was finished Miss Gish consented to go through a little more of the ordeal in order to have the whole thing in the picture. Miss Gish is splendidly supported in this photoplay. Her leading man is Richard Barthelmess, who plays the part of Everett White, the English secret service agent, who is in love with "Boots." Fontaine La Rue plays the part of a Bolshevist agent.

STARTS HONEYMOON WITH SISTER-IN-LAW

WHEN MARRYING A TWIN BE SURE YOU GET THE RIGHT GIRL.

If you are going to marry into a family where the girls are twins and so nearly alike that it is difficult to tell them apart, it is best to establish some form of identity before the happy event, or else the event is apt to develop into tragedy or farce. That is the case in Margaret Mayo's famous musical farce, "His Bridal Night," to be seen at the Grand Saturday, matinee and evening, October 4. In its development "His Bridal Night" nearly earns the title of "His Bridal Nightmare." For when a man starts on his honeymoon it is reasonable to suppose that his wife, and not her sister-in-law, is in his conception. Not so in "His Bridal Night," for the sister-in-law, who is an exact replica of her newly married double, palms herself off as the temporary better half, and when the real wife turns up the husband is unable to tell which one is his wife. That's why it is imperative to get the thing settled before the ceremony has taken place. The eagerness of Miss Mayo has resulted in a play that is riotously funny. You can probably imagine some of the complications arising from the above premise. Jealousy, passion, another fellow in love with the other sister, a criss-cross of meetings and a final denouncement that clears it all up. It is to laugh and audiences never fail to do so unrestrainedly. The musical end of "His Bridal Night" has been supplied by Frederick V. Bowers, whose song hits tinkle along pleasantly and, with numerous dance numbers, are an attractive feature of the entertainment.

Prominent in the presenting company are Robert Knight, who portrays the distraught husband; the Crisp Sisters, who are seen as the twins; Frank Cullen, who plays a garrulous, officious butler, with a keen sense of humor; Charles Bennett, Bertha Julian and Beatrice Lett.

ENID BENNETT, STAR OF "PARTNERS THREE," IS ADMIRED BY FANS AT ALLEN'S

Has Won Screen Fame as an Actress of Exceptional Ability.

Realism prevails in the production of "Partners Three," the latest Thomas H. Ince photoplay, featuring Enid Bennett, which is showing at the Allen Theatre today for the last time.

Much of the action of the story takes place on the great American desert, and to secure the proper setting Mr. Ince sent his director, Fred Niblo, and the entire company out on the desert for a week to shoot the locations. The players were camped in tents out on the sand and cactus and sage brush. Large cans of water were taken out in the commissary automobile, but before the scenes were finished it was necessary to send a machine back for a new supply.

Director Niblo succeeded in getting some wonderful desert scenes. The supporting cast is excellent. Casson Ferguson, a popular player, is leading man. John P. Lockney, a sterling actor, has a splendid part, while Robert McKim will be seen to advantage in a heavy role. Lydia Yeamans has an excellent characterization.

WILTED COLLAR WINDOW

A window display of summer shirts and collars in which a single bedraggled, wilted collar played the principal role, has cashed in for more than one haberdashery. The wilted collar has a sign under it: "Is your collar wilted?" this sign asks. There follows an invitation to come in, out of the sun, to the store's cool washroom and there don a fresh collar which the store will supply for the customary legal tender.

Spotless Complexion Easy to Have Provided You Make Use of the Wonderful Calcium Sulfide in Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

ties of those natural tints of a beautiful complexion. In fact a sweet expression is made a hundred times more enchanting when the complexion is lovely.

All you need do is to clear the skin of pimples, blotches, liver spots, blackheads, muddy complexion and skin eruptions by using Stuart's Calcium Wafers. These troubles seek the skin as one of the natural outlets of the body. And if you supply it with the proper materials it will pass off in the pores of the skin instead of ugly accumulations. Get a box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers in any drug store for 50 cents. You will then realize why a woman is prettier than her picture.

IVE OF CINCINNATI TEAM ONCE PLAYED WITH RIVAL SO

Toronto, Sept 27. It is a singular coincidence that five members of the Cincinnati Reds formerly wore the uniforms of the White Sox, the team they are to play for the world's baseball championship. Edd Roush, star batter and outfielder of the Reds, was with the Sox in 1913 under Jimmy Callahan, being released to Lineoln. Morris Rath, second baseman, also played under Callahan. He was signed by the Reds last season and made good from the start.

Hod Eller, star pitcher, was with the Chicago nine in 1916, but was released to Moline. Eller, as well as Groette, enjoyed his best year in 1917. Like the Chicago pitcher, he is a shine-ball artist. Schreiber utility infielder of the Reds, was also with the Sox for a time in 1914 and Allen, a catcher, played with Comiskey's club in 1911, later going to Minneapolis.

real Jockey Club stated he was not able to give any definite reply.

Mr. Raney insisted on the original balance sheets of the club being produced from 1910 on. This Mr. Northey refused to do.

"It is not the intention of this club to hide anything, whatsoever it may be," he said, "and I am willing to show these original balance sheets to Dr. Rutherford for his benefit, but I most decidedly won't show them to you or make these things public."

He then gave what Mr. Raney termed a "bird's eye view" of the racing situation in Montreal, however, speaking entirely of the Montreal Jockey Club. About the other six clubs here he was not in a position to give opinions.

Sees Ulterior Motives.

Here F. C. McCarthy, K.C., representing the Canadian Racing Association, broke in: "I do not see, Mr. President, why the Montreal Jockey Club or any other racing club should open its office doors for Mr. Raney to trample about at his leisure and for ulterior motives."

"Are there any abuses on the racetracks of Montreal?" asked Mr. Raney.

"I can only answer for the Montreal Jockey Club," replied Mr. Northey, "and I am convinced that there are none."

After a series of hypothetical questions, at last in exasperation, the witness said: "I decline to be carried on with in this manner an dasked a lot of useless questions."

Mr. Raney made a complimentary reference to the Montreal Jockey Club, saying that it had always to his knowledge been operated with "the utmost decorum."

At this there was applause in the courtroom, where a large number of racing men had gathered.

A MOTHER'S TRAILS

CARE OF HOME AND CHILDREN OFTEN CAUSES A BREAKDOWN.

The woman at home, deep in household duties and the cares of motherhood, needs occasional help to keep her in good health. The demands upon a mother's health are many and severe. Her own health trials and her children's welfare exact heavy tolls, while hurried meals, broken rest and much indoor living tend to weaken her constitution. No wonder that the woman at home is often indisposed through weakness, headaches, backaches and nervousness. Too many women have grown to accept these visitations as a part of the lot of motherhood. But many and varied as her health troubles are, the cause is simple and the cure is at hand. When well, it is the woman's good blood that keeps her well; when ill she must make her blood rich to renew her health. The nursing mother more than any other woman in the world needs rich blood and plenty of it. There is one always unfailing way to get this good blood so necessary to perfect health, and that is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills make new blood abundantly, and through their use thousands of weak, ailing wives and mothers have been made bright, cheerful and strong. If you are ailing, easily tired, or depressed, it is a duty you owe yourself and your family to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial. What this medicine has done for others it will surely do for you.

GIVE PUBLIC

fit, for good roads, for the aid of farmers in breeding better horses and that fair purses be given to horse owners in order to enable them to produce the best of horses."

Asked by Mr. Raney: "Are seven racing clubs too many for Montreal, and are 98 days of racing too much during the year for Montreal?" W. Northey, the secretary of the Mont-

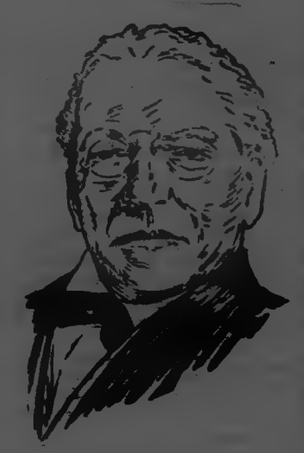
Comradeship

Admiral Sir David Beatty

ADMIRAL Sir David Beatty, when speaking at Leicester a few days ago, said:—

"We have been through four and a half years of a great struggle. We have all learned something—the true value of comradeship. Comradeship has enabled us to win the war."

Realizing the significance and truth of this statement the Citizens' Liberty League appeals to the people of this Province to develop the spirit of comradeship, mutual forbearance, toleration and sympathy. Let us be fair-minded, less rigid, more reasonable, and more willing to give and take.



Samuel Gompers

The workingmen of Ontario appeal for better beer — non-intoxicating beer— beer containing 2.51% alcohol by weight —THE BEER OF THE BALLOT.

Samuel Gompers, the world's greatest labor leader, stated the workingman's position clearly when he said:—

"The normal men, the men of Labor who work eight hours a day and no more, the workmen who earn decent pay, the workmen who have comparatively comfortable homes, they do not want the artificial spirit. The man of normal spirit finds comfort in pleasant surroundings; he does not need, and, as a rule, will not partake of intoxicating drinks; he shuns the effects of intoxicants. What we now ask is that the men of Labor, the masses of our people, shall have the opportunity to drink a glass of beer of not more than 2¼% by weight of alcohol in that beer, and I am told you cannot drink enough of that character of beer to get drunk even if you tried."

Scientific tests, practical experiments and thorough research prove that beer of even greater strength than 2.51% of alcohol by weight, is absolutely non-intoxicating. (The results of these tests have been filed with the United States Circuit Court of Appeals).

As no harmful results can possibly come from drinking beer of this quality—is there any fair or logical reason why the working men should not have the more palatable beer for which they are asking—THE BEER OF THE BALLOT?

Support the working men and the Citizens' Liberty League in the endeavor to obtain a fair, just and reasonable compromise on the present too drastic prohibitory legislation.

NATIONAL I. O. D. E. - WAR MEMORIAL

MEETING YESTERDAY DISCUSSES PROJECT TO RAISE $500,000 FOR THIS PURPOSE.

A meeting of very special interest was held yesterday at the Y.W.C.A. under the auspices of the 57th Chapter, I.O.D.E. The members were addressed by three of the leading ladies in connection with this organization in Canada. Mrs. Davidson, who occupied the chair, introduced the speakers, who were here in the interests of a national I.O.D.E. war memorial, to take the form of a huge educational propaganda Mrs. Bruce of Toronto, national president of the I.O.D.E. in Canada, spoke to the gathering on the subject of unity among the members of the different organizations as well as each individual chapter She impressed upon her hearers the absolute necessity for generous co-operation if they were to accomplish a worth-while object

Mrs Smith, St Catharines, national educational secretary, in her interesting address took up the educational side of the question. This lady, who is gifted with exceptional ability as a speaker, drew out in clear and concise terms the plans of the propaganda It was their object to raise one-half a million dollars for this national I.O.D.E. war memorial Each chapter would be expected to contribute the sum of five hundred dollars, and, while it seemed like a huge proposition, with organized effort it could be made quite possible

Then followed Mrs. Stewart, of Perth national organizing secretary The speaker encouraged the organization of a provincial chapter of the I.O.D.E., touching on the benefit of organized effort and encouraging the spirit of unity and unselfish giving in the noble cause.

MORTON—LITTLE.

St James' Methodist Church was the scene of a quiet wedding at 1 o'clock on Wednesday, September 24, when Miss Emma Little, daughter of Mr. John Little, Chemong road, and Mr. Steven Henry Morton, Peterborough, were united in marriage Rev J F Chapman, B.A. officiated Only immediate friends of the young couple were present Mr. and Mrs Morton will reside in Peterborough.

MALONEY—CROUGH.

A very pretty wedding was held on Sept 2nd, when Sarah Alice Crough, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs T G Crough, of Ennismore, and Mr. Peter S. Maloney, a prosperous young farmer of Douro, were united in marriage Promptly at half past eight o'clock the bride entered the church escorted by her father to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs Daniel Crough and proceeded to the altar rails, where the groom awaited her. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev J P. McAuley, by whom the nuptial mass was also celebrated

The bride looked charming in a suit of dove grey serge with white cordown collarette and grey hat with white plume and veil She also wore the groom's gift, a gold watch bracelet She was attended by her sister, Mary G Crough, who looked pretty in a suit of taupe grey with hat to match, and white veil. The groom was attended by his brother, Leslie Maloney. After the ceremony the young couple, accompanied by their friends, motored to "Dunbrae," the residence of the bride's parents, where they partook of a dainty wedding dinner. After the bride's health had been proposed and drunk, and speeches delivered by Rev. J. P. McAuley and Mr. Clayton Telford, the young couple left on a trip to the Coast. They will stop at Calgary, Edmonton and Regina on their way and will return by way of the United States

The bride travelled in a burgundy silk crepe de chine dress with burgundy velour coat with grey fur trimmings, and hat to match. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold brooch with emerald setting and to the groomsman a pearl tie-pin. The groomsman's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold pendant set with pearls and amethysts. The presents to the bride and groom were both numerous and costly, testifying to the high esteem in which they are held.

Their many friends join in wishing them a long and happy wedded life.

KING'S VISIT RECALLS TALE

Edward VII. Found Harness Room at Balmoral Only Warm Place.

London, England With the departure of King George from London to Balmoral to pass his holiday much has been written about the drafty condition of Balmoral Castle, where he will reside. The story is recalled of a visit to the same castle by the late King Edward, who was once discovered sitting in the harness room of the stables. Surprise was expressed by a member of the household at finding him in such surroundings.

"Dash it, man, I must go somewhere to get warm," was his reply.

IN MEMORIAM

HEFFERNAN In memory of our dear brother, Frank Hefferman who was killed in action at Cite Leal, on Sept. 28, 1918, after spending over three years in France.

He was a valiant soldier of the cross
Who left his home when call for men was great
Nor had he time or leave, oh, cruel fate!
To seek a mother's kiss, that gift so blest;
Nor scenes of eastern home where joy and rest
Endearing childhood's happy hours relate.
Now sleeps in France beneath an oaken cross
"Who fell with the fall of the leaf and the year."
And Cambrai is the word which echoes loss
To those who loved his smile and words of cheer.
We'll not forget your sacrifice of love
Consoling, sacred, perfect, dear one above.

100,000 MINERS IN SOUTH WALES COAL FIELDS IDLE AS RESULT OF RY. STRIKE

Many Collieries are Closing Down, and Swansea Harbor is Paralyzed—Government Officials Announce Improvement in Situation—Labor Leaders Unwilling to Call Out Miners and Transport Workers.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Sept 29 One hundred thousand miners are idle in South Wales coal fields as a result of the railroad strike Many collieries are closing down and the Swansea Harbor trade is paralyzed

Volunteers Help.

Improvement in the situation created by the general strike on British railways was announced in an official quarters this morning

The distribution of food was being carried out without friction, and volunteer help was being freely offered, it was stated

Ministers Confer.

Premier Lloyd George, Sir Auckland Geddes, Minister of National Service and Re-construction, and Sir Robert Stevenson Horne, Minister of Labor, were in conference throughout the forenoon today, while the strike committees were also in constant session.

James Henry Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, declared at noon there were no new facts in the situation.

No Getting Together.

There were no surface indications early in the day that the Government and railroads men were making any effort to get together to settle strike, nor was there anything to indicate that the srike would immediately spread to miners or transport workers.

Miners Out of Work.

The Labor leaders say they are unwilling to call out miners or transport workers unless there is urgent need of their assistance, which Labor men declare is unnecessary at present. The stoppage of transportation, however, is automatically throwing thousands of miners out of work and causing closing down of pits

Quarrel at any Cost.

"The precipitancy of this strike action gives the impression of a deliberate and matured intention on the part of some individuals to seek a quarrel at any cost," says Premier Lloyd George in a statement today on the nation-wide railway strike.

"It has convinced me it is not a strike for wages or better conditions," continued the Premier. "The Government have reason to believe it has been engineered for some time by a small but active body of men who have wrought tirelessly and insidiously to exploit the labor organizations of this country for subversive ends.

The Premier continues:

"I am convinced that the vast majority of the trade unionists of the land are opposed to this anarchist conspiracy. They can see the ruin and misery it has brought in other against the control of these intriguilands, and their common sense has hitherto guarded their organizations ers. These men have made many efforts to get hold of the levers of trade unionism; so far, all their endeavors have ended in failure.

"There is no more patriotic body of men in this country than the railway men, and their conduct during the war demonstrated that fact. When they realize that they are not fightingfor fair conditions for labor of their class, but are being used by extremists for sinister purposes, their common sense wil resume its sway and save the country yet and their families from disaster.

"Meanwhile the interests of the nation and Government have no alternative but to accept the challenge thrown down to society as a whole. They intend to meet this blow at the public weal with all the resources at the disposal of the state, and they asked the nation with distinction of class, for it affects everybody, cheerfully to bear the privations which will result from the indefensible strike, and give their aid to maintaining the fabric of social order, upon which the prosperity of the country depends."

"I have been constantly criticized as too extreme a partisan of those who are struggling for better conditions."

CHINESE FIGHT FOR FRANCHISE

DECLARE AMENDMENT MADE BY HON. HUGH GUTHRIE PREVENTS THEIR VOTING.

Victoria, Sept 28. Native-born Canadian Chinese and naturalized Chinese of this city are taking issue with the Dominion Government over the franchise question Following the introduction in the House of Commons at Ottawa of an amendment to the franchise act by Hon Hugh Guthrie, which they claim would prevent these clakses from voting in the Dominion elections the Chinese have taken a stand and are determined to fight the case and secure a judgment

Their first protest against Hon Mr. Guthrie's proposed amendment has been lodged with the despatch of a telegram to Sir Robert Borden, which reads in part as follows:

"We, the undersigned natural born and naturalized British subjects of the Chinese race, strongly protest against our rights being thus unjustly taken away We are real property owners and taxpayers, and we would respectfully refer you to the Pthanter question which brought about the South African war, and which for many cause many Canadians gave their lives

"We claim full constitutional rights as given to all races, and the naturalized among the undersigned refer you to the wording of the naturalization papers, which we request you not to make scraps of paper."

The telegram is signed by committee representing 155 natural born Canadians and 400 naturalized British subjects.

PREM. BORDEN MAY BE ON HAND TUES.

DELIVER ADDRESS TO CAUCUS OF UNIONISTS MEMBERS AT OTTAWA.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.— Although Sir Robert Borden may be able to drive to the temporary parliament buildings next Tuesday and deliver his address to the caucus of Unionist members, it is not expected that he will be again in the hopse this session or be able to take any active part in public affairs for some time. His physicians have ordered a change, arrest and the premier will probably leave Ottawa for the south within a few days. He will not able to take any part in organizing the new Unionist party or help with the October elections.

Two members of the cabinet are at present without seats in the house and a third, Hon. C. C. Ballantyne is seriously ill. General Mewburn, Hon. Martin Burrell and several of the other ministers, take little part in active politics and stick closely to their own departments.

Therefore, it is generally understood that during the prime minister's absence a committee of the cabinet will have general charge of administration and especially with political activities of the government.

The committee will consist of Hon Arthur Meighen, Hon. N. W. Rowell, Hon. J. D. Reid and Hon. J. A. Calder.

RAILWAY TIE-UP NOW AS NEARLY COMPLETE AS MEN COULD HOPE

British Government Promises to Keep Steady Stream of Food Pouring Into Large Centres by Means of Motor Lorries.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

While nearly every railroad in the United Kingdom is making some effort to run trains, the railway tie-up as nearly approaches completeness as the most ardent union man could hope.

A Stream of Food.

Meanwhile the Government, by inaugurating a system of motor lorrie transportation, planned in detail during the war in case of a German invasion, is supplying cities with milk, and promises to keep a steady stream of food pouring into the big centres. One motor lorry column a mile long brought food into London from the west today.

Good Weather a Blessing.

The London buses and tramcars are still operating, but with the Sunday shut down their facilities are inadequate to accommodate the crowds. London business houses were again under manned today through inability of the workers to reach the city. The only alleviation for the city from the trials of the improvised urban transportation system was the good weather which prevailed.

Hyde Park Closed.

London, Sept 29 —Hyde Park has been closed and turned into a parking place for autos and a centre for the distribution of milk.

THE FALL ASSIZES OPEN TOMORROW

TWO NON-JURY CASES AND ONE OF MURDER TO BE TRIED.

The county fall assizes open tomorrow before Chief Justice Mulock. There are two non-jury civil cases and one criminal case to be tried during the sitting.

Five Russians, Alexander Martinuk, Sam Ziluski, Michael Bahri, Thomas Korncheck and P. Rotyuski are seperately charged with the murder of Chilip Yarnoff, at Havelock, on June 22nd. These men have been held at the county jail since awaiting their trial.

The civil cases are Hart vs. Greenland and Strong vs. Strong. In the first case the plaintiff claims $2,101.43 on a mortgage made in her favour by Green land in November 1918. The defendant claims that he relied upon the statements of the plaintiff and her agent as to the business facilities of Havelock and presents a counter claim that the conveyance be set aside, that the $500 with interest be returned and damages $2,800.

The record case is one where the plaintiff Mrs. Strong claims that her husband used abusive language to her, violently pushed her against a wall and other such similar methods for inducing her to advance him money which he used for his own purposes without paying it back. The defendant will fight his case denying all charges.

SAFETY ONLY IN GEN'L ELECTIONS

WOULD TURN ATTENTION FROM FIUME PROBLEM AGITATING THE ITALIAN NATION.

Rome, Sept 28 Giovani Giolliotti, former premier, is earnestly advocating the calling of a general election. Speaking today on the subpect, he said:

"A general election would be the only remedy in the present critical situation It would be a diversion from the present unwholesome concentration on Fiume, which makes the country lose sight of all other events happening throughout the world and, in fact, alters the proportion of every other question A general election would bring the entire ration problems, some graver than that of Fiume, with which Italy must earnestly cope if she does not wish to be plunged into poverty for an unlimited number of years.

"It must be remembered that the present chamber of deputies was elected in 1913, when nobody dreamed of a possibility of war and when the problems agitating the country were entirely different from those we are now facing.

"From this point of view the present chamber does not represent public opinion and cannot give true expression of the people's will. Former Premier Orlando should have appealed to the country shortly after the conclusion of the armistice, and in any case not later than the day when he returned from Paris last April after President Wilson had sent his message to the Italian people Premier Orlando not having done so, Premier Nitti should not have failed to do it after the chamber voted the provisionary budget. The calling of a general election may help to solve international difficulties."

BLOODSHED IN IRELAND FEARED SHOULD RY. STRIKE BE CALLED

Members of Union Admit Martial Law a Dangerous Rule to Play With—Holding Themselves as Reserve

Dublin, Sept. 29. A railway strike has not been declared in Ireland, but the men are awaiting instructions and are ready to obey. The Irish Labor Party and Trades Union Congress have issued an official statement warning the workers to be ready to assist the railwaymen in every possible way.

Numerous metings of railway workers were held here, in Belfast and other Irish towns today, and solidarity with the English workers was professed.

Secretary Birmingham, of the Irish section of the National Union of Railwaymen, speaking in Dublin, said:

"Our friends in England are aware that martial law in Ireland is a dangerous thing to tamper with; therefore they do not desire to precipitate matters. But we must regard ourselves as a reserve force and be ready to act when the generals call."

All cross-Channel service to England has been suspended.

OBJECTS TO FIUME AS BUFFER STATE

PLAN AIMS A SACRIFICE OF TRIESTE AS WELL AS OF FIUME.

Rome, Sept. 28.—Commenting on the projects of a buffer state for Fiume, The Giornale D'Italia says that in substance the plan "does not vary much from the old scheme which aimed at sacrifice, not only at Fiume, but also at Trieste.

"It is true that the new state would bear some relation to Italy," the newspaper says, "but in all ways it would be a part of Jugo-Slavia, and ultimately condemned to fall under Jugo-Slav influence, as the Italians in Fiume would be a small minority in a buffer state which comprises a vast Slav territory. Official organs, speculating, perhaps, on the geographical ignorance of the public, attempt to make the people believe the new project is very advantageous They hide the fact, however, that the mountainous part of Austria with Mount Maggiore, remains detached from the mainland, thus leaving the doors of our house completely open on that side, but the league of nations will defend us after having despoiled us of the fruits of our victory."

C. G. E. TO MANUFACTURE FRACTIONAL MOTORS AND IMPROVE RUBBER PLANT.

Citizens will be pleased to learn that the Canadian General Electric Company are about to spend $200,000 or more on improved machinery. They propose to spend this amount on improving their rubber department and installing machinery for the manufacture of tractional motors.

THOUSANDS VOLUNTEER TO TAKE PLACE OF STRIKERS IN BRITAIN

Local and Boat Trains Running—Distribution of Food Supplies Declared to be Guaranteed.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Sept. 29 (2 p.m.)—With the third day of the national railroad strike came a test of the ability of the country to combat those conditions of upheaval in which determination on the part of the railwaymen was met by an equal stubbornness from the Government, while the ordinary public showed a remarkable capacity for dealing with an extraordinary situation.

Railway Service Stalled.

No attempt to renew negotiations is reported from either side. Meanwhile, with the exception of local and boat trains, the railroad service is stalled. But the Government is rallying every motor car and pressing every other means of locomotion into service.

A message issued in official quarters gives hope that the situation on the railroads is improving.

Training Volunteers.

Thousands having volunteered to replace the strikers, these are now being trained for the service. The food supplies and their distribution were declared to be now guaranteed, although strict rationing was declared necessary in order to maintain a regular supply.

Rev. Canon Wm. Walsh of Brampton passed away after about a year's serious illness.

WATERLOO CONS. NOMINATE MILLS

Waterloo, Sept 27.—C. H. Mills was the unanimous nominee of the Conservative convention here today In accepting the nomination he approved the fiscal policy of the Hearst Government; he severely criticized the Ontario Temperance Act, and said he is prepared to support amendments that will permit the sale of beer containing 5.51 per cent proof spirit in standard hotels so that the public might have the privilege of purchasing it by the glass.

CAPT. M. B. HAMILTON HOME

Capt. M. B. Hamilton, son of Mr. R. M. Hamilton, Auburn, returned home during the latter part of last week. Capt. Hamilton has been overseas for nearly four years and saw much service with the 3rd. Brigade artillery.

He arrived at Halifax on the "Regina" last week and reports that things have been very quiet among the Canadians since the riots last spring. The troops have been rapidly returning home and as several ships are available for their transportation it should not be long before all have returned. Whitley Camp presents a very deserted appearance, declares Capt. Hamilton, with the two wings only remaining, and only a few men are attached to these now. Of course, the last to return will be the staff of the pay and record offices, hospitals, etc., but before very many months have passed the work of these should be complete.

LITTLE TROUBLE AT BETHLEHEM PLANTS

NO SEMBLANCE OF DISORDER AT VARIOUS WORKS WHEN SHIFTS CHANGED.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Bethlehem, Pen., Sept 29 The Bethlehem plant of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation was very little affected this morning by the strike, which has been called from Pittsburgh and there was no semblance of disorder at the entrance of the various plants when shifts changed at 6 a.m., and again at 7 o'clock.

SAILINGS CANCELLED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, Sept. 29. All sailings to ports in Great Britain have been cancelled by the Shipping Board because of the strike of railway workers there.

BOARD OF COMMERCE ORDERS REDUCTION IN HOG PRODUCTS

Prices Same as Those of March This Year—Goes Into Effect Oct. 15 —Further Reductions if Necessary-

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Sept. 29.—Definite action to reduce the price of bacon and other products of the hog was taken today by the Board of Commerce at its present sitting here. An order was issued that from and after October 15 next pork and hog products sold for consumption in Canada by Canadian packing houses and other producers shall be sold at prices practically the same as those which prevailed on March 10 of this year.

Further Reduction.

The Board further ordered that prices of such products shall be still further reduced if conditions warrant it, and an intimation was given that the Board will keep this industry under close surveillance to make further orders along this line if found necessary.

PRINCE EXTENDS HIS VISIT TO MONTREAL

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, Sept. 29 In order that as many people as possible can meet the Prince of Wales, the civic authorities are arranging a chain of dances in various assembly halls here for the night of October 30.

The Prince will visit these halls and spend about half an hour at each His Royal Highness has decided to extend his stay in Montreal from four days to seven.

Would Lynch Mayor.

Omaha, Neb., Sept 29. An attempt was made to lynch Mayor Smith because he would not give up William Brown, colored, who, it is alleged, attempted an assault on a white girl. The mayor was unconscious at a late hour last night.

A branch of the returned Soldiers' Gratuity League has been formed in Hamilton.

NEGRO LYNCHED AT OMAHA, NEB.

A NIGHT OF MOB RULE IN WHICH ONE KILLED, 40 INJURED.

ATTEMPT TO HANG THE MAYOR

HE ADVISED AGAINST LYNCHING OF NEGRO WHO ASSAULTED WHITE GIRL.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 29.—After a night of mob rule, during which a negro was lynched, an attempt made to hang the Mayor of Omaha, Edward P. Smith, the County Court house burned, one man shot and killed, and perhaps forty others injured, this city was quiet today under the patrol of Federal troops from Fort Crock and Fort Omaha.

Advised Against Lynching.

The Mayor is in the hospital and was still unconscious early today as a result of an attempt made by the mob to hang him to a trolley pole, because he advised against the lynching of William Brown, a negro, who was in the county jail, charged with attacking a white girl on the outskirts of the city early last week.

CONFIDENCE IN PREMIER NITTI

BUT FREE FIGHT IN ITALIAN CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES AFTER VOTING.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Rome, Sept 29 All members of the Chamber of Deputies, with the exception of official socialists, voted confidence in Premier Nitti in a vote taken in the Chamber yesterday Ten members refrained from casting their ballots.

There was a free fighting among the Deputies after the vote was taken.

Warships Lost.

London, Sept 29 An official statement shows that Great Britain lost 254 warships during the war and 515 auxiliaries

THOUSANDS ADDED TO THE VOTERS' LISTS

HEARING OF APPEALS BROUGHT TO A CLOSE IN TORONTO SATURDAY.

Toronto, Sept. 29 The hearing of appeals to have names added to the voters' lists by the revising officers, was brought to a close at the city hall on Saturday. The appeals of 250 foreign women were dismissed by the court because they were unable to produce proof of naturalization This leaves 2,250 names to be added in Southwest Toronto

F. J. Roche added 400 names in West York; Judge Coatsworth, 2,000 in Northwest Toronto; Capt. G. A. Drover, 1,200 in Riverdale; W. W. Davidson, 1,000 in East York; Judge Denton, 2,700 in Northeast Toronto; Judge Morson, 2,500 in Southeast Toronto, and Lieut.-Col. Eric Pepler, 250 in Parkdale With the names added by the revising officers at their last sittings, this makes an addition of approximately 26,300 names to the lists as compiled by the enumerators.

SITUATION IN GREAT U. S. STEEL STRIKE IS QUITE OBSCURE TODAY

Opposing Leaders Issue Conflicting Claims—Balance Seems Equitable in Most Strike Centres—Power House Closes

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Sept. 29 Today, proclaimed by both sides as one of crucial test in the great steel strike, opened with the situation still obscure because of conflicting claims.

Contradictory Claims.

The opposing leaders issued flatly contradictory statements in regard to the scheduled strike of forty thousand workers in plants of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. The corporation officials claimed that strike call had been obeyed only by a comparatively insignificant number, and that operations in all their mills were continuing.

Says Plant Crippled.

The Union chiefs replied with claim that the huge plant at Bethlehem was completely crippled, and that the power house had been forced to close. Reported conditions in other great steel centres indicated that the balance was being held fairly equitable between two opposing sides.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

MONDAY, SEPT. 29, 1919.

THE TWO PLATFORMS.

THE PLATFORM of the Ontario Liberals consists of a series of vague promises that, if they are given another chance, they will make good the opportunities which they neglected during thirty-two years of power. The platform of the Conservatives, just announced, is an expansion and development of the progressive policy that the party has followed since the victory of the Whitney Administration at the polls in 1904. That is the difference.

There is not a single point raised by Premier Hearst in his announcement that is really new. His platform is simply an example of the evolution of legislation that is to be extended as the necessity arises. On the main issue—the liquor question—this is especially true. The numbered ballots by which the Liberals hold the liquor men in leash will always remain as a blot on their administration. They never could treat the liquor question as other than a political issue. Even the once vaunted apostle of temperance, Hon. N. W. Rowell, fought shy of that issue when he became leader of the party in 1911, and in the election campaign of that year refused to bring the temperance question to the front. It was only after his disastrous defeat that he dragged the question by the heels into the arena again.

There are Liberals today who declare that the idea of the sale of beer or wine is simply an attempt at compromise, a mere makeshift. If this is so, then much more was the policy of Mr. Rowell for a closed bar and an open shop a compromise and a makeshift.

One of the most important planks in the Conservative platform is that which provides for pensions for mothers. Here, again, we have an example of natural development. There is nothing more unreasonable or radical in giving a pension to a mother left without means to care for a number of dependent children than there is in pensioning such a mother whose husband has been killed in an industrial accident. The latter is a measure which the workingmen of Ontario owe to the present Government, as well as other legislation to improve the conditions of the wage-earners.

For fourteen years the Conservative Government has been steadily extending and bettering the educational system of the Province. A long step in advance was taken when Dr. Cody was appointed to the head of the Education Department. He is a practical educationist, a man of public spirit, and his administration has been marked by progressiveness since the day he took office.

The Conservative Government has already established a Provincial Department of Labor, and a practical man will be placed at the head of it just as soon as Union Labor can agree upon a man for the position and elect him to the Legislature. When Premier Hearst promises that, so far as lies within the power of his Government, a minimum wage and uniform labor laws will be established, that he will co-operate with the higher authorities in this regard, he is simply falling in with the movement that originated with the statesmen who devised the League of Nations. Uniform wages and working conditions will be an equal benefit to the employers and the employed. What Premier Hearst's Government has already done for Labor entitles it to the consideration of the working classes. What it promises to do in the future will be regarded as a pledge certain to be fulfilled.

The Liberal party of Ontario has an unenviable record on the Hydro question. They are both the covert and the open enemies of public ownership. The Hydro Commission, one of the greatest and most successful examples of State control, has been brought to its present high standard by the present Administration. When Premier Hearst says that the system will be developed and that the farmers will be furnished with cheap power he talks with the warrant of a man who has already moved in this direction. Here is another example of the development of a policy already successfully inaugurated. Farmers have already availed themselves of this public utility, and hydro power is in daily use on Ontario farms. And Premier Hearst is ready with facts and figures to show that in other regards the farmers of the Province have not been neglected by his Administration.

ANTICIPATING DEFEAT.

THE LIBERAL campaign speakers are not over sanguine of success for their party in the coming election, and the Globe, too, is in the same frame of mind. The Globe already anticipates the success of the Hearst Government. The best proof of this is the fact that the organ of the party is already explaining why this is to be, and lays the blame upon the farmers of Ontario, who, it claims, have so divided the party that a Liberal victory is next to impossible. Excuses for reverses are always in order, but it is seldom that they are offered so far in advance.

INSTRUCTING THE VOTERS.

IT IS THE PART of wisdom to instruct the electors, in the matter of voting on the referendum, especially in view of the fact that so many will exercise the franchise for the first time. Still, there is no reasonable excuse for any intelligent person being in doubt as to the scope and meaning of the four questions upon which they will be asked to pass judgment. The ballot which will be submitted to the people was thoroughly discussed at the last session of the Legislature and was adopted in its present form practically unanimously. Every provision was made clear and all the discussion was made public.

Of course, the first question transcends all the rest. If the Ontario Temperance Act is sustained by a majority vote, that settles the question. The situation, so far as the use of liquor is concerned, will remain unchanged, unless the Act is amended from time to time as experience dictates.

Liberal campaign speakers are telling the people that Premier Hearst is not playing fair with them with regard to the alcoholic strength of the beer which it is suggested shall be sold if the voters so declare. These speakers say that the second and third questions are misleading and that they give the impression that if beer is sold either in standard hotels or in Government agencies, it will contain practically the same percentage of alcohol as the beverage now sold in hotels and restaurants.

This statement is unfair. The description of the beer which may be sold in the future is scientifically correct, and its increased strength was fully explained when the official ballot was prepared by the Legislature.

Some of the Liberal speakers declare that if the Act is defeated the old license law will be restored as it existed before war-time prohibition was enforced. This is another statement that is calculated to confuse the people. In the event of the majority of the voters casting their ballots against the Act, the other three questions on the ballot are designed for the future guidance of the Government. It will, by the vote cast on each of these three issues, be decided whether beer is to be sold in standard hotels, or whether beer and spirituous liquors are to be handled in Government agencies. There is really nothing on the ballot calculated to confuse the public. The entire ground is thoroughly covered.

"THAT MAN O'CONNOR."

THE ORILLIA PACKET says that "That Man O'Connor," vice-chairman of the Board of Commerce, has an interesting time on his hands.

All over the country there were loud calls for him as the only drastic regulator of prices in sight. He had recommended himself to the populace chiefly by his loud voice and ill manners. He particularly endeared himself to the many-headed by his harsh and discourteous treatment of a straightforward and gentlemanlike witness, who happened to be manager of one of the large packing plants. At Ottawa, evidently, members of the Government knew what manner of man O'Connor is, but the call for him was so vociferously persistent that he was added to the Board. Farmers, in some parts of the country at least, were as loudly insistent on his appointment as any other. But now they are among the first to be hurt and cry out. The price of milk is to be regulated. For forty days at least no advance will be permitted. And from the centre at Ottawa all round to the limits of Ontario and Quebec, there is protest and denunciation. Our own belief is that milk, compared with other commodities and considering the cost of production, is not too dear, and it may even be possible that some advance would be justified. Fodder seldom was so scarce, and never has it been so dear. Hay, grain, bran and shorts are away up. Added to the high price of fodder is the altogether unprecedented cost of cows. But, whatever may be the truth about milk, it does not need more than half an eye to see how extremely difficult this business of price-fixing is. The more it is attempted the greater mess and mischief is likely to follow. Even manifest combines in restraint of trade are difficult to deal with, but there ought to be a possibility of some effective action in the case of flagrant offenders, such as the sugar refiners, the grocers' guild, and the canners. Much activity beyond this, we fear, is likely to do more harm than good. A general fall in values must be gradual if it is not to be disastrous. What is most to be desired is that it shall be even, so that no particular interest or class shall suffer. Meanwhile, what is most needed is less extravagance and more industry.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

NAVAL CHANGES IN WAR

Lord Fisher confesses to being imbued with admiration for one of Nelson's captains, killed in battle, whose epitaph is: "Death found him fighting," and the continues: "all must admire the exits of Nelson, Elijah, and Moses—three wondrous typical men who 'did not lag superfluous on the stage.' Nelson only forty-nine, Elijah walking so rapidly with Elisha, Moses his 'eye not dim nor his natural force abated.' Personally, life would lose its charm for me the day I can't waltz to the best waltz tune in the world—one of Moody and Sankey's hymns.

"Adversity, being the school of prosperity, led me to consider the heavenly bodies with such assiduity as caused me to become the Senior Wrangler of the Navy in 1861. Like a snowball (for success begets success), I rolled on, occupying in turn and in rapid graduation almost every single big appointment in the Navy. So it came about that when, on Trafalgar Day, 1904, I was appointed First Sea Lord of the Admiralty, and breakfasted alone with King Edward at Buckingham Palace, though I had entered the Navy penniless, friendless, and forlorn, I was equipped with knowledge and power sufficient to say to anyone who obstructed me 'You be damned,' and he was damned.

"Democratic" Navy.

"First, I felt certain sure that democracy was required in the Navy. The motive power had been sails aloft, it was now machinery; those who controlled the sails had not stooped to oil their fingers, and the real masters of the Navy were the despised engineers, whose mammas were not asked to tea by the other mammas. This entailed an entirely new system of naval education.

"I was virulently attacked for selecting young officers as consultants, and much obloquy came along for new arrangements which cleared out fossils and gave us what we had at Scapa Flow. It was not apparent to these ostriches that it was these selected young men who would command our fleets and battle cruisers in the coming war. Physical endurance alone necessitated it, so it was but just that those who were going to do the fighting should determine the weapons. The bluejacket himself had not had set before him the ideals of a modern battle. For, as in the opening scene of 'Pinafore,' the sailors in 1900 were still polishing the brasswork. They did not hit the target. There were two thousand more misses than hits. Lastly, the fighting ships were the emanations of the past—museums of guns and samples of hulls. Money was being squandered on keeping ships in commission in peace-time which in war-time could neither fight nor run away. And so the Dreadnought was born, and the paralysis of shipbuilding amongst all the navies of the world for eighteen months.

"The damned thing was so different!

"One result was that we had two thousand more hits than misses. The system of nucleus crews and the collection of the scattered Navy into the big Fleet on its own fighting ground, the North Sea, were other leading features of the great reform.

"Low Cunning" and its Success.

"Besides the Dreadnoughts, or 'Old Testament ships,' there were the real gems—the battle cruisers, or 'New Testament ships,' that sent Admiral von Spee to the bottom, and all his fleet. With regard to the guns of these battle cruisers, we practised a low form of cunning. We put them down in the manufacturers' book to the Sultan of Turkey; and Abdul Hamid being the champion liar of his time, the more he denied it, the more sure the Germans were that he was lying when they broke open the safe and saw the Sultan's order in the secret archives. Also, the Germans stole some wrong plans which I had purposely left out on my table at the Admiralty, and wasted £950 on the job. I congratulated the German Naval Attache on the Duke of York's Steps next morning, and said to him: 'You could have had them for nothing.'

"Our policy was: Have a big preponderance of speed over your enemy so that you can choose your own distance for fighting; the next, the very biggest possible gun (a 20 in. gun would have been in the 'Incomparable' had I remained at the Admiralty), and so you hit the enemy when he can't reach you, and therefore all his guns might as well be only pea-shooters. Consequently, the 'Invincible,' with her greatly superior speed and her greatly bigger guns, sent Admiral von Spee to the bottom in his 'Scharnhorst' without having one single man killed or wounded on board the British ship. That's war.

"It's not my task (nor to my taste) to criticize the tactics of the Jutland battle. The fact remains that in spite of miserable ineptitude the Navy won the war. The blockade won the war; timorously won it, but yet it won it, though masses of war material were permitted to pass through because of fear of neutrals. One ship alone, with 6,000 tons of copper, rotated the German shells to massacre our men (each shell requiring but a few ounces). Still, as someone wrote to me, 'God ordered it: had the war finished sooner, should we now have fifteen Republics instead of only two?'"

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

Editor Review: The so-called daylight saving scheme, having been being condemned by friend and foe tried and, found wanting, is now alike. The following extract taken from the Edmonton Bulletin serves as a sample: "Of all the fads that were the outgrowth of the war, the so-called daylight saving scheme had least excuse. Who originated the brilliant idea that daylight or anything else could be saved by the simple expedient of putting the clocks forward an hour is not definitely known. But whoever he was, among all the imbeciles of all history he was in a class by himself."

VETERAN AND PROHIBITION

Editor of The Review: With your permission I will call attention to an extract from the Toronto Star of September 10th, last, and purporting to be a resolution passed by the G. W. V. A. of Parkdale. The following is found in the first paragraph of the article in question, and with this I will try to deal in a manner fair and charitably. The following is the paragraph:

"Denouncing the License Act as stupid, and the Ontario Temperance Act as atrocious, and a maker of criminals; and affirming their intention of resisting the tyranny of "petticoat government," Parkdale G. W. V. A. went on record last night as favoring the sale of beer and wine and advocating an affirmative answer to all four questions in the referendum ballot."

Now, it is quite clear to you Sir, that the above article contains at least four subjects: First, a stupid License Act; second, an atrocious Ontario Temperance Act; third, The tyranny of petticoat government and fourth, an injunction by the G. W. V. A. of Parkdale to vote "yes" on all four questions at the referendum ballot.

Let us notice then the first subject "a stupid license act." Yes, what stupid fools we were to sanction, by our vote, the sale of distilled damnation to our fellowman, and by so doing, blight his home, curse and enslave and pauperize his wife and children, ruin his prospects and damn his soul. Certainly a license to murder or gamble or steal or break the Sabbath, would make criminals and so does a license granted to sell intoxicating drink make criminals. But we have seen our folly and the withering curse of the bar room, that was flung out by the Ontario Temperance Act, by the right and might of a blood bought ballot we will keep out on October 20th, next.

Now for the second subject: "An atrocious Ontario Temperance Act. (Atrocious means very wicked, fierce extremely cruel," Let me say that in my opinion, the Ontario Temperance Act is the greatest boon that has ever been enjoyed by the people of Ontario. Why Sir, in three years the writer of this letter has not seen three intoxicated men, and he has been in touch with tens of thousands. Think of it, thirty thousand people visiting Peterborough Exhibition and not one drunk in the crowd. Think of it, a million people on Toronto Fair Grounds during the great exhibition and absolute order and freedom from drink. Oh! it's great. Better houses, better clothes, better food sunshine and peace and prosperity for the weary son of toil; boots and bread for the kiddies instead of booze. Ask the merchant if prohibition does not spell prosperity.

Once again: "The tyranny of petticoat governmens." Now Sir, that's the most unkindest cut of all. What a pity that we so soon change our politics. Two years ago this "petticoat government" was mighty popular. Hundreds of thousands of dollars were collected for the boys overseas. Tens of thousands of wives, mothers, daughters, sisters and sweethearts prayed and planned, knitting and sewing and suffering far into the night, all for the lads far away. Yes, and all these were members of the petticoat government. And the nursing sister who sat by the couch of the dying soldier and wrote his last letter home, and smoothed his pillow and wiped away the death dew from his brow, was a member of this petticoat government.

Soldiers of Canada, you did not mean that blow to fall, and you have apologized already to these grand women.

And now a word in closing about the injunction to vote "yes" on all four questions of the referendum. But a vote "yes" on the first question of the ballot will bring back the licensed bar and the G. W. V. A. of Parkdale calls the License Act "stupid". Better be consistent. If a man wants the bar back let him say so out openly. No dodging issues.

Now Sir, knowing the spirit of the returned soldier as I do, I am bound to believe that the man who was big enough to sacrifice his all to defend right, truth, King, country and the oppressed of Europe, is big enough to cast his ballot against an enemy worse than war or pestilence or famine.

MR. BURNHAM PROTESTS

To the Executive Committee of West Peterborough Conservative Association:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Permit me with all due respect to call your attention to the fact that we, as a committee, have no right to neglect our duties by not calling the Conservative Association together. The Conservatives of West Peterborough entrusted us with duties which they expect us to perform and if we do not perform them we disfranchise the Conservatives of the constituency which will ruin their past auger and result in great damage to the party.

I would respectfully, as a representative and a Conservative, urge upon you the prompt calling of the primanes and of the convention for the choice of a candidate to support the Hearst Government.

ANDRE TARDIEU.

One of the most picturesque figures of the war was Capt. Andre Tardieu. Like Clemenceau, there was in his indomitable will to victory something infectious, something bouyant and reassuring; something in the face of tremendous odds that was inevitably Gallic. It was significant of the esteem in which Capt. Tardieu was held that when an attempt to assassinate Clemenceau incapacitated the Premier it was Tardieu to whom the French people looked.

Capt. Tardieu is preaching as vigorously the battles of peace as he did those of war. There lies ahead of France a tremendous period of reconstruction in which raising of money, electrification of railways and other national issues have to be faced. He asks the French people to set about accomplishing these peace problems with the unity that characterized France when Germany would have made her a vassal state, and that, he says, will bring certain victory. He points to the American system of taxation, in which some of the larger fortunes pay as high as 70 per cent., as the ideal pattern.

Capt. Tardieu is known principally as editor of the Temps and as a member of the Chamber of Deputies. At the beginning of the war he enlisted as a reservist and was promoted until he reached a captaincy. His exploits on the Verdun front in 1916 won him a citation.

Born in Paris, Tardieu entered the French diplomatic service upon completing his schooling, and in 1897 he was appointed to the French Embassy at Berlin. Among his several works is "Notes on the United States," written after a trip to the United States while Theodore Roosevelt was President. In 1908 he was Cercle Francais lecturer at Harvard.

Deaf and Dumb Language.

The Encyclopedia Britannica says: "We have conversed by signs with deaf people from all parts of the British Isles, from France, from Norway and Sweden, Poland, Finland, Italy, Russia, Turkey, the United States and found that they are indeed a world-wide means of communication . . . Deaf people in America converse with Red Indians with ease, thereby showing how natural the generality of even our Epee signs are."

THE MERCHANTS' COLUMN

Edited by
MANSFIELD F. HOUSE
(Copyright.)

In this column, which appears every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, will appear news and short articles of special interest to merchants, their salespeople and business men and women in general.

HOW SPECIALTY SHOPS SIDESTEP COMPETITION

In New York there are numerous shops which have rung the bell, not through beating down competition, but through sidestepping it.

There is, for instance, the shop of Bertha Holley, on East Forty-ninth street. Miss Holley makes and sells dresses. If they were made or draped as most dresses are she would be in competition with others, no matter whether she produced the inexpensive variety or the kind that sell for $255, whether she followed conservative styles or produced magnificent new creations.

But Miss Holley makes dresses which are different in construction. They are interchangeable dresses, all made according to the same unique "engineering plans," no matter how they may vary in their "architectural adornment."

The "specifications" call for a one-piece, sleeveless, belted and made of any material, according to the purpose of the customer. In addition there is an undertunic, which provides sleeves and a change of outline around the neck. Then there is an overtunic as well.

Here's the idea:

Undertunic plus slip equal morning dress.

Slip minus both tunics equals evening dress.

That's the way the idea works out for the customer's first dress. But a little later she buys another one, and immediately the possibilities begin to multiply. She may wear undertunic No. 1 with slip No. 2, and overtunic No. 2 with slip and undertunic No. 1. Perhaps she buys a couple of separate over and under tunics.

Those who remember their mathematics and laws of permutations and combinations will readily see that four or five outfits of this sort will pretty nearly allow a woman different combination of the three garments for every day in the month. It provides many dresses, in effect, at the cost of a few.

Selects Gowns for Them.

Up on West Fifty-first street is the Maison Esther. Here, too, gowns are sold. They are expensive gowns, but of more traditional conception. The Maison Esther side steps competition in another direction. It claims distinction for its service. It claims distinction for its gowns, of course. All producers of expensive garments do. But it does more. It relieves its customers of all bother and worry in the selection of their materials and styles. Mrs. Van Knickerbocker Kustomer simply calls up and informs the house that she wishes a gown in which to attend the reception to President and Mrs. Wilson, and she has $627.53, or thereabouts, to spend on it. That's all.

It is the business of the Maison Esther to know every line in Mrs. Knickerbocker-Kustomer's figure and just what colors go well with her hair and her complexion. It is also its business to know what the latest ideas from Paris. But all the gowns in the Maison Esther do not cost $627.53. Some of them cost as little as $17. It is that idea of winning the customer's confidence to the point of letting the house select her gowns which has put the business across.

Marie Helene, on Madison avenue, has made her reputation not by producing gowns out of new materials, but by producing new gowns out of old ones. In this connection it should be understood that milady considers a gown "old," these days, when she has worn it to one or two functions. Marie Helene then takes it and at far less cost than if new material were used, transmutes it into a creation which nobody would dream they had seen before.

BEAUTY HINTS MAKE DRUGGISTS' ADS PULL

A druggist in a southern town discovered that his advertising lacked diversity, punch and human interest. Try as he might one day's display looked about like another.

Then he hit upon a shrewd plan. He issued a set of fifty one-column advertisements directed to women. They were numbered and in serial form. The standing head read: "Our Beauty Hint for Today."

By selecting such toilet articles as added to feminine beauty he could develop such a campaign without difficulty. But the text was written in an earnest, optimistic style, and as every woman in the world wishes to improve her personal appearance, these beauty hints landed their punch.

EITHER WAY IT TURNED OUT THE PUBLIC WON

In March, following the killing of a bandit in the foothills of the Sierra Madre range in Southern California, there was quite a bit of digging for the buried treasure which the residents thought the bandit had hidden.

A hardware man in one of the foothill towns put some garden tools on sale in his window, also a clipping of the newspaper article that caused the trouble. His card was also displayed.

Get your outfit here to dig for the Dale Jones $30,000 treasure, it will come in handy in your garden if you don't find the swag.

MAINTENANCE SERVICE HOLDS CUSTOMERS

The clothing firm of Julius Hyman & Co. Inc., of Hazleton, Pa. has been able to work up a steady trade one composed largely of men who come back again and again for more goods, because of its "maintenance service."

A tailor is a member of the staff and has his little shop in the basement, taking no part at all in selling goods. He is kept busy all the time repairing clothing that is brought in. Any suits that do not stand up under reasonable wear are fixed up and if they fail to give satisfaction are replaced.

Suits are pressed free for one year after their purchase. This idea of maintaining the goods after they leave the Hyman shop appeals for men and while a steady stream of suitcases bearing clothes to be repaired goes into Hyman, this service only costs the salary of the tailors and turns almost every customer into a "repeater."

The Mind Reader

By CECILLE LANGDON

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

"I am a mind reader," announced Earle Munson briskly, "and my innate mentality imparts the fact to me that you are going to engage me at an initial salary of a hundred dollars a month and expenses, and send me out on the road to demonstrate a new plan I have evolved for doubling your business in one year, with a quadrupling ratio as time goes on, my income keeping pace with this expansion."

Martin Lane first glared at the audacious intruder upon his busy hour. Then his stern features relaxed. He was used to all kinds of applications for work and did not at all favor the familiar way in which this new candidate approached him. Catching sight of the smiling face and magnetic eyes, however, he said:

"I am something of a mind reader myself, and I do not share your views. Show me."

"Good!" nodded the refreshingly unabashed young man, plumping into a seat and taking out a packet of papers. Rule seven of 'Business Efficiency' says: 'Approach a business man in an original way,' so I present the mind-reading phase. Rule nineteen says: 'Present a proposition outside of the usual rut.' I've got it right here. It will take me ten minutes to explain it."

"Go on," nodded Mr. Lane, more curious and amused than interested.

Earle Munson proceeded to outline his plan. Mr. Lane was a tea and coffee merchant. He had worked up a very profitable mail-order trade.

"Don't you see," submitted the persuasive and optimistic Munson, "that you will have over five hundred agents picking up orders every day in the year? Allowing that each man gets but one order a day, that figures up over fifteen thousand orders a year. Getting that number of orders through your circular and catalogue system, postage stamps alone would cost you five thousand dollars. By my system you keep an account with one central source, get all kinds of free advertising and have an army of men working for you on commission basis strictly."

"It looks feasible," admitted Mr. Lane. "You come back at four o'clock prepared to give me the evening. Will you?"

Munson had expected that the consultation anticipated would take place in the private office, but when he returned he found the merchant ready to take him to his home in his automobile. When they reached it Mr. Lane ushered him among a garden group, introduced him to his wife, three small children and his daughter, Leila. The visitor made everybody feel agreeable. He complimented Mrs. Lane on her lovely garden, played with the little ones and devoured the radiant daughter of the house with eyes expressing an admiration far grater and more general.

"We'll talk right here where we can enjoy the beautiful evening," said Mr. Lane, and on a garden seat just outside the family circle they went into further business details. Munson had drifted about a good deal in a business way. It was quite remarkable the number of recommendations he had. All spoke of Mr. Munson particularly as to his pleasing personality and strict attention to business, but more than one deplored his constant shifting from one position to another owing to his love for change and variety.

"Yes, I need an anchor to steady me," acknowledged Munson, and he glanced stealthily in the direction of Leila. "Well, I hope that after a month's demonstration you will be so pleased that we will make a permanent arrangement. Maybe it will be so promising that some day I'll get a mind-reading copartnership as to my ideas—er, Mr. Lane?"

Munson was simply irresistible the way he mingled audacity and a winning ingenuousness. He had the children fairly wild with some choice feats of legerdemain he operated for their special benefit. The final hour of his stay he was treated all around like some old-time friend rather than the business adventurer with a new idea.

At the end of a month Earle Munson came bouncing into the private office of Martin Lane as freely as if he owned it, to spread before his employer a bunch of contracts and orders that fairly bewildered the staid, systematic man of business. When another sixty days had rolled away the influx of trade required his constant supervision in an office of his own. Meantime it got to be so that if Mr. Lane did not bring Munson home with him to dinner at least three times a week, Mrs. Lane looked disappointed, Leila unhappy and the children bewailed his absence as though home was a dismal prison without him.

And at the end of six months the climax culminated and Munson came to Mr. Lane, and in his refreshingly convincing way said:

"Mr. Lane, as a mind reader I am of the opinion that if I told you that Leila and myself will be very unhappy and disappointed if you do not approve our picking out an engagement ring, you would at once give us your blessing."

And Martin Lane replied: "There is no resisting you, Munson—as a mind reader you are certainly a decided success!"

Woman's Brainiest Age.

A woman's brain reaches its greatest weight about the age of twenty-five, while in the case of a man, this does not occur until ten years later. This explains the assertion that a woman at the age of twenty-one is in a better position to give a matured judgment than a man at the same age.

Education Always Helps.

The success of the unlettered man is often argued to show that men do not need education. In special cases the truth may seem to be conclusive, but did you ever stop to inquire what the fellow might have become had he education added to his natural talents? He has succeeded in spite of a handicap and not because of it.

Truth About Cat's Eyes.

A cat can see better in the dusk than can a human being because the cat's eyes are sensitive to ultra-violet rays. Its pupils are capable of greater expansion than those of man's or of almost any other animal, thus admitting more light. The cat uses its whiskers for feelers in the dark. Its sure-footedness is a great help to it. So it gets along better in the dark than most animals. The belief that it can see by night with the same degree of clearness as by day is, however erroneous.

Almost Any Excuse Goes.

We break many a promise to ourselves with excuses so weak that we would be ashamed to offer them to another.

Mutual Obligations.

Desertion ranks first as a cause for divorce, cruelty second, adultery third.

MRS. SANFORD'S MESSAGE TO WORKING WOMEN

Laurel, Miss. — "Eight years ago I was suffering with pains and weakness caused by a female trouble. I had headaches, chills and fevers, and was unable to do my work part of the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me and I took twelve bottles of it, and my health has been good ever since. I am able to run the machine and do dressmaking besides my housework. You are at liberty to publish my letter if it will help some poor suffering woman."
Mrs. J. C. SANFORD, 1237 Second Ave., Laurel, Miss.

Thousands of women drag along from day to day in just such a miserable condition as was Mrs. Sanford, or suffering from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, backache, sideache, headache, nervousness, or "the blues."

Such women should profit by Mrs Sanford's experience and try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and find relief from their sufferings as she did.

For special suggestions in regard to your ailment write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of their long experience is at your service.

DESPISE THE "HIGHER LIFE"

South Sea Natives Satisfied and Joyous Among the Primitive Surroundings of Their Islands.

Doctor Osler suggested nothing new—if he ever said it at all—for down among the South Sea Islands the old are buried alive when they pass the period of usefulness.

Martin Johnson showed motion pictures of natives dancing on the newly made graves of the victims of this South Pacific "efficiency" when he and Mrs. Johnson spoke before the National Geographic society at Washington.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Johnson went "gunning" for the pictures among the numerous unexplored islands which dot the South Pacific, an area that covers a tenth of the globe's surface, and contains 20,000,000 inhabitants. Of these at least 2,000,000, Mr. Johnson estimated, still are savage enough "to believe the earth is flat, and they never heard of German 'kultur' or have been annoyed by book agents."

Native dances, which seemed amazingly like the steps of a Broadway chorus, were danced by maidens attired in nose sticks, huge earrings and necklaces, which seemed to comprise the complete attire dictated by the spring fashions of the Solomon islands. The "open work ears," which had been distended by disks that look like ear drums, often hung down to the shoulders. In Malaita they are wearing strings of human teeth, and nothing else, this season.

Mrs. Johnson told of the distinctive variety of "pidgin" English spoken by the shore natives of various islands. There are as many as 400 different tongues spoken by the various islanders, Mr. Johnson stated. Mrs. Johnson usually made friends with the natives, among whom, she naively stated, there probably was little more danger than among the white lights of Broadway. But this popularity occasionally had its disadvantages.

The pictures showed the four coal-black wives of one native chief, who courteously offered to trade them all for the explorer's wife.

Cannibalism still exists in many of these islands, and Mr. Johnson showed one picture of natives bearing a huge bowl to the grove where they observed their ceremonials in connection with their human roasts. Amid a background of some of the most beautiful scenery to be found in the world, the speaker said, exist peoples of almost animal-like savagery and ferocity, to whom torture and murder seem the favorite pastime.

"A Joan of Arc Machine"

SHE withstood everything in the field and above all was, and still is, the last and only car to survive until the cessation of hostilities"—Extract from letter received by Ford Motor Company from a British Soldier, in Africa.

Over shell-torn roads, through water soaked fields, second only to the tanks in its power to climb debris and crater holes, the Ford car made a world famous record in the fighting area of the great war. In press despatches, in field reports, in letters, in rhyme and song the praises of the Ford were sounded.

In France	-	700 cars out of 1,000 were Fords
In Italy	-	850 cars out of 1,000 were Fords
In Egypt	-	996 cars out of 1,000 were Fords
In Mesopotamia		999 cars out of 1,000 were Fords

The Ford power plant that established this world-wide record in every theatre of the war remains the same. It will be in the Ford you buy.

Lord Charles Beresford Was an Energetic Fighter For His Naval Proposals

BARON BERESFORD, better known as Lord Charles Beresford, was a doughty fighter in the navy and a doughty fighter for the navy. In command of the Condor he showed himself ready to take chances, and in command of the Channel Squadron, the Channel Fleet and the Mediterranean Squadron he was an untiring worker for naval efficiency. In the House of Commons, as well as later in the House of Lords, he gladly contended on all occasions that presented themselves for what he deemed the welfare of the navy. And with his pen he was as ready as with his tongue to promote that cause. In 1912 he published his "Great Betrayal," which was a plain-spoken work, but less sensational in its contents than in its title, the most explosive matter in it having previously appeared as a letter to the London Times. Its influence was less than might have been expected from a man of his reputation as a naval authority.

Before this book appeared Lord Fisher, the First Sea Lord, had retired. Of his policy Lord Charles Beresford was an unsparing critic. Lord Charles was opposed to the keeping of the navy concentrated in the North Sea, leaving the stations in other parts of the Empire abandoned and open to attack by any power that should suddenly become an enemy. The event has proved that Lord Fisher was right. Had not the greater part of Britain's naval strength been collected in the North Sea and had not that navy been mobilized ready for action when war was declared, the German navy might have done some mischief at the outset. Fortunately Prince Louis of Battenberg, who was then First Sea Lord, wisely refrained from dispersing the navy to its several bases after the naval manoeuvres for which the ships had been assembled. Lord Charles Beresford had also his own ideas about the dreadnoughts. His view was that mobility counted for more than fortress-like strength afloat. He maintained that the great essential was the keeping of the sea routes open by means of fast cruisers armed with long-range guns.

Another British admiral who had sharply criticized an order of Beresford's in the manoeuvres, so much so indeed as to lead to talk of a breach of friendly relations between the two men, was Sir Percy Scott. Sir Percy was also a doubter as to the value of the dreadnoughts. A few months before the war he wrote a letter to the London Times in which he said in effect that the dreadnoughts were rendered obsolete by the development of the submarine. When the war began, Lord Fisher was recalled to office as First Sea Lord. As the man who had carried out the scheme for concentrating the navy where the danger seemed greatest, and as the strong advocate of great battleships, his selection by Mr. Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, seemed to be natural. Admiral Fisher was largely the author and promoter of the policies of the Government then in office.

In office Lord Fisher was not given to polemics, though he himself was the target for unsparing attacks, especially on the part of Lord Charles Beresford in the Commons, where Mr. Winston Churchill often winced under the genial-mannered but none the less blistering criticism from the same quarter. But just when Lord Beresford's earthly career closes Lord Fisher begins to fling about him as a critic of the navy, half of which he believes to be now ripe for scrapping. Ships quickly become old in these times of rapid advance in scientific construction and armament. Readers of Lord Fisher's remarks on the subject and of his survey of his own career as a seaman cannot but be struck with his leaning to a Billy Sunday way of expressing himself. He seems to have as much delight in iconoclastic criticism as had Lord Beresford himself.

Personal prowess is a quality for which not only Lord Beresford himself but his family as a whole is distinguished. But bravery in the British navy is common to all. Lord Charles had the best for dash and heroic action. He was considerate of the men under him. Though a thorough disciplinarian he was not so much of a martinet as some other famous seamen.

Protestants Erect Monument

THE Swiss find it extremely difficult to be neutral, now that the Allies have won the war, but the town of Geneva has given up the attempt, and is openly and aggressively anti Kaiser.

This is because the Kaiser owes Geneva 50,000 francs and because, as it looks to the Geneva folk just now, he is not likely to pay the debt.

It's all about the International Monument of the Reformation at Geneva, which is far too beautiful to quarrel over, even with the Kaiser; but in Switzerland 50,000 francs is 50,000 francs.

No tourists' eyes have ever rested on this glorious mass of hewn stone. It was begun in 1909, but it did not assume visible proportions until 1914. All during the time that the world was at war the Geneva folk were busily finishing their great work in stone, and, at just about armistice time, it was done. So little attention has been paid to the work by the outside world that I know it is a newspaper scoop to write that the great monument exists at all. It will be a shrine of tourists, beyond a doubt, when the days of travel come again. Their interest may be increased by the fact that the Kaiser still owes 50,000 francs for his share of it.

The monument is designed to celebrate the fourth centenary of Calvin, who established his Protestant university at Geneva. Scores of European artists competed in the designs. Two Swiss won. Their idea was unique. It was:

To supplant a portion of the ancient walls of the city with a great wall of cream-white Alpine stone, extending a distance of 300 feet, on which should be carved the figures of the men who took part in the Reformation in various lands in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

Protestant leaders of Switzerland, France, England, Scotland, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Bohemia, Bulgaria and America were approached by the commission which had the work in charge and gave their approval to the venture.

As the "leading" Protestant of Germany, Kaiser William said to the Swiss commission, in effect:

"Go on with the work. Whenever you need the money I will give you 50,000 francs."

Two French sculptors from Paris, Paul Landowski and Henri Bouchard, won in the competition for figures, and were assigned the mighty task of hewing out the monument, which was to be one block long and as high as a three-story building. Owing to the nature of the task it was necessary for them to work hand-in-hand with the contractors who were setting the mighty stones in place. In some respects, their work was like carving the front of a vast stone edifice.

In the middle of the wall stand, side by side, four giant figures, rudely hewn. They are almost oppressively colossal and block-like. The garb is the robe of the school man of the day. They represent Calvin, John Knox, Beze, the disciple of Calvin, and Farel, the initiator of the reform in Geneva.

Another panel represents the presentation by members of the British Parliament to William II and Queen Mary of the "Bill of Rights." The lettering runs: "The Lords Spiritual and Temporal and Commons being now assembled in a full and free representative of this nation do for the vindicating and asserting their ancient rights and liberties declare that the pretended power of suspending of laws by regall authority without consent of Parlyment is illegall. That levying money without grant of Parlyment is illegall. . . . That election of Members of Parlyment ought to be free . . . ."

It is for the statue of the grand elector, Frederick William, that the former Emperor of Germany is in debt to the Geneva commission.

"It is the war, of course, that took attention away from our great monument," said a member of the Geneva commission. "It will be news to the world that the huge monument has been completed. Landowski and Bouchard, the sculptors, were both in the French army, but the French War Office permitted them to come to Geneva, in turns, to work away at their task. Landowski would be here for six weeks, and then he would go back to his work in the army. While Bouchard would come to take his six weeks' turn with his chisels."

It was not until I had questioned him as to the indebtedness of other nations for their share in the monument that I learned that William Hohenzollern's bill was unpaid, and that, though the commission has hopes of collecting the shares of France, Great Britain and the United States, it sees little hope in getting any money from Hungary or the Kaiser.

THE latest contribution to the clearing up of the Afghan incident, that supplied by Mr. F. H. McLoughlin, an electrical engineer, who was the last European to leave Afghanistan before the famous conquest of India was undertaken by the armies of the usurping Ameer, and the tale he has to tell is one of a typically oriental ambition, furthered in a typically oriental fashion. There are, of course, wheels within wheels; it would not be Afghanistan if it were not so. German propagandists, Russian Bolsheviki, Indian Nationalists, and Afghan religious fanatics, all in turn flit across the stage. Nevertheless, the outline of the story, which begins with a tragedy and ends in something very like a broad farce, is simple enough and conventional enough for the "Arabian Nights."

It begins, of course, with the murder of Habibullah Khan, last February. Habibullah was, almost before anything else, the "friend of England," and, during the years of the war, had never wavered in his loyalty to his engagements, in spite of the notorious efforts on the part of Germany to stir up trouble for Great Britain in this highly inflammable region. The news of his murder was followed by a curious silence. Even those quarters usually well supplied with information were without any information, and, for two months, the sum total of the news which leaked out of Kabul into the outside world was, that Habibullah Khan had been murdered; that he had been succeeded by his second son, and that the new Ameer had declared himself disposed to pursue the policy of his father as regarding Great Britain. Then, early in May, came the "bolt from the blue," the attack on the Khyber posts, the "war," in fact, which was to have been a grand descent into India, but which quickly degenerated into the most ordinary guerrilla skirmishing, and, to-day, is ending in a very prosaic and inglorious conference at Rawalpindi.

It is in regard to the two months of silence that Mr. McLoughlin's statement is so illuminating. It now appears to be quite certain that the Government of India was wrong in its first surmise, namely, that the war had been undertaken by the new Ameer simply as a desperate expedient to divert the attention of his subjects from the unsatisfactory state of things at home. Mr. McLoughlin shows quite clearly that it was all part of a deeply laid scheme. The war against India, instigated, in the first instance, by German propagandists, as far back as five years ago, had long been seriously contemplated by a powerful party in the country, of whom the Ameer's brother Nasrulla, and the Ameer's second son, Amanulla, were the most prominent figures. The great obstacle was Habibullah, and so Habibullah was assassinated. Immediately thereafter, Amanulla proceeded to achieve, no doubt, long-cherished, design to make himself Ameer. It was easily done. Without exactly saying so, he caused it to be spread abroad that the Ameer's eldest son, Inayatulla, had made no effort to discover the murderers of his father. As a consequence, Inayatulla was branded as a coward, and the throne was offered to Amanulla. Amanulla accepted the offer, and then, to make assurance doubly sure, cast his uncle and his elder brother into prison, and gathering his armies together flung them or sent them along the historic road from Kabul to the Khyber Pass. Nothing, Mr. McLoughlin declares, could shake the belief of the commander-in-chief or the Afghan armies that the thing could be done, that India would hail the Afghans as deliverers, and that the rest would be easy. The rest, however, proved to be very difficult. The Punjab and the border tribesmen, once again, proved their loyalty to the British raj, and the Ameer sued for peace. What kind of terms he will get will be decided at Rawalpindi.

GATHERING UP A STABLE OF HORSES

SAM C. HILDRETH OF NEW YORK BIDS FAIR TO RIVAL J. K. L. ROSS.

New York, Sept. 28.—Sam C. Hildreth is gathering up a stable of horses that bids fair to eclipse that of J. K. L. Ross of Montreal. Every day he is adding to it.

He bought Kremer yesterday for six thousand dollars. Kremer had not seen his new stall before he won a two thousand dollar race for his new owner, besides a wager. Now Hildreth has a promising colt for nothing and a bonus. Hildreth is playing in good luck just now, having a stable full of good horses, including Durcullit, Purchase, Thundercrisp, Ot of the Way, Arrah Go On, Mad Hatter, Corn Tassel. In fact, outside of Naturalist and Cudgel there is left little in the handicapping such master cards.

BIG BOXING BOUT TOMORROW NIGHT

"IRISH" JORDAN IN THE PINK OF CONDITION, IS DETERMINED TO START WITH A WIN

Tomorrow night's boxing card promises to be one of the most interesting affairs of its kind seen here for some time. Irish Jordan, the local boy who won several fights overseas, some of them by the knock-out route, has been training hard every day for the past two weeks. Like all the rest who were successful in getting overseas, he is anxious to take his proper place among the middleweights of Ontario and he thinks there is no better way than to start out by handing young Ryan, of Toronto, a good trimming tomorrow night. On the other hand the Toronto boy, who has already had some good bouts in Ontario would greatly dislike going down to defeat to a newcomer. The bout is to be 10 rounds and if opinion of the local boy is correct, promises to be a hummer from start to finish. Besides this big bout there will be three interesting preliminaries.

"Nincompoop" is a most entirely satisfying and refined way of calling a person a fool or blockhead or a simpleton. It is a corruption of the Latin phrase "non compos mentis"—not sound of mind. Besides being satisfying and refined it has a classical origin in addition.

Dogs of War.

On July 28, 1838, General Zachary Taylor, afterward president of the United States, requested the government to furnish him with bloodhounds to be used in hunting the Seminole Indians of Florida. He was furnished with the dogs.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Said:

"After all what a man does with his money is to invest, and there is no better way to in it than in Life Insurance.

As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance.

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT

A young man sixteen years of age took out a 15 years Endowment (No. 210380) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.30 for fifteen years and he now has, through that investment, an immediate estate of $3495.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 15 PER CENT COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR PAID?

No wonder Sir Wilfrid said—and he might have added (no better place than the Sun Life of Canada)—"there is no better way to invest it than in LIFE INSURANCE."

BE CAREFUL IN MARKING BALLOT

MEETINGS TONIGHT TO EXPLAIN HOW TO AVOID SPOILING THEM AT POLLS.

A matter that has caused some perplexity is with regard to marking the ballot to be used when voting at the polls in taking the roferendum vote on October 20th. For the first time we have offered a ballot that will be used to express for the person marking opinions on four questions. The omission to mark the ballot, except as directed by the provisions of the act will result in the ballot being spoiled. So the person and voter has to be careful.

It has seemed to the Referendum Committee that some preliminary education with regard to this marking would be a good and useful thing, so arrangements have been made for special meetings to be held in this week, at which wil be asked to attend, hear explanations and afterwards mark an imitation ballot.

Such a meeting will be held in George Street Church Sunday School room on this evening, 29th., at eight o'clock. In the room will be arranged three stations, so-called booths, for use of the gathering in voting. It will be practically what is known as a "straw vote." While it may express the wishes and intentions of those present the duty will be educative as well. So that on going to the polls each will have had previous experience of how to do it to express the wish with regard to prohibition and the several questions on the ballot.

On this same Monday evening, 29th., a similar meeting will be held in Charlotte Street Sunday School, Reid Street, at the usal hour, and for the same purpose. All interested are invited to attend. The evening will be illuminative and interesting. Short addresses will be given on the subject and the work, and these addresses will assist in clearing up doubts as to position to take and how to take it. During the week further announcement will be made of additional meetings to be held at convenient places in the city. The East Ward will have one and the South Ward, as well. If people will attend one or more of these meetings they will learn just how, and can afterwards advise others who may not find it convenient to attend, or who may have been out of the city at the time.

The Executive Committee will be glad to supply imitation ballots to any society or organiation that wishes to use them for above purposes. Requests can be phoned to Mr. A. B. Cunningham, at phone 1261w, 331 Reid Street.

But keep in mind the evenings of meetings.

GEORGE ST. SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY

632 SCHOLARS AND VISITORS LISTEN TO TALKS ON CHRISTIAN HOME INFLUENCE.

Six hundred and thirty-two scholars and visitors attended the annual rally day service at George Street Sunday school yesterday afternoon. The topic of the service was "Home," and this thought was beautifully brought out in the readings, hymns and talks.

Mr. Richardson of the local Collegiate staff, delivered the first address of the afternoon on "How the Soldier Regarded the Home." He spoke very feelingly of the great influence home life had on the character of the soldier boys when they were far away across the ocean. He remembered an evening, the night before the great battle of the Somme, when two soldiers, comrades of his, had gone out in the dead of the night, amid tremendous shelling, to cut wires. These two men had crept into a shell hole and, lying flat, there lifted their voices to God for protection and deliverance. This, said the speaker, was the result of their Christian training in the home back in Canada. How often, on the eve of a great battle, had the soldiers thought of the homes they had left, perhaps forever, and there, lying in their billets, had prayed to their Heavenly Father, as a result of a Christian home influence.

And as the men return home they are filled with the same spirit as when they left three, or perhaps four, years ago. But, in addition, they have acquired a broader, deeper, clearer vision of life, gathered during their experiences and travels. And the boys who went away are returning men; nevertheless they are returning to the same home, in the same spirit as when they left.

Mr. S. R. Armstrong was called on for a second address, but as the time for the usual dismissal of the school was already passed he limited his remarks to two minutes. He spoke of the value of the home to the Sunday school and of the value of the Sunday school to the home. If the home influence is Christian and the Bible is studied in the home, such materially helps the work in the Sunday school. But, on the other hand, if the Sunday school scholar belongs to a home where the Christian spirit is not predominant, where the Bible is not studied, it is a duty and a privilege for that scholar to introduce these into his home.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre To Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few

THE ANNNUAL FALL RALLY LOCAL Y.W.C.A.

NEW OFFICIALS INTRODUCED TO LARGE GATHERING OF YOUNG AND ADULT FOLK.

About three hundred people—little tots, bigger tots and grown-ups gathered at the Young Women's Christian Association Friday night for the annual fall rally.

Mrs. W. D. Scott, president of the Board of Directors, presided and the meeting opened with the singing of "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."

After the reading of the scriptures and prayer by the Rev. Mr. Malott of Trinity Methodist Church, the president made a few openings remarks, in which she welcomed every one to the association and spoke of the changes on the staff.

Miss Leta Bromskombe, the new assistant secretary, and Miss Pryce, the physical director, were introduced and responded in a few words. Miss Pryce spoke of the good the girls could get from the gymnasium classes and outdoor sports and outlined her work for the year. After solos by Miss Florence Scott and Mr. O. Steer, the audience stood to welcome Miss Layton, the new general secretary, by giving a hearty clapping. Miss Layton then gave the talk of the evening. She spoke of what it means to belong to the Young Women's Christian Association, a world organization which has over eight hundred thousand other members, belonging to over ten thousand other branches and representing many countries. She told of the opportunities and responsibilities that are before girls today—opportunities to take the high way by making the most of one's physical strength, by learning the higher things of life and by giving to others. These opportunities are open to girl everywhere—in the schools and libraries, in the churches and Sunday Schools, in the Young Women's Christian Association, in their own homes and in their work. Miss Layton then outlined some of the opportunities for girls in the association this year, and closed her talk by telling the story of the palace that was re-built by music. Her closing sentence will give the key-note of the story, "And I know that if you and I work and play together the wonderful melody of love, we, too, shall build a beautiful palace that will stand always."

After a solo by Mrs. T. Ferguson, a social hour was spent with games and music in the gymnasium and refreshments served in the Green room.

The attendance and enthusiasm of this fall rally augur well for the work of the year in the Young Women's Christian Association.

Y. M. C. A. MINSTRELS.

The regular weekly practice of the Y. M. C. A. Minstrels will be held in the Association building on Tuesday evening instead of Wednesday as announced. The Y. W. C. A. members of the chorus will be present, and it is hoped that as many as possible will be on hand.

The public this year are to be treated to something out of the ordinary run of minstrel shows in that the chorus will be composed of male and female voices. As the minstrels are under the capable leadership of Mr. Asa Huycke, who is determined to put over the very best minstrel show ever witnessed in the city, the musically inclined and fun-loving patrons will be assured a treat. The exact date of the performance is not as yet definitely known, but is expected to be towards the close of November.

Don't forget the practice Tuesday night.

RECORD RALLY DAY SERVICE AT MURRAY STREET BAPTIST

About three hundred enjoyed a very successful rally day service at the Murray Street Baptist Sunday School yesterday afternoon. The interdenominational program was used. The theme of the whole service was "Home," the hymns, color, readings and talks all bearing on this idea.

An address was given by Mr. H. B. Cowan, who explained how a boy could indulge in all forms of sport and still remain a true Christian boy. The idea was to make sports pure and clean and they would help character building influences rather than hinder them.

Mr. Carton, of the local branch of the London Life, also delivered an address on the theme of the service, "The Ideal Home." He explained how influence of the home if it were correct could assist a great deal toward making the character of the individual strong and Christ-like.

OCCUSED OF CHICKEN STEALING

A very peculiar case arose in Police Court this morning when one lady from the north-west end of the city charged her neighbor with stealing from her one rooster 3 months old valued at $1.50.

Mr. J. Oliver of the firm of Gordon & O'Brien, appeared for the accused and Crown Attorney Hatten prosecuted the case, and after a prolonged argument, the case was adjourned till tomorrow morning.

The plaintiff asserts she shut 12 chickens in her coop last Friday night and on Saturday morning there were only 12. She looked in the enclosed runway, belonging to the next door neighbor and recognized her missing chicken.

The accused emphatically denied having stolen the chicken and swore the one in her coop, which apparently resembles the missing chicken, belongs to her.

It appears as though there has been considerable chicken stealing in that neighborhood and it is time some action was taken to stop it.

BE READY FOR THE CAMPAIGN

RED TRIANGLE CANVASS STARTS TOMORROW—A COMMENDABLE CAUSE NEEDING YOUR SUPPORT.

The Y. M. C. A.'s Red Triangle campaign to raise 7500 for the continued prosecution of its good work for both returned and returning soldiers, boys, youths and young men in general, commences tomorrow and will continue throughout all day Wednesday. This is the last appeal the "Y" will make for war purposes, and it should be subscribed to generously until the amount asked for is made up. In fact, it is to be hoped considerably more than the $7500 objective will be reached, as every dollar donated will be used to advantage in providing for returned men many needed and appreciated requisites which cannot be obtained otherwise.

The "Y." is still giving splendid service for returning soldiers—on transports, at disembarkation ports, on troop trains, in large distribution centres, in attending to wounded and convalescent soldiers—and in addition is granting free membership privileges for six months. Then it should be borne in mind that the work the Y. M. C. A. accomplished at the front can now be undertaken amongst men at mines, in lumber camps, and in factories, where there is much scope for Red Triangle activities.

This organization now appealing for your financial help is also a commendable factor in molding the ideas of Canada's budding manhood in lines which promise an uplift of the coming generation toward the ideal of a great and world-influencing nation so generally hoped for as a result of the great war.

THEATRICAL

EVEN FUNNIER THAN TWIN BEDS

IS "HIS BRIDAL NIGHT," COMING TO THE GRAND THEATRE SATURDAY.

One of the most attractive offerings of the current theatrical season at the Grand, Saturday, matinee and evening, will be the delightful musical farce, "His Bridal Night," from the pen of Margaret Mayo. Miss Mayo has contributed to the American stage some of the greatest laughing successes of recent years. "His Bridal Night" is said to be even funnier than her well-known "Twin Beds." As the title suggests, there was plenty of opportunity for risque lines and situations, yet Miss Mayo has skillfully avoided overstepping the bounds of good taste and propriety and assurance is given that there is nothing offensive in the action of the piece.

When first produced in New York at the Republic Theatre, where it ran for one season, "His Bridal Night" made a distinct hit as a straight farce. For big measure this season, Frederick V. Bowers, the well known song writer, has supplied a catchy musical score. The comedy is most amusing and there is a sustained and interesting plot throughout. It presents a case of mistaken identity. Two sisters, twins, who look so much alike that the bridegroom cannot tell the one he married from the newly acquired sister-in-law, a quarrel, a honeymoon begun with the wrong girl and the interference of Julie, a well meaning aunt who undertakes to bring the pair happily together, encountering considerable trouble in so doing, forms the basis of the story in "His Bridal Night."

The company, it is claimed, is an excellent one. Robert Knight, who plays the bridegroom, is not only a splendid actor, but possesses a voice of rare musical worth which is heard to marked advantage in the numbers assigned to him. "When I settle Down With You, "Sweet Bye and Bye," "You're a Very Pretty, Very Witty Girlie" and "Come Along Love With Me," are a few of the big song hits. Others prominent in the cast are the Crisp Sisters, who are really as much alike as the proverbial two peas; a capital character actor, Frank Cullen, Charles Bennett, Beatrice Lett and Bertha Julian. The scenic investiture is complete and elaborate.

PAULINE FREDERIK IN "DOUBLE-CROSSED"

AT EMPIRE TO-NIGHT AND TO-MORROW—ONE OF PARAMOUNT'S SUCCESSES.

Pauline Frederick, who is appearing in the Paramount picture, "Double-Crossed," at the Empire Theatre, on Monday and Tuesday, has one of the most enviable reputations as an emotional actress of any living star. Her career on the stage was short and of a meteor-like brilliancy.

No one who witnessed it will ever forget her last appearance on the stage which was in "Joseph and His Brethern," at the Century Theatre, New York City, on January 11, 1913. This was the climax of a stage career which had given her the unquestioned position of the leading emotional actress of the day.

At the height of her stage career Miss Frederick deserted the stage for the screen where she first appeared in the Famous Players, presentation of "The Eternal City" From the beginning she became one of the biggest drawing cards for Paramount. Her artistry has marvelous depth and power and she has duplicated a brilliant stage triumph on the screen.

DOROTHY GISH in Boots

REAL LONDON FOG SHOWN IN DOROTHY GISH'S FILM "BOOTS"

REMARKABLE VIEWS FEATURE OF PARAMOUNT PHOTOPLAY AT ALLEN'S THEATRE.

You have read and heard of London fogs, but unless you have been on the actual ground, you have very vague idea of what they really are. And because Dorothy Gish knew what London fogs were like, she having been in London during that time she was working on "Hearts of the World," she insisted that the real London fog be used in Paramount picture, "Boots," now showing at the Allen Theatre on Monday and Tuesday.

Nearly all of the first reel of the picture transpires during a cold, damp and misty evening when Trafalgar Square is covered with a blanket-like mist that penetrates to every corner. Of course, many of the scenes are inside scenes, and there are others which could not be staged across the water at the time they were made.

These have been taken and so cleverly woven into the foreign photography that it is impossible to tell which were made in the United States and which were made abroad. Modern motion picture making taxes the ingenuity of every department of production.

"So," says Manager Rosenthal of the Allen, "when you see the London fog in 'Boots,' remember it's not all London. But don't come and ask me which is London and which is Los Angeles, because I don't know. You'll have to write to Dorothy."

Miss Gish's new photoplay was written by Martha Littman, adapted by M. M. Stearns and directed by Elmer Clifton.

Ireland Still Medieval.

In Ireland we are still medieval, and think that how to live is more important than how to get a living. When I was a young man if I announced that I intended next morning at break of day to start on some enterprise of amusement, or it might be of high duty, the whole family would get up to see me off; but if it were on some matter of mere commercial gain, I would breakfast in the care of the servants. It was thus through the whole of Irish life.—John Butler Yeats.

JACK CANUCK IN BERLIN THUR. & FRI

SCREEN CELEBRITIES, IN PERSON, COMING TO GRAND WITH BRAND NEW FILM.

Even before William Hohenzollern had fled to the wood-pile in Holland on which he now finds sufficient exercise to his long over-praised intellect and physical prowess, and the world had taken the measure of his inflated greatness Mack Sennett, the comedy genius of the screen, had decided to prick the bubble of Royal Egotism with the best of all weapons—ridicule.

Sennett set to work to achieve the high mark of his remarkable career as a satirist and laughmaker in a film production that should sweep Wilhelm off the serious pages of history as a monumental bluff. And now it is "Jack Canuck in Berlin" five reels of hilarious fun, with the entire Keystone corps of comedy marshalled in on production and to make the measure a heaping one the famous Sennett Bathing Beauties and Bothwell Browne, the greatest of all male actors of female roles, in the cast.

Through the purchase of the American and Canadian rights to "Jack Canuck in Berlin," by Sol L. Lesser of San Francisco, who is now the largest individual purchaser in America of state rights to important films this supreme comedy is to be exhibited at the Grand Theatre, on Thursday and Friday, in a manner altogether extraordinary.

By special permission, the Sennett girls will come from California, yes, sir, themselves, in person to Peterborough—to grace the stage as well as the screen that has so often reflected their refreshing youth, grace and perfection of figure; the dazzling mereids of the California studio will be seen in all their elaborate costumery, set off with brilliant lighting effects, in a specialty staged number preceding the showing of the film.

The more extension of this doubly important event of the theatre promises a "sell-out" every afternoon and evening of the engagement.

ALL-STAR CAST AT ALLAN'S THURS. & FRI.

No photoplay produced in recent years presents a better cast of screen players than that employed by Cecil B. De Mille in his superb production of "The Squaw Man," a picturization of Edwin Milton Royle's famous stage play, which will be presented at the Allen Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday. From start to finish, the cast in the photplay is made up of stars or players of stellar importance.

Elliott Dexter is in the stellar role, with Ann Little playing opposite to him as the Indian girl. Katherine MacDonald, Theodore Roberts, Jack Holt, Thurston Hall, Tully Marshall and others have exceptionally strong parts. Nearly all of those named have been seen in many of the more famous Paramount and Artcraft productions.

"The Squaw Man" is a drama of the most graphic character, with intense human interest, stirring heart appeal and unrivalled charm of character depiction. Sam Wood and Ann Wyckoff was the camera expert.

The Unknown Quantity.

When a thing like that happens a man does not know exactly where he is or how he feels. The largeness and the smallness of the world amaze him; the mystery of life bewilders him; he is confused in the presence of the unknown quantity. How he behaves, what he says or does, depends entirely upon instincts beyond his control. This is what happened to Richard when he heard the voice of Carola.—Henry Van Dyke.

Oldest Living Thing.

The oldest living thing in the world is thought to be the famous cypress in the churchyard of the village of Santa Maria del Tule, a few miles from Mexico city. Experts have estimated its age as between five and six thousand years. It is said to have been a stripling two hundred years old when Cheops built the great pyramid.—Exchange.

To Repair Book Covers.

MAJORITY OF CUBS PICK REDS TO WIN

CINCINNATI FAVORED BY MOST OF CHICAGO NATIONAL LEAGUE CLUB.

Chicago, Sept. 27. — Hardly a player is to be found on the Cub team who does not think the Cincinnati Reds are going to win from the White Sox in the world's series. Nearly every member of Fred Mitchell's organization picks Pat Moran and his men because they proved to be the best in the National League and when a club does that its abilities cannot be underestimated. The Cubs figure it that way and contend that these fans who are expecting the White Sox to have an easy time of it with the Reds are due to be surprised.

The Cubs give various reasons why they think the Reds will give the National League the first world's championship it has had since 1914. Some believe that Manager Moran has drilled his men to a stage where they believe they cannot be beaten by any club and, therefore, will rush the Sox off their feet. Others say that the Reds' pitchers have performed with such effectiveness this year that they will stop Kid Gleason's best hitters, while others believe that the Reds have the punch behind their hitting to beat the Sox pitchers.

Merkle Likes Reds.

"It is difficult for me to pick a winner in this series," said Fred Merkle, "but I like the Reds because I think they were the best team in the National League, and this is the first year in several that the best club won. Moran has his men pitching smart baseball along with the stuff they have, and while the Sox are good hitters I think they will find Ruether, Sallee, Ring, Eller and Fisher with more ability than they expect."

"I like the Reds," said Bill Killefer. "I am counting on Pat Moran's generalship in handling his pitchers. He coached them wonderfully well this year and made first class twirlers out of them. Reuther is a good pitcher and I look for him and Fisher to give the Sox trouble. Sallee also will trouble them, while Ring and Eller are like to stop them dead still."

"I want to see the Reds win the series for the sake of Pat Moran," said Grover Clevand Alexander, "and I have a hunch they will. In the game they played against us they looked like the best team in the league and showed me fine defensive and offensive strength. One can never tell when they are beaten and they have the power to drive out hits. They are fast on the bases and play smart baseball. They must be given an excellent chance, because Moran has pitchers who will worry the Sox."

Robertson Favors Sox.

"The American League has been winning the world's series so frequently that I think they will turn the trick again," said Dave Robertson. "I have always believed the American League was from 15 to 20 per cent. stronger than the National and that is why I think the White Sox will win. Gleason has a bunch of mighty good hitters, as well as some fine pitchers and a hustling ball club that is strong offensively."

"Pat Moran's pitchers showed me enough stuff to convince me the Reds will win the series," said Charlie Deal. "Reuther has a dandy fast ball and a puzzling curve, while Sallee is smart enough to fool the best hitters in the world. Ring is good, too, while Eller may set the Sox on their heads. The Reds can hit, too, and Cicotte, if the Sox are counting on him will have his trouble in winning from them. Left handers give the Reds trouble, but they have to pitch good ball to do so."

"I played against the White Sox in 1917 and will say they are a fighting bunch," said Herzog. "If they are beaten they keep trying all the time, and are ever ready to take advantage of a mistake. They look like the better team going into the series, but I do not think they will have an easy time with the Reds. I would not be surprised to see the series go eight games. I figure Cicotte and Williams will win, and I also look for Reuther. Sallee and Ring each to take a game. It is going to be one of the hardest fought series that has been seen in years."

Vaughn Talks of Reds.

"I haven't a great deal of faith in the Reds' pitchers," said Vaughn, "although they have pitched some mighty fine games this year. The White Sox are a slugging bunch and it takes great pitching to stop them, especially in a short series. The result of the games all depends on the pitchers. If Moran's men can hold them down to one or two runs a game, the Reds will win, as I think they will make more runs than that off the White Sox pitchers."

"I like the Reds," said Charlie Hollocher. "Of course, I am hardly in position to judge, as I have not seen the White Sox, but Moran's club played such fine baseball against us that I figure it will take a mighty good ball team and some exceptionally effective pitching to beat them."

REDS HAPPY OVER WINNING THE TOSS

SAY IT IS A GOOD ONE FOR COMING BIG SERIES—PECULIAR CIRCUMSTANCES.

BY W. A. PHELON.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 26.—To say that Cincinnati baseball fandom was jubilant Monday night would be putting it too softly. Every follower of the Reds seems to think that the luck of Garry Herrmann in winning the toss of the coin was a huge hunch as to the good fortune of the club and the gabfest through the evening had a tone of joyous confidence.

The toss was a comical affair. Louis Comiskey had brought down a coin slipped to him by his papa, with two tails on it, and Garry Herrmann had one, already framed, with two heads. Then Ban Johnson horned in and insisted on their using a coin of his own, a brand new half-dollar. Louis Comiskey tossed the coin and Garry called "Heads." "Tails it is!" exulted Harry Grabiner. "We will cluch the series right off the reel-" And then Garry Herrmann, with a sweet, widespread smile, invited everybody to look at the coin. "Aw, thunder!" moaned Louis Comiskey. "It's one of those new halves, an' I thought the head was tail!"

"This series," says Pat Morgan, "may be turned in favor of the club that can do the most stealing on the square. By that expression, I mean ability to catch and decipher the other fellow's signal code—to read their signs by quick observation and fast thinking. That's what called stealing on the square—and the club that can first solve the other club's lodge rituals is likely to get a tremendous advantage on the series."

Garry Herrmann will arrange a special train to be known as the Newspaper Special, which will tote the scribes up to Chicago, leaving at eleven bells the night of Oct. 2. The Red players will go on a different train as Pat Moran figures the writers' rattler will be too vociferous.

The White Sox representatives who came down to Cincinnati to frame up the details for the series were frank and honest in admitting that they were extremely glad the schedule was for 140 games this year instead of 154. They don't deny that Cleveland would probably beat them out if the season had two more weeks to go, for the Indians have been rushing through like wild horses lately, while the Sox have faltered in their stride.

Steady pitching—abstinence from too many passes—helped the Reds tremendously in winning the flag. In 136 games so far played by the club the Red pitchers gave 306 bases on balls, Ruether, with eighty-two, being the wildest, and Sallee, who gave only twenty tickets in twenty-seven games, being the steadiest. The Giant pitchers have given 327 and even that slight margin has accounted for several games' difference in the standing of the two clubs.

Pat Moran's men have gone barnstorming for four days, despite frenzied protests from thousands of local fans. Pat figured that they would be better off if they were keeping in baseball practice than if they sat idle round Cincinnati, where they would be overwhelmed with invitations. The fans are afraid that four nights on the road, a different small town stop or a sleeper each night, will be detrimental and they also fear that some one of the regulars may be injured in the rocky hush town fields.

The Reds have been afraid to use Charlie See, the Rochester slugger, on account of the hideous fielding he showed in practice—muff after muff and fumble after fumble. The kid was shoved into the last few games just to show his batting power. He hit up to expectations, but surprised everybody by brilliant fielding, taking impossible chances with the ease of a Roush or Williams. Now Manager Pat is banking on him as first substitute in case any of the regulars are damaged in the series.

REDS CELEBRATE WINNING PENNANT

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 27.—Today is one of jollification for the Cincinnati National baseball team. The pennant "victory" program started out with a parade of five divisions, headed by Mayor Galvin and other city officials. President August Herrmann of the Cincinnati Club and owners of the club. Tonight a banquet will be given in honor of the Reds, where speeches will be made by Governor Cox, Mayor Galvin and prominent business men.

The Chicago clubs now playing out the last series on the local grounds were given a place of honor along with the Reds in the line. Following the two teams came members of the Business Men's Club, Rotory, Advertisers, other clubs and civic organizations.

Amateur baseball players of all descriptions, numbering close to 2000, presented one of the features of the procession, together with twelve teams of the famous Thomas Soldiers' League. Conspicuous in the parade was the automobile reserved for former Red baseball players of 1869. Cal McVey, right fielder; Geo. Wright, shortston; George Taylor, sub catcher and the former president of the 1904 club, John Davis.

Ants on Peonies.

For a number of years many persons in various parts of the country have complained of ants destroying the buds on the peonies.

To rid peonies of these ants, cut a circular piece of heavy paper or heavy cardboard, about two feet in diameter, and put a hole in the center just large enough to allow the stem or main stalks of the peony to pass through, and then slit from the center to one edge, to enable you to place the circular rim of paper round the plant.

Smear molasses on the surface of the cardboard, and then scatter a little arsenic powder over the sticky molasses.

The ants will eat of the sweet as they go or come, and it will not be long until you have stopped the constant stream of destructive ants from visiting the peony buds.

In some localities similar trouble has been experienced with ants on dahlias, and the same remedy may be successfully used.

If a very thick solution of arsenate of lead is used with plently of molasses, it will do the same work as the arsenic.

Grossed Arctic to Help Red Cross.

Many strange things happen in the course of Red Cross activities, and not a few occur in that most versatile territory, Alaska. The office of the Northwest division of the Red Cross was mildly surprised recently when Mrs. Sophia Redmond of Nolan, Alaska, walked in and turned over $206 as the proceeds from the auctioning of a sweater she had knit for the Red Cross.

This statement itself is only of passing interest perhaps, but take your map of Alaska and you will locate Nolan well within the arctic circle, between the sixty-seventh and sixty-eighth parallels. Mrs. Redmond, who is the only white woman at Nolan, left there August 10, mushing to Bettles, 70 miles away. From there she went to Nulato by river boat, a journey of almost 500 miles. There she boarded a Yukon river steamer to connect with the ocean steamship for Seattle.

Strong Family Resemblance.

"Contentment," remarked Shinbone, "am a mighty thing; de only trouble 'bout it is it's kin' o' hahd to 'stinguish from jes' plain laziness."—Boston Transcript.

Success Depends.

"Opportunities," said Uncle Eben, "is like race hosses. Dar's allus plenty o' 'em. De success of de trick depends on pickin' de right one."

Daily Thought.

An Interesting Patient.

"The medical ignorance of some people is staggering," said Dr. Simon Flexner, at a dinner. "I know an X-ray specialist who got a letter from a middle western farmer the other day. The farmer wrote: 'Dear Sir: I have had a nail in my thorax for seventeen years. I am too busy to come to town, but want you to come down here with your rays, as my case will be worth your while. If you do not find time to come, send down a dozen rays boxed, by express, with instruction card, and I will try to work some myself.' The X-ray specialist wrote back to the farmer: 'Dear Friend: I regret to say that business engagements prevent me visiting you and I am unfortunately out of rays just now. If you cannot come to town, send me your thorax by parcel post, and we will see what can be done.'"

His Wicked Feeling.

Patient Amos Keene had heard his sister tell everybody in town how she fell from a ladder when she was showing Amos how to shingle the roof. "I've been present about thutty times when she's told it," said a neighbor, "and it hasn't lost anything by the repetition. Well, sir, one day when she'd recled it off to a party of folks that were driving by and stopped for a glass o' water, Amos war real put out. 'I declare to man,' he said to me, 'there's times—maybe it's wicked—but there's times when I almost wish Deborah had never fell off'n that ladder!'"

Stabbed by Turkey.

Veser Greenwell is improving after a three weeks' indisposition from a wound made by a male turkey striking him on the right arm while he was using his knife, driving a two-inch blade full length into his leg several inches above the knee. He suffered for two days from serious bleeding of the wound, and doctors had to perform an operation.—Brandenberg, Ky., Messenger.

Laziest of Birds.

The laziest of birds is the frogmouth. He sleeps all day, and at night, instead of flying about in search of food, he sits on a limb and literally waits for the insects to come and feed him.

Returned aviators are forming a club to promote flying.

Mark Street Epworth League will meet tonight at 8 o'clock. An interesting temperance program has been prepared. One item is a test ballot. Come and bring a friend.

WANTED.

Caretaker for the Isolation Hospital.

A man and his wife to act as caretaker and cook, duties to commence October 15. For particulars apply to Dr. McPherson, corner Murray and Water streets.

HUGE CUCUMBER

Mr. J. Jones, of Hall's Bridge, has grown what may be considered the record cucumber of the district, for size. This cucumber, not yet over ripe weighs 4 lbs. 10 ozs, is 12 inches in length and is 16 inches around the thickest part. It is the ordinary variety, its remarkable size being the only extraordinary feature, and it speaks well for the adatability of the soil in the Hall's Bridge neighborhood for growing vegetables.

MUSIC.

Mr. Frank Tattersall (Organist St. Paul's), Pianist and Teacher. Students given a thorough training from the beginning to the teaching profession or concert platform. Special technique course to teachers or advanced pupils. For terms, address 163 Murray street.

HUNTING SEASON

The hunting season this year is five days later than last season, commencing November 5th, instead of the first as heretofore.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

WEBB—McQUAIG.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. David McQuaig, 474 Sherbrooke street, on Wednesday, September 24, a pretty wedding was solemnized when their youngest daughter, Lottie E., was united in marriage to Michael P. Webb, Kingston, Rev. Mr. Chapman officiating.

The bride looked charming in a dress of taupe satin with over dress of georgette. She carried a bouquet of ophelia roses. To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Miss Greta Mills, and followed by her pretty flower girl, her niece, Doris Wilson, the bride entered the drawingroom on the arm of her father. The young couple were married under an arch composed of pink and white asters and their initials "W" and "Mc". The bride was attended by her eldest sister, Mrs. Wilson, while Mr. Cecil Leal, Marmora, supported the groom. During the signing of the register Mr. John Smith sang "Oh Promise Me." After the ceremony about sixty relatives assembled in the beautifully decorated dining room, where a buffet luncheon was served, after which showers of confetti. Mr. and Mrs. Webb left by the 5:30 G.T.R. train for Orillia, Welland and Buffalo. On their return they will reside in Peterborough. The many useful and valuable gifts received testified to the high esteem in which the young couple are held, and may their lives, like the maple leaf, grow more beautiful as they fade.

Some of the out of town guests in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. A. Pitts, Misses Jennie and Candice Deville, Madoc; Mr. and Mrs. L. Neal, Mr. Cecil Leal, Mrs. Robt. Harris, Marmora; Messrs Robt. and Thompson McQuaig, Harry Little, Blairton; Mr. W. J. McFaul, Mr. Jos. Little, Bayelock; Miss H. McQuaig, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. S. Knox, Mr. Carlen Knox, Mr. Victor Knox, Fenelon Falls; Mr. Connely, Montreal; Mrs. D. McQuaig, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Williams, Lindsay, motored to the city yesterday and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Corrin, McDonnel street, and Mrs. A. J. Bolwell, Aylmer street.

Thousands of Returned Men
Joining the "Good Old Y"

Over 40,000 Veterans have joined the Y. M. C. A.'s throughout Canada. Thousands more are joining daily. They are standing by the pal that stood by them.

These Veterans agree with Gen. Currie

Work will Soon Be Over

This is the last appeal that will be made to the citizens of Peterborough for funds for the Y. M. C. A. work overseas. The funds now being raised will carry on the work until April 1, 1920, when the grand work of the Y. M. C. A. in the Great War will have been completed.

"I am willing to stand on every platform in Canada and testify to the work of the Y. M. C. A. in the field. It was a wonderful organization and played a wonderful part in keeping up the morale of the troops."

Gen Sir Arthur Currie.

These Ask for Your Assistance

Busy private citizens are giving of their time freely to make it possible for Peterborough to fulfil its part in this great work. The teams who conduct the canvass will represent:

The Red Cross,
The Great War Veterans,
The Directors of the local Y. M. C. A.

$7,500---To-morrow and Wednesday
The Canvassers will Call on You---$7,500

The Y. M. C. A. is built to serve. It served over seas, it serves at home. Its motto is "Service." In this campaign you are asked to contribute $7500.

Of this sum $5000 will go to the National Council of Y. M. C. A.'s of Canada to help carry on its work for the returning men.

$2500 will be apportioned to the Peterborough Y. M. C. A. to provide increased facilities for service and equipment for the returned men who have already joined up and to carry on its good work for the men and boys of the city.

From England to Halifax, from Halifax to Vancouver the Red Triangle serves until the last man is home. Secretaries on transports and troop trains, at clearing depots and Red Triangle clubs right across Canada maintain an unbroken chain of free service.

Your returning boys stick to the "Good Old Y" right to the end of the journey. Then they join up with the local Y. M. C. A. Over 200 have joined at Peterborough.

Do your bit in this campaign on September 30 and October 1 and help your own "Y" carry on. Should you be away or the canvasser miss you, send in your cheque. It will be welcome.

NEWSOME GIVES SPECIFIC CASES WHERE PETERBORO PLUMBING IS AT FAULT

Follows Up at Last His Charges That This City's Work Does Not Measure Up to the Standard—An Independent Inspection Will Be Resorted To.

Some time ago Edwin Newsome, editor of the Sanitary and Heating Journal, made a statement in the local press that Peterborough's plumbing did not measure up to the standard and this created quite a stir in plumbing circles. The City Council took the matter up and refered it to the Property Committee for investigation. Ald. Hamilton, chairman of this committee, has devoted considerable time to the question, and last evening laid on the table before his committee specific cases of faulty plumbing above the signature of Mr. Newsome himself.

Cases Named.

Mr. Newsome named one house of public entertainment where he said the bedrooms have installed therein pedestal wash bowls with deep seal traps not vented, in spite of the fact that section "G" in clause 10 of the by-law reads: "All drains and plumbing fixtures of every house or other buildings shall be provided with sufficient traps and vents to prevent gas from the sewer drain or waste pipe from escaping into any apartment, and each such fixture shal have its own trap and sufficient vent; such trap to be placed decidedly under and as close as possible to fixture."

Another instance of alleged faulty plumbing named by Mr. Newsome is a store where he says, he found four lavatories installed with no traps under fixtures, though the section above quoted distinctly states that "all fixtures shall have their own traps and sufficient vent; such traps to be placed directly under and as close as possible to fixture."

Mr Newsome further directed attention to the public lavatory, a mill, an apartment house, a club, two factories and a large palatial dwelling, where he contends the plumbing does not measure up to requirements under the bylaw.

Gets Into Trouble.

In a letter to Ald. Hamilton, Mr. Newsome mentions that, acording to reports of travellers, some councillors (councillors was the term used) and others in Peterborough have prepared to make trouble for him, if possible, should he move further in support of investigation into this city's plumbing. He also declared in his letter that he had lost subscriptions to his journal, and advertisements, through his attitude in this regard, which attitude had resulted from suggestions by certain people that he came and stirred things up in regard to plumbing in the interests of sanitation.

Inspector Lax.

Mr. Newsome considered that the plumbing inspector out of goodness of heart and for want of someone to see that proper records are kept and the bylaw enforced, had been somewhat lax. The plumbing bylaw itself he characterized as obsolete

Independent Inspection

On motion of Ald. Edgar and Ald. Hamilton, the chairman (Ald. Hamilton) was authorized to secure a plumbing expert from outside the city to make an independent inspection of the work referred to by Mr. Newsome.

Wants Salary Increase.

Plumbing Inspector Thompson's application for an increase in salary from $750 a year to $80 a month was left in abeyance until after he has been interviewed by Aldermen Hamilton and Crowe.

Smoke Test.

On motion of Ald. Edgar, Mr. Thompson will be asked to inform the committee why he has made no smoke tests of plumbing work, as they see by his reports that none have apparently been made.

Who Were Present

There were present Mayor Duncan chairman, Ald. amilton and Crowe.

RAILWAYMEN AND GOVERNMENT HOPEFUL OF UNDERSTANDING BY NEGOTIATION

British Ministers, However, Will Not Resume Conference Until Strikers Return to Work—Leaders of Transport Workers Make no Threats of Extending Strike—Thomas Declares Men Will Not Prolong Strike an Hour More Than Can be Avoided.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Oct. 2.—Hope that some means might be found for reaching an understanding with the Government relative to the railroad strike was expressed in a statement issued this morning by J. H. Thomas secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, before going to a conference with Premier Lloyd George and others members of the Ministry.

Not Prolong Dispute.

"The position is such that I hope," his statement said, "that negotiations will be resumed. Anything that may hamper or prejudice it, or render it more difficult to find a bridge to the situation which is becoming more dangerous every hour, must be avoided at all cost. We are not striking for striking's sake, and we will not prolong the dispute an hour more than can be avoided I hope to go down to Downing Street to give effect to the spirit in which I am now speaking."

Railwaymen Absent.

At 12.30 o'clock the Labor deputation began a conference with Premier Lloyd George and other Cabinet Ministers. None of the railroad men, however, were members of the deputation.

Must Resume Work.

Cabinet Ministers are optimistic over prospects of settlement of the railroad strike, according to the political correspondent of The Daily Mail, who says they declared early this morning the Government would not recede from its determination not to resume negotiations unless the men first resumed work, and remarked that fact that J. H Thomas, leader of the National Union of Railwaymen, went to Downing Street, while knowing of this condition was most hopeful feature.

Atmosphere Clears.

Leaders of the Transport Workers' Union and other Labor organizations are endeavoring to find a way to bring the railwaymen back, and have abstained from any threat to extend strike, as a result of yesterday's conference. This, it is said, is due to the fact that leaders of the National Union of Railwaymen are trying to obtain from the Governmentan outline relative to subsequent wage negotiations which they can lay before the men as a reason for ordering them back to their posts.

Wave of Optism.

A wave of optimism swept through both official and trades unionist circles today regarding the outcome of negotiations for an adjustment of strike, which were resumed this morning

Prime Minister Lloyd George was busily engaged at an early hour discussing the situation with his colleagues, Sir Eric Geddes and Sir Robert Horne, Minister of Transport and Minister of Labor, respectively, although he had been at work until the middle of the night.

At headquarters of the National Union of Railwaymen there was extreme activity and opinion seemed to prevail that outlook for settlement was bright.

PREMIER SAYS FIRST DUTY OF NATION IS TO DEAL WITH AFTER WAR PROBLEMS

Unionist Caucus Greets Sir Robert Borden With Warm Enthusiasm—Comprehensive Statement of Government's Policy Meets With Approval of Members—Conference Harmonious.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, Oct. 2— Unionist members of the Commons were in caucus for two hours today, discussing questions of policy and other important matters. Sir Robert Borden, partially recovered, but still lame and weak, was present.

Meeting Harmonious.

At the conclusion of the conference the Prime Minister and other members sated that the meeting was quite harmonious. Hume Cronyn, M. P. for London, presided. They understood Sir Robert made a comprehensive statement of the Government policy, and that it was received with approval of the members.

After War Problems.

It is stated the Premier dealt particularly with the necessity of the Government and the nation bending all their energies to a solution of after-war problems.

Sir Robert Cheered.

The appearance of Sir Robert after his illness was warmly cheered by his followers. He said he was feeling better, but his attendance was a considerable strain, and he is in need of a complete rest.

It has been announced that the Premier will leave for the South immediately.

U. S. STEEL CORPN WILL MAINTAIN THE "OPEN SHOP" AT ALL COSTS

J. H. Gary Resumes His Testimony Today, Before Senate Labor Committee Radical Leader Follows Tomorrow.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Oct. 2.— Interest in the steel strike today again centred in Washington where the Senate Labor Committee was continuing its investigation of the controveray involving directly or indirectly nearly five hundred thousand workers. E.H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation, who testified yesterday that the "open shop" would be maintained by his corporation at all costs, resumed his testimony today.

Radical Next On Stand.

William E. Foster, secretary of the Strikers National Committee, and alleged leader of the radical element in the strike was in Washington, prepared to follow Mr Gary on the witness stand.

POTATOES BY WEIGHT

City Only Controls Local Market in Regard to This Question.

City Solicitor Wakefield has reported that Council has no power to enforce the sale of potatoes by weight elsewhere in this city than on the market. The roperty Committee last night concluded that it would be a hardship to ask farmers and market gardeners to carry scales to the market, they took no action in this regard.

A dominion statute calls for a bag of potatoes to contain sixty pounds and any purchaser can have redress should he be sold short weight

FOUR NEGROES SHOT IN ONE DAY

THREE MEN LYNCHED BY MOB ACTION IN MONTGOMERY BY WHITES.

FOURTH SHOT ON DOWNTOWN ST.

POSSE HUNTING FOR NEGRO ALLEGED TO HAVE ATTACKED WHITE WOMAN.

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 1.—Gov. Kilby intervened today in the situation growing out of the lynching here yesterday of three negroes, shot to death by mobs. Judges of the Circuit court and the sheriff were called into conference to determine action to be taken by the county or state officials

A fourth negro, Ben Miller, a former soldier, was shot and wounded today in a downtown street. He reported four white men had attempted to get him to enter an automobile and he was shot when he refused to go with them.

Posse Hunts for Negro.

Merchantville, N.J., Oct. 1.—Capture of a negro who is alleged to have attacked Mrs. Mary Notsey of this place and for whom a posse of more than 100 armed men searched throughout the night is expected momentarily. Headed by Sheriff Lippincott of Burlington county, the posse last night surrounded a swamp where the negro was believed to have fled.

Some complaint has been made by local dealers that parties on running out of potatoes buy a car load from outside points and peddle the vegetables around town without a license.

EVIDENCE IN FIRST MURDER CHARGE COMPLETED THIS MORNING

Three Inhabitants of the Bunk House Tell Their Experience on the Night of the Shooting.

At yesterday afternoon's sitting of the court, trying Thomas Kornchek on the charge of murdering Philip Yarnoff last June, a large belt was produced by Mr. Henry Wees, a foreman of the quarry at the time of the alleged murder. He swore that he found it just otuside the bunkhouse and also found an empty revolver shell on the floor of the bunkhouse not far from the head of the deceased.

Peculiar Capture.

A peculiar story of how he captured the five men was told by the witness, Constable Augustus Whibbs, of Indian River. He saw two men coming along the tracks and objected to them trespassing on the C. P R property. He urged them to come into the waiting room to sign a paper to promise not to trespass again. When he got them there he locked the door on them. When the other two men came up he treated them in like manner and thus captured the whole five men. He stated that about $450 had been found on the person of Thomas Kolchek at the Indian River station in his presence The men had made no attempt to escape after their capture.

Witnessed the Crime.

Then Charles Motzoff, a Macedonian in the employ of the Ontario Rock Company at the time of the alleged murder, was summoned. He swore that on the night that Philip Yanoff had been killed he was sleeping on the bunk next to him. A shot awoke him about three o'clock on Sunday morning, the 22nd of June. He heard Yanoff yell, then ask for water He saw a man with a black handkerchief and black revolver and swore that it was the prisoner, Thomas Kolchek, because he could identify him by his cross eye. He described a black automatic revolver as the one he saw that night and identified the one exhibited by the Crown.

Philip Yanoff asked for a drink of water, but received a shove from one of the robbers. The bandits then searched all the sleepers in the bunch house and on a second search after the lamp had been lit, they obtained about $400 from a belt taken of Yanoff.

This Morning's Session.

Before the first witness was called at the trial this morning the prisoner, Thomas Kornchek, was presented before the jury for personal inspection. The object of the Crown in doing this was to show the jury the peculiarity of the prisoner, a crosseye, by which Charles Motzoff identified the man as the one who fired the shot. On questioning by the judge Motzoff swore he had told Constable Williams of this peculiarity before the prisoner was captured which overshadowed all suspicion that the witness had noticed this peculiarity after the arrest of the prisoner.

Next Foreigner.

Then Tom Serbanoff, a foreigner who worked at the quarry at the time of the alleged murder, was summoned to the witness box. He swore that one one Sunday morning last June he had been awakened by a shot and cry. On waking he discovered five men in the room who ordered all the inhabitants to shut up, lie still and hold up their hands. Witness was relieved of a watch with a chain and coin attached. He identified a watch and chain produced in court as the one previously owned by him. His story corresponded with that of the former witness.

Constable Puffer's Story.

Constable Isaac Puffer was then summoned and told the story of following the peculiar trail told of by Constable Williams and th ediscovery of the stolen goods upon the men captured at Indian River. He spoke of a conversation with one of the foreigners and identified Charles Motzoff as the one with whom he had had the conversation.

Witness swore that the prisoner, Thomas Kolchek, handed him three one hundred dollar bills and the other four men gave him some money in small denominations.

Objects to Cross-examination.

The next witness called was James Stenanoff, another foreigner who was held up by the robbers last June. His story was similar to that told by the previous witnesses, but on cross questioning, concerning the recognition of the belt produced in court as that previously owned by Yanoff, the witness became exasperated "Do you think I crac," exclaimed the witness to Mr. Essery, and started on a great volume of expression of resentment that caused considerable amusement to the court before he was hurriedly rushed out of the room.

Case of Crown Ends.

Then Archie Moore, high constable of the county, was called He stated that he had received $100 from Chief Thompson and over $475 from Constable Puffer which he sent to the crown attorney.

The next witness was Crown Attorney Hatten, who produced the money received by him shortly after the shooting affair.

BELGIAN ROYALTY REACH NEW YORK

WELCOMED BY GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS AND LEADING CIVIC CITIZENS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Oct. 2.—King Albert and Quee nElizabeth of Belgium and Prince Leopold were welcomed to New York on arrival of the steamer George Washington today in characteristic United States fashion.

Vice-president Marshall extended a welcome for the Government and with him were many others prominent in Federal and civic life.

U. S. BANKER FOILS CONFIDENCE MAN

ATTEMPT TO TALK BANK MANAGER OUT OF $3,500 OVER TELEPHONE.

Chicago, Oct. 1.— Police are looking today for a confidence man who failed to talk officials of the Irving Park National Bank, 4201 Irving Park boulevard, out of $3,500, in a telephone conversation. At first he said he was secretary to George M Reynolds, president of the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings bank, and then represented himself as Don W. Riley, cashier of the Irving Park institution

"Come downtown at once; Mr. Reynolds has important business with you," came a call from the fake secretary. Mr. Riley assured himself that the summons was false. Then he laid his trap. When the "con man" inquired a few minutes later whether Mr Riley was going to the downtown bank, the cashier instructed the operator to say that he was on the way. A half hour passed and then the third call came:

"This is Mr. Riley speaking, at the Continental and Commercial bank. Send me down $3,500 at once. Give it to a messenger, who is on the way."

Mr Riley, in his own office all the time, caused the boy when he appeared to be handed a dummy package. Detectives followed the messenger to the lobby of the downtown bank When the confidence man did not claim the package they arrested the boy, releasing him when they satisfied themselves that he knew nothing of the attempted swindle.

The messenger described the "con" man as about 35 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall, weight 180 pounds, dark hair streaked with gray.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

THURSDAY, OCT. 2, 1919.

PLUMBING IN PETERBOROUGH.

SOME TIME AGO Editor Newsome of Toronto investigated the plumbing arrangements in a number of public buildings and private residences in this city, and declared that in many cases the work was so faulty as to be a menace to the health of the community. A statement to this effect, given on his authority, appeared in the local papers, and was also published in Mr. Newsome's own journal in Toronto.

Naturally the publication of these allegations created considerable comment in the community. With commendable jealousy for the reputation of his city, Alderman Phelan took the matter up in Council and maintained that the assertions of the Toronto man be either substantiated or disproved. The matter was referred to the property committee of the Council.

Mr Newsome reaffirms his former statements in a report sent to Alderman Hamilton of the property committee, and gives specific cases. Some of the buildings to which he refers are among the best, and supposed to be the most modern, in the city.

The aldermen have taken a wise course in deciding to have this matter looked into by an expert from outside, some man who is not likely to be influenced by local conditions. If even half of what Mr. Newsome alleges is true, the situation in this city is serious, for there is no more dire menace to health than a residence in which the plumbing is at fault.

The application of the plumbing inspector for an increase of salary was certainly inopportune at the present time, and the aldermen have no other course than to hold it up until it is established just where the fault lies.

AMERICAN INTEREST IN CANADA.

THE GROWING interest of the people of the United States in Canadian affairs is shown by the fact that the New York Herald will on October 8 publish a special section of sixteen pages devoted exclusively to Canadian topics. This number will include special contributions by distinguished statesmen, financiers, leaders in commerce and agriculture in this country, and will also deal exteusively with Canada's strong financial position as she enters the period of reconstruction. Other features will be an illustrated account of the tour of the Prince of Wales, pictures of Canada's national parks, and articles dealing with the advantages of this country as a resort for tourists, a history of the Mounted Police, and an article describing Calgary's annual stampede. The supplement will be a number well worth preserving as a souvenir.

CANADA'S OBLIGATIONS.

BEFORE THE WAR Canada never dreamed that its citizens could enter into the spirit of co-operation to the extent that they did during the war years.

There was a definite object in view, and to that end the people of the Dominion, irrespective of former class prejudice, gave their all. They contributed their men, their money and their service.

And now that the war is ended and victory is here, is that fine spirit of co-operation to be allowed to disappear? Are we going back to our old selfish ways again?

Because there is still need of co-operation, of mutual endeavor toward a common end. Canada needs more money. In the wake of the war years new problems, gigantic and pressing, have come to confront us and to demand our attention.

The finances of the country must be stabilized. Our industries must be kept going, otherwise widespread unemployment will be our lot; and markets must be provided for our surplus foodstuffs.

All of these things demand money. Canada, therefore, is about to ask her citizens once more to lend their money to enable her to fulfil her obligations to her soldiers and to maintain the country in prosperity.

To make the Victory Loan of 1919 a success wide co-operation among the entire people of the Dominion will be required. Enter into this spirit, that made the winning of the war possible, by buying Victory Bonds.

WOMEN'S CIVIC CLUBS.

IN LETHBRIDGE they have a strong and aggressive Women's Civic Club, and the Herald of that city comments on the work of the organization.

In the activities of the Women's Civic Club, related at the Board of Trade luncheon, to which the members of the sister organization were invited, the claims for support of this institution were firmly established.

The Civic Club, in what was told, has that very estimable merit of doing its work in quietness. It came as something of a revelation to many that during the trouth season five years ago the women's organization was instrumental in rendering true community service in the way of giving help to the families of destitute farmers, in an extremely practical fashion. The work was done unostentatiously and cannot but have been of much service in the direction in which it was employed. Activities such as these, together with the forming of a home for young women in the city, and the helping of the Travellers' Aid, not only deserve commendation for help, co-operation, sympathy and interest.

Since war the Civic Club did not appeal for what it now seeks in the way of added interest, in that its members were active in societies which the needs of the time called for. But now that the war is over, there are other fields to which the commendable energies of women may be directed. This is supplied by the Women's Civic Club.

The work in which the Civic Club was engaged during the drouth of 1914 has with present conditions been renewed. This needs the expansion of the institution in the way of new membership. The Women's Civic Club, in all that it stands for, should be a very important institution in the city and a great medium for good both in the city and in the district. Its aims are worthy and of themselves deserve support.

THE CASE OF BILL.

A BOY LEFT SCHOOL at the age of 17 and joined an infantry battalion. He was tall and strong, but his chief duties in life, so far, had been to play outside wing on the football team and cover point on the hockey rink. For four years he lived and fought in Flanders, a cheery, irresponsible private of full size. His father said, not bitterly, but rather proudly, "Bill joined as a private, and by ardent effort has succeeded in retaining his rank.

Now he has come home at the age of 21; too old for High school and wholly inexperienced in the serious task of earning a living. He has no trade. Only blind-alley jobs are open to him. But the Federal Government has established training courses to fit Bill for any one of 260 remunerative occupations.

He may decide to be a telegraph operator. If so, he goes to the training class and learns the business thoroughly, receiving army pay and allowances during the whole time of his instruction. The Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-Establishment helps him to get a position. Thus he has been given a good start in life.

It must be obvious that to establish and maintain technical courses of this kind is a necessary war outlay. Soldiers must be changed into civilians, self-helping and self-confident. The continuance of this work on a proper scale depends absolutely upon the success of the Victory Loan. It is capital expenditure made necessary by war. The cause cannot but appeal to the people, and we feel confident, once the facts are known, that the full sum required will be made available.

WHY FASTING IS A BENEFIT TO HEALTH

City, Dr. Leonard Keene Hirshberg.)

The recent passing away of the venerable Dr. S. H. Tanner was briefly if widely accompanied by the announcement: "He once fasted forty days."

Yet in 1880, when Dr. Tanner fasted for forty days carefully watched by a dozen physicians, who took the utmost precautions to guarantee the integrity of the test, newspapers carried large columns about him for many weeks.

Dr Tanner touched not a speck or morsel of food for forty days; but he was allowed to drink as much water as he wished. His object was to prove that religious fast days were proper and healthful, as well as to show that they were without harm or pain.

The Last Bet.

At noon on June 28, 1880, Dr. S. H. Tanner, of Minneapolis, Minn. began at Clarendon hall, New York city, an attempt to abstain from all food for a period of forty days.

He had been ridiculed by many scientific men, who scorned the idea that any man could fast for forty days.

Prof. W. A. Hammond was said to have made Dr. Tanner a bet of $1,000 that it could not be done, and medical professors said the whole thing was a religious farce and bibical superstition. Prof. Hammond seems to have lost.

Naturally, when Dr. Tanner began fasting, there were many in the medical profession who did their utmost to discredit him, who accused him of seeking cheap notoriety, yet there were a dozen doctors watching Dr. Tanner to see that there was no cheating and no way to get food.

Dr. Tanner was 49 years old and weighed 157 1-2 pounds when he began to fast. He was vigilantly watched by Drs. Bunn, Miller, Vander Weyde, and many others. A detail of members of the Neurological so-[illegible] the American Medical association were watching.

At the end of the fifth day, Dr. Tanner had lost ten pounds, or two pounds a day. On the seventh day he was cheerful, but languid. His kidney fluid decreased but were analyzed every day. On the eleventh day he began to regain some lost sleep and looked better. He had now lost seventeen pounds. He was tested and found normal in strength and sensibility.

On the thirteenth day certain doctors were of the opinion that Dr Tanner could not last another week. "The wear and tear on him is too great," said the representative of a medical school.

He rinsed his mouth often with water, and complained of cold and drowsiness, but on the eighteenth day he drank between thirty and forty ounces of water and showed marked improvement. He took a drive in Central Park.

On the nineteenth day he weighed 136½ pounds. On the twentieth day he was in good condition and had taken twenty-eight ounces of water in twenty-four hours.

On the twenty-first day he weighed 135 pounds, and thereafter lost about one pound a day up to the twenty-seventh day, when he weighed 130½ pounds. On this day one doctor said: "Waste matter has not been coming from his kidneys. It must therefore be accumulating in his tissues and will inevitably lead to blood poisoning." But it didn't.

At the end of the fortieth day all the doctors had to admit that his symptoms were different from the cocksure predictons and expectations of the medical profession.

It was dangerous and tedious to restore him to health. It was done slowly and gently by means of soups and liquid foods. Dr. Tanner remained vigorous and healthy until he died, at the "youthful" age of 87.

CONDITIONS ON ONTARIO FARMS

Plowing is again very active, the recent rains having put the soil once more into first-class condition for the work.

The rain has also brought up the more recently sown fall wheat and has given a good start generally to the comparatively large area got in this season. Essex speaks of "Some Hessian Fly."

Buckwheat is still being cut, and the crop, where not put in too late, is giving a fair yield.

Red clover seed has matured nicely, but is not turning out so full in yield as alsike. The spring sowing has been more or less of a disappointment owing to the drouth of July and early August.

Sweet clover seed however has done well for growers this season. The Peel representative states that one farmer in that county who had thirty acres of sweet clover received a cheque for $5000 for his year's crop.

Essex reports that alfalfa is growing nicely after three cuttings have been taken off.

Late potatoes are turning out better than expected having been helped considerably by the early fall rains. Turnips have been injured by the aphis in several counties, but mangels are said to be doing much better.

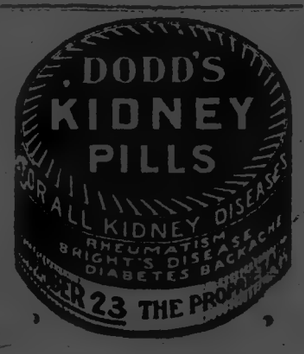
Corn is standing out this year as a leading field crop, the absence of early frost permitting an unusually full maturing of the cobs for seed. Silos are being filled as rapidly as men and machinery can do the job. Reports from Western Ontario indicate that the silo is still further increasing in popularity in that portion of the Province.

Brant reports that apple pickers are busy with Spies, Greenings, Snows, etc. Many orchards are selling in the lump; in others buyers are paying $6.50 a barrel for No. 1s of the better winter varieties, and $5.50 for 2s, 3s and domestics. The Prince Edward representative claims there is a heavier yield of apples than was expected, but that many of them are of inferior quality, owing to lack of spraying. He adds that "Those who sprayed are now reaping the results."

Milk production is about normal. Some factories complain that the supply is not so large as usual, but the Brant representative states that this is probably due to the fact that more butter is being made at home of late.

Prince Edward reports that some good specimens of Southdown lambs have been recently sold for as high as $30 each for breeding and show purposes, and that little pigs are now selling at from $6 to $8 each. Norfolk states that there is a decrease in the number of brood sows kept on account of the decline in the price of hogs.

Most favorable September weather has helped the farmers to get their field work in good shape, and there have been only a few complaints regarding the lack of labor.



OUR ROYAL VISITOR

The Prince of Wales has captured the hearts of all Canada. Rich and poor, old and young, are enraptured with his easy manner and happy expression. He is so different to what many expected.

No wonder a great demand has been created for a real life-like portrait of our popular future King. Photographers and artists have failed to secure a satisfactory snapshot of the Royal visitor. He was not here to pose for them. It remained for The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal to secure a portrait that would be satisfactory, and they have succeeded. Just before leaving for Canada the Prince gave a special sitting to the celebrated London, England, photographer, Van-Dyke. The agents of The Family Herald were instructed to secure the right to reproduce it in Canada, and that great weekly is now offering it to its readers.

The Daily and Weekly Review has succeeded in making an arrangement with The Family Herald and Weekly Star by which our readers may have a copy. Our announcement will be found on page 4. The demand for this picture in Canada will be enormous, and we advise our readers to take advantage of the opportunity without delay.

DEWART SHIES OFF FROM W. PETERBORO

On Wednesday Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., received a message from Mr. Hartley Dewart, leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Provincial House, informing him that owing to an unforeseen appointment in Ottawa he is unable to be present at the Liberal convention in Peterborough on Thursday night. In his place, however, Mr. A. W. Roebuck, of Toronto, a recognized authority on Labor questions and a man who has always taken a very keen interest in Provincial affairs will be present. It is to be regretted by the Liberals that the pressure of business has made it impossible for the leader of the Opposition to be present, though in all probability Mr. Dewart will speak in Peterborough in the near future.

Too Ill to Work

in homes, stores, offices and factories are not fit to be at work. They toil on day after day and year after year suffering with distressing weaknesses and derangements, hoping against hope that they will soon feel better, but how can they hope to do good work or escape permanent invalidism?

Such women are in danger of derangement of women's functions. They owe it to themselves to try that good old fashioned root and herb remedy Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for more than forty years has been restoring Women to health and strength.

Here is a Notable Example

St. John, N. B.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for bladder and kidney troubles and backache and find it the best medicine I ever took. I used many other remedies with very little result. I had two miscarriages and would have been in my grave ere this if it had not been for your medicine. I always keep a bottle of Vegetable Compound in the house, and I feel fine to do my work for five in the family. I have recommended your Compound to many people, and you may use this testimonial if you like. It may help some other woman."

MRS. ALBERT S. GILL,
17 St. Andrew St.,
St. John, N. B.

And Another

Regina, Sask.—"I was going through the Change of Life and suffered two years with headaches, nervousness, sleepless nights and general weakness. Some days I felt tired and unfit to do my work. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and found good results. I also find it a very helpful spring tonic and useful for constipation from which I suffer much. I have recommended Vegetable Compound to several friends and am willing you should publish this."

MRS. MARTHA W. LINDSAY,

Music in the Home

THE MUSIC TEACHERS MISSION.

There is of course in music teaching as in every line of work, a certain amount of uninteresting labor to perform, but the earnest one to whom this is the outstanding fact may as well accept at once the conclusion that he is engaged in a field of activity for which he is not intended. There is no more thankless work no more fascinating and inspiring work than that of teaching, whether it be private, in school or college, on the public platform, or through the medium of the printed page. The music teacher is the dispenser of bracing beauty, and joy into the lives of many people. It is he who spreads the gospel of the cheering, purifying and uplifting efect of music. Let him remember this at all times and the little drudgery which may be part of his work will seem of no more consequence than an occasional shower during the summertime. Indeed, like the latter, it may serve a very useful purpose.

TEACHING THE CHILD.

The sensitive and eager mind and quickly becomes [illegible] of the tendency of the environment to [illegible] the child to careless methods. Music may mean either of two things to the average child: torture to be sulkily endured, and, when possible, shirked or on the other hand, a diversion so delightful and fascinating as to bring about self-in posed study and stimulate healthy mental research. [illegible] most everything which is conducive to self expression in the young is valuable to the individual and to the community. Teaching which tends to stifle the personal note and instils a fear of ridicule in the individual is rotten at the core and false-hearted throughout.

REPOSE IN MUSIC.

In music we have the futuristic and modern compositions of to-day, in contrast with the sincere, beautiful old melodies of the past, of which Paderewski and Ysaye are the best [illegible] open air. But a term is [illegible] and Scott are [illegible] to take his place. "Like race horses on the track" [illegible] by father and son frequently [illegible] careless methods. Music may mean either of two things to the average child: torture to be sulkily endured, and, when possible, shirked or on the other hand, a diversion so delightful and fascinating as to bring about self-in posed study and stimulate healthy mental research. [illegible] most everything which is conducive to self expression in the young is valuable to the individual and to the community. Teaching which tends to stifle the personal note and instils a fear of ridicule in the individual is rotten at the core and false-hearted throughout.

REPOSE IN MUSIC.

In music we have the futuristic and modern compositions of to-day, in contrast with the sincere, beautiful old melodies of the past, of which Paderewski and Ysaye are the best [illegible] with [illegible] restful and tranquillizing effects is well nigh dead. We seem to have forgotten that technic, the all important means to an end, is not the end for which we have worked and struggled all through the centuries.

Let the phonograph give us perfect representations of the artist's skill, but the music of to-day should offer us something better than a mere display of facility and technical perfection. We want music with a soul—"music" "that language intelligent to all men," which breathes forth the poetry, romance, pathos and tragedy of all times.

AS TO THE CARE AND SELECTION OF PIANO.

Most people know that a piano should not be kept in a draught, neither just under the window, nor between the door and the window. A long time of standing in such a position will spoil the best instrument and if it is kept for many months in an unoccupied room it will deteriorate badly unless a fire is lit to dry the atmosphere from time to time. Damp is the worst enemy the piano can have. It is wise, too, if you wish to preserve your piano to the best advantage, to have it constantly tuned and examined by a first class tuner. It is very much more difficult to repair satisfactorily a piano that has been systematically neglected (it can scarcely ever regain its original excellence) than to look after it carefully from the beginning, then it will last for years.

Size is an urgent point to be considered in the selection of a piano. An enormous and powerful Concert Grand powerful Concert Grand is obviously unsuitable for a small private drawing room, and there is nothing better for a moderate room than a Boudoir or Baby Grand. A good upright is also by no means to be despised for these are excellent instruments provided they have plenty of resonance, and are not too stiff in action.

One can scarcely discuss now-a-days the merits of pianos in our home without mentioning, in connection with them the latest development of modern musical inventions, the mechanical piano players which possess great value in that they educate the public taste, and enable people who would otherwise have no inclination or impulse to hear good music to become familiar with it.

UNMUSICAL CHILDREN.

It all depends on Whether the Language of music is spoken to them.

"I am not ready to admit that there is such a thing as an unmusical child, if the term is used to denote a child in whom there is no susceptibility to a musical appeal." This unencouraging assertion was made by W. O. Meissner, Music Director of the State Normal School Milwaukee in the course of his address before the National School Music Supervisors.

"A child brought up in an English speaking family is un-French and unItalian because he cannot read those languages" explained Mr Meissner. Likewise, if the language of music is not spoken in the home and the school, the child is quite likely to be unmusical. It is all a question of opportunity and environment whether or not one is able to understand and enjoy the beautiful, and universal language of music.

"The plea I want to make, is that we offer to every child the opportunity to know music—that we democratize music by teachig it at public expense in all its branches, instrumental as well as vocal in classes like all other subjects. Let us give music the best we have, to all of the people all of the time. A community which has become truly musical will have become a better place to live in and will find life more worth while."

LEFT QUARTER OF MILLION

White Plains, N.Y., Oct. 1.—John Mitchell former president of the United Mine Workers of America, left an estate of $250,000, mostly in stocks and bonds, according to a petition for letters of administration filed in the Surrogate's Court of West Chester County. In a will written in his own hand shortly before his death, but believed to be invalid because it lacked witnesses, the labor leader bequeathed all but $10,000 of his estate to his wife and children. The $10,000 was to be divided among other relatives and close friends.

THINKS TANLAC THE FINEST ON EARTH

HUSBAND AND WIFE ARE BOTH PRAISING IT FOR GOOD IT HAS DONE THEM.

"I am still praising Tanlac," writes Daniel J. Hickey, of 217 Euclid Avenue, Toronto, Ontario, in a recent communication received from him at the Tanlac office.

Mr. Hickey has lived in Toronto all his life, being employed at the Dominion Steel Works, and his statement, in which he tells how Tanlac relieved him of a long-standing case of stomach trouble and rheumatism attracted widespread attention when it was first published. In corroboration of her husband's statement Mrs. Hickey also relates her own wonderful experience with this medicine as follows:

"I had a nervous trouble for six years," said Mrs. Hickey, "and was in such a terrible condition that I had to stay in bed four or five months every year. My energy was completely gone and when I was up I was too weak to even sweep the floor. I had no appetite and what little I forced down did me hardly any good. My skin was pale and sallow and I could hardly sleep at night.

"My husband was taking Tanlac and he improved so fast that I decided to try it too, and since taking a few bottles I am now in better condition than I have been in several years. My nervousness is all gone, my appetite is fine and I sleep like a child at night. From the way Tanlac has fixed me up, both my husband and I think it is about the finest medicine there is."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

DEFEAT ONE BIG UNION SCHEME

U.S. RAILWAY SHOPMEN DELEGATES VIRTUALLY REPUDIATE THEIR INTERNATIONAL OFFICERS.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Delegates to the convention of railway shopmen, representing thousands of workmen employed in the various railway shops of the country are speeding back to their homes to report to their fellow workers that they turned down the "one big union" idea and agreed to refuse to pay further per capita taxes or dues into their various international unions until their international officers gain for them the demands for increased wages and better shop conditions asked for in their original demands.

Virtually the sum total of the convention was the repudiation by the delegates present of their international officers. Because of the alleged inaction of the officers and their inability to get something definite in the matter of wages from the officials at Washington, a strike that tied up a portion of the rail service of the country was called in August. The men went back to work on the promise of President Wilson that action would be taken. The President later offered the men a four-cent-an-hour increase in wages, which was refused by the workers.

Shopmen Get Scale Oct. 20.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The national agreement on working conditions for railway shopmen, establishing uniform rules for 600,000 men, as proposed in President Wilson's reply to the demand of the men for increased wages, will become effective October 20 and remain in force until the end of government control of the roads. It has been learned that the agreement had been signed by the railroad administration and six international unions affiliated with the railway employes' department of the American Federation of Labor. It is now in the hands of the printer.

LABOR MEN LOOK FOR TWO SEATS

CANDIDATES WILL CONTEST BOTH EAST AND WEST OTTAWA IN PROV. ELECTION.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 30.—Ottawa labor men have put two men in the Provincial race to contest both east and west Ottawa.

They were nominated at a rousing rally of labor men over 600 being present. The candidates elected were: Messrs. John Cameron, former president of the Allied Trades and Labor Association, to contest Ottawa West, and Frank LaFortune, who will run in Ottawa East.

Ottawa West: G. C. Hurdman, Liberal; Hammett P. Hill, Conservative; Mrs. J. C. Sears, Independent; John Cameron, Labor.

Ottawa East: J. A. Pinard, Liberal; Dr. R. H. Parent, Conservative; Frank LaFortune, Labor.

The meeting was stormy throughout, and Frank LaFortune at first declined the nomination because of the evident split in the party. This was after a French-speaking delegate had declared that the running of labor candidates looked to him like an attempt to steal votes from the Liberals and allow the election to the Conservatives. Mr. LaFortune was, however, prevailed upon to take a chance, but before doing so he spoke very candidly on the die-hard political spirit and called upon his confereres to forget politics and get behind the labor movement.

Forward, CANADA!

THROUGH sacrifice, Canada has gained the respect and admiration of all people.

The years of War that deprived Canada of so many of her bravest sons, have given her greater self-reliance and wider vision. The world has come to expect great things of Canada.

Our army has set us the highest example — to persevere and to succeed.

Canada has the fundamentals of success — strong, virile men, resolute and devoted women, and unbounded resources. In the readjustment of Canada's affairs, as in the affairs of the world, money plays a leading part.

The transition from War to Peace is long, tedious, costly; it takes money, time and effort to beat swords into plowshares. Men cannot drop their arms and return immediately to their former occupations.

War has left Canada a heritage of obligations.

Money is required to discharge these obligations and to solve these problems.

Canada therefore is about to ask her citizens once more to lend their money to enable her to fulfil her obligations to her soldiers and to maintain the country in prosperity.

Canada can, if Canada will, march straight on to her glorious destiny.

PARTLY LYNCHED MAYOR IMPROVED

CONDITIONS IN OMAHA, SCENE OF RACE RIOTING, COMING BACK TO NORMAL.

MILITARY PATROL THE STREETS

TWENTY-FOUR NEGROES SWORN IN AS SPECIAL CONSTABLES ARE ON DUTY.

Omaha, Neb., Oct 2.—The condition of Mayor E. P. Smith, who was injured here on Sunday during race rioting when a mob attempted to lynch him, is improving. The mayor is still at the hospital to which he was taken following the attempted lynching.

Military forces which have been on duty patrolling the city streets, have been augmented by the arrival of 511 men and 18 officers from Camp Grant, Ill. About three hundred more soldiers arrived later in the day from Camp Funston, Kansas. Gen. Leonard Wood, commander of the central department of the army, is to take charge of the military operations.

The city is quiet and no disorders of any kind have occurred. Regular army soldiers and special police patrol the city.

Twenty-four negroes, dressed in civilian clothes, wearing police badges, and carrying arms, appeared at 24th and Cumings streets. They said they had been sworn in as special officers by a city official. Soldiers took them to a fire station, took their weapons away and released them.

H. J. Hykell, who was shot Sunday while travelling in an automobile through a crowd at 17th and Douglas streets, the heart of the business district, has died of his injuries. He is the third victim of the riot to die.

Grand jury investigation with a view to prosecuting those responsible for race rioting will be started within a short time. Judges of the district court here have decided to call a special Grand Jury.

HOUSING COMMISSION FOR PETERBORO UNDER DISCUSSION BY COUNCIL COM

Scheme to Provide Homes for People of Moderate Means on the Installment Plan Not all Smooth Sailing.

A special committee of the City Council, comprising Aldermen Taylor Edgar, Hamilton and the Mayor, met last night to consider the advisability of appointing a Housing Commission, under the Ontario Housing Act, which allows of the municipality borrowing money form the legislature for the purpose of building houses for veteanrs and people of moderate means willing to purchase them on the installment plan.

The interest chargeable to both the Commission by the Legislature and by the Commission to the purchaser is five per cent, and the legislature is to be secured by twenty year debentures. The municipality, of course would be secured by a lien on the property.

It is worthy of note in this connection that should the interest on the principal get in arrears three months foreclosure would be made finder provision of the act.

Cost of Houses.

The act further provides that houses built under this plan shall not cost more than $2,500, exclusive of land, excepting in some specified cases where an expenditure of $3,500 or $3,600 inclusive of land is permitted. And all such dwellings must be built on plans approved of by the Legislative Housing Commission.

Commission or Company.

The municipality may enter into this scheme, either through a commission or by loaning money borrowed from the Legislature to building companies. The latter, however, must not charge a profit, but the statement was made last night that the prohibition of profit could be go ten over in salaries charged.

Cost to Purchaser.

Purchasers of houses under this scheme would have to pay on the principal, together with the five per cent interest each month, and these two items, together with incidental maintenance cost, taxes, etc., on a $2,500 property, exclusive of land, would entail a monthly expenditure by the owner of from $27 to $30 a month.

Cost to City.

Should the city go into the scheme the municipality would stand to lose a little on borrowed money in the way of additional interest, payable into the bank between the time money borrowed rfom the legislature is deposited and put into the building or buildings for which the money is loaned and then administration by a commission would cost something, and the commissioners would have to be paid a salary.

The Commission.

The act provides for a commission of three -the Mayor and two others.

Additional information will be sought as to the salaries generally paid commissioners, and who would be willing to serve on the housing commission, and the committee will meet again Friday evening.

Messrs. J. J. Hartley, Frank Dobbin and James Finnie were mentioned as desirable men for a commission.

TAKING WORKMEN TO OUTSIDE CITIES

TRADES COUNCIL APPOINTS A COMMITTEE TO LOOK INTO GRIEVANCE.

At the meeting of the Trades Council last night a committee was appointed to ascertain why the newspapers of Peterborough will not run advertisements of outside firms who are in need of workmen. Such a firm recently sent an advertisement to a local paper asking for metal polishers, but the ad was not inserted. A committee of the union interested interviewed the management of the paper and was told that there was a scarcity of men in that line in this city and for that reason it was deemed advisable to do nothing calculated to lower the available supply.

The local papers have followed this policy for some years.

EVIDENCE IN

This ended the evidence produced by the Crown.

Then the defense, conducted by Mr. G. N. Gordon, put Mr. W. Johnston in the box and produced the evidence as taken dokn by him at the preliminary hearing, which showed that Motzsoff had sworn that all five men had revolvers.

On that occasion Motzsoff had sworn that he recognized only Ziluski and none of the other accused.

The next witness called by the defense was Abraham Lorne, who acted as interpreter at the preliminary hearings. He swore that on that occasion he had understood the language of the witnesses and had translated their evidence as accurately and truthfully as possible. They had spoken in a language that is a mixture of Russian and Austrian.

This ended the case for both Crown and defense and the presentation of the case by the respective soalicitors was postponed until two o'clock this afternoon.

CRIME CARRIED ON TO ALARMING EXTENT IN LINDSAY DISTRICT.

Lindsay, Oct. 2.— At a session of the County Police Court, Monday, County Police Magistrate Moore, sentenced Nicholson, who was held on a charge of chicken stealing and offering same for sale, to one year in the Ontario Reformatory.

The accused admitted the stealing of chickens at Mr. Frank Curtin's South Ops, but would make no further admissions as to the extent of his thefts or how long he had been operating in this section.

The sentence meted out to the prisoner, will it is hoped, have a deterent efect on the thieving which has been carried on to an alarming extent in this section.

WINDSOR CIVIC WAGES GO UP.

Windsor, Oct. 2.—Employes of the Windsor water board were granted substantial wage increases. Firemen will be paid 50 cents an hour, assistant engineers, 55 cents, and engineers, 60 cents. The men's petition requested that they be paid by the hour instead of by the month. This was complied with.

MR. SEXSMITH SAYS MILLERS SELL POISON IN FEED AND INJURE STOCK

Member for East Peterborough Makes Some Strtling Charges in his Place in Parlament

When the question of fixing the price of wheat was before Parliament the other day Mr. J. E. Sexsmith, M.P. for East Peterborough, spoke as follows:

This has developed into a very important discussion, Mr. Chairman Apartaltogether from setting the price of wheat, whether it sells at $2.10 a bushel or $2.50 a bushel, I think a very important point was brought out by the member for South Oxford in his very excellent speech, namely, that tens of thousands, yes, I believe hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of stock has been poisoned by the action of the millers in mixing poisoned seeds in the stock feed they have sold throughout the country within the last few years. Last year a number of farmers brought to my attention the loss of their hogs from some mysterious complaint. One of them, after he had lost several hogs, had a sample of the feed sent down to the department here for analysis, and he received a very comforting reply to the effect that they did find poisoned seed in the sample, but they would not say that it was sufficient to kill a hog.

Sir George Foster: They did not know the hogs tenacity of life.

Mr. Sexsmith: Every farmer handling feed put on the market, particularly during the last five or six years, has been paying for so-called shorts which was only ground bran, oat-hulls and every kind of dirt which the miller could add to the mixture and sell it as shorts. I do not know, but perhaps the millers also mix straw in what they sell as shorts, but they undoubtedly mix oat hulls corn cobs, with a sprinkling perhaps of corn, and many other things, with a trifle of cotton seed oil or oil cake to give the feed on analysis a showing of protein, and so practically rob the farmers. It is a very serious condition of affairs, Mr Chairman. I do not like to charge the millers with the intention of deliberately going out to rob their patrons, but I will say that they deliberately deceive the people when they pretend to sell a commodity that is not at all up to the standard which the purchasers might reasonably hope to expect.

Six or eight years ago I introduced a Bill and it was placed on the Statute Book, which required the miller to put on the outside of the bag or other container an analysis of mixed feed. That regulation was observed to a certain extent, but not as rigidly as it should have been, and it seems to me that it is important that something should be done in the near future to absolutely prevent the sale of these mixed fraudulent feeds, and above all to prevent the sale of any feed containing a percentage of poisonous seeds. There is no reason under heaven why a miller should be allowed to mix in his stock feed seeds that are poisonous. Therefore I would like to ask the minister to take this into serious consideration and see if something cannot be done to prevent such a practice in the future.

THEATRICAL

JACK CANUCK AT BERLIN TONIGHT

CALIFORNIA SIRENS TO STEP RIGHT DOWN ON GRAND STAGE FROM SCREEN.

That something new under the sun for which the solemn philosopher searched in vain has been found in screeland. For the first time in the history of the playhouse the shadow characters of an important photoplay will step off the screen as living, palpitating humans like their audience, at the Grand Theatre, today.

Mack Sennett's famous Bathing Beauties of California, known wherever the comedy king's burlesquery stirs the risibles, will journey to this city and present themselves in propria persona, on the stage of the Grand Opera House in conjunction with the premiere of Sennett's most ambitious filmed merrymaker to date, "Jack Canuck in Berlin," in which they are prominently featured.

The public has at last a chance to see these sylphs from the Pacific shore, whose beauty has ornamented screen comedies the world over. They will come by the special grace of Sennett, after much persuasion, to give special eclat to the showing of the play on which he has lavished all his genius in a five-reel broadside of satire at the German military castle and will be seen and heard in a beautifully staged number and series of illuminated poses —of course in that radiant seashore raiment that is one cause of their unique celebrity.

"Jack Canuck in Berlin" is to be exhibited only in this manner here. The innovation was first tried in San Francisco without a thought of its extension. Sol L. Lesser, purchaser of the American and Canadian rights for the film comedy, persuaded Sennett to let the girls out of their studio seclusion for the premiere and the public commotion around the Tivoli theatre was so great and the onslaught on the box office showed so much public appreciation, that Sennett yielded to please, for a brief eastern trip for the girls.

"Jack Canuck" is more than an hour's laugh, with few breathing spells. It is not a war play, but was made after the war. It is history of the German royal bluff and his six safety-first Princelings, written in the terms of the clown.

It's easy to convince spinsters that kissing is unhealthy.

JACK PICKFORD'S LATEST OFFERING

"THE SPIRIT OF '17" WILL BE SEEN AT THE EMPIRE TO-MORROW AND SATURDAY.

The picture at the Empire Theatre on Friday and Saturday is Jack Pickford's latest Paramount offering "The Spirit of '17," in which the clever young star portrays Davy Glidden, a patriotic youngster of the middle west, who with the help of a number of worn out old veterans of the Civil war, saves his town from German spies who attempt to blow up a mine and who also have incited a strike. The production is an interesting one in photoplay history and one of the best the clever young star has done in some time. It was written by Judge Willis Brown of the Chicago Juvenile Court and arranged for the screen by Julia Crawford Ivers. The director William D. Taylor, has spared no pains in presenting the photoplay and the photography, settings, lighting and other requirements are fully up to the Paramount standards.

PROTESTANT IN INDUST'L. CRISIS

CONFERENCE ON INTERCHURCH WORLD MOVEMENT IN N. AMERICA OPENS TODAY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Oct. 2.— Representatives of 75 evangelical denominations met here today for a two-days conference on industrial and social unrest. Dr. Frederick B. Fisher, chairman of the industrial relations department of the interchurch world movement of North America, in opening the first session, characterized the conference as marking an epoch in the religious history and a first step in an active and united participation of Protestants in industrial crisis.

CHARITY WORKER DEAD.

Belleville, Oct. 2. — Miss Maria Victoria Murney, daughter of the late Hon. Edmund Murney, M.P. for Hastings, died after being ill for some time. Deceased was a maiden lady and [illegible] active worker in charities, being a member of the Hospital Board, the Home for the Friendless, and Women's Christian Association. She was also an active member of St. Thomas Anglican Church.

JOY, MIRTH AND HILARIOUS FUN

WILL BE FOUND IN "HIS BRIDAL NIGHT" AT THE GRAND THEATRE.

Some two years ago word went broadcast that there was produced a farce that met with instant [illegible] from press and public; that its habitat was the Republic Theatre, New York; that the title of this sparkling contribution to the stage was "His Bridal Night," and that the author was an adept at farcial construction, being none other than Margaret Mayo, whose "Twin Beds" had caused uproarious amusement. It was further declared that "Twin Beds" had nothing on "His Bridal Night." And now we are told that this joyful concoction of mirth and hilarious fun is coming to the Grand on Saturday matinee and evening.

Twin sisters, with a pair of lovers that cannot tell them apart, are sufficient material for a clever plot in themselves. When there is added to this a spirit of feminine devilry that delights in confounding the men, the posibilities for snappy comedy are infinite. And these, it is needless to say, that experienced farceur, Margaret Mayo, has taken full advantage of. When it is further known that the piece this season been musicalized by the interpolation of numerous catchy musical numbers, all contributed by the well known song writer, Frederick V. Bowers, the big measure of success attained by "His Bridal Night" is easily understood. The rare combination of a clever, sustained story, entrancing melody and all the other ingredients that go to make a high-class musical farce have proven irresistible. "When I Settle Down With You," "Goodbye Joe," "Sweet Bye and Bye" "Wanting You," and "Come Along With Me," are a few of the song numbers that have secured a firm grasp on public favor. The company is said to be an excellent one and its personnel includes Robert Knight, one of the best known singing comedians who will be seen as the much perplexed bridegroom the Crisp Twins, remarkable alike for their strong resemblance to each other and their singing and acting ability; Frank Cullen, an eccentric comedian of wide experience and reputation, who appears as the butler Charles Bennett, a handsome and talented juvenile; Bertha Julian, Clarice Grey and Beatrice Lett.

THE WEATHER

A rather unusual occurrence of the unequal distribution of a killing frost, is to be seen at the present time in different sections of the city as well as in the country. All through the section south of the city limits the effects of frost are to be seen on tender vegetation and the same conditions exist in the city, but much more irregularly. In one place the pumpkins, squash, etc., will show blackened leaves; proof positive that the temperature had gone down to 32 degrees. In another garden, not far distant, no such signs of frost are visible. The latter will generally be found to be more sheltered, or perhaps on a little higher ground. In the northern and western sections where the land is more elevated there are few signs of frost. The lowest temperature that has been registered on the official instruments this fall were 34 degrees.—W. P.

MACKENZIE KING COMMENDS LOAN

LIBERAL LEADER HOPES IT MAY BE OVER-SUBSCRIBED BY CANADIANS.

FAVORS BORROWING AT HOME

Reserves Right, However, to Criticize Expenditure of Money so Raised.

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—The new Victory Loan has received the cordial support of the leader of the Liberal party. In a letter to Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, Mr. Mackenzie King commends the oversubscription of the loan to the citizens of Canada upon Sir Henry Drayton's assurance that "the organization of the campaign, everything about it, is absolutely and entirely non-political.

Here is Mr. Mackenzie King's letter:

"I am pleased to join with you in commending the Victory Loan to the people of Canada.

"It is imperative that Canada's credit should be maintained.

"As the Government finds that borowing is a necessity to meet existing obligations, it is in every way desirable that the amount required should, if possible, be raised within Canada itself. I hope, therefore, that the loan may be over-subscribed by citizens of the Dominion.

"You appreciate, of course, that in expressing a desire to see the loan a success such obligation as I may have in the matter of criticizing unnecessary or extravagant public expenditures is increased rather than lessened, and that this condonation is given upon your assurance that the organization of the absolutely and entirely non-political."

NORTH ONTARIO'S CHOICE.

Uxbridge, Oct. 2.—The Conservatives of North Ontario held a well-attended convention at Sunderland to select a candidate for the provincial contest. Three men were nominated: James Blanchard, of Scott, Mr. Wall, of Beaverton, and John Wetherall, of Brock. Mr. Wetherall got the most votes and his nomination was made unanimous.

General Sir Arthur Currie is spending a couple of days in Winnipeg en route to Vancouver.

Two new members were appointed to the Vancouver harbor commission and one of the old members re-appointed.

And that the 23rd day of October, A.D., 1919, at Ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the said Office in the said Municipality, has been fixed for the purpose of appointing persons to attend at the Polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk.

And that if the assent of the electors is obtained to the said proposed By-law, it will be taken into consideration by the Municipal Council of the said Corporation at a meeting thereof to be held after the expiration of One month from the date of the first publication of this notice, and that the first publication was made on the 25th day of September, A.D., 1919.

Take Notice Further a tenant who desires to vote on the proposed By-law must deliver to the Clerk not later than the 10th day before the day appointed for taking the vote, a declaration under The Canada Evidence Act, that he is a tenant whose lease extends for the time for which the debt on liability is to be created, or in which the money to be raised by the proposed By-law is payable, or for at least Twenty-one (21) years and that he has by the lease convenanted to pay all Municipal taxes in respect to the property or which he is a tenant other than local improvement rates.

OCTOBER 13 THANKSGIVING.

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—In the House of Commons Mr. Pedlow asked if the Government was aware that it had fixed as Thanksgiving Day nomination day in Ontario.

Sir George Foster replied that Oct. 13 had been proclaimed a holiday. As to the other aspect of the question, perhaps Mr. Pedlow would refer it to the Prime Minister of Ontario.

RING FIGHTERS OF THE OLD DAYS

In the olden days fighters did not dicker about a few pounds and were willing to take chances with an opponent with any kind of mitts, regardless of weight or size. In these modern days when they fight everything must come in for consideration, the gloves, the conformation, and the greneal make.

During the world's fair at Chicago fighters came from far and near, Australia having a goodly representation, among them being George Dawson, Joe Goddard, Bob Fitzsimmons, Dan Creedon, Tommy Tracy, Mickey Dunn, Hughey Napier and several others. George Dawson made a great impression out on the Coast, having won from several in the welter class. Before leaving Australia he defeated Williams for the welterweight championship and had the credentials entitling him to all honors.

Dawson Fights Tommy Ryan.

Dawson came east for the purpose of fighting Tommy Ryan, the boss of that division, and arrangements were made for the two to meet at New Orleans, but Tommy was taken sick and the match fell through. Later they hooked up in a six round go on the lake front at Battery D, Chicago. It certainlyw as a great go and was a draw. Dawson made numerous friends, among them being Charlie Anderson, at that time head man for the Booth Packing Co. Vernon Booth at that time was one of the directors of the Chicago Athletic Association, and associated with him at the time was A. G. Spalding, W. S. McCrea and P. E. Stanley, and through the influence of Anderson Dawson was appointed boxing instructor and was a fixture there until two years ago, when he was compelled to resign on account of an automobile accident that affected his sight.

Dawson was entitled to first honors as a gamester, and where he displayed nerve was when under the management of Mr. Levy, prominent San Francisco bookmaker, he was matched to fight Danny Needham of St. Paul. Needham was known as one of the fastest welterweights in the world and certainly could go some. Well, they battled out west, and the Frisco people bet a ton of money. Dawson never had much to say, but when he got into action he was some fighter himself and was always dangerous; besides, he was the father of the man-killing punch, the Dawson kidney punch, and every man that ever had the extreme pleasure of hooking up with the young fellow knew he had been in a fight, and some knew what the effect of the kidney punch was.

Dawson Refuses to Give Up.

In this particular fight Needham had no mercy for Dawson and he simply cut him to ribbons. George was bleeding from all quarters, and several times he was begged to stop by Levy. "No," said George, "I will get him after a while." He told Levy he was a slow starter and he had to have time to map out his line of battle.

Dawson almost cried when they told him they were going to throw up the sponge, and begged for a chance to continue. He even called to the referee to pay no attention to any one in his corner should a towel be tossed into the ring. On they fought, and about the fifteenth round Dawson asked one of his seconds to give him some hot beef tea. He had mapped the battle out all right, and figured he was in for a good licking the first part of the fight, and knew that a stimulant would do him a world of good. He even went so far as to make prepartions for an alcohol stove, and after lighting the burner and getting boiling water the second put in the beef cube and soon had the tea ready. George enjoyed the refreshments and said he was ready for the final rounds. He immediately turned the tide of battle, and the awful kidney punches commenced to tell on Needham and he became weaker and weaker and finally about the eighteenth round his lights were set. The crowd went wild and Dawson was named the gamest of fighters.

STRONG ENLOGY OF RACE HORSES

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Oct. 1.—Canadian hunting horses of the thoroughbred type are known all over the world for their stamina, courage and endurance, and the test of racing is the only one by which a thoroughbred horse can accurately be judged, declared Major Gen. Lessard, formerly of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, before Dr. J. G. Rutherford, sitting as commissioner in a session of the racing enquiry here this morning, following those recently held at Montreal and Ottawa.

PITCHING ANALYSIS FOR YESTERDAY'S GAME

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 2.—Tabulation of the pitching record of yesterday's game shows that Ruether, winning Cincinnati pitcher, pitched 21 strikes and 46 balls, while the three White Sox pitchers—Cicotte, Wilkinson and Loudermilk—sent over 21 strikes and 24 balls. The record shows that Chicago batters found Ruether's pitching thirty-eight times, mostly for high flies and fouls. The hard hitting Reds connected with 42 balls pitched by the three White Sox hurlers, 14 of them for safe hits. Twenty-one flies and seventeen grounders were hit off Ruether, while 16 flies and 26 grounders were knocked from balls pitched by Cicotte, Wilkinson and Loudermilk.

The record for tewest balls pitched in any one inning went to Ruether, who in the seventh inning tossed only four times. One of these was a ball, two were high flies out and one was a grounder on which the batter was thrown out. Londermilk pitched the highest number of balls in any one inning, when he went into the box in the eighth. He gave ten balls, four strikes and one fly and five grounders were knocked—a total of twenty pitched balls.

GOYER LEADS BELLEVILLE TO VICTORY AGAINST OSLER NINE

The Belleville-Osler game yesterday afternoon in the semi-finals of the O A B A championship series resulted in a win for Belleville by the score of 2 to 1. If asked the reason of the Toronto defeat there is but one answer and that is Fred Goyer. The long southpaw from the Bay of Quinte was at his best and had the Toronto sluggers at his mercy. He struck out seventeen, making a total of thirty-five in the last two games played against the Osler team. His speed, remarkable controlled, and tricky curve are almost unconquerable and lead us to believe he is the best amateur pitcher seen here in a great many years.

Interesting Game.

It was a hard fought, interesting game from start to finish with both teams at full strength and keyed to the highest pitch of enthusiasm over the game. Spring pitched a wonderful game for the losers, but the breaks were against him and his team found it impossible to chase enough runs across the plate to win.

Only One Umpire.

Manager Fligg of the Belleville squad protested against having only one umpire and stated if it were not for the three or four hundred who had come from Belleville to see the game, he would refuse to play. But the game was played and the winning run, as it happened was scored by a runner who had been favored by a doubtful decision at second base. Manager Fligg can congratulate himself upon his loyalty to his home town fans for, perhaps, if it had not have been for Umpire Burke's decision his team would not now be matched to meet Hamilton in the finals.

The game by innings:

First Inning.

Belleville—Weir fanned; Smith grounded and Ross flied to Potts. No runs, hits or errors.

Osler—Potts swung at the first ball and lifted a foul fly that Mills gathered in; Donkin singled cleverly to centre field and went to second when Gerow lost Goyer's throw to first; Hughes lifted one that looked like a single, but Weir grabbed it and bowled Donkin off second unassisted. No runs on hit, one error.

Second Inning.

Belleville—Mills struck out; Goyer was safe on Brody's wild throw and went to second and then third on two wild pitches; Goyer was stranded on third while Gerow and Kelliher fanned. No runs, no hits, one error.

Osler—Calboun fanned; Willy popped to Goyer and Buchanan grounded to Kelliher. No runs, hits, or errors.

Third Inning.

Belleville—Symons opened up by singling through the pitcher's box but was caught trying to steal second; Casey fanned; Weir walked and stole second; Smith also walked, but the chance was lost when Donkin gathered in Ross' high fly. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Osiers—Newton fanned; Brody walked and Spring singled; Potts struck out but Donkin got his second single, which scored Brody; Hughes fanned. One run, two hits, no errors.

Fourth Inning.

Belleville—Mills walked, was sacrificed to second by Goyer and took third on passed ball; Gerow grounded to Willy but Mills scored on the play; Kelliher also grounded to Willy. One run, no hits, no errors.

Osiers—Kelliher missed a bad hop on Calhoun's grounder; Willy singled. Both runners advanced when Goyer threw the ball to centre field in an attempt to catch Calhoun off second. With a man on second and third and none out Goyer fanned Buchanan and Newton and forced Brody to fly out to Ross. No runs, one hit, two errors.

Fifth Inning.

Belleville—Symons and Casey struck out and Weir went out to Hughes. No runs, hits or errors.

Oslers—Spring fanned; Potts was safe on Weir's error, but Donkin struck out and Hughes forced Potts at second. No runs, no hits, one error.

Sixth Inning.

Belleville—Smith walked and Ross singled, Smith stole second and Ross made for second on the play. Potts, threw wild to second in an attempt to catch Ross, and Smith scored with what proved to be the winning run. Mills flied to right; Goyer struck out and Gerow grounded to Spring. One run, one hit, one error.

Seventh Inning.

Belleville—Kelliher drew a pass only to be forced at second by Symons who went out trying to steal second; Morden, batting for Casey, fanned. No runs, hits or errors.

Oslers—Newton and Brody fanned; Spring walked and Potts fanned. No runs, hits or errors.

Eighth Inning.

Belleville—Weir fanned and Smith tried out to Willy; Ross singled but was out trying to steal second. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Oslers—Donkin fanned; Hughes popped to Gerow on an attempted bunt; Calhoun walked and went to second on a wild pitch; Willy hoisted one to Ross. No runs, hits or errors.

Ninth Inning.

Belleville—Mills singled; Goyer fanned; Gerow grounded out to first, Mills going to second; Kelliher singled to left, but Mills was cut off at the plate by a beautiful throw from Calhoun. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Oslers—Buchanan flied to Ross; Nugent, who replaced Newton in the eighth, singled to right; Brody fanned and Spring was hit by a pitched ball. With two on and two out, Potts missed three. No runs, one hit, one error.

HYDRO INTERESTS HIS FIRST CARE DECLARES SIR ADAM BECK

His Attitude of Mind in Approaching London Constituents Seeking Re-Election—Desires to Have Free Hand.

Toronto, Oct. 2.—"My first duty, as I see it, and I need not add, my devotion, is to be municipalities of the Province of Ontario that have pledged their credit and have incurred enormously large liabilities in the obligations they have assumed on account of the Hydro-Electric power scheme, and ultimately will assume on acount of the Hydro-Electric radial railway undertaking. Their interests are to me paramount, and I have always felt, and in this believe the municipalities concur, that in order that these interests might be served it was essential that I should be a member of the legislature during such time as I remained a member of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

"If, therefore the electors of the city of London see fit to return me to the Legislature as their member, I shall deem it my duty to discharge the responsibilities that may be placed upon me, and use my position to safeguard the public interest to the end, that the projects to which the municipalities are, or may be committed, may receive the support necessary for their full and ultimate development.

"I have placed my views fully before the executive of the Conservative Association of the City of London. I am, of course, quite unable to say what action they may take. I can say, sincerely, however, that I was deeply touched by the evidences of the friendship and good feeling extended to me following my statement."

Does Not Attack Government.

In this manner, Sir Adam Beck yesterday gave expression to the attitude of mind in which he is approaching his constituents in London seeking re-election. At the present juncture he apparently is contenting himself with making it clear that he will go to the Legislature with the primary purpose of advocating and protecting Hydro interests. His statement is not just the type of declaration that interests antagonistic to the Ontario Government's fortunes of an insurgent party movement headed by Sir Adam and numbering in its ranks divers disgruntled politicians. But it will prove no surprise to those in the confidence of the Hydro chief who knew that certain gentlemen among them the late member for South Norfolk, who were bandying Sir Adam's name about, were doing so without his consent, and that his devotion to the interests of the municipalities it too whole-souled to allow room for political intrigue or for aspirations for political leadership.

Will Not Be Nominated.

Sir Adam Beck's candidature in London will, judging from present indications, differ little from that waged in the last general election. He will not go before the electors with the nomination of any convention binding him to the support of party leadership but it will be Conservatives, joined by many Hydro Liberals who resent the attack being made upon him by the local Liberal machine, who will elect him. It is believed that the London Conservative executive, at its meeting next Friday night, will accept the frank statement he has made to them and will give him their support.

Sir Adam Beck's decision to run again will be a relief to Hydro supporters. Those close to the Hydro chairman know that for some time it has been his desire to be relieved of the heavy responsibilities of his post and retire to private life. Only his deep sense of responsibility and the conviction that at the present time, with the fate of the radial project hanging in the balance, he could not drop out except by playing traitor to Hydro interests, has kept him at work.

M. I. T. GETS SWIMMING CHAMP

Massachusetts Institute of Technology's prospects for a banner year in swimming have received a big boost by the application for entrance of Gordon Smith, former Worcester Academy star, and holder of New England titles in the 100 and 220. It was thought that he would enter Yale this fall, but evidently he likes the idea of being near home.

"Guernsey" Hubbard, former Lawrenceville swimmer, is another of the entering class who will do much to fill the vacancies left by the loss of Max Untersee, and Charles Scranton, captain-elect, who has decided to enter Penn medical.

BOXING AND WRESTLING BRANCH G. W. V. A.

RUGBY FOOTBALL TEAMS BACKWARD

SARNIA WILL LET SATURDAY'S GAME GO BY DEFAULT—NO PRACTICE.

London, Ont., Oct. 2.—Convener Bert Perry, of the local intermediate O.R.F.U. group, was notified by the Sarnia club that Saturday's game would have to go as a default since little or no practice had been had by the Tunnel City squad. In the absence of Coach Jack Newton Dick Leseur has been working with the few players that turnout, and Leseur is anxious that his team get another week's workout before attempting to play a game. He also stated that he would be willing to play in London instead of having London play in Sarnia when his team is ready since the default of Saturday's game means the loss of a gate for London through no fault of the local team.

Petrolea also reports similar conditions to that at Sarnia, but were lucky in not drawing an earlier game than to play at home with London on Monday, October 13, Thanksgiving Day.

Mr. Perry is of the opinion that a new schedule will not be necessary.

Secretaries of Collegiate teams at London, Petrolea, St. Thomas and Sarnia were notified that a meeting will be held on Saturday to draft a schedule for the local junior O.R.F.U. intercollegiate groups.

North German Lloyd Line will not resume service with the U. S. as the few steamships left are hardly more than a thousand tons each.

RETURNED FROM MONTREAL

Mr. R. J Winch Visited Relations in Dominion Metropolis.

Mr. R. J. Winch has just returned from Montreal where he visited his son Mr. C. H. Winch, and his daughter Mrs. F. W. G. Johnson. From Montreal Mr Winch went for a short stay to Lac Trembiant, where his daughter has a summer cottage. La Trembiant is situated in the Laurentian Mountains about 90 miles distant by rail from Montreal. Tremblng Mountain is the highest in the Laurentian range. The lake, six or seven miles long, lies at its feet, and contains several pretty islands. He was unable while there to indulge in one of his favorite pastimes, fishing, as the best fishing is to be had in neighboring lakes several miles away, and the inclemency of the weather prevented any trips in the direction.

Of the coming of Dr. George Adam who will lecture in Murray Street Baptist Church on Tuesday, October 14th on the subject "With Harry Lauder in the Trenches," some citizens have written to the committee

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner says: "Dr. Adam is a lecturer of exceptional ability and will doubtless be heard by a capacity house."

Mr. G. N. Gordon writes saying: "I heard him at the Chatauqua last summer and found him one of the most powerful, fascinating and convincing speakers I have ever heard Anyone who misses his lecture is losing a very profitable evening."

Mr. James Lynch says: "The people of Peterborough are to be congratulated on their opportunity of hearing Dr. Adam again."

Mr. G. O. Cameron's letter says: "The Canadian Club had the Dr. down as a prospective speaker for a future meeting, but since the men of Murray Street Church got in ahead of us we are pleased that we will have the opportunity of hearing so pleasing a speaker."

Mrs. J. A. Aylmer says: "He was the gem of the Chatauqua week; when he comes to Peterborough everybody will want to hear him.

Mrs. W. R. Morris writes: Dr. Adams' eloquence, kindly humor and sympathetic insight into human nature made him one of the most delightful speakers of the Chatauqua.

Mr. Jos. Wearing: "As a lecture this will be the eevnt of the season in Peterborough.

ABSENT 30 YEARS PRAISES THE CITY

FRANK FOWLER HAS MANY GOOD THINGS TO SAY OF OLD HOME TOWN.

It is a trait of Peterborough men that when they leave the old town and hike for new fields that they soon get their feet on the earth and in new soil, take an interest in affairs, speak well of the bridge that carries them well over, if they are not already married, select one of the girls and become one of the family That is all in the term becoming acclimatized.

Occasionally a man comes back to see if the latch string still hangs outside the door, if any of the old folks are about, and if the people they left on duty are still doing business at the old stand. They come back looking happy, prosperous and mostly always contented.

The latest arrival is Mr. Frank Fowler, now of Saskatoon, Sask Mr. Fowler finished his "time" as an apprentice in The Review office and having something of the enterprise of his grandfather, John Fowler, our first railroad builder, went off to better himself. Evidently his intentions have proved to be good and realized. He looks like an opulent member of the Winnipeg Wheat Board, and that expresses dividends galore besides unlimited salary. He has two sons in the printing business with him, and the youngsters are able to tell the head of the firm to go off and have a holiday while the business will be run with elegance and precision At least that is what we understand from what Mr Fowler says and he knows

He praises Peterborough, now after thirty years absence, grown pretty well out of his recollection. In fact his feeling to the old town is expressed in the phrase of the man who said that he loved not Rome the less but Caesar more Mrs Fowler is of the party and is looking up friends of her youth, being a Peterborough girl, transplanted to the West.

BEAUTIFUL SHORE LINE

Old Tins Could Be Used for Filling in Purposes.

The old tins piled up at the incinerator are causing concern to city officials who know not exactly that disposition to make of them.

Council is serious in their proposition to purchase Riverside Park and improve same generally for public use, and in the event of this Alderman Edgar suggests that piles be driven from the Park shore line down to the C.P.R. tracks, and all bays of shallow water filled in with these tins, and subsequently top-dressed The idea is to beautify the shore line, and afford a water front resort on the river's eastern bank

G. A. GILLESPIE AGAIN CHOICE OF LIBERALS AS STANDARD BEARER

No Opposition at Liberal Convention Last Night, Fair Attendance, but Old Time Enthusiasm was Lacking

The Liberal convention in Victoria Hall last night was fairly well attended, but lacked old-time convention enthusiasm.

Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie, West Peterborough's provincial member the past five years, is again the party's choice as standard bearer in the election campaign just opened. He was nominated by Geo. Sloane and seconded by Mr. G. Telford, of Smith, and generally endorsed by all speakers as the honest man.

There were no other nominations although the president of the association, J. J. Hartley, offered ample opportunity for such.

J. J. Hartley presided over the convention, and he was supported on the platform by C. R. Widdifield, secretary of the Liberal Party, R. R. Hall, Joseph Wearing, Reeve Anderson of Otonabee, and A. W. Roebuck of Toronto, the speaker of the evening.

As is too often the case as such conventions, the visitor Mr. Roebuck, but it quite a forceful talker, was overshadowed somewhat by too many preliminary addresses.

The outstanding feature of the meeting, apart from nomination, was the characterization of the Hearst Government as the seven sleepers, so much so that one is constrained to marvel how the province managed to survive five strenuous years with the officers of its ship of state in a condition of indifferent somnolence.

A letter from G. N. Gordon expressed regret at his absence and pledged loyal support to Mr. Gillespie, should he be nominated, and to the Liberal Party.

Chairman J. J. Hartley, is confident that Mr. Gillespie will be re-elected, and with a larger majority than at last election; and censured the Hearst Government for extravagance and mismanagement, as evidenced, he declared, in a growth of the country's debt of $12,000,000 in 1905 to $75,000,000 today. The speaker expressed sympathy with the aims of the Vets. and believed the Liberal Party would do more for them and the working class than any Tory Government had done in the past or would do in the future. In fact, he declared that all legislation for labor comes from the Liberal ranks.

An Honest Man.

C. R. Widdifield, in supporting the nomination, characterized Mr. Gillespie as one who had always taken great interest in all who went overseas from both the city and county of Peterborough, and at a time when he had decided not to go before the electorate again. It was only recently, he said that Mr. Gillespie had consented to again contest this riding.

As to Mr. Gillespie's record in the House, it was honest and clean, and he (the speaker) ventured to say, that whoever his opponent may be, or what speaker may be brought here none can put forth one act detrimental to Mr. Gillespie's character on his procedure in Legislature the past five years he has represented West Peterborough riding. Such a record, in his opinion, every man, woman and child in the city and county of Peterborough should be proud of, and should also appreciate the fact that this riding has a member who does the right thing at the right time without fear or favor one who has the courage of his convictions. "We want a member," Mr. Widdifield concluded, "who is not seeking political favors for himself, but who serves in the interests of those people he represents—and in that man West Peterborough has Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie."

Always All Right.

W. G. Telford, in seconding the nomination opened that as a farmer he could not support a better man; he had always found Mr. Gillespie all right in all his political and business undertakings.

The Candidate.

Mr. Gillespie in thanking the convention for nomination, and the party for its support, generally referred to the past five years as the most strenuous in the riding's history; during which time he had tried to always do his duty in a manner he conceived to be in the best interests of both city and county. He had determined a year ago not to run again, for business reasons, and had so advised Mr. Proudfoot, Mr. Dewart and the party's executive. Subsequently,

A CRITICISM OF LIBERAL WHIP

STARTED CAMPAIGN IN MAGLADERY'S RIDING WHILE LATTER WAS OVERSEAS

MAGLADERY FOR TEMISKAMING

HON. G. H. FERGUSON VISUALIZES A TRUNK ROAD TO COCHRANE BEFORE LONG.

Cobalt, Oct. 3. In accepting the nomination of the Conservatives of Temiskaming yesterday afternoon Capt. Tom Magladery went after the Liberal whip for entering his riding to fight him while he was overseas fighting the Germans. Capt. Magladery complimented the Conservatives for having fought shy of politics during the war, but he was sorry he could not say the same for the Liberals. He thought that the least the Liberal whip could have done was o have gone into a riding where the member was home instead of trying to put a knife in the back of a man who was overseas. Hon G. Howard Ferguson, Minister of Mines, was the principal speaker, and he make two pronouncements of importance to the North. One was that before long there would be a trunk road from North Bay to Cochrane to connect the North with Old Ontario. This is a big problem of the North, and has been receiving the undivided attention of the North Ontario Associated Boards of Trade. His second pronouncement was in regard to the extension of the T and N O Railway from Cochrane to Moose Factory.

The convention was one of the largest in the history of the riding, and Mr Ferguson's answers to the recent charges made by Mr. Dewart while here were loudly applauded. Especially was this true when he pointed out that had Mr. Dewart's plebiscite idea in regard to sending men to the front been carried out Canada would have had to withdraw from the war a discredited nation. The Hearst Government in contrast to this had placed the whole resources of the Government at the Empire's disposal.

BOY HELD FOR PART IN RIOTS

TWELVE YEARS OF AGE, CHARGED WITH PARTICIPATION IN OMAHA RIOTS.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 2. Fifty men and boys have been arrested in connection with Sunday's rioting, when William Brown, a negro held for attacking a white girl, was lynched. Among the prisoners is Sol Francis, 12 years old. All of the arrested are held for either murder, inciting to riot or assault to commit murder and willful destruction of property. A special grand jury will convene Oct 8 to inquire into the charges.

Gen Leonard Wood, who is in command of the troops patrolling the city, has issued a proclamation calling on the people of Omaha to obey such instruction as may be issued by the military authorities until all danger of disturbances is past.

Dr. E. C. Henry, attending Mayor Smith, who was nearly hanged by the mob, stated that he believed the mayor to be out of danger.

PRES. WILSON IS A VERY SICK MAN

NO IMPROVEMENT IN CONDITION WHICH IS REPORTED BY PHYSICIAN AS GRAVE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Philadelphia, Oct. 3.—Dr. Francis Dercum of this city, who examined President Wilson, as a consulting physician, said today that the President's condition is grave, but that he is of a cheerful frame of mind. Mr. Wilson, according to Dr. Dercum, realizes that he is a sick man, and is making an effort to cease chafing under the restraint which compels him to relinquish temporarily the helm of administration.

By nature, said the doctor, he is a hard man to handle from the viewpoint of the doctor.

No Improvement.

Washington, Oct. 3.—It was officially reported this afternoon there was no improvement in President Wilson's condition.

The President has no temperature, and his heart action is good.

Characterizes Reports That British Railwaymen are Returning to Work as Untruth—Conference Yesterday Failed of Results, but Another Being Held This Afternoon.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Oct. 3.—"The situation is easier," said J. T. Brownlie, of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, after a prolonged conference between Labor men and the Premier this afternoon.

Certain Assurances.

Certain assurances, it is reported, were given by Lloyd George to Labor men in the course of a conference today. These will be laid before representatives of the railwaymen this afternoon.

Failed of Result.

Secretary Thomas talked with an Associated Press representative this afternoon with reference to the Downing Street conference that had failed to result in an agreement yesterday. The Government demanded unconditional surrender, which was impossible, he said. The railway men are more solid today than ever in their determination to see it through. Inspired tales that they are returning to work are untrue.

Another Conference.

After the arrival of special messenger from Downing Street at the headquarters of the National Union of Railwaymen, a deputation of Trades Unionists, together with the Executive Board of the National Union of Railwaymen, went into another conference with Lloyd George.

Will Not Call Parliament.

The authorities have decided that Parliament will not be called together in connection with the industrial situation. A demand to this effect was telegraphed to Prime Minister Lloyd George by William Adamson, chairman of the Labor Party, and leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, but the Government has determined to abide by the original date of meeting, Oct. 22nd.

Better Train Service.

Every day there is improved train service. Practically all of London's subway lines are now working a restricted service, and although congestion is still serious, on all available means of transport morning and evenings there is likely to be a constantly decreasing congestion unless the transport workers declare a strike.

PLANE WRECKED TWO LIVES LOST

FELL TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY FEET AND CAUGHT FIRE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Lorain, Ohio, Oct. 3.—Clarence Brown, 23, of Okron, Ohio, and Anthony Schueller, 20, of this city were burned to death in the wrecking of an airplane which fell 250 feet last evening at the Ohio Aviation School flying field, three miles east of here. The bodies were burned beyond recognition.

FIVE BALLOONS REPORTED LANDED

LEFT ST. LOUIS, MO., WEDNESDAY, ON INTERNATIONAL LONG DISTANCE RACE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 3.—Five of the balloons which left here at six p.m. Wednesday in the international long distance race, are now reported as landed. Two are near Parry Sound, one at Athens, Ont., one at Cardinal, Ont., and another near Sherbrooke, Que.

MICHAEL BAHRI ON TRIAL FOR LIFE

The case of Michael Bahri, the Austrian charged for murdering Philip Yanoff, commenced this morning at nine o'clock.

The jury was sworn in and several who had served on the jury, which convicted Thomas Kolchek, were challenged by Mr. Gordon, counsel for the accused, before a complete jury could be impanelled.

The jury trying this case consists of Thomas Stenton, Charles Wiley, Peter Moffat, Thomas Petrie, A. M. Combing, George Benor, George Porter, J. W. Butcher, John Hope, William Patterson, Enos Kent and Albert Roberts.

Dr. Thompson, of Havelock, who performed the postmortem examination, and Dr. Moir told of the finding of the bullet in lodged in the same way as stated in the trial of Thomas Kornchek.

Then Mr. Bradley was summoned into the witness box. His evidence was the same as when his story was previously told with the exception that he swore that the accused had worked for him from the 10th to the 20th of April, and during that time he had associated with the other men who slept in the bunk house.

The next witness was Mr. Rosebury, station agent at Indian River, and he told the same story about the revolvers and flash lights being found at the station. Rosebury told of a conversation he had had with Bahri, in which the prisoner had stated that it was a devil of a mess to be mixed up in. This was the only evidence produced by Mr. Rosebury additional to his previous evidence at the first trial.

Witness told of the return of the prisoner accompanied by Chief Thompson and Detective Magher. Replying to a question from Mr. Gordon witness stated that he had not seen High Constable Moore on the scene.

Constable Whibbs, of Indian River, spoke of the return of Bahri in the custody of Chief Thompson and detective Maher that Sunday afternoon. Bahri pointed to a hole in the bench and said: "That is the hole where I put the money."

The next witness was Oliver Rosebury, the ten-year-old son of the Indian River station agent. He answered the questions put to him in a straightforward manly manner that did credit to so young a youth. He told of finding a box of bullets under the cushion on the rocking chair in the waiting room of the station while the constables and prisoners were still there on that Sunday morning in June. He told of returning to the waiting room after the men had departed and finding there under the bench, beneath a hole in the bench, a twenty dollar bill carefully folded. His brother, smaller than himself had found $80 about a foot away from where he found the $20.

After hearing Constable Puffer's story, which was the same as told in the first case, the court adjourned till two o'clock this afternoon.

Two Belgian police dogs, found too light for service in New York, brought $152.50 at auction.

THOMAS KORNCHEK CONVICTED OF MURDER OF PHILIP YANOFF

Verdict of Jury Concurred in by Judge in Spite of Masterly Defence.

At 7.30 o'clock last night the jury, trying the charge of murder against Thomas Kornchek, brought in a verdict of guilty with a plea for mercy. Sir William Mullock stated to the jury that he concurred with their verdict. He knew that it was a hard duty to perform but their duty was clear. He had no choice in the sentence to be imposed upon this man for the law of Canada clearly states that a man found guilty of murder must pay the penalty with his life.

When asked if he had anything to say before the sentence was imposed the prisoner answered that he would like to say something about how he got to the bunk house. As this would, perhaps, influence the cause of some of the men yet to be tried, the judge withheld his sentence till the end of the assizes when the condemned man will have an opportunity to explain.

Game All the Way.

The prisoner took his sentence "gamely," as it was expressed and although he showed signs of nervousness, stood upright and presented a bold demeanor till the end.

Yesterday afternoon's session was occupied with the adresses to the jury by the defense, the Crown and the judge. Mr. Essery, for the defense, presented his case in a masterful manner, but the overwhelming evidence against the accused led to his conviction. No blame can be attached to the defense as Mr. Essery did all that mortal man could do with the laws of this land to free the accused from the terrible charge laid against him.

Mr. Essery's Appeal.

The purport of Mr. Essery's address to the jury follows:

Gentlemen of the Jury.—

The accused is a foreigner but he deserves the same consideration at your hands as any true British subject would receive in a similar situation.

The Crown has absolutely failed to prove conclusively that this is the man who fired that shot at the stone quarry just outside of Havelock. The man who fired this shot may now be at large in Canada or elsewhere, or may be in the custody of the proper authorities of this country. I submit to you that it is unjust to impose capital punishment upon this man as long as there is a doubt of his guilt.

Possibly Another Party.

Mr. Bradley has stated that it was at 6.15 in the morning that he had been awakened. At the break of day. And Mr. Bradley had stated that it was an open camp subject to the approach of any person who desired to come there. Constable Williams had declared that he had seen in that locality automobile tracks. Gentlemen of the jury, it is a great possibility that others may have been in that locality at the time of the shooting. In fact, it may have been members of another party who have made their escape in another direction.

Mr. Essery pointed out that there had been another rubber heel in that vicinity. It had not been the same as the one causing the imprint but it showed that there were other rubber heels in that neighborhood. Should a man's life be hazarded on the chance of the track of a rubber heel? Those so zealous in carrying out the prosecution of the law had failed in their duty. If they had faithfully carried out their duties they would have saved one of the imprints so firmly impressed upon the ground that morning. They did not do this and a verbal identification of heel about which there was a doubt of its characteristic appearance should not send a man to the gallows.

Motzsoff's Evidence Doubted.

Then on the evidence of one Motzsoff, a foreigner, was a human life to be lost? Motzsoff stated that on that night with a gun in the hands of a murderer pressed against his body he had cried "shoot." "Do you believe it?" asked Mr. Essery.

Mr. Essery asked the jury to believe the evidence of Tommy Servanoff. A man who had entered the witness box like a human being and had admitted being terrified when the gun was pointed at him and had cried "don't shoot."

He pointed out where time and time again Motzsoff's testimony was unfit to believe. Motzsoff declared that he never talked the incident of the murder after its occurrence even while working there from the 22nd of June till the 12th of July. Even while in company with three companions, witnesses of the robbery, on a trip to Toronto and return, he swears he did not discuss a word of the evidence with anyone outside the court.

At the preliminary hearing Motzsoff declared that Ziluski was the man he recognized as the man who

Completely Shut Out Cincinnati Reds on White Sox Grounds—Many Tense Moments

Comiskey Park, Chicago, Oct. 3.—Perfect weather and capacity attendance greeted the Cincinnati Reds and Chicago White Sox in their third game of the world's baseball championship series of 1919 here today.

First Inning.

Cincinnati — no runs, no hits, no errors.

Rath ont, Riesberg to Gandil; Daubert flied to Felsch; Groh struck out.

Chicago — No runs, no hits, no errors.

Liebold sent a line drive to Neale; Ed. Collins out, Fisher to Daubert; Weaver sent a high one to Daubert.

Second Inning.

Cincinnati — No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

Rousch hit the first ball to Riesber, who threw him out at first; Duncan singled to centre; Kopf drove to Riesberg, who threw him out at first; Neale out, Ed. Collins to Gandil.

Chicago — 2 runs, 2 hits, 1 error.

Jackson singled to left; Felsch sacrificed; Jackson went to third; Gandil singled to right, scoring Jackson and Felsch and taking 2nd on the throw to the plate; Riesberg walk; Gandil was out when Fisher threw Schalk's tap to Groh; Riesberg was forced, when Fisher took Kerr's easy tap; Liebold's drive was speared by Groh, who threw him out at first.

Third Inning.

Cincinnati — No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

Chicago — No runs, 2 hits, no errors.

Ed. Collins singled; Weaver got an easy fly through short; Jackson, in attempting to hunt, popped and easy fly to Daubert; Felsch lined to Groh, who forced Weaver and Rath relayed it to first, getting Felsch for a double play.

Fourth Inning.

Cincinnati — No runs, no hits, no errors.

Groh walked; Riesberg took Rousch's slow bounder, Groh going to 2nd; Duncan filed to Riesberg who tossed to Ed. Collins, doubling up Groh.

Chicago — 1 run, 2 hits, no errors.

Groh took Gandil's easy grounder and threw him out at first; Fisher lost control of the ball and threw it to the back-stop; Riesberg tripled to right. The ball got away from Neale and rolled almost to the fence. Riesberg scored on Schalk's easy tap that bounced away from Fisher for a single; Schalk was out stealing; Kerr was thrown out.

Fifth Inning.

Cincinnati — No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

FRIDAY, OCT. 3, 1919.

MR. GILLESPIE RE-NOMINATED.

MR. G. A. GILLESPIE, who was renominated by the Liberals at their convention last night, certainly deserves all the warm encomiums that were handed to him by his supporters. He is a man against whose private record not a word can be spoken. His course in the Legislature during the past four years, too, will stand the searchlight. There is no doubt where he stands on any and all public questions. He is in no sense a politician in the generally accepted meaning of that term. With him the general public welfare rather than self-seeking is supreme. Mr. C. R. Widdifield, Mr. Wearing and other speakers exaggerated nothing when they sounded his personal and official merits.

And while in the Legislature, this man, who seeks the promotion of the greatest good to the greatest number, has found it possible to support the most important measures brought down by the Hearst Administration, measures dealing with temperance, with labor and with agriculture. This being the case, where is the justification for the terrible arraignment of that Government by the speakers last night, who assailed Premier Hearst with the same vigor with which they extolled Mr. Gillespie?

If Mr. Gillespie is defeated at the coming election it will not be through any demerits of his own, but rather by reason of his associations and the leadership under which it is his misfortune to serve, at least in name. He is not likely to have as clear sailing in the campaign as he had at the convention. The faction in the party that for the past two years or more have been attempting to sidetrack him are still at least lukewarm. Ultra Liberals have not forgotten or forgiven the fact that in 1917 he supported Union Government. For this reason alone the extremists are already whetting their knives in preparation for his slaughter. In his private business Mr. Gillespie deals in one of the staples, which, in common with other necessities, has climbed skyward in price. For this condition, rightly or otherwise, he will be held responsible by a certain class who, for the reason of economic conditions, look no further than the dealer with whom they directly do business.

LIBERALS AND THE REFERENDUM.

MR. A. W. ROEBUCK, the young man from Toronto who was the chief orator at the Liberal convention last night, spoke with all the polish and not a little of the causitry of the skilled lawyer. Dealing chiefly with the temperance question, he certainly put the best possible face upon all the points which he advanced. It was noticeable, however, that his laudation of prohibition or temperance as a principle, personally favorably to himself, created no more enthusiasm among his audience than if he had attempted to douse them with a bucket of cold water. It was only when he questioned the sincerity of the Conservatives on this issue that his remarks were applauded.

Mr. Roebuck harked back to the session immediately following the election of 1911, when N. W. Rowell and his followers offered to support the Government if Sir James Whitney would bring down legislation to close the bars.

That was the offer. Mr. Rowell had just emerged from his first campaign as Liberal leader with a scant score of followers. In that campaign he and his party were timid unto death of the temperance question and fought shy of it entirely. What warrant had such a man and his little coterie of supporters to pose as the friends of temperance when the Liberals had been repudiated at the polls? The Rowell strategy on that occasion was one of the most transparent political moves ever staged in Canada. There is not a man in Canada conversant with politics but who believes that if Mr. Rowell had been elected premier in 1911 the abolish-the-bar policy of disastrous history would never have been born. Political exigencies create strange situations.

Mr. Roebuck says that the referendum ballot is misleading. If that is so, how does it come that the form of the ballot as finally adopted received the practically unanimous support of the Opposition, including, if memory serves us, Mr. Gillespie himself? The ballot was not sprung upon the people, not promulgated by order-in-Council, but was thoroughly discussed in the Legislation and its every provision explained. If a man or woman in Ontario is in favor of straight prohibition the referendum ballot affords an easy way for putting that opinion on record.

Mr. Roebuck says that the number of questions on the ballot tends to cloud the real issue.

The Ontario Temperance Act was passed on the strength of a popular petition. On that petition various shades of public opinion were represented. There were those at that time, just as there are today, who believe in the sale of beer and wine of regulation alcoholic strength, who believe in the sale of such beverages in Governments hops alone. Others maintain that both brewed and distilled liquors should be sold in shops under State control. The sentiments of these people were ignored in 1916 with the understanding that after the war a test vote on the different issues would be taken. That pledge the Hearst Government now proposes to redeem.

MR. WEARING'S ARGUMENT.

MR. JOSEPH WEARING was correct when in his address at the Liberal convention last night he asserted that there are important questions to come before the next Legislature, problems of agriculture, of public ownership, of labor, of social reform and the like. There certainly are all of these. Still, the people are likely to entrust the solution of these problems to the present Administration, that has already made a move in every one of them, rather than to a party whose record on each and all is entirely negative throughout a period of thirty-two years of power.

Mr. Wearing does not fight the farmers or the Labor party. He says, however, that if the Liberal party is returned to power, the necessity for these independent movements will no longer exist, that farmers and workingmen will get what they are now after.

Here, again, what is the record? In 1894, when the late Sir Oliver Mowat was in power, there was born in Ontario the greatest of all independent movements of the farmers of the province. In the election of that year the Patrons of Industry, despairing of receiving anything otherwise from the then Administration, put up candidates everywhere, and elected something like two score of their number to the Legislature, at least sufficient to hold the balance of power. For certain concessions they transferred their support to the Liberal side, and the Mowat Government received a new lease of life. At the election four years later the farmers' party was wiped out.

Labor knows by bitter experience that it has nothing to expect from the Liberal party. Mr. Wearing boasts of the Labor legislation of the Laurier Government. Workingmen have every reason to remember it and have tried time after time to have it repealed. The main feature of that legislation is the provision that makes it a crime for workingmen to strike as a body for higher wages or better working conditions.

THE DECLINE OF AGRICULTURE.

IT IS CERTAINLY a misfortune that so many young people are leaving the farms for the cities, as Mr. R. R. Hall notes and deplores. There is the same complaint with regard to the clerical, the teaching and other professions and lines of endeavor. The monetary reward is the lure in all cases.

But what is the remedy? Economic ills are no more rare than physical ailments. It is the physician who can suggest a remedy as well as make a diagnosis who is needed. On one hand, the farmer is assailed by some for not keeping his children on the land. Another class brand the tiller of the soil as a profiteer, growing rich at the expense of the urban dweller. Coming or going, the farmer gets it, especially during the heat of an election campaign.

LABOR LEGISLATION IN ONTARIO.

IN HIS ADDRESS at the Liberal convention last night Mr. Roebuck declared that there was a paucity of Labor laws on the statute books of Ontario. To back up this assertion he cited the Act that sets the minimum working hours for women and children, an Act, by the way, that was first adopted by Mr. Roebuck's own party.

The speaker must have been the victim of a lapse of memory. Otherwise, how does it come that he failed to mention the Workmen's Compensation Act, passed during the premiership of the late Sir James Whitney, the most beneficent measure for the working classes that exists today in any country in the world.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

MATRIMONY is another industry that suffers by the high cost of living.

THE FARMERS do not aspire to control the Legislature, but for the present will be satisfied with a look-in.

* * * * *

ONE CAN FIND any kind of a school of politics these days, but the question is how many graduates the new institutions will be able to turn out.

* * * * *

THE EXAMINER, taking a whiff at the breeze, declares that the fight is on and then sets about accumulating evidence.

* * * * *

IT IS PERHAPS just as well for the Liberals that they will have a chance to celebrate Thanksgiving Day before the election.

FORTIFIED BY a hypodermic injection of politics even the oldest stager at the convention last night was able to take his temperance gruel with tolerable grace.

AS A CHURCH PAPER VIEWS SITUATION

(Christian Guardian.)

The provincial election is to be held on the same date as the referendum. This was the much belated announcement which was given to the public last week. Probably it is just as well that the campaign should be short, as it will likely make up in heat what it lacks in length. There are four well defined parties in the field, the Conservatives, the Liberals, the United Farmers, and the Labor men; and the political prophets are all at sea as to how to forecast the outcome. There is a whiskey element in the Conservative party, represented by Col. Machin, of Liberty League fame, and possibly by a score or more of others who are not as bold as the redoubtable colonel; and it is not yet clear how these men will go. Logically, perhaps, they should follow Mr. Dewart, but it is hard for them to vote Grit, even when their own leader is a prohibitionist, and they may yet swing into line with their old party. The Liberal party, disorganized for years, is hoping to reassert itself. Mr. Rowell's temperance activities demoralized the liquor element in the party, and alienated many votes which had long been Liberal. It is practically certain that this part of the Liberal vote will be solidly behind Mr. Dewart, and it may possibly be reinforced by a part of the liquor vote from the Conservative side. But on the other hand, there are temperance Liberals not a few who have long prided themselves upon belonging to a "temperance" party, and there is no doubt that many of these, if they vote Liberal, will do so with more or less misgiving. Then the United Farmers are in the field, and if enthusiasm and oratory counts they ought to elect not a few of their men. But it is the silent vote that tells the tale and it is yet to be seen just how far the old political ties have been broken and new ones formed. The probability seems to be that the farmers will back the U.F.O. to such an extent as to secure possibly twenty-five seats. We think this would be a very good thing for Ontario politics. Then there are labor candidates, who are eager to get into Parliament. Just how many is not yet certain. In one case the Labor party and the U.F.O. have endorsed the same candidate. In the case of Toronto and Hamilton, we think it would be a good thing, in view of the present unrest, if some of these urban constituencies would agree to return labor men by acclamation. But they should be genuine labor men. The fact that a man worked at a trade twenty years ago gives him small claim to represent that trade today. Labor has a right to be represented in Parliament, but it should be by men who earn their bread by the sweat of their brow rather than by the use of their tongue. Altogether the election promises to be an exciting one, and its results may easily be surprising. We should like to see half a dozen women in the next Parliament, but so far the sisters seem to have no ambition for such distinction.

IS IT TO BE CHRIST OR BOLSHEVISM?

(By William T. Ellis.)

The International Sunday School Lesson For October 5 Is "John and Peter Become Disciples of Jesus."—John 1: 29-42.

Returning soldiers find after-the-war work irksome. It is hard to settle down to a want ad basis. Life at home seems trivial and monotonous for many service men: their souls, which once scaled the glory heights, seek larger satisfactions than the daily round of life in a shop, an office, or a store. This is one explanation of the tendency of some men to deal drastically with economic and political conditions.

Wise national leadership will utilize the restless spirit of the soldiers for the attainment of the loftier levels of life to which all the world aspires. Not by repressing, but by nobly satisfying the larger impulses of men are dangers to be escaped and prizes gained. Let us give our veterans a chance to be the best and do the most of which they are capable. They saved the world from destruction in France and in Flanders and in Turkey: may they not save the world for reconstruction in the homeland.

Always the spirit of high adventure and of pioneering has burned in the breast of young men. They are the ones who desire and who dare. Long ago, two such, dwellers in a land which is today a problem place, a centre of world events, had put the spirit of the Quest above business and money-making, above home-keeping ease, above the conventional routine of their friends, above the ordinary pleasures of youth. They set out to find and follow the best. That made them disciples of a hairy desert prophet named John the Baptist. As far as he went they accompanied him; and thus were prepared to go farther with Another who came afterward. In their example we find a message for high-souled, restless young men today. The Leader whom they followed is still calling for recruits who will go to the limit in the work of making over the world by showing its people a better way of life.

Things We Outgrow.

Dozens of officers and enlisted men in France and elsewhere have told me that they can not go back to their old jobs; they have outgrown them. They want something better suited to the new power which they feel resurgent within themselves. We do outgrow tasks and books and leaders. A few evenings ago I picked up a book which had been in my library for twenty years. When I bought it I found it vital and helpful. Now it leaves me cold; it seems to be almost juvenile in the way it states perfectly obvious truths. The book is no longer for me; I have advanced beyond it. Also, in fairness it should be added, I have advanced because of it and others like it; we may not forget our early helpers, in books and work and friends.

The two Galilean fishermen about whom the Sunday Schools are studying this week outgrew their life by the Lake, and sought the best leadership into a larger satisfaction they could find. Then, in time, they outgrew John the Baptist—though he saw it before they did, and pointed them to a Leader who can never be outgrown; who is today as far in advance of the greatest explorer into twentieth century life as he was in advance of Peter and John. This is the secret of intellectual and spiritual strength; follow the best you know until you find a better. Go with any prophet of light as far as he can lead you—and then go on to the greater. It is the glory of the teacher that he sets a few of his pupils to travelling farther than he himself can journey.

Where the Jordan Rolls.

I have lately seen the Jordan River, where it tumbles joyously out of the Lake of Galilee, over rocks and amid beautiful oleanders, and also down by Jericho where it flows sluggishly amid the nodding reeds stained brown by the soil through which it has come, into the Dead Sea. Most of the length of the Jordan is deserted of human habitation today; and along its bank the British and Australian soldiers did brilliant fighting during the war. In the time of our Lesson it was more populous, for to the eastward lay the great Greek and Roman cities which are now only basalt ruins on the uplands of Bashon and Moab.

By this river which has come to be a literary and religious symbol of decision and crisis, John the Baptist preached in such virile tones that his world thronged out to hear him. Whenever a man comes from God, with a vital message which he can apply to his own day, and express in the speech of the people, he will be discovered by the multitudes. John did not need to employ a publicity committee. No group of leading citizens had to underwrite or employ him. He did not have to secure an advantageous site for his auditorium. Instead, he spoke a living word, off from the haunts of men, and the people thronged to it Ordinarily, nowadays, the public objects to travelling as much as a mile to church.

One proof of John's real greatness was his consciousness of a greater to come. He had none of the egotism of the average professional evangelist. He called himself only a voice; and accepted his function as merely that of a fingerboard marked "Behold!" The next best thing to being a doctor, in the presece of illness, is to be able to show the patient the way to a physician who can surely heal. If the problem of our time baffle us, we know One who has a solution for them. The least of us can introduce our needy world to the Christ whom the Baptist heralded.

Unexpected Seekers.

At dinner one night this year in the British Embassy, Constantinople, where the talk had raged fast there fell a few moments wherein neighbors conversed by twos, and the distinguished soldier and statesman by my side spoke feelingly about the spiritual aspect of the Pera Palace Hotel, he took up the theme again; he too was a seeker; a man eagerly questing after the living God.

They are everywhere, these men and women who are heart-hungry for truth—in palace and kitchen. This goodly fellowship which young Peter and John represent extends around the earth. It has no limits of language or color or creed. It is

Indeed, we are not far astray when we diagnose the present unrest of the world, this troubled turning hither and thither, this reckless following after every new teacher and theory, as a spiritual quest. Humanity wants something, it is not certain what. Its desires are countless; its need is one. Men think that it is more money or less labor or greater ease or fuller power that will bring satisfaction; on the contrary, it is only peace of soul and forgiveness of sin that will bring rest to this weary world. All who seek need to hear the Baptizer's word, spoken by the Jordan to the two Seekers who were his followers: "Behold, the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." Deeper than all our desires is our need for a Saviour from sin.

A Leader for Today.

From palace to Bedouin tent the problem runs, "Who is the leader for today, who can deliver the world from its unrest and its iniquities, and bring us real and abiding peace" Night and day thousands of earnest men and women are brooding upon this question. They are brave enough to accept any honest answer. For the sake of the truth they would renounce any ancient belief or allegiance which is proved to be in error. Nevertheless, the sincere conclusion of those who are closest to the real realities of conditions is that there is no other leader sufficient for our day except the Redeemer to whom John the Baptist transferred his two young disciples, Jesus is the Man of the Hour, the hope of the race.

In nobody else is there any promise of relief. As in Jerusalem on the day of the crucifixion, it is either Christ or the Barrabas of Bolshevism—love or unbrotherliness; life or ruin. The other historic teachers of the race—Buddha, Zoroaster, Confucius, Mohammed, are local in both time and place; they offer no universal leadership. Jesus is today in all lands the most progressive leader and deliverer. He makes the decadent Korean nation new. He fires the Chinese heart with new and nobler passions. He takes the African savage and makes of him a man. Out of the Armenian and Syrian he creates a Christian of the type which commands all men's respect. He gives a new character to every disciple.

This is the present-hour message which should ring from every pulpit and class-room; Christ is an adequate leader and deliverer for our troubled time. As men follow him, they lead the world and save themselves and society. "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world."

THOMAS KORNCHECK

did the shooting. Now with the cunning lust for revenge characteristic of his race he identifies the prisoner as the man who fired the shot. Is the jury going to convict a man to death on the evidence of that type of man, asked Mr. Essery?

Every Detail Brought Out.

Mr. Essery took every detail of the evidence and discussed the possibility of it not being the truth, at great length. He continually appealed to the jury that as long as there was a reasonable doubt in their minds as to the guilt of this man killing Philop Yanoff, not to condemn him to death.

Mr. Rigney's Address.

At the commencement of his address to the jury Mr. Rigney stated that he considered all had been done that could be done in behalf of the accused, but on account of the conclusive evidence against the prisoner he must come to a different conclusion than that expressed by Mr. Essery.

Not Necessary to Fire the Shot.

He pointed out that according to the criminal law of the land it was not necessary to prove that the accused was the man who fired that shot, but if five men went there with the purpose of robbery, and if during the robbery, murder was committed they are all equally guilty of the crime of murder.

He asked the jury to believe the evidence of Thomas Savanoff, as was also asked by the counsel for the defense. The evidence of this man showed that he identified a watch and chain presented to the court as one of which he was relieved on June 22nd, and which was later taken off one of the five men. This was evidence that conclusively proved that these men performed the robbery, at which the murder was committed. "That was sufficient to convict the prisoner," declared Mr. Rigney.

Peculiar Track Enough.

Also the follow of the peculiar track of the rubber heel and the subsequent arrest of the men, one of whom was wearing a heel which corresponded with the track followed from within a few feet of the bunk house is conclusive evidence of the presence of these men at the camp during the robbery and murder.

"It is unnecessary to go into every detail of the evidence again," declared Mr. Rigney, but he went ahead and pointed out the unentail points in connection with the prosecution of the case. He showed how the prisoner had been recognized by one of the inmates of the bunk house who had noticed the pecularity of the prisoner's eyes. He pointed out how the track followed from the bunk house corresponded to the heel worn by one of the five men. And he also pointed out how the men who had been robbed at the bunk house on the night of the murder had identified the property found on the five men as the goods stolen from them on the occasion of the murder.

This Man Present.

This proved conclusively that this man was present at the bunk house when the shooting took place. And also the evidence of Motzsoff goes to prove that this man, the man who fired the shot, because he recognized him by the peculiar cast in his eye.

Judge's Address.

Then the judge presented his address to the jury carefully instructing them in their duties.

"Your duties and mine are clearly known," commenced Sir William. "It is my duty to inform you of the law concerning this case. It is your duty and yours alone to decide whether this man be guilty or not."

The killing of a man by another is homicide. It may be culpable or none culpable. If culpable homicide it is punishable.

Culpable homicide is divided into two classes, murder and manslaughter. Murder is when the offender causes injury to another which results in death, or of a nature that might cause death. He then explained how five men could be guilty of the one murder as described by the Crown council.

Turning to the case in question, we will suppose that five men, some armed, visit a room (where one sleeps) a number of men, uninvited in the dead night, for the common purpose of robbery. They may, or may not, have assigned themselves the part they are to play. If during the robbery one man killed, another all five men are as guilty of the crime as the one who did the killing.

Three Possible Verdicts.

If the killing is not considered by the jury a murder but is considered manslaughter it is the duty of the jury to bring in a verdict, guilty of murder.

The jury may bring in one of three distinct verdicts. It may be a verdict guilty of murder, it may be a verdict guilty of manslaughter, or it may be an acquittal.

In this case the man who did the shooting was undoubtedly guilty of murder. The issue is narrowed down to whether the prisoner were present during the killing of Philop Yanoff.

Reviewed All the Evidence.

It appears that five men came into the bunk house and one of them shot and hit Philop Yanoff. The shot and commotion aroused the sleepers.

The man sleeping next to the deceased noticed that the man who covered him had eyes that were a little different. He identified the prisoner as the man.

Sir William then reviewed the evidence brought out by the Crown and pointed out what should be seriously considered by the jury.

In concluding his brief address the judge explained the case in this way. If, in the unanimous opinion of the jury, the accused were present at the killing of Philop Yanoff, then he is guilty of murder.

Give the Foreigner Justice.

Sir William urged the jury to not take into their consideration the fact that the accused was a foreigner, unable to talk our language. He came to this country, content to abide by our laws and must be protected by them. He explained that it was the duty of the jury to decide if the man were guilty or not guilty and bring in a verdict to that effect. It was his duty (the Judge) to impose the penalty should the jury find this man guilty of the crime of which he was accused.

The jury retired at 5.35 to form their verdict.

CARRIES CANADA'S NAME THROUGHOUT THE WORLD

Remarkable Achievement for Purely Canadian Concern.

As evidence of the way in which one enterprising Canadian firm has pushed the sale of its product into the corners of the earth, it is interesting to know that the "Salada" Tea Company sell their product not only through the United States, but in France, Belgium, Spain, Portugal, Canary Islands, Algeria, Morocco, the Gold Coast, every British West India Island, Mexico, Cuba, British Honduras, the Guianas, Colombia, Venezula, Brazil, Paraguay, Chile and the Argentine.

They have lately, made a large shipment to Iceland, and have received inquires from Egypt, Bulgaria, Czecho-Slovakia, Turkey, Norway Alsace, Switzerland, Peru, Denmark, Sweden, etc., etc.

The teas shipped to these countries are exactly the same quality as you buy under the same familiar labels in any part of Canada or the United States. The popularity of this tea during the past century has made "Salada" a household word in America.

ARCHITECTS CON. OPENS IN TORONTO

TWELFTH ANNUAL ASSEMBLY TO PROVIDE PUBLIC WITH EXHIBITION.

Toronto, Oct. 2. This week the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada holds its twelth general annual assembly in this city. The meetings are being held in the assembly rooms of the Engineers' Club morning and afternoon, to-day, Friday and Saturday of this week. Sir Edmund Walker, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and A. Monro Grier, president of the Canadian-Niagara Power Company will discuss on the viewpoint of the public in regard to the profession at luncheon to-day at the King Edward Hotel. This evening the convention will be entertained at the Royal Ontario Museum of Archaeology, on Bloor street, by the director. Professor G. T. Currelly. Professor Currelly will give the architects a private view of the collection, which he has brought together with much pains from Egypt, the Orient, England, France and Spain, which is unusually complete and interesting. Sir Robert Falconer, president of the University of Toronto, Dr H. J. Cody, minister or education, and Brig.-Gen. C. H. Mitchell, D. S. O., C. M.G., will discuss unifarmally various educational problems of the profession and of the university at a luncheon at the King Edward on Friday.

In the evening the architects will meet at the Toronto Art Museum—The Grange—and have a private view of the exhibition of the work of the members of their association. Among the interesting features of this exhibition will be the competitive drawings for a war memorial at Regina, Saskatchewan, the Ottawa civic improvement plans, which are a very comprehensive exhibition of town planning, the drawings of the new parliament buildings at Ottawa. The Brooklyn Museum has very kindly consented to loan Professor W. H. Goodyear some two hundred and fifty photographs of French cathedrals which were made prior to the war and because of the destruction of many of these buildings, have become priceless possessions of the Brooklyn Museum.

This exhibition is open, free to the public, on Saturday, October 4th, and will be continued until October 12th. After viewing the exhibition there will be an address by H. B. Dunington-Grubb, the landscape architect. On Saturday the exhibition of the architectural drawings will be open to the public, and during the morning the convention will be addressed on "Town Plannning" by Thomas Adams town planning advisor of the commission of conservation, and by M. Gauchon. Among the speakers at the convention will be Hon. Dr. H. J. Cody, Prof. P. E. Nobbs, Herbert P. Moore, J. P. Hynes, H. Gr. Acres, Ralph Shepard, C. T. Cobb, Prof. Ramsay Traquair, of Montreal, and W. D. Cromarty, of Ottawa.

G. A. GILLESPIE AGAIN

however, he did consent to stand for nomination, feeling that it was his duty these troublesome times to shoulder his share of the burden of after-war reconstruction. He hoped for a short, upright, honest campaign and so far as he was concerend, no personalities would be indulged in no matter who his opopnent may be. "I was supported by many Conservatives in the last campaign, and I hope for a similar experience this election together with votes from a large number of ladies. Should I again be elected, I look forward to maintaining my record as an honest man, of which I am more proud than of anything else in my life.

In a brief review of his activities in the legislature, Mr. Gillespie referred to his successful agitation for the appointment of a commission on agriculture, recognizing lack of interest and development in that regard To this end he contributed his whole energy. "But," he continued, "more agricultural development is yet needed, and I still hope to put into force a policy which will satisfy the farmer and relieve cities and towns of the present unbearable high cost of living."

In addressing himself to the Labor Party, the candidate said he knew what it was to labor, and had always treated employees fair and in a kindly spirit, consulting their interests as he would his own. He realizes, he declared, that labor must have better days ahead than in the past, as must also agricultural interests. His strong hope was for a harmonizing influence upon labor, agriculture and business generally, which would bring about normal conditions and develop Canada as it should be developed.

"In June 1914," Mr. Gilespie concluded, "I was elected on the temperance platform, and none need be alarmed about my stand today in that issue. "I will give temperance the same honest support in the future as I have in the past five years in the Legislature. And, generally speaking will do my best in the weltare of the whole community, and work for a combination of interests which will bring about that harmony all hope for the coming years."

was the next speaker, and he thought this the most important election ever before the province, for there are problems of agriculture, public ownership, labor and social reform, which must be grappled with by men of big minds and capacity executive. Such problems, in his opinion, were beyond the present Government of "sever Sleepers," whom he considered "blind indifferent and lacking in ability." The Liberal Party he characterized as capable, and standing for greater freedom, and a more equable share in the fruits of nature, as against priviledge and monopoly. "I believe," he said, "in equal opportunity for all men in contrast to conditions by which the few monopolists of wealth and position are always found in operation under the Conservative Regime We want a power at Toronto, standing on the same principles as those of the late Sir Oliver Mowat, and at Ottawa, practicing those principle which marked Sir Wilfrid Laurier With such men in office the interest of the farmer, labor, women, social reform and public ownership would be well looked after; for the Liberals are broad enough to embrace the whole."

Mr. Wearing regretted the habit of retaining governments in power too long, and contended that their life should be shorter to force the members to get closer to the people. Were the Liberals elected to power, he promised that all problems would be solved, including those of the United Farmers and labor. In Sir Wilfrid's time, he said, the country had a full dinner pail, good wages, and no dissatisfaction, and history would repeat itself under a Liberal regime.

Turning to the temperance question he could find no authority for suspicion of lukewarm interest in this matter by Mr. Dewart.

Voice—"The Christian Guardian."

Voice—"It's Rowell's again."

Mr. Wearing —" Rowell has cut himself loose from the Liberal Party who are not responsible for his doings."

Continuing, the speaker declared that Mr. Dewart stands squarely upon the temperance plank in his platform, to put rigorously into force the mandate of the people.

W. A. Anderson.

This gentleman was the Liberal candidate in the last general election and he was warm in his praise of Mr. Gillespie's honesty in politics and business alike. He had been associated with him for 26 years in business, and had opportunity to judge of Mr. Gillespie's principles

Mr. Anderson here declared that it was not until Mr. Gillespie became a buyer in the Peterborough Cheese Board that cheese makers felt safe from being robbed in one way or another.

Mr. Anderson denied that he was at a farmers' meeting a night or two ago. While in sympathy with the Farmer's Club, he was opposed to anyone class running this country—"I am a Canadian first and a farmer next." Canada, he said, should be governed by people representing all interests and class legislation should have no place.

was thoroughly in accord with the platform on which Mr. Gillespoie stands. Liberals, he said, stand for no class legislation, but for the best welfare of the whole.

Mr. Hall here waxed warm on the cost of living and its increase under Conservative regime. Quoting from the Labor Gazette, he gave the average cost of living for a family of 5 from 1914 to the present year, as follows: In 1914, $73.68; in 1915, $7.78 in 1916, $8 63; in 1917 $11.68; in 1918 $13.51; in 1919 $14.43.

The speaker went on to say that during the war he had given warning that owing to neglect in the production of food we were all heading for starvation, but thank God starvation struck the Germans first. And he asked, who is responsible that during the last eleven years people have withdrawn from the farms.— if we have not producers, how can we expect the high cost of living to be reduced. Mr. Hall attributed this state of affair- to poor administration at Ottawa and neglect in Toronto.

The speaker next referred to the province's debt, and contended that the people stand a good chance of landing on the edge of the road. And, he said, if this piling up of the provincial debt continues, we are going to have more than unrest, for a whole country can't be dumped on the edge of the road without dire results following His (Mr. Hall's) remedy is to throw out the whole bunch at both Toronto and Ottawa, neck, crop and heels, and elect men fit to govern this country.

Mr. Hall next indulged in satire reference to the Lieut-Governor, Sir John Hendrie, and the $1,250,0000 appropriated for the building of his residence under Sir William Hearst's administration. Mr. Hall acented the 'Sir" with a vengeance and dubbed Sir William Ontario's Poobah. The $1,250,000 for this residence for the Lieut. Governor is as much, he declared as the assessed value of several Peterborough villages and townships combined of three or four thousand total inhabitants. Then the house rates $17,500, maintenance for this establishment, including 976 tons of coal at a time when Peterborough citizens were dragging home coal on hand sleighs.

In conclusion Mr. Hall would vote for a N. F. O. or labor candidate, or Mr. Gillespie, in fat for any candidate to vote out the Ontario Conservative Government.

CURB ON STRIKE TALK UPHELD

Fines Imposed on Organizers of Steel Workers Sustained.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 1.—The action of Mayor Crawford of Duquesne in imposing fines of $100 on William Z. Foster, secretary of the national strike committee, and J. L. Beaghan, an organizer, for alleged violation of a city ordinance in holding meeting without a permit, was sustained in an opinion handed down in the Allegheny County court to-day by Judge Kennedy.

The defendents, organizers for the American Federation of Labor, were arrested several weeks ago and fined. In reply to the defendants' executive was an abridgement of their right to free speech, the court states.

"The right of free speech is a sacred one, it well deserves protestion, but there are places and times and subjects at hand of which the right of free speech, sacred though it may be, must yield to the greater one of the safety of the citizens of the commonwealth, their homes and their property."

SIR EDWARD KEMP.

Likely to be The Next Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario.

Ottawa, Oct. 3. — Sir Edward Kemp continues to be mentioned as the probable appointee as lieutenant Governor of Ontario, a position which becomes vacant this month by the expiration of Sir John Hendrie's extra term of office.

"A lot of people have been talking that way, bue I am pretty sure I would turn down the position if it were offered me," remarked Sir Edward.

Despite this statement, the consensus of view here is that Sir Edward will be the man. The overseas ministry, his cabinet porfilio, is now being wound up.

GRAND JURY PRESENT REPORT ON COUNTY PUBLIC BUILDINGS

The report of the Grand Jury brought in the folowing report to His Lordship, Sir William Mulock, yesterday afternoon about four o'clock:

The Grand Jury beg to report that in accordance with your Lordship's instructions we visited the House of Refuge, Protestant Home, House of Providence, Children's Shelter, St. Vincent's Orphanage, Isolation Hospital, St. Joseph's Hospital, Nicholls Hospital and the Jail, and beg to report as follows:

House of Refuge: We found 35 inmates who informed us that the superintendent and staff were kind and considerate towards them, and supplied them with plenty of wholesome food, but they would like more heat in the Fall and Spring.

The condition of the lavatories was most unsatisfactory on account of defective plumbing, a condition that has existed for some time.

The men's apartments need some reparis and other attention to make them acceptable. Some of the men occupy the attic and if its use is to be continued it should be fitted up properly for the purpose, and fire escapes should be extended to reach the attic.

There is no fire protection in this institution. Two outside steel fire stairs reach from the 2nd and 3rd. stories to the ground.

We regret to report the death of one of the inmates who, during the night before our visit fell from the window of her sleeping room on the third floor to the pavement. We recommend that the windows in such institutions be protected in some way, in order to prevent further accidents of this nature.

Protestant Home.

There are 30 persons cared for here at present and we found everything most satisfactory except that an additional section of fire stairs is desirable at the rear of the mens apartments.

House of Providence.

The number cared for here at present is 59. Here also we found everything perfectly satisfactory. This building is equipped with one central outside fire stairs.

In the St. Vincent Orphanage there are 40 children and in the Children's Shelter eleven. The management and methods of both of these institutions are highly commendable.

The city and county are to be congratulated on the equipment, management and cleanliness of their three hospitals. They are well equipped with fire appliances on the inside but we do not consider the fire escapes either safe or sufficient.

There are at present eleven men confined in the county jail, four of them being vagrants. The condition of the jail is satisfactory.

In your Lordship's address to us you called our special attention to the matter of fire escapes for our institutions, which have in their care the aged, helpless and sick. We regret to report that in our estimation none of these institutions are equipped with fire escapes down which, in case of fire could be safely carried the class of inmates or patients above referred to.

This jury is impressed with the fact that a great proportion of the serious crimes committed in our country are perpetrated by aliens who are unworthy of Canadian citizenship or hospitality. We realize that it is possible that the matter of deportation of undesirable alien members of our population is not under the control of the proper authorities. We therefore submit that in our opinion, the judges of our courts should have sole right to investigate and to finally dispose of supposed undesirable aliens.

The attention of the Grand Jury has been called to the fact that at the present time the allowance made for living expenses of witnesses and jurors is not sufficient to cover the actual cost of meals and lodging while in attendance at the court. We be considered by he proper authorities with a view to the adjustment of the fees to be paid.

The jurors desire to congratulate your Lordship upon your consistent good health and trust that you may be spared for many years to continue the duties of your high office.

BOTH HOLDING FIRM

Employers and Steel Strikers Await Result of Investigation.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Oct. 5.—The 12th day of the steel strike opened today with virtually no change in the situation in steel producing districts. Both employers and strikers apparently are holding firm, pending a result of the investigation being conducted by the Senate Labor Committee in Washington.

It is estimated 16,000 Jugo-Slavs will leave South Chicago if the steel strike is not ended in 60 days, taking $16,000,000 in cash.

"HIS BRIDAL NIGHT" TOMORROW AT GRAND

UNFOLDING OF PLOT REVEALS NOTHING BUT CLEAN DIVERTING COMEDY AND FUN.

The attraction announced for the Grand on Saturday, matinee and evening, is Margaret Mayo's charming musical farce, "His Bridal Night." Like "Twin Beds," this latest offering of Miss Mayo's has firmly established itself in the good graces of the theatre-going public. It has everywhere been accorded a full measure of encomium and the engagement here is looked upon in the nature of an event. It is admitted that the opportunity was not wanting for the introduction of suggestive situations and risque scenes, but those Miss Mayo has skilfully avoided, and the unfolding of the plot shows nothing but clean diverting fun. The play hinges on a youthful lover marrying one of twin sisters, and in the excitement incident to the wedding reception and the fact that the sisters have had a misunderstanding, rushing off to a wayside inn for a honeymoon, but with the sister bridesmaid. The likeness of the sisters to each is such that he is unable to realize his mistake, and upon the arrival of the bride and the best man, things begin to happen The young bridegroom is never permitted a moment with his wife, and for this the piqued bridesmaid has Algenon, an obsequious butler, to thank. The entanglements are, of course ,at last straightened out, but not until the distracted "newlyweds" are on he verge of despair. Happiness finally reigns over two happy couples, the one married and the other soon to be. The piece has been musicalized for this season, Frederick V. Bowers, one of the foremost of American composers, having supplied a musical score of entrancing numbers.

Robert Knight, an actor of fine stage presence and splendid singing voice, will be seen as the husband; the Crisp Twins, noted for their vocal and dancing ability, and the remarkable resemblance they bear each other, are the sisters; while Frank Cullen, an eccentric comedian of enviable reputation, will appear as the butler. Charles Bennett, Beatrice Lett, Clarice Grey and Bertha Julian are other prominent members of an unusually capable cast. The scenic and costume equipment is new and elaborate, and no effort has been spared to make the production a complete and noteworthy one in all respects.

Among the 80 contestants already entered for the U. S. army's proposed trans-continental airplane race on October 9 is Capt. Da Lavergne, a French ace.

Three bids, the highest $5,866,000, were submitted for the purchase of the Government-built powder plant city of Nitro, W. Va., which cost $70,000,000 to build.

CHANGING STATUS OF MUSIC SUPERVISOR.

Recognized as Important Part of School and Held to Higher Standard of Musicianship.

A logical result of the present day expansion of the interest in music is the rapid development of music supervision in the public schools.

One of the best-known authorities on the subject, George H. Gratian in charge of music in New York schools, has given some illuminating facts in this connection.

In past years Mr. Gratian points out, the music supervisor held a position of but minor importance in the school system. Not only was a mediocre general education all that was required of him but positions were often filled by teachers whose musical attainments also were very limited. Ideals in this branch of work went no higher than having the schooool children assemble at stated intervals for singing, in as enthusiastic a manner as possible, the old familiar "stand bys."

A factor that practically eliminated the services of wothr-while musicians as supervisors in the past, was the small amount allottted for their salaries. The average small town director of school music received a princely salary of from twenty to fifty dollars a month.

To-day all that is changed. The men and women in charge of school music are nearly everywhere given a mubc more adequate salary. Moreover, their work has acquired new dignity in the eyes of the community. At the same time much more is expected of the officers in this branch of education. No longer is it possible for the music supervisor to bring to his position little more than an enthusiastic belief in the possibilities of his work. At the present day, colleges and universities are offering special courses in the training of prospective directors of music in the schools and the future positions of the students depend largely on the amount and quality of the work they do in these courses Thorough musicianship is one of the first requirements. Indeed it is a prequisite in all the important training courses.

Supervising ensemble singing of the schoool children is but a small part of the music supervisor's duties, which throughout the country are coming to include the directing of orchestras and bands from the talent afforded by the school.

To sum up in the words of Mr. Gartian the demands upon the modern music supervisor, "he must qualify academically, in order that he may maintain his position in the educational world; he must be sufficiently trained as a musician to develop all his natural acomplishments, and above all, he must be a teacher of children.

STORY OF GERMAN ROYALTY BLUFF

VIVIDLY TOLD IN "JACK CANUCK IN BERLIN"—SEE THE BATHING BEAUTIES.

Something new in the moving picture business was that presented at the Grand last night when Mack Sennett's famous bathing girls stepped down from the screen and presented themselves in person on the stage These girls, six in number, have an international screen reputation, having been featured in many of Sennett's film successes. They were grouped in tableaux and also appeared individually and were introduced to the audience by name.

The picture, "Jack Canuck in Berlin," in connection with which the bathing girls are shown, is a history of the German royal bluff, written in the terms of a clown. It features a young R.A.F. officer who impersonating a young lady, makes his way into the German headquarters and supplies the Allies with information which he secures from the All Highest ,the Crown Prince and Hindenburg The Kaiser gets in wrong with his frau over the good looking stranger who dances so well and she manages to mess things up generally with him. The headquarters chateau is bombed and shelled by the Allies and just before its final disintegration an airplane takes the hero off.

An interesting picture is that of the screen interviews with several of the Allies' army and navy commanders. It shows these great men in most natural poses. The Vod-o-vil Movies show some very clever acrobats and some fancy bicycle riding, as well as a dog and pony circus.

This excellent program will be repeated tonight and should be seen to be appreciated.

WHAT REPEAL WOULD MEAN

Editor Review: I wonder what the people who are advocating the repeal of the Ontario Temperance Act think of the picture The Montreal Herald in its Saturday editor gives of Montreal at the present time. It reads like parts of Dante's Inferno and should be sufficient to arouse the indignation of every patriotic Canadian. Think of it, Montreal, the city of which Canada has reason to be so proud, because of its past history and the sterling character of the men who built it walls of commerce and citizenship taken possession of by an army of American boozers until it has become the "Capital of Booze." The One Wet Spot Between the Arctic Circle and the Mexican Border," to quote the headlines of the Montreal Herald.

If the Citizens' Liberty League would pause long enough in its campaign of selfishness to consider how prohibition in the United States from Cape Cod to the Rio Grande and from Puget Sounds to Florida places Canada, its members would surely hesitate in their endeavor to throw down the barriers of the Ontario Temperance Act and thereby expose over a thousand miles of border in the province to the greed and cruelty of a defeated liquor traffic in the neighboring republic Do we want Canada to become the grog shop of the United States? Surely even the Citizens' Liberty League does not wish this, but if the barriers of legislation are swept away —what then? I will tell you how one American citizen answered this question It was on the steamer Noronic on Sept 4th, returning from Duluth to Sarnia A party of Americans got on the boat at Sault Ste Marie returning to Detroit A lady of the party, not very discreet, informed me they had been cruising for a week along the shores of the lake around the Soo, visiting the coves and bays, in a magnificent yacht provided for them by a Canadian gentleman, who also had placed a high powered touring car at their disposal, for rides of scores of miles along the shore. She then turned to me abscently and said: "Do you know how you Canadians can pay all our war debts in a very short time?"

Not having more wisdom than Sir Henry Drayton, I meekly answer "No I do not."

"I'll tell you," she said "Just defeat prohibition in Canada and we Americans will come over and start business in all your border towns."

I understood then the meaning of the magnificent yacht and high-powered touring car furnished by a Canadian "gentleman" God save the mark! I might have learned more if I could have listened, but I saw red too quickly and nearly shouted, "Never, never, pay our war debts by making Canada the grog shop for your liquor."

In reply she fairly hissed at me this startling statement: "Prohibition is going to be defeated anyway, your soldiers are going to defeat it."

Again I threw down the challenge to the liquor interests of all America and replied: "Our soldiers defeat it? Never, never. As they stood at Ypres and defied the Hun hordes, so now once again, I believe will they stand before the hordes of American liquor interests with its greed for gold and through the ballot send the ringing challenge, 'They shall not pass.'"

RECOLLECTIONS OF A POLICE MAGISTATE

In Canadian Magazine.

By Colonel George T Denison,

One of the most interesting cases I ever had was in connection with the robbery of a valuable diamond ring One evening some thirty years ago, a commercial traveller, for a Montreal piano factory, was in Toronto on business, and happened to have entered a tavern on Queen Street, a short distance west of Osgoode Hall. He had a glass or two of liquor there but was quite sober. He had on his finger a fine diamond ring, worth more than $600. He was chatting with some people in the bar-room when eleven o'clock came, at which time the bar had to be emptied and the place closed for the night. About a dozen men left the bar, and some of them stood outside a minute or two before separating. When the commercial traveller started to go east towards his hotel, a short red-headed man said: "Oh are you going that way. So am I." and they walked eastward, on the way the red-haired little man suggested that the traveller should accompany him to a friend's house, where they might have another glass before they went to bed. The traveller consented, and on reaching the corner of the Osgoode Hall wall, they turned north, then east along Osgoode Street to Centre Street, which was the first street running north. They turned up this street to the first lane, then turned to the left into it. They had hardly entered when two tall men who had been hidden jumped on the traveller and with the assistance of the red-haired man threw him to the ground and stole his ring He yelled "Help! Police! Robbers!" at the top of his voice. It happened that just at that moment a policeman and two police recruits were walking down Chestnut Street, and hearing the cries, ran down the lane and approaching Centre Street saw three men over one on the ground who was screaming for help. The three men heard the police men coming and ran as hard as they could towards University Avenue. The older policeman passed two of the fugitives, leaving his probationers to secure them, and chased and captured the one in front It was winter time and there was snow on the ground. The three prisoners were captured; the foremost one only getting a few yards out of the lane, the others being caught in it.

The next morning the three prisoners were in the dock charged with highway robbery. The ring was not discovered on them, but the deep snow prevented any possibility of finding it. Mr. Murdock appeared to defend them. The first witness was the complainant, who told me the story just as I have related it. He identified the red-haired man among the prisoners positively, could not be positive about the two taller men, as it was dark, but said that if the men in the dock were those caught by the officers, they were the men, as he saw them captured. The next witness was the policeman who said he was coming down Chestnut Street and when opposite the lane, heard the shouts for help. He with his companions ran at full speed down the lane—the lane from Chestnut Street was about its own width or a little more to the north of its continuation from Centre Street west, so that they did not see anything until they got close to Centre Street when they had a diagonal view, and saw the three men over the other, who was yelling for help. On his approach the men ran off at once, but they were all caught after a sharp chase The two recruits corroborated this story, and the Crown Attorney closed his case.

Mr. Murdock then put in his defence. He said that his clients had nothing to do with the robbery. That they had come from the eastern part of the city and on arriving at University Street they had turned north along the Osgoode Hall wall, and on reaching the first lane had heard the shouts for help. They had just reached him when they heard several men running towards them from the other direction, and becoming frightened they ran away and were caught.

There was also an attempt to prove an alibi showing that they had been in an eastern part of the city This alibi failed as they had plenty of time to have gone the short distance to the west, and to have met the complainant at the tavern Mr Murdock also said that his clients were respectable farmers' sons from Alliston, a village about fifty miles from Toronto, and were men of good character. Mr. Murdock did not seem to have much confidence in the story of his clients.

I was uneasy, however, and called the traveller back to the witness box, and said, "Are you positively certain, that the small red-haired man is the same man you saw at the tavern, and who walked with you to the place where you were robbed?" I walked with him talking to him under the lights of the streets, had an excellent opportunity of seeing him, and am quite sure he is the man, and besides, your Worship, he was not out of my sight for a second, for I saw him caught in the lane." I then said, "Could you not have been knocked senseless for a few seconds?" "No," he replied. "I was in full possession of my senses all the time."

The case was finished, and ordinarily I would have sentenced them to the Penitentiary at once, but for some reason I was uncertain, and to the astonishment of the Crown Counsel, I remanded them for a week.

Thinking over the case after the Court was over, I felt uncomfortable As far as the case was concerned, it was absolutely proved and it was not on circumstancial evidence, it was direct, positive testimony, showing that the prisoners had been caught in the act. It was a serious case, a Penitentiary offence, and yet I had a doubt, and was worried about it. I went to the Chief Constable, and told him to send me a detective whom I would want for a few days, and to supply him with funds to take him to Alliston.

Detective Burrow came to my room shortly afterward. I told him I wanted to see him about the diamond robbery. Burrows said it was a very clever capture by the constable and a very clear case. He was very much surprised when I told him I was worried about it, and I gave him my directions. I told him to go to Alliston, a small village in the country and pretend to be an agent for the sale of fruit trees. I told him to put up at the tavern, and talk fruit trees to everyone that he could in that way in the day time move about among the farmers and talk to them without exciting suspicion, and I said, "The whole country side will be talking about these young men who are in prison on remand. In the grocery shop you can talk about this robbery case ,the same way in the tavern bar room, find out what is the belief in the neighbourhood, as to the guilt or innocence of these young men, and find out some way or other whether any of these men were ever away for any length of time in a large city, or whether any of them have ever lived away in the States."

Burrows came back in a few days and came to my room and said that he was puzzled about the case. He told me there was not a soul he could find that would believe one word of the story, that none of the three had ever left their farms for more than a few days and none of them had ever been in the States. I said at once, "Then we have the wrong men. This was a piece of skilled scientific criminal work done by old hands, and Farmers' sons never did it. Their story was true, the man was knocked senseless for long enough for the transposition to take place, and he has not known it," and I told him to go to the tavern where the traveller had met with the red-haired small man who looks like the red-haired prisoner, was there that night, and when you find that out you will be able to tell who his chums were." Burrows left and made these inquiries and either the next day or the following day, he came to me and told me the names of the three who were all in the tavern that night I said at once that the red-haired men looked very much alike Burrows went on to say that they had knocked the man senseless, and escaped through a disreputable house just oppposite to where the man was robbed. He asked me if he should lay charges against the real criminals, but I advised him not, as the traveller had been so positive, and insisted on identifying the wrong man, and that therefore we could not do anything.

The next day the three young farmers were up on remand, and when called, Mr. Murdock asked to put in evidence of good character, and he had all the best people of their neighbourhood present to give that in mitigation of sentence. I stopped him at once and told the prisoners that I was going to discharge them, that I was satisfied that they were absolutely innocent, that I regretted very much having kept them in jail for a week, but that I did so in their interest and I discharged them. The Crown Attorney was astonished and came up to the front of my desk, and asked me what was the matter, that he never saw a clearer case. I said, "I will tell you after Court." Murdock came up shortly afterwards in his quaint way and said to me quietly "Heaven! Colonel what struck you? I had the warden and the Reeve and the Parsons, etc., all here to speak for them. I said, "there has been a mistake, Your clients' story was true."

Now referring to this case I think I may say that I do not believe an other judge in Canada would have taken the course I did. I knew it was irregular and contrary to every rule of legal evidence, or legal procedure, but I have always felt that my first duty was to do justice, justice above everything, and to set legal quibbles at defiance. And while this was the most irregular procedure in my experience, it is the one of which I am most proud, and to which I look back with the most satisfaction.

To finish with this matter I may say that within a year all three of the real thieves were up before me for different crimes clearly proved and they must all have thought that I had eaten something that had disagreed with me, and put me in a bad temper, for I took a serious view of their cases, and gave them severe sentences.

LAUDS MR. DEWART AS CHAMPION OF TEMPERANCE AND LABOR CAUSE

A. W. Roebuck of Toronto Addresses Liberal Convention in Victoria Hall—Commends Choice of M. Gillespie as Party Candidate

A. W. Roebuck, of Toronto, held his audience in the Victoria Hall, at the Liberal convention while he forcefully presented his party's platform in the coming Provincial elections.

He declared that both Mr. Dewart and his party, together with himself, had unbounded confidence in Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie, the Liberal nominee, who had always stood four-square on the big issues before the country—labor and temperance. The speaker did not believe in electing a rabid temperance man, but one of sound judgment, who would treat the subject on its merit, free of all ulterior motives.

Mr. Roebuck reviewed the record of Sir Wm. Hearst in regard to temperance, and contended that he could no more change his spots than could a leopard. He and his party, he declared, had prior to 1914 rejected the Liberal leaders' proposition for unity on a sound policy of temperance, and it was not until 1916, when 75,000 electors joined in a petition to the Prime Minister for an act to abolish the bars, that Sir William and his colleagues had consented to the present Temperance Act as a war measure, to last the duration of the war.

The speaker here condemned the referendum as not clearly setting forth its objects and confusing to the electorate with its four questions. Why he asked the question: "Are you in favor of light wines of 2.51 per cent. weight measure?" The answer is alcohol weighs only ⅔ as much as water, and sounds better than "proof spirits of 5.46 per cent," and the latter is the term we are accustomed to using. This beer is being offered by the Premier 1-3 as strong as scotch whiskey, and five times stronger than what is characterized as intoxicating over the border.

To sum up Mr. Roebuck's views on the referendum, it takes under Conservative regime a 3-5 vote to abolish the bar, and a 50 per cent. vote to establish it; and Mr. Hearst is hoping for a vote which "will re-establish an institution which has ruined homes and men in this province." "In contrast," the speaker declared, "the Liberal party stands solidly behind abolution of the bar entirely. Their policy is broad and democratic, and they are pledged to put into legislative affect the vote of the people of the Ontario Temperance Act. The real temperance party in the legislative is Hartley Dewart and his colleagues."

Mr. Roebuck talked forcefully on the labor issue, and declared it a disgrace that Ontario had not adopted a minimum wage act in keeping with all other provinces in the Dominion, but the three Maritime ones. He endorsed the fair wage board of Quebec that sets a minimum wage below which it is criminal to descend, and urged that investigations in this province would disclose labor condition demonstrating urgent need for moral reforms. Saskatchewan, he said, had set a minimum wage for girls in stores and factories of $9.60 to $12.00 the first year and $15 a week subsequently, and are now considering a 48-hour week. If the Liberal party is elected to power the first thing they will do, declared the speaker, will be the appointment of a board to investigate labor conditions in Ontario and enact what wages shall be criminal for employers to pay women and children. "It is only hard-hearted and unscrupulous employers who would object to a fair wage clause," he said.

Mr. Roebuck here went on to ridicule the Conservative administration's promise of labor reform—a party who can only claim credit for enacting a law in this respect which makes it unlawful to work women and children more than 10 hours a day for six days a week, except days prior to statutory holidays, when they may be kept on the job from seven to ten o'clock. He characterized some labor conditions in Ontario as little short of barbarous, with no help in sight from the Tory government; and pointed with pride to the 8 hour a day law for miners in Northern Ontario as a result of Liberal agitation. And if returned to power, we Liberals, Mr. Roebuck pledged, would call together employers and employees to further such action as will assure an eight-hour day limitation, cut out wage abuses, and institute uniform rates to the benefit of labor in general.

In conclusion, the speaker championed the cause of veterans, who, he declared, had, after fighting against German junkers in France and Belgium, returned home only to find a Tory government giving their land to junkers at home—almost every natural resource in the hands of a monopoly, scarcely a foot available without buying out some octapus in advance. In his opinion, it was not so much a gratuity stirring up great war veterans as the need of social reform which will guarantee them liberty to live and work under acceptable conditions in the land for which they fought.

COST OF CLOTHING MORE THAN DOUBLE

DEALERS IN TORONTO APPEAR BEFORE BOARD OF COMMERCE YESTERDAY.

Toronto, Oct. 3.—Startling estimates of increased costs in clothing materials and labor were placed before the Board of Commerce yesterday by Mr. Donald McKinnon of the Robert Simpson Co. and Mr. A. M. Hobberlin of Hobberlin, Limited. Both witnesses agreed that all cloths had doubled in price since the war, some of them had tripled, and still other lines had quadrupled in price. Labor cost was up from 75 to 100 per cent. generally, and the estimate of increase in general manufacturing costs was 100 per cent.

Eliminate Some Patterns.

When Mr. A. M. Hobberlin was on the stand he expressed the opinion that the board, to accomplish its object in reducing clothing prices, might aim in the direction of eliminating some of the host of styles and colorings which the clothing manufacturer of to-day has to be in a position to furnish. The situation to-day, the witness said, was that the competitive system was failing to keep down prices, something heretofore unknown. He suggested more co-operation, in view of the failure of competition, and arranged with the board to confer with a committee of outstanding Toronto clothing manufacturers.

Mr. McKinnon, during his examination, stated in reply to questions that in view of the cloth shortage in Canada it was no time for this nation to be exporting clothing to Roumania and Serbia. He paid the Canadian cloth manufacturers the compliment of saying that in medium grades their product was better than the English product. Canadian clothing manufacturers could and would be glad of the opportunity of using the whole Canadian cloth output.

And Two Trainmen at Belleville are Held For Trial.

Belleville, Oct. 3—Matthew Summers and John Logan, two G. T. Alfred Nicholson, who a few days ago was committed for trial as a participant in the transaction, today in the witness box was the chief witness for the crown. His evidence incrimated Summers and Logan and J. Frechette, who was a few days ago committed for trial.

FEAR OF BOLSHEVIKI IMPELS RUSSIAN PEASANTS TO FLIGHT

Will Have None of Democracy of Soviet Reds—Mass of People are Anti-Bolshevists

Ascha Baraschovska, Russia.—By day and by night the evacuation of the army of Admiral Kolchak from Ufa continued, writes Ludoric Crondys. The merchants of Ufa, using 3,500 railway cars, were also leaving the city. And always this movement continued towards the east. Functionaries of the government, local authorities, railroad officials, priests, large and small merchants, Christians, Jews, and Tartars—all those who under the red terror were menaced by death or severe regulations and who because of their social position or their friends were able to obtain a railway car for themselves or their baggage and their animals—all joined the flight. Most of the doors of the cars were open and among these thousands of vehicles a kaleidoscopic view of human misery unrolled before one's eyes.

All these poor persons, who returned after the first capture of Ufa with their furniture and wearing apparel, and had confidence in the proclamations and most optimistic promises, had begun to rebuild their ruined homes. They took away with them in this sad flight all that they held dearest. An owner whom I knew traveled with his children and five horses all crowded in the same railway car for animals. In other wagons two or three families were assembled, persons of station who were well dressed, but who found difficulty in maintaining their position among this sort of entourage. Some of the spectacles were gay; around one table sat a number of young women in bright gowns surrounding a samovar with a great deal of gayety and spirit. But for the most part one saw through the half open doors of the coaches men bent under discouragement and anxiety.

Flee from Bolshevist Menace.

And yet of all the great population in flight those able to put their names on the lists for the cars were after all, the most privileged. By the side of the railroad another interminable procession accompanied the flight of the bourgeoisie. This was the exodus of the poorer people. Among them were some little merchants who had not wished to believe in the coming defeat or had wished to remain under the red terror rather than abandon the little that they possessed. Finally when the guns were thundering before the city, they had been siezed by a great fear, had thrown some of their possessions into a cart and saved themselves as if they were pursued by demons. And afterward in incalculable numbers came workers and peasants, parents of soldiers who were serving in the white army or simply persons who had experienced the rule of bolshevism and who had seen it again on the horizon.

People against Bolshevism.

There is this fact that may well be considered. All of the populace upon which the government was not able to exercise any pressure by a spontaneous flight manifested its true sentiments with regard to a regime which pretends to be founded upon its aspirations. Farmers, workers and all the little people fled from the high cost of living, insecurity of life, famine and intolerable tyranny that has a thousand heads, which spares neither religous beliefs nor the traditions of the race, nor the intimacy of the family. They had not manifested any exaggerated sympathy for the Omsk government, but they appreciated that the regime was purely national and they detested in the red rule the unbelievable grossness which was like a grotesque exaggeration of bad manners inherent in all democracies.

Close by us passed a Tartar peasant with his wife and a little boy, all barefooted, carrying sack, sad and fatigued. On the prairies and fields and at the edge of the forest I saw the camps of refugees, who prepared their summary repast above the dry branches that the children picked up among the trees. Unharnessed horses, animals that had been saved, moved among the groups composed of all classes, joined together in a fraternity of misery. On the horizon one could still see the procession of refugees carrying little packs and travelling along all the roads.

Units Go Over to Bolsheviki.

Tavtimonowa, Russia.—The army of the west is composed of units of unusual bravery. An army corps, newly equipped and, it seems, well prepared and commanded by a young and intelligent general, Cappel, recently made its appearance at the front. The hopes which were entertained among others by a certain foreign mission, and which were built high on this "elite corps" have been somewhat dispelled by later events. These soldiers, to whom one readily gave—because of the fact that their complete equipment was English and that they were paid in French money—a new military dignity, and to whom naturally all the warlike virtues of the officers were credited, were not able to prove their superiority to their brothers in arms, these "sans culottes" who had been fighting for eleven months. On the contrary two of these battalions whom every one in the interior of Siberia admired as living proof of the help which the allies were bringing to their unhappy sister went over to the enemy and are now fighting against us.

Men Wounded in Hand.

I see a number of wounded men attired in the English uniform among the ambulance wagons and officers' vehicles which pass. An estimate gives the following result: 60 per cent of them are wounded on the index finger of the left hand and 15 per cent on the same finger of the right hand and only 5 per cent are more seriously wounded. All this is strongly from being reassuring. I doubt whether such palpable cases of slackness could be committed with the same impunity among the bolsheviki, in view of their severe and bloody discipline.

NOT ENOUGH SPUNK TO OSLERS

Toronto Enthusiasts High in Praise of Goyer

Toronto, Oct. 3.—"There is not enough Spring to the Oslers," commented a Belleville fan and he hit the nail on the head. Just the same Freddie Goyer, Belleville southpaw was too much for the Osler lads. Goyer in the three games he pitched against the Toronto champions fanned 45 men, 10 the first game, 18 the second, and seventeen yesterday, certainly a remarkable performance and only allowed fourteen hits in three games. His catch, Billie Mills, is one of the most promising receivers that ha sbeen seen for some time. He is a big fellow and worked Goyer perfectly; his throwing to bases was deadly. Goyer's brilliant work brings back the days of 1917 when Rutledge pitched for St. Marys colts. The championship has left Toronto where it has rested for two years. Goyer should beat Hamilton for his vicious cross-fire ball, curves and speed, will about stand the light-hitting Harvesters on their heads. "Knotty" Lee, "Case" Curzon and "Corney" Burns took in the game between Belleville and Peterborough. Lee fancys Spring's pitching over Goyer's work. Soldier Bill Buchanan, who caught for Oslers, turned in a grand game.

London, Oct. 3.—The official conference which was hoped would break the railway strike, has broken down. The Government will not negotiate until men go back to work. Expected another conference today. Increase in number of trains yesterday very marked.

RECORD BROKEN IN THE GATE RECEIPTS

Cincinnati, Oct. 3.—Another record went by the board when the National Commission announced that the total receipts for the second game of the series amounted to $97,136, exclusive of the war tax. The nearest approach to this figure by the second of any previous series was that of 1916, when Brooklyn played at Boston, and the total receipts amounted to $82,626.

Manager Moran announced before leaving for Chicago that he probably would pitch Ray Fisher in the third game of the series tomorrow.

Manager Gleason, before boarding the train for Chicago, said that, while he had not fully made up his mind he thought Kerr would be in the box for the Sox.

Total attendance, 29,690; total revenue (war tax deducted) $97,136; players' share, $52,453.44; National Commision's share, $9,713.60; to be divided by clubs, $34,968.96; total revenue of series (two games) $195,914; total players' share of series (two games), $106,798.56.

FEDERAL ELECTION STILL IN DISTANCE

NONE LIKELY UNTIL AFTER CENSUS IS TAKEN TWO YEARS HENCE.

Ottawa, Oct. 3. Unity of service for the development of Canada in this period of abnormal conditions was the sentiment expressed by all the speakers at the Unionist caucus Thursday. New problems had arisen old views been discarded, and the earnest appeals of the Prime Minister and his lieutenants were that personal and party aspirations be subordinated to the general welfare. Four years' unity had won the war, and if unity continued an even greater victory would be won in conquering the difficulties of reconstruction. The caucus, which was presided over by Hume Cronyn, M.P., London, nephew of the late Edward Blake, was the largest and most earnest ever held by the Unionist party. Sir Robert Borden, showing the effects of his severe illness, was present. The Prime Minister has suffered in health and strength, and he can now secure what he must have for a time, freedom from party and official worry. The permanency of his party is assured, and the political, commercial and labor conditions are such as to permit of a long vacation for him. In fact the Unionist party has practically agreed to continue in office during the period of unrest and instability, and the members believe that the next election will be after a redistribution based on the decennial census of 1921.

RECOVERY MADE BY VICTIMS OF WAR

FIFTY-EIGHT PER CENT. DISCHARGED CURED FROM COBOURG HOSPITAL.

Ottawa, Oct. 3. Reports received at Militia Headquarters indicate that Canadian soldiers who returned to Canada mentally affected from war causes, and who have been under treatment in Canada, are recovering in gratifying numbers. One of the most important contributing factors to this result is the Cobourg Military Hospital, which has been the subject of favorable notice by the Director and Associate Director of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene. Already 58 per cent. of admissions to this military institution have been discharged, recovered, to civil life.

RAILWAY MEN REJECT GOVERNMENT'S OFFER FOR SETTLEMENT OF BIG STRIKE

Situation in United Kingdom Gravest in History of British Labor—Unions to Meet Tuesday to Order a General Sympathetic Strike.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Oct. 4. Premier Lloyd George's appeal for the formation of "citizens' guards" throughout the country in the emergency caused by the railroad strike and its possible spread, met with a prompt response on all sides today. The lord mayor of London lost no time in complying with the request, and his example was followed by civic authorities the country over. Representative committees were formed everywhere to recruit guards, whose duties will be to assist the police in the protection of citizens engaged in the maintenance of the supply of food, and otherwise in preserving order.

Condemned by Some.

The Government is condemned in some quarters for its appeal for a "citizens' army" in connection with the railway strike. It is thought this is somewhat premature and will lead to antagonism. At the same time the situation is considered as being far from hopeless.

Negotiations Fail.

London, Oct 4 The railwaymen rejected the Government's proposition for a settlement, and the situation now is the gravest in the history of labor circles.

A general meeting of labor unions has been called for Tuesday with the purpose of ordering a general sympathetic strike

Special Deputies.

All special deputies were ordered to report immediately at headquarters by the police commissioner this morning

Wait Till Tuesday.

Pending the outcome of Tuesday's meeting of all trade unions in Great Britain, the executive committee of the Vehicle Workers' Federation will not call a strike of 'bus, tram and taxi drivers.

Many Trains Running.

An official of one of the largest railroads in England states that from 15 to 20 per cent. of the trains normally operated are running. Another road claims that 40 per cent. are in operation. This strengthens the opnion that the strike will not be decided on the food question, considering the efficiency of the lorry system for collection and distribution of food.

Sufficient Coal.

Railroad officials believe sufficient coal can be moved to keep the railroad power plants in operation on an emergency basis.

MICHAEL BAHRI ALSO FOUND GUILTY OF MURDERING YANOFF

Two Men in as Many Days Found Guilty of Taking Life at Havelock Last June

Michael Bahri is the second foreigner to receive his verdict of guilty of the murder of one, Philip Yaroff, at Havelock, on Sunday, the 22nd day of June last. The jury brought in their verdict of guilty with a plea for leniency, last evening, about 7:30 o'clock. The Judge complimented them on having a very stern duty to perform, and they had done it.

Sentence was reserved till the end of the assizes as in the case of Kornchek yesterday.

Confessed to Chief Thompson.

A dispute arose at yesterday afternoon's session of the trial as to whether Chief Thompson's evidence about a confession made to him by the acused, were legitimate or not and the Jury was asked to retire until the point had been decided. The Judge ruled that the confession could be used as evidence because the prisoner had received the proper warning about his confession being used as evidence against him.

The confession as related by the Chief showed that Michael Bahri claimed to have met a man, known to him as John, in a pool room on Queen street, in Toronto. This man had induced him to guide four other men to a stone quarry, near Havelock for the purpose, as he understood it at that time, of obtaining work. He had received from this man $5 to pay his railway fare. He guided the men to the bunk house, entered it last and when the shot was fired he had not yet ascended the stairs and consequently was not in the room when the shot was fired. He did not know who fired it.

High Constable Archie Moore was also summoned as a witness and told of a confession to him by the prisoner. He had told him of a lunch he had had at Havelock with the other men, at which each man had had two drinks. He told him of the meeting in the pool room at 77 Queen Street West, Toronto.

Under examination by Mr. Rigney, Mr. Moore stated that the prisoner had not told him why they came to Havelock. About two or three miles before they reached Peterborough, he was informed that they were coming down here to rob. One of the other men had informed him of it.

Mr. Rigney's Address.

Mr. Rigney pointed out that the defence had placed no evidence before the court and for that reason the evidence produced by the crown went uncontradicted and must be accepted as the truth.

He pointed out that this man was in company with the gang who performed the robbery and murder. In fact this man admitted knowing they were going for the purpose of robbery before he reached Peterborough and it would have been possible for him to step off the platform at Peterboro. He did not do so but stuck to the gang knowing what the object of the trip was.

He explained to the jury that murder could be reduced to manslaughter if the killing were carried out on account of passion. But in this case the evidence shows that there was no possibility of any provocation for the atrocity. This man was killed there, lying in his bunk, in cold blood. He was not even given the opportunity of asking for mercy. There is no way of twisting it around to prove that there was any provocation for the firing of that shot.

In conclusion he urged the Jury to do their duty in deciding the guilt or innocence of the accused according to the evidence. But he urged them not to shrink from their duty no matter what it should be.

Mr. Gordon's Appeal.

Mr. Gordon, in his opening remarks to the Jury emphasized the great responsibility cast upon the gentlemen of the Jury who are to form a verdict of this terrible charge.

He pointed out that the prisoner had been requested by a man, unknown to him, to lead this party to the quarry. That it was when under the influence of intoxicating drink, that curse that has damned so many souls that curse that has caused so much suffering to women and children, that curse that had ruined whole countries that this boy had consented to accompany these men to the quarry bent on the purpose of robbery.

And now this boy, who only a few years ago played at his door step with his little companions, who only a short time ago knelt at his mother's knee and learnt his first prayer, as you and I, appears before you, broken-hearted on a charge of murdering Philop Yanoff.

Leniency For Intoxicated Men.

Mr. Gordon pointed out that the law plainly stated that if a man committed a crime while influenced by intoxicants that should be taken into the consideration of the jury.

He placed no defence before the jury because the crown's evidence was conclusive that this man did accompany the other four men during the escapade. But he pointed out, at great length, how the case of this boy was different than that of those

CANDY MAN SAYS SUGAR PRICE PLOT

HIGH COST DUE TO INTERNATIONAL COMBINATION, CHICAGO MNFR. SAYS.

SEVEN CENTS PROPER PRICE

QUESTION BEARS EAR-MARK OF A GIGANTIC CONSPIRACY, IT IS CLAIMED.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Just as District Attorney Charles F Clyne announced his intention to confer with Attorney-General A Mitchell Palmer on the serious sugar situation in Chicago charges were ma e to-day by the head of a Chicago candy manufacturing company that the supposed shortage of sugar is not a shortage at all, but the result of a gigantic combination to influence high prices.

"The sugar question," he told the press, bears every earmark of a gigantic conspiracy between growers and speculators to force the government to guarantee next year's crop thus insuring them against the law of supply and demand which is certain to reduce greatly the price of sugar. CertainBritish French, and American interests have managed to corner the present ample supply which they are holding from the market purposely so as to enable them to conduct successfully a nefarious propaganda that will mean millions of excess profits on their enormous holdings and inflated prices for coming crops.

Should Sell at 7 Cents.

"Authorities statistics of production and consumption plainly indicate that sugar should nowbe selling retail at not more than 7 cents a pound.

"You can't tell me," he adds, "that England and France have gone into the Cuban market and bought million of tons of cane sugar for home consumption, when Germany and Austria, whose lands were not invaded in the war, whose money exchange is so favorable to England and France, can sell beet sugar to them at a price much less than the present Cuban cane sugar brings. They will hold their great purchases of Cuban cane sugar until the price advances to the point they are trying to propagate 15 to 25 cents a pound—then they will ship it to America. The storage and reshipping will cost them only half a cent a pound or so."

Stop Sugar Orgy, Says Clyne.

"The shortage is so serious," said Mr. Clyne, "that I think it necessary to lay matters before the chief government officials. Something will have to be done to stop the sugar orgy in which the American people now seem to be holding"

Mr. Clyne indicated that a way might be found to restrict the use of sugar by large manufacturers, now said to be the chief consumers. He did not say that any of these men are hoarding sugar.

A prime cause of the shortage, Mr. Clyne declared is the freedom with which sugar has been used by all consumers since the war Up to Aug. 31 this year he said, consumption figures are6,460,000,000 pounds for the entire year of 1913.

Rationing Meeting Postponed.

Owing to the absence fromthe city of several leading hotel and restaurant men, a meeting to have been held this morning in the district attorneys' office to consider a plan of sugar rationing has been postponed. Mr. Clyne was informed this morning that a number of downtown eating places have already banished the public table bowl without awaiting a formal order.

Regarding the protests of Russell Poole, city director of foods and markets, that twenty-seven carloads of sugar had been illegally received here. Mr. Clyne replied:

"We had all the information about that shipment before Mr. Poole knew of it. He didn't mention a shipment of thirty three carloads the day before."

The British steamer Chelston, which ran on a rock at St. Paul's Island, near Sydney, N. S., was pounded to peces in Wednesday's gale.

TO PROBE PRICES IN MANY TOWNS

METHOD OF DEALING WITH COMPLAINTS OF PROFITEERING UNDER CONSIDERATION.

NAME FAIR PRICE COMMITTEES

WITH POWERS SIMILAR TO THOSE OF THE MILK COM., SAYS MAYOR DUNCAN.

Toronto, Oct. 4th.—Complaints that prices for meats, vegetables and groceries are higher in Ontario towns than in Toronto are being received by Major J. L. Duncan, sub-commissioner of the Board of Commerce Quite a number of these letters have been received during the last few days from Cobourg, Hariston, Thorold, Lindsay and Chatham, pointing out that in may cases the prices complained of are equal to top Toronto prices or higher. Just what the exact figures are Major Duncan declined to state.

With regard to inquiring into these alleged high prices Major Duncan is suggesting to the various towns that the local authorities appoint fair price committees to go into the allegations in order to determine what would be fair prices for each commodity in those places. Recommendations of the fair price committees will be forwarded to Major Duncan for regulation by the Board of Commerce.

"Fair price committee," said Major Duncan, "should consist of a small number of representative consumers who will meet members of the trade whose prices are being investigated. The fair price committee will be presided over by some member of the local civic administration."

"What powers would these local fair price committees have?" was asked Major Duncan. "They will have similar powers as the fair price committee which investigated the price of milk."

A request has been issued by Major Duncan that all complaints regarding alleged unfair prices in Ontario should be forwarded to him, for attention.

As yet, it is unknown what the work of the Board of Commerce in Toronto will consist of during next week. Members of the Board decline to discuss what will be handled, in view of the fact that it would give those who are to be called before the board an opportunity to review the ground to be covered.

RESIGNATION OF MR. GORDON ACCEPTED

RETIRES AS MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Mr G. N. Gordon tendered his resignation as member of the Board of Education last night on account of business pressure.

Mr. Cameron thought Mr. Gordon should be pressed to retain his seat until the end of the term. We are all busy men, Mr Cameron added, but should be prepared to make some sacrifice in the interests of education His resignation would be regrettable owing to his experience on the Board

Mr. Cameron here moved that the chairman, Messrs. Fowler and Patterson be a committee to confer with Mr. Gordon in the hope that he will change his mind.

Mr. Fowler said this was a personal matter with Mr. Gordon, who evidently knows his own mind. He says he is too busy to give attention to his duties on this Board and asks to be relieved. "And much as I regret his decision, I move in amendment that his resignation be accepted.

This was seconded by Mr. Worth and carried

The Board will appoint Mr. Gordon's successor Tuesday night of next week.

RATIFY PEACE NEXT WEEK

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, Oct. 4.—The discussion of the treaty of peace with Germany will begin in the Senate next Thursday and will probably last two or three days. The belief is expressed that the pact will be ratified late in the week.

SUGGESTED THAT KING GEORGE CALL ON PARLIAMENT TO DISCUSS STRIKE

Trade Unionist Mediators Still Hoping to Find Means For Bringing Government and Railwaymen Together—Situation Improved.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Oct. 4.—Efforts of the trades unionist mediators to find means for bringing the Government and leaders of the National Union of Railwaymen together have not been abated in spite of the breach in the negotiations Fourteen chosen delegates met this afternoon at headquarters of the transport workers for the purpose of formulating further proposals. It is expected that they will approach Premier Lloyd George on Monday and lay their propositions before the Trades Congress on Tuesday

King May Act.

The Cabinet met early this forenoon at the residence of Premier Lloyd George to discuss the strike situation. There were many conjectures among people whether King George, who will arrive in London this evening, will be likely to invoke his authority and reassemble Parliament, in view of the threatening aspect of the situation.

This suggestion meets with all-round approval in labor circles, where it is considered that public discussion would alleviate the crisis.

Continued Improvement.

The government, in its noon communique on the strike situation, reported continued improvement in the transport situation The statement reads:

"Plans are actively in preparation to meet the situation caused by the refusal of strike leaders to accept arbitration Railroad services are still growing. Freight trains are increasing in number. The food situation is unchanged Stocks are well distributed and are more plentiful than on the first day of the strike. The response to the call for volunteers shows public determination."

STRIKE WILL FAIL SAYS J. O'LEARY

AMERICAN PRINCIPLES AT STAKE METAL TRADES HEAD DECLARES.

DEMOCRACY VS. SYNDICATISM

NOT AN ISSUE BETWEEN FEDERATION OF LABOR AND THE OPEN SHOP.

"The steel strike must fail because American institutions must live It is time we woke up We must recognize that the steel strike is not an issue between Mr Gary and Mr. Fitzpatrick; that the steel strike is not an issue between the Federation of Labor and the open shop, but is a clear cut issue between democracy and syndicalism; a clear challenge to the government, of which we are so proud, to give to the independent workman the protection and support which he must have to overcome the self-styled militant minority."

Thus spoke John W O'Leary, vice-president of the Chicago Trust company, and president of the National Metal Trades association at the luncheon of the Chicago Association of Commerce at the Hotel LaSalle Mr. O'Leary was formerly president of the association of commerce.

Less Speech, More Action.

His subject was "Some Facts and Principles Involved in Recent Strikes." In opening Mr. O'Leary said he preferred not to speak on the subject at this time as he felt that "our industrial relations remanded less speech and more action for the good of the United States."

"Two years ago," said Mr. O'Leary, "we were at war. Many years of organization prior to that time had induced a very small fraction—not to exceed 10 per cent of our wage earners to join the union movement Suddenly there appeared a group of organized labor representatives at Washington and demanded certain things the employers felt they could not grant and when arbitration and delay were suggested there was but one response—grant or we strike. And in a moment of fear under the whip, congress passed the Adamson bill, probably the most vicious and costly legislation ever passed by any lawmaking body.

Strikes Deliberately Planned.

Mr O'Leary then outlined the formation of the national war board and said: "Organized labor immediately saw its advantage, and scoreyes hundreds, of the cases appearing before the board were strikes which were deliberately planned in order to compel the unionization of many free industries. Thus started the greatest advance union labor ever had.

"But the success of both union and socialist doctrine had gained so much impetus under the pressure of war conditions that agitators became drunk with their successes. We have been passing through successive stages of higher wage demands, higher profit demands, less hours, less responsibility, less patriotism. Of course the result is bringing higher costs and a progress toward disaster Economic truths have been discarded for theories which sound well, but won't work.

"We are confused by platform of general terms, undefined in our own minds or in the minds of those who utter them. Living wage, collective bargaining, profiteering, labor as a commmodity, partnership of capital and labor—the right to organize, shop representation, combination, a new era, democracy in industry, socialization of industry, are some of the terms used each day in every publication, in every forum. No one attempts to define what is meant, because and they nearly all differ.

Today's Market.

The market this morning was again large and again the price showed only slight variation over previous prices:

Butter lb. 58c—60c.
Chicken lb. 25c.— 30c.
Eggs, dozen, 62c.— 65c.
Potatoes, bag, $1 50— $2.00.
Tomatoes, bushel, $1.50.

THE EX-KAISER'S PHYSCIAN

Is Paid Only $450 a Year for His Professional Services.

The ex-Kaiser is not a liberally paying boss, says the Amerongen correspondent of the Daily Express of London

His personal doctor, who is a major in the German army, receives only his army pay, which is 5,000 marks a year. At the present depreciated value of the mark this amounts to the equivalent $450 a year. The doctor, in addition to being at the beck and call of both the ex-Kaiser and the ex-Kaiserin day and night and helping the wood sawer to cut up his logs, is not permitted to live in a castle, but has to stay in a neighboring hotel with his family and pay for his keep, and any one with knowledge of Dutch hotels will know that they are far from cheap.

PRESIDENT IMPROVED.

Washington, Oct. 4.—President Wilson had a somewhat better night, White House officials said this morning.

INDEPENDENT LABOR PARTY SELECTS T. TOOMS AS LEGISLATIVE CANDIDATE

Business Agent of Laborers' Union Wins the Honor on Close Vote—Ex-Warden Scott, of Smith, Promises Support

At a largerly attended Labor convention held in the Labor Hall last night Mr. Thomas Tooms, a man well known in Labor circles in Peterborough and business agen tor the Laborers' Union, was selected to be the candidate for the Independent Labor party for the impending provincial elections.

Mr. Peter McArthur acted as chairman and expressed it as his opinion that the Liberal convention Thursday night was carried out very moothly and some very interesting peeches were delivered.

Practically the only thing that was aid at the convention, declared Mr McArthur, in favor of Mr. Gillespie was that he was an honest man. He was not surprised at that as with one exception every man on the platform outside of Mr. Gillespie was a lawyer, and consequently it would be expected they would emphasize his honesty.

At the Liberal convention the Labor platform had been proposed as the Liberal platform, declared the speaker. It was excellent. But where the speakers were at fault was in saying that to promote Labor interests a Liberal Government must be put into power. In the speaker's opinion a Labor party was the one that would properly look after labor's interests, not a political organization.

And labor members would not be there to look after labor interests alone. "A Labor party could look after the affairs of the public as well as any other party would," declared Mr. McArthur. The speaker referred to the important positions held by Labor men in Britain as an example proof of the ability of the leaders of Labor to cope successfully with the greatest problems confronting any government of the day.

A unanimous vote of the meeting was taken in favor of nominating a candidate and the following nominations were received: Peter McArthur, who declined, Thomas Tooms, Ald. Gainey, Alex Morrison, John Lane and P. C. Lloyd. The latter also withdrew.

Adresses By Candidates.

Mr. Tooms was called on to speak as the first candidate nominated.

He declared that if he received the nomination he would adhere strictly to the Independent Labor Party's platform.

His memory went back to the time when all four Labor candidates were elected in the municipal election, one leading the poles. This shows that the Labor men are intelligent enough to stick to what they decided to do, said Mr. Tooms.

"We are always hearing of democracy. The democracy I stand for is both political and industrial democracy. I can not understand how we can live under political democracy and industrial despotism.

"What do we want? We want democratic control of industry to combat exploitation by the capitalist class. This is a desire for Labor and farmers alike.

"As producers, the farmer and industrial workers are agreed along the lines of combatting capital.

"Our factories are now nothing short of 'sweat shops'. I believe we can gain much financially, but we can gain much more politically.

"We stand for free and compulsory education. When we get an educated democracy we can do away with sweaty democracy."

He referred to the $300,000,000 left by Mr. Carnegie obtained by sweating the people in his employ. "And we speak of the equal distribution of wealth People are living in unsanitary conditions, poverty and great stress, while the other man across the road lives in his luxury.

"I joined the Independent Labor party to improve the social and economical condition of the Labor people. We stand for Government control of cold storage plants, grain elevators, etc. You must put a man to take care of them who is disinterested in them to protect the country from exploitation.

"We want to do away with pauperism by an old age pension."

PREMIER HEARST'S VISIT.

THE RARE announcement that Premier Hearst will speak in Peterborough in the Grand Opera House on Monday night is sufficient to assure a capacity crowd. Everyone will want to hear Ontario's Prime Minister discuss the issues of the day. Sir William is receiving a hearty reception everywhere he appears on his speaking tour, and his visit here will beyond all question prove another triumph.

NOT OFFICIALLY ENDORSED.

THE EXAMINER professes to be in favor of a clean campaign in which the personal element will not figure. It is refreshing to note that our contemporary is showing signs of repentance. A clean campaign, however, implies an embargo on anonymous letters and a strict adherence to facts.

In prominent headlines our contemporary announced that at the Liberal convention Mr. G. A. Gillespie was nominated and endorsed by representatives of labor, agriculture and returned soldiers. Mr. Gillespie himself would be the last person on earth to set up such a claim. Independent individual action does not necessarily imply collective endorsation by any organization.

Mr. J. J. Hartley, who presided at the meeting, spoke highly of the personal worth and public record of Mr. Gillespie. Mr. Hartley did not do this as the official representative of Labor. He was not instructed by union workingmen to take any such course. His action was in his private capacity, and any special weight that may be attached to his remarks was due entirely to his position as president of the Liberal Association.

Mr. C. R. Widdifield gracefully and eloquently referred to Mr. Gillespie's services to the soldiers during the war. He spoke not as a representative of the Veterans but as an individual who had been a beneficiary of the service to which he referred. That is a service, too, which the Examiner at the time it was rendered saw fit to ignore. It is, besides, a service which will raise up for Mr. Gillespie enemies among a certain section of the party, a section with which the Examiner deemed it expedient to align itself.

Mr. W. G. Telford, a farmer from Smith, also supported the nomination of Mr. Gillespie, but Mr. Telford is not identified with the organized farmers of the riding. He, too, acted in his private capacity alone, and his remarks are to be given no more importance than those of any other devoted follower of the party.

THE GLOBE AND MR. DEWART.

A SIGNIFICANT SIGN of the times is the attitude of the Toronto Globe in the present campaign. The fact that a party newspaper of the record and influence of the Globe finds itself so at variance with the provincial leader as to practically repudiate him is one of the wonders of the day.

In an editorial the Globe quotes the platform of the Liberal party so far as the referendum is concerned. That plank, as is is well known, does not commit the party as a whole or any member of it individually, but places the entire responsibility for it upon the people.

The Globe deplores the fact that Mr. Dewart does not see fit to state his personal sentiments on the prohibition issue. The Globe then says:

> No elector who regards the temperance issue as the greatest question with which the new Legislature will have to deal—whether he be a Liberal-prohibitionist or a Conservative-prohibitionist—can safely vote for a candidate of his party who is either an avowed enemy of advanced temperance legislation or regards his decision as a voter dealing with the prohibition as of purely personal concern.

That makes clear the position of the Globe. The editor of that paper, according to his own message to the public, could not vote for Mr. Dewart if he were running in a constituency in which the other resides. Certainly the man who is not regarded safe as a simple representative cannot be seriously considered as a leader of a party, much less as the Premier of Ontario.

Mr. Gillespie was nominated at a Liberal convention in which Mr. Dewart was extolled as leader. How can a man of the well-known temperance principles of Mr. Gillespie serve under such a banner? How can Mr. Dewart hope to win in the coming election when the leading journals of his own party will have none of him? It is a difficult matter to work up enthusiasm in a forlorn hope.

LABOR'S HAT IN THE RING.

AT A CONVENTION of the Independent Labor party last night a candidate for the Legislature was chosen, the nomination going to Mr. Thomas Tooms, the business agent of the Laborers' Union. Mr. Tooms goes into the contest backed up by seven hundred and fifty members of his own union, delegates from which supported his nomination last night. Mr. Tooms came into prominence last spring in his fight with the city for the union scale of wages for laborers, and has always taken an active part in unionism, being a delegate to the Trades Council. He will make an active canvass of the urban and rural sections of the riding.

There was a sprinkling of farmers at the convention last night, sufficient to give the affair the appearance of a coalition of the two classes. Ex-Warden R. N. Scott of Smith occupied a seat on the platform and was one of the speakers. If there is a wide chasm between the workingman and the farmer, as some assert, then Mr. Scott did considerable in the way of bridging the gap. He said that farmers and workers have a good many essentials in common. Between the farmer as the producer and the workingman as the consumer there is a group of dealers who are waxing rich out of both by grinding first one and then the other. On the question of working hours there is not such a wide difference as some suppose. The farmer really does not work on an average more than seven or eight hours a day, due to the variations of the seasons. The man who works in the city under electric light is not governed as to his hours by the rising and the setting of the sun.

Mr. Scott did not assume to speak for the farmers as a class. He did, however, say that, from conversation with a number of his fellow farmers, he was satisfied that many of them would support the new party candidate. Personally he pledged himself to work for Mr. Tooms to the end.

DEFYING THE FATES.

MR. MACKENZIE KING, the homeless leader of the Federal Liberal party, who finds it necessary to go as far as Prince Edward Island in quest of a seat, delivered an address in his prospective constituency the other day. Mr. King rather expressed the hope that there would be a contest, as this would give him an opportunity to explain his war record. He added that such time as he spent in the United States during the war was in answer to special calls to assist in bringing about industrial peace.

Quite so. Mr. King recklessly defies fate when he courts an investigation into his record during the war especially with reference to his attitude on the conscription issue. So far as his residence in the United States during the war is concerned, it will never be forgotten that when Mr. King was called to the American republic to accept an easy office with fat emoluments attached, the United States was emphatically neutral. That was the time when President Wilson was questioning the authority of Britain to maintain a blockade against Germany, when he was insisting upon the right of nations not actually engaged in the war to trade where and with what power they would.

Mr. King says that while he was working for the Rockefeller institution in the United States he was helping to bring about industrial peace in essential war industries.

Perhaps he was, but those essential war industries were at that time working night and day to supply the European demand, and the President was attempting to secure freedom of trade with the Allies and Central Powers alike. The industrial peace which engaged the energies of Mr. King, but for the blockade by the British fleet, would have promoted the manufacture in the United States of munitions and other war supplies that would eventually have found their way into the hands of the enemies of the Empire to which he was supposed, in such a time of stress, to owe his services and his allegiance.

INCREASING FOOD SUPPLIES.

ALREADY, under the Land Settlement Act, more than twenty-two thousand returned soldiers have been given assistance in establishing themselves as farmers. The Federal Government has granted them loans sufficient to stock their farms and provide working capital, while they have also been enabled to buy necessary machinery at cost.

Last year over 1,600,000 acres of virgin soil was cultivated. What does that mean to the Dominion and to the world? If wheat were grown on that new land, and if the average yield reached fifteen buhels an acre the addition to the national crop would be 15,000,000 bushels.

But the average annual consumption of wheat per head is six bushels. Because of the preliminary work done by the Soldiers' Settlement Board and financed by the Government, 2,500,000 persons can be provided with bread for a year. Yet only 9,043 of the applicants are now on the land.

What will be the increased production when all the approved men are established? What will be the result when thousands of other returned men get a complete realization of the opportunity which the Canadian Government offers them?

So far, the total amount loaned by the Board has exceeded $26,000,000. In order to continue this good work and to fulfil the national promise to finance all returned men who desire to go on the land, many millions will be needed. For that reason, which in itself is conclusive, the Victory Loan, 1919, is a pressing need.

There is no doubt about the sentiment of the people of Ontario towards the men who marched through hell and got home safely. This Province provided half the soldiers in the Canadian army and raised the bulk of the money for their comfort and support while they were overseas.

Now the Federal Government is selling bonds that money may be available to help these boys on to prosperity. If the bonds were without interest there would be a strong argumen to induce all Ontario people to subscribe. But they yield 5½ per cent. The investment is absolutely sound. The money will be spent to increase production and maintain Canadian prosperity.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

BOTH IN NUMBERS and enthusiasm the Labor convention had it on the Liberal gathering.

• • • • •

WE SHOULD NOT lose time worrying about the coming winter. Sufficient unto the day is the cold thereof.

• • • • •

NO CANDIDATE can hope to succeed by going around an issue. What he should do is to meet the issue fairly.

• • • • •

RESIGNING one office in order to get ready for another is certainly better than trying to hang on to both.

• • • • •

A MAN'S FIRST duty is to his home, his next to his province and the welfare of both is closely interwoven.

• • • • •

DEFEAT the Ontario Temperance Act and this country will become the rictous playground of the American nation.

MINISTER of Education Cody will prove a tower of strength to the Hearst Administration in the coming election.

"And where are you going for your holiday this year?" Brown asked his friend Grey.

"Well," said Grey, "I am not thinking of going anywhere."

"What! not going away?"

"No, you see the pople who live next door to me are going away, and they are taking their baby, the parrot, and the gramophone with them, so I have decided to stay at home and have a rest."

"Now, ladies and gentlemen," said the conjurer with a wave of the hand "this is the magic cabinet. I invite any lady in the audience to enter this cabinet. I will close the door, and when it shall be opened again the lady will have disappeared, leaving no trace."

There was an impressive silence until a little undersized man in the second row turned to an enormous woman, who sat by him, and breathed eagerly:

"Maria, dear, won't you oblige the gentleman?"

OUR ROYAL VISITOR

The Prince of Wales has captured the hearts of all Canada. Rich and poor, old and young, are enraptured with his easy manner and happy expression. He is so different to what many expected.

No wonder a great demand has been created for a real life-like portrait of our popular future King. Photographers and artists have failed to secure a satisfactory snapshot of the Royal visitor. He was not here to pose for them. It remained for The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal to secure a portrait that would be satisfactory, and they have succeeded. Just before leaving for Canada the Prince gave a special sitting to the celebrated London, England, photographer, Vandyke. The agents of The Family Herald were instructed to secure the right to reproduce it in Canada, and that great weekly is now offering it to its readers.

The Daily and Weekly Review has succeeded in making an arrangement with The Family Herald and Weekly Star by which our readers may have a copy. Our announcement will be found on page 10. The demand for his picture in Canada will be enormous, and we advise our readers to take advantage of the opportunity without delay.

WHY DOCTORS SHUN THE RURAL DISTRICTS

Many Refuse to Take Practice in the Country on Account of the Muddy Roads.

There are fewer physicians in the rural sections of the country than in the cities; there are very few nurses and practically no hospital facilities in rural regions. In some communities even in the older centres, there is only one physician to 3,000 people, while the average for the cities is generally about one physician to 650 people.

The inadequate supply of physicians in the country is not due to the superior health of the people; there is just as much work needing to be done by the physician in rural as in urban sections. The reason is rather to be found in the lack of means of getting around the country without extreme hardships.

Rural Medical Practice.

It is becoming harder and harder for the young medical graduate to choose a rural location, where he must face intolerable travelling conditions for the greater part of the year. After six years of training for his profession, there is small appeal in the prospect even of a good practise when the hard-ships of travel over the country roads are taken into account.

Yet hundreds of young medical graduates would by inclination favor a rural practise if it were possible to avoid the unhappy features of country travel. The problem is important to physicians, not only because it is difficult to travel through mud to see their patients, but also because it is quite difficult if not impossible to transport patients needing special care, or to consult with specialists at a distance or to counsel with other general practitioners.

The results of these conditions have been serious. The death rate of the country districts is only slightly lower than the city and has not improved as rapidly as in the city; the sickness rate is no more favorable; the proportion of young men physically unfit for the army was nearly as great in spite of the boasted physical prowess of the country, and all surveys have proved that a higher percentage of curable defects is found among rural children than among city children.

Poor Roads Cause Many Deaths.

But there is a worse condition still. The number of deaths of women in childbirth is proportionately greater in the country, and the number of babies who die within the first thirty days after birth is far greater. Forty per cent of all the babies that die within the first thirty days after birth is far greater. Forty per cent of all the babies that die in their first year in the cities die within thirty days after birth, while the corresponding figure for the country districts is 47 per cent. No better index of medical care could be given than these facts. They tell the story that nearly everyone knows; viz., that adequate medical care is not available for the rural mothers and babies.

Good roads would enable the rural sections to secure nursing and specialists' services which are now practically impossible in many sections. Much of the future development of public health work, visiting nursing and medical services generally in the rural communities depends upon the development of good roads. It is quite impossible to provide such services effectively under present conditions.

A Rural Hospital Service.

There is also looming up the possibility of a rural hospital service with facilites for transportaiton to, and care in, community hospitals in which the facilities for diagnosis and care would far exceed the meagre provisions of the home. The coming of good roads will hasten this development.

The city residents are concerned also in the condition of rural roads from the standpoint of health protection because they are dependent upon the good roads for fresh milk. Large cities are furnished milk from remote rural regions. Bad roads delay its delivery. It is not uncommon for milk to be allowed to accumulate for two or three days before delivery from the farm. Bacteria often develops dangerously in the meantime. Good roads will emancipate the cities from depending upon existing clumsy means of transportation.

MR. GUISE-BAGLEY EXPLAINS

Editor Review: It has come to my knowledge that some prominent men have been commenting on the fact that I, being a Tory, and one that believes in moderation in all things including drinking, should be found taking an active part in politics in support of the Hearst Government, and some would like me to quit because I cannot see the liquor question the same way as Sir Wm. Hearst is supposed to see it.

Now, Sir, I want to make myself perfectly clear. I am opposed thoroughly and conscientiously to legislation that has in it the essence of religious intolerance. I do not believe in faith being put into our hearts by coercion. You cannot legislate people into heaven, and I am, therefore, opposed to the coercion of the O.T.A. as calculated in the long run to make people worse rather than better.

I am a Tory—have been a Conservative all my life. I fully recognize the rights of Labor, and see no conflict between the ideals of the Conservative party and the ideals of the Independent Labor party. Each desires the common good, and if there is any difference between them it is for want of understanding each other better.

Now, being first a Conservative, I feel that if a Conservative gets the nomination on Monday next, it is my duty to vote for him or her and work for him or her. If the choice of the convention happens to be a fanatic on the liquor question, determined to prevent me from having a thing just because he or she does not happen to want that thing for himself or herself, I shall regret it.' But it is my duty, and it is the duty of those who think as I do, to get out and work for the Tory candidate for the sake of the old party. We cannot see all things the same way. Conservatism is of far more importance than the question of whether the law will allow us to drink a glass of milk on the ground that the cow that it came from might have tuberculosis and so spread the disease. If the majority order the consumption of milk to cease, we shall have to abide by it, so long as we cannot hide an old cow away some place for our personal use. But we are Conservatives and must vote for the Tory selected by convention regardless of any petty-fogging religious peculiarity of the candidate.

Fortunately when we cast our vote on election day, we can do it without worrying about the liquor question. It is not an issue in the campaign. The people have an opportunity of separately expressing their wishes on that question and any person elected has to do what the people say.

If, therefore, a teetotaller is chosen by the Conservative party, I want to ask every Conservative to vote for him or her notwithstanding that little peculiarity.

Yours truly,
JAS. G. GUISE-BAGLEY.

Alcoholic Insanity Disappears

Our Foremost Alienist Says It Has Now Practically Vanished

"SINCE the passage of the Ontario Temperance Act Alcoholic Insanity has practically disappeared," says Dr. C. K. Clarke, Canada's foremost Alienist.

Dr. Clarke's statement to the Ontario Referendum Committee continues:

"ALCOHOL is one of the important factors among the causes of insanity, especially indirectly. Since the passage of the Ontario Temperance Act certain forms of insanity in this province have practically disappeared.

"The abolition of the bar has undoubtedly had a wonderful effect in protecting the weaklings in the community from temptation and inevitable degradation.

"It is much too soon to determine how far-reaching the benefits of prohibition have been, but doubtless police and jail statistics will bear testimony as to the diminution of crime.

"The removal of the bar must be regarded with satisfaction by every right-thinking person in the country, especially by those who know how easily mental weaklings and neurotics fell into deplorable habits through its malign influence.

"It was not that these persons suffered alone, but that many of the next generations lost whatever chance they had of living down the curse of a bad heredity.

"Alcohol simply intensified the defects of the parent and thus made hopeless the lives of the children."

The Menace of Insanity

"Insanity is the Mad Son of Alcohol, Idiocy is its Driveling Daughter," says Vance Thompson.

ONTARIO maintains 6,000 patients in the Insane Asylums at a cost of about $1,000,000 a year and an indirect cost of many millions more.

Ontario has one insane patient to every 417 people—not including the feeble-minded. Kansas, pioneer "dry" State of the West, has only one case to every 873 people.

The menace of insanity has alarmed government authorities and brought about the recent appointment of a National Committee for Mental Hygiene, of which Dr. C. K. Clarke is the Medical Director.

Read what he says:

"Since passage of the Ontario Temperance Act, Alcoholic Insanity has practically disappeared."

Next to "mental strain, overwork and worry," "Alcoholism" is the chief assigned cause of insanity, according to the yearly reports issued by the Ontario Government. Since the Ontario Temperance Act went into force private hospitals for alcoholics, "Gold Cures," etc., have been closed.

Remember what experts on insanity say when you answer the questions on the Referendum ballot and vote for sane legislation by marking your ballot with an X after each question under the word "No."

A correspondent, writing from the front before the fighting came to an end, said that the emergency ration supplied to our soldiers still remained a mystery to them. Few indeed have even tasted this scientific life-saver of which the army boards are so proud.

It looks like ground oatmeal; but it is said to be the last word in concentrated calories and protein. It contains the jellies and sustaining parts of all meats and vegetables known to man, with a little gluten thrown in. Most soldiers have not dared to taste it. A court martial threatens anyone who eats the emergency ration unnecessarily, and almost never, so they say, did any soldier find it necessary. Hot meals from rolling kitchens were virtually always to be had.

PLAYED JOKE ON THE HUNS

Sioux Indians Had Fun for Three Days Talking Over a Tapped Telephone Wire.

Because of the nature of the country over which American troops fought in the Meuse-Argonne offensive, the Germans found it easy at times to cut in on our field telephone wires.

The commander of one brigade of artillery attached to an American division was particularly annoyed by enemy wire tappers in a heavily wooded section of the Argonne. Code messages from artillery observers were being intercepted by Boche listeners-in, and the commander knew, as all armies know, that no code is impregnable when experts get working on it.

The artillery commander took up with the colonel of one of the line regiments the question of the Huns' wire-tapping activities. And the colonel hit upon an idea.

Two Indians, both of proud Sioux lineage, members of one of his companies, were assigned as telephone operators. One was to go forward with the artillery observer, the other to remain at the brigade receiving end of the wire which the artillery commander was certain the Germans had that day tapped somewhere along the line.

Now, when two Sioux Indians get talking together in their own tongue, what they say sounds very much like code, but isn't. Anyway, it raised hob with the code experts of certain Prussian guard units.

The Sioux stuck on their jobs for three days and nights. They and the artillery commander and their own colonel enjoyed the situation immensely. If the Germans got any fun out of it they kept it to themselves.

OLD LONDON BELL FOUNDRIES

Relics of Many of Them Are Still to Be Found Scattered Through the British Capital.

In the days before clocks, to say nothing of watches, were common the bells of London occupied a much more important position than they do today. 'Prentices depended on this bell and that to call them very unwillingly to work of a morning and release them very willingly from work of an evening, whilst bells were requisitioned for all manner of special purposes. And so there were many bell foundries in the city. Relics of them are found in many places, even if it is only a street name, such as Billiter street, which, as Mr. Landfear Lucas points out, was undoubtedly Bell-sitzers or Founders' lane. Then Belsize probably owes its name, he declares, to a bell foundry on the lower part of Hampstead hill. Something of this sort is all that remains of many of them, but others, like the Whitechapel Bell foundry, which has been charged with retuning and rehanging the bells of Westminster abbey for the peace rejoicings, have continued to do business through the centuries. The foundry [illegible] to 1570.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS OF GREAT HELP

Mothers, if your baby or growing child is sickly; if he does not sleep well at night, if he cries a great deal; if constipation and his little bowels and stomach are not working right, give him Baby's Own Tablets. They have proved of great help to thousands of mothers. Concerning the Tablets Mrs. W. H. Decater, Gordon's Siding, Ont., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets and have found them excellent for the little ones and would not be without them." The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative and are guaranteed to contain no harmful drug—that is why they always do good and never harm. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Paying Toll for Neglect

Needless exposure to damp and cold frequently result in a derangement of the Kidneys and Bladder.

When these important organs fail to do their duty, various evils arise, such as rheumatism, swollen hands and ankles, stiff joints, lumbago, sciatic neuralgia, stone in the bladder or gravel, excruciating pains in the back and sides, constant headaches, dizziness, specks floating before the eyes, uneasiness of mind without reason, and general debility.

These are signs of serious kidney and bladder trouble, which require immediate attention. The most dependable remedy is found in Gin Pills. They often prevent the operations which constant neglect may render necessary. They quickly and safely relieve congested kidneys, passing stone and gravel, healing and soothing inflamed organs and restoring them to normal. Thousands of letters from people who have been relieved are continually coming to us. Many writers often beg us to spread the good news to other sufferers that Gin Pills certainly and surely will bring the help they need. Send for free sample, or go direct to your druggist or dealer, 50c a box. Money refunded if relief not given.

LED TO RESCUE BY DREAM

Tug Captain's Confidence in Vision He Had Proved Fortunate for Two Fishermen.

Guided by a dream, Capt. Adam Paczocha of a Lake Michigan tug found two men who had been drifting about helpless in a broken motor-launch for four days. The rescue was just in time to save the men's lives, for the feet of one were frozen and the other's hands were frostbitten and they were exhausted from cold and hunger.

Captain Paczocha had his dream while taking a nap at his home in Milwaukee one afternoon. When he awoke he described to his family how he had seen a launch drifting about helpless in the storm-swept lake and how he had swung his boat alongside and saved two men.

"I'm going to find them," said the captain, after telling of the dream vision.

He set out the next morning and by midafternoon he had located the launch. The two men in the launch were George Costigan and Joseph Budsiesz, Jones Island fishermen who had met with misfortune while out hauling in their nets. Driven about by a sudden storm that arose on the lake they sought to make shore until the gasoline engine in the launch gave out. Then they drifted about helpless.

The rescued men's first request was for cigarettes. They had been unable to smoke for four days because their matches had become wet.

Farm Products by Parcel Post.

Wilmington, Del., is to receive farm products by parcel post truck service. The service between that city and Salisbury, Md., began recently, two large army trucks bearing eggs, butter, fish, oysters, crabs, berries and such direct from land or sea to the consumer. Stops are made at every town along the route which can claim a post office. Provision has also been made for acceptance of parcel post material for New York, transfers to be made at Chester; and through truck service from Wilmington to Philadelphia will be established.

LIBERAL-CONSERVATIVES

ATTENTION

MEETINGS of the Liberal-Conservative Party for the purpose of selecting Delegates for the Convention to be held on MONDAY NEXT are called for FRIDAY, 3rd OCTOBER, at 8 o'clock p.m. at the following places:—

Centre Ward and West Ward at the Victoria Hall, George Street.

East Ward at 129 Hunter Street, East.

South Ward at Routley's Store, Corner of Lake and Aylmer Streets

North Ward at the Empty Store Corner of Smith and Water Streets

North Monaghan at Mays' School House.

Particular attention is called to the fact that the women of the Riding have a vote at the coming election and it is hoped a proper proportion of the delegates selected will be women. Therefore, Liberal-Conservative ladies are particularly requested to attend these meetings.

British Estates Are Now Rapidly Changing Hands

Wealthy Men Selling Out

THE ownership of England is rapidly changing hands—the physical ownership. The history of British real estate has seen nothing like the present wholesale transfers of property since English kings were in the habit of giving the realm away to their favorites. Realty sales have been averaging $5,000,000 a week for nearly six months, which make quite a tidy aggregate in that time and there are as yet no signs of a let-up.

Various explanations are offered for the great activity in the British realty market. In the case of the Marquis of Bute, who has just sold his great Welsh coal land holdings, the reason is fairly obvious. He was a witness at the Coal Commission and the miners subjected him to a merciless cross-examination. There were many pointed questions about the origin of his title to his lands, and the upshot of the commission's deliberations was a report recommending the nationalization of the coal industry. It is conceivable that Lord Bute thought he would sleep better if he got out of the coal business.

On the other hand, there has been wide discussion of the advisability of some form of nationalization of the land, cutting up the great estates and distributing them among small holders. Before the war this was a heated political topic, and Lloyd George earned the hatred of Conservatives by his advocacy of the policy of compelling the great land-owners to sell their holdings to their tenants at a government determined price. In 1913 the Duke of Rutland created a sensation by putting a large part of his Scottish holdings on the market. Since the war the demand has been to cut up the big estates to give land to the returning soldiers and sailors.

Just as the Marquis of Bute seems to have thought it wise to get out of the coal business, large owners of land may deem it wisdom in the prevailing state of public opinion to let some one else meet the demand for land for the soldiers. The queer part of it is that there are just as many people willing to take a chance on the land being nationalized as there are those who want some one else to hold the bag.

And this brings up the point that there have been many large and unexpected fortunes made in England by the war. In other words, there are numerous war profiteers who are diverting themselves by purchasing estates, while the present proprietors cannot resist the opportunity to gather in the huge profits to be realized by selling at inflated prices. For there is an even greater and a more universal lack of housing in England than there is in the immediate neighborhood of New York.

As an illustration of the way the real estate business has opened out in England this year, while the sales now are averaging $5,000,000 a week, they only amounted to approximately $57,000,000 for the whole of 1918, and the sales for the first week of July this year were more than a fourth of the total sales for July, August and September, 1918. Increased in the sales in the first week of July were about 370 square miles of Scottish land.

The Prince at a Round Up on the Bark Ranch at High River, Alta.

A remarkable thing about the movement of British real estate has been the large proportion of it which has been sold by auction. The Ewing Gilmour estate of 148,800 acres in Ross and Sutherland counties, Scotland; E. M. Stewart's estate near Perth, of 3,200 acres, and C. A. Cunningham's estate of 2,400 acres at Roxburgh were sold at auction. Sir Richard Glyn's Dorset property brought $1,000,000 under the hammer, while Lord Holmondeley's Barrow property brought over $500,000 on the block. Sales bringing from $200,000 to $1,000,000 are not at all uncommon.

Old farmhouses have been carefully treated so as to bring out, in the literal sense of the term, the beauty of beamed ceilings and fine old half timbered work, which had been concealed by a generation that sometimes papered over antique oak panelling, and did other equally reprehensible things. Until lately, in a humbler way and for purely utilitarian ends, many disused public houses in London took on a new lease of life, after alteration, as private dwelling, and the operation of turning shops to purely residential purposes is still going on in some of the suburbs.

Some fifteenth and sixteenth century houses are included in properties shortly to be sold.

Chaucer owned the manor and advowson to the living of Weybill, which were presented by Charles I to Queen's College, Oxford, for services rendered during the civil wars.

The Sixpenny Wire.

An amusing story is told by Lord Eversley, who has just celebrated his eighty-seventh birthday, and who, as Postmaster-General, was responsible for the carrying through of the act establishing sixpenny telegrams in 1884.

In the early days many of the country folk were fond of watching the newly-erected wires, and one old lady who had been specially diligent in her vigilance was overheard remarking:—

"Wal, that's a rum 'un! I can hear them eer wires a-hummin', but I ain't seen one of them eer yellow envelopes come up yet!"

Fire In Coal Piles.

To extinguish fires in coal piles an inventor has patented a pointed pipe that can be driven into the coal and connected to hose to convey water to the desired place.

WIFE ONCE BOUGHT

Proceeding Many Centuries Ago Was Universal.

Present-Day "Marriage Portion" May Be Regarded as a Symbol of Old Custom—Some Curious Wedding Ceremonies.

Among far older civilizations than that of the Anglo-Saxon the system of wife-purchase had ceased before Britain was a real country. The Indian law-giver, Manu, strictly forbade it, and said: "A man who, through avarice, takes a gratuity, is a seller of his offspring." In the historical times of the Greeks they no longer bought wives. In Rome "coemptio" was only a symbol of the ancient custom. In the Jewish Talmud the purchase is also symbolic, as is frequently the Mohammedan "mahr." Withal, the bride price, "foster leans" and marriage gifts, when returned, were converted into dowry and became at first the bride's property. Thus marriage portions chiefly derived their origin from the habit of purchase, and dowry often became, as with the Hebrews, a religious duty. Not less than the tenth of the father's property was considered a just dowry. In Aristotle's time nearly two-fifths of all Sparta belonged from this cause to the women. Sir Henry Maine considers that the amazing thrift of the French is also owing to this custom, which probably descended to them from the marriage law of Augustus Caesar. It was only by an anachronism that Euripides made Medea lament that women were obliged to purchase husbands at a great price. And it is often as true today as when the Latin poet sang.

When marriage ceremonies first did arise it was by degrees and in many ways, and customs such as capture when supersede became by symbolism a part of the succeeding legal form or contract. To eat maize pudding from the same plate or to eat in any way together is a widely distributed marriage ceremony. In Brazil a couple may be married by drinking brandy together; in Japan by sharing cups of wine; in Russia and Servia it used to be one cup for both. The joining of hands among Romans and Hindus is common in many parts of the world. In Scotland it is called "hand fasting," and couples live together after. To sit on one seat while receiving friends or to have the hands of each tied together with grass or to smear with each other's blood or for the woman to tie a cord of her own twisting around the naked waist of the man constitutes marriage in one place or another. In Australia a woman carries fire to her lover's hut and makes a fire for him. A Loango negress cooks two dishes for him in his own hut. In Cromtia the bridegroom boxes the bride's ears, and in Russia the father formerly struck his daughter gently with a new whip for the last time and then gave the weapon to her husband.

Hat Decorations.

A very dignified matron, the wife of one of the city's clergymen, went into a downtown store the other day to take advantage of a sale. She bought the books for which she had come and started out of the store. But a counter piled high with men's hose attracted her to a crowd of more fastidious shoppers, most of whom were examining the varicolored silk stockings on the racks above the counter. The most pirsonage woman almost blushed over their open interest.

Finally the socks were bought, several other counters visited, and then the minister's wife started to leave. At the door she met one of the parishioners. They exchanged greetings and then with a "Please allow me," the parishioner reached up to the hat of the minister's wife and lifted from its wide brim a pair of gaudy rose silk stockings.

The racks above the bargain counter were, of course, the cause. "But no one knew it," moaned the parson's wife. "Just think how many people saw me wearing those decorations, and actually I was embarrassed over the other women just looking at them. And I—well, I was wearing them very prominently."

Hats Off.

One day I was watching a new company drill. The officer gave the command, "Cover off in the rear rank," meaning that every man in the rear rank had to stand directly back of the man in front of him. Instead the whole rear rank took off their hats.—Exchange.

English Soldier's Expressed Wish That Death Might Come Was Followed by Hasty Revision.

Maj. Gen. John J. O'Ryan, who has just returned from France, has brought back a number of humorous stories of the battlefield. Here is one he tells about an English sentinel: "The Twenty-seventh division was in Flanders, where it rains almost continuously," began the general. "There were English troops billeted near by. One night, after a particularly hard rain, this English chap was on duty. When he thought no one was around he began to curse everything in general, the weather, the Germans and his own luck. 'Oh, I say, this is blawsted weather, dontcha know. I wish I was out of this beastly mud,' the English sentry muttered. A few minutes later he was cursing the rain which beat in his face. 'Gawd, but I wish I was out of this beastly water,' he mused again. Just then the Germans opened a heavy fire and made things uncomfortable for everyone. 'Oh, Gawd, but this is beastly,' said the sentry, raising his voice. 'Oh, I do hate those blawsted Germans. I wish I were dead.' Simultaneously with his last words a big 'Minnie' dropped almost at the sentry's feet. When he recovered he was lying in a hole covered with mud but uninjured. The sentry sat up, rubbed the mud from his eyes, and then gazing heavenward, said, 'Oh, I say, Gawd, cawn't you take a blawsted joke?'"—New York Sun.

Instances of Remarkable Cases of Longevity Which Seem to Be Well Authenticated.

The death at Nenagh, County Tipperary, Ireland, of Mrs. Bourke, who was reported to have reached the age of 121 years, has led the London Daily Express to make a record of some of the other famous cases of longevity. In 1904 the regimental chaplain of the 18th Bengal Infantry was still conducting services in Calcutta at the age of 130. In 1908 Andrei Nikolaievitch Schmidt, a Russian, produced papers which showed that he was 136 years old, and had enlisted in the Royal battalion in 1796. The same year Hadji Raouf was 133, and was still earning a living as a saddler in Constantinople, but he was a juvenile compared with Quo-Ka-Num, an Indian chief who roamed the shores of Puget sound at the age of 160. He was generally conceded by Europeans more likely to be 200, and he claimed to remember the time when iron was unknown to his tribe. He was 2 feet 5 inches in height and did not weigh 50 pounds. A few years ago a Chinese woman reached Montreal. She had left her native land when 70, and had lived in Demerara for 100 years. In 1912 Europe had 7,000 living centenarians, of whom 3,888 were Bulgarians.

New Canadian Coat of Arms.

The Canadian government is considering adopting a new coat of arms for the dominion—one which shall represent all the provinces in the confederation. The present coat of arms is representative of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick only, for those were the original provinces; and since it was adopted in 1858, Prince Edward Island and British Columbia have entered the federation, and finally Saskatchewan and Alberta have been carved out of what were the Northwest territories. When a design emblematic of these nine provinces has been chosen by the committee and approved by the government it will be submitted to the royal college of heralds in England to be registered. A royal warrant declaring it the official arms of Canada will then be issued.

67 YEARS OF GROWTH

IN the early days the founder of this business made a few gross of matches a day, and sold them himself, driving his horse and wagon as far as Toronto. Today, from automatic machines, 70,000,000 matches a day are turned out to keep Canada's home fires burning. And not matches alone: indurated fibreware, household helps, and a host of paper products have been added to this line.

The House of Eddy

has become an institution which touches the daily life of the Canadian public in a thousand different ways.

There is a reason back of this steady and consistent progress. Business institutions do not grow to such proportions by accident. It takes real merit to accomplish such a result; merit in the goods themselves, and in the concern which is back of them.

When you buy matches, see that Eddy's name is on the box. When you are in need of some of the familiar household helps, such as a washtub, a pail, or a washboard, remember that there is an Eddy product which will fill your needs, made from light and durable Indurated Fibreware. Remember also that Eddy's Paper Specialties are standard.

Modern History of Islands May Be Said to Have Begun on October 23, 1819.

The one hundredth anniversary of the departure of the first missionaries from the United States to the Sandwich Islands, as they were then known, will be celebrated at Honolulu, October 23. On that date in the year 1819, the brig Thaddeus, Captain Hunhewell, sailed from Boston for Hawaii. The vessel anchored at Kailua, Kona, Island of Hawaii, April 5, 1820, and the missionaries landed that day to begin their work of civilizing the natives and converting them to Christianity. Those who arrived in Hawaii on the Thaddeus were Asa Thurston and Hiram Bingham, ordained missionaries, with their wives; Daniel Chamberlain, Thomas Holmes, Samuel Whitney, Samuel Ruggles, Elisha Loomis and four Hawaiians—Honolii, Hopu and Kanui—who had received some education at Cornwall Institute, and George Humehumo, son of Kaumualii, the king of the Island of Kauai. The Hawaiians had been taken to the United States in trading vessels. Traders and whalers had been visiting Honolulu for some years before the arrival of the missionaries, but it is from the latter event that the modern history of Hawaii dates.

WOULD REMAIN 'UNDER COVER'

Sergeant Had His Reasons for Not Making at That Time a "Full an' Free Confession."

An American colonel in France was having difficulty with his safe. It was the headquarters safe. Its lock had jammed, and none of his staff could open it. While they were struggling with it a negro sergeant came up to them apologetically.

"Cuh'nl," he said, "if I ain't intrudin' into dis heah diffickulty, I believes, suh, dat I might help yah."

"Yes?" said the colonel. "What do you suggest?"

"Cuh'nl," said the sergeant, "I suggests Co'p'l Hall."

"Corporal Hall? Why Corporal Hall?"

"Co'p'l Hall," the sergeant explained, under his voice, "was fo' fouh years a buggiah."

They sent for Corporal Hall and Corporal Hall opened the safe.

"Well, sergeant," the colonel said, "I'm glad to know about Corporal Hall. I wish I'd known it sooner. It would have saved us a lot of time with that safe. And tell me, sergeant!—in case we may need to call on you some day—in what direction do your particular talents lie?"

"Cuh'nl," the sergeant answered, "Ah doan' want to tell no lies. 'Standin' ns Ah does dally in de presence of mah Maker, mos' doubtless Ah doan' want to tell no lies. But if de time comes when Ah kin he'p yah, suh, Ah'll make a full an' free confession, a full an' free confession, suh."—Ben B. Lindsey in the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Trouble in the Future.

The pessimist is always anticipating new varieties of trouble. One contemporary gloomster casts his eye forward to the day when wireless telephony will be so perfect that a man will have a receiver in his hat and be managed by his wife all the time.

All newspapers often have advertisements which could be rewritten advantageously. But it took a church paper to offer the most original one yet: "Wanted—A minister who has been married 22 years is very desirous of securing a change."

Rings Around the Sun.

Rings around the sun or moon are properly called halos. They may be defined as somewhat complicated arrangements of arcs and circles of light surrounding the sun or the moon accompanied by others tangent to or intersecting them, with spots of special brightness called parhelia appearing at the points of tangency and intersection. Parhelia are most often observed about sunrise or sunset, frequently when the intersecting arcs are themselves invisible, except at the points of intersection. In order of frequency halos average about 22 degrees, 46 degrees, or 90 degrees in radius, but on rare occasions other sizes have been observed.

Halos are observed only when there is present in the higher atmosphere a cloud sheet which meteorologists term cirro stratus. The floating moisture particles forming this cloud sheet are ice crystals, as the cloud is always above the plane of permanent freezing temperatures. These are the highest clouds known, the average height being five to six miles. When the sun or the moon is observed through such a cloud sheet, refraction and reflection of some of the sun's rays by the ice crystals produce rings in which the colors, when visible are invariably arranged with the red on the inside of the arcs.

Halos are good weather signs. Many weather proverbs based upon the observation of halos are founded upon sound scientific principles. Studies of the relation of halos to rainfall show that during the summer months 56 to 60 per cent. of all halos are followed by rain within thirty-six hours. During the winter months 70 to 75 per cent. are so followed.

Steel and Iron.

Steel is a kind of iron which can easily be hammered out thin without cracking and can be made extremely hard by being heated and then cooled quickly. It is different from ordinary iron because of the amount of carbon in it. Wrought iron contains less carbon than steel and so it cannot be made so hard; cast iron contains more and so is brittle.

United States of the World.

The day will come when we shall realize not only the brotherhood of individuals but the essential unity of all mankind. All are brothers; all children of the same father. The barriers which divide nations are artificial. I believe the time is at hand when these barriers will fall, like the walls of Jericho, before love's trumpet summons, when the banner of brotherhood and freedom will fleet forever over a new federation, the United States of the World.—Tolstoy.

When Virginia Seceded.

On April 17 in 1861 the state convention, composed of the members of the legislature of Virginia, passed the "ordinance of secession" by a vote of 88 to 55. Virginia, 11 days prior to this, had refused to join the states of America; but the decision of the Confederate leaders to fire upon Sumter and Lincoln's call for 75,000 volunteers on April 15 turned the scale and Virginia threw in her lot with the South.

Seeing the Earth Rotate.

If a long pendulum is set swinging with its point of suspension free to turn, the plane of swing will remain fixed while the rotating earth skews around under it. This is the finest demonstration of the earth's rotation, and recently at Wellington, New Zealand, a pendulum only ten feet long showed the rotation with 40 secs. after the swing began.

No Sound From Giraffe.

It is said by animal trainers that the giraffe has never been known to emit a sound of any kind. No matter what the animal may suffer when ill or injured, he remains silent. And scientists have advanced the theory that, because of the extreme length of the neck, sound is difficult or impossible for the giraffe.

The Expenditure of $610,000,000

How the last Victory Loan was spent

BEFORE buying Victory Bonds again you may want to know how Canada used the money you loaned her last year.

Canada borrowed the money to carry on the war and to provide credits for Great Britain and our Allies.

CONSIDERABLY more than one-half of the Victory Loan 1918 was spent on our soldiers. This included $312,900,000, for paying them, feeding them, bringing them home, separation allowances to their dependents, maintenance of medical services and vocational training schools.

For Demobilization

$59,000,000 of the Victory Loan 1918 was paid on account of authorized Soldiers' gratuities.

$9,000,000 was spent at Halifax for relief and reconstruction after the disaster.

* * * * * *

Other disbursements were not, strictly speaking, expenditures, but National Re-investments.

For Trade Extension

To Great Britain for example:

$173,500,000 was loaned for the purchase of our wheat and cereals.

$9,000,000 for our fish.

$30,000,000 for other Foodstuffs

$2,900,000 for Canadian built ships.

$5,500,000 to pay other British obligations in Canada.

Making in all, $220,900,000 advanced to Great Britain.

To our Allies, we loaned $8,200,000 for the purchase of Canadian foodstuffs, raw material and manufactured products.

The Re-investments will be paid back to Canada in due time, with interest.

These credits were absolutely necessary to secure the orders for Canada because cash purchases were impossible.

They have had the effect of tremendously helping agricultural and industrial workers to tide over the depression that would have followed the Armistice, had we not made these credit loans.

As far as money is concerned, 1919 has been, and is still—just as much a war year as 1918. Our main expenditures for war cannot be completed until well on into 1920. Thus another Victory Loan is necessary—Get ready to buy.

JAPS HONOR BRITISH SAILOR

Still Revere Memory of William Adams, Who Led Expedition to Their Country in 1600.

Two memorial stone lanterns near the Japanese port of Yokosuka are the people's tribute to the memory of William Adams, an English sailor who was the first of his countrymen to settle in Japan, and who is credited with opening the way for commerce between Britain and Japan. In 1600 Adams led a trading expedition bound for the West Indies. His fleet consisted of five vessels symbolically named Faith, Hope, Charity, Fidelity and Good News. The expedition met with many misfortunes of weather and sickness. Their adventures included the loss of eight men who were eaten by cannibals on one of the Pacific islands.

The ship carrying Adams finally reached the coast of Bungo, in the eastern part of Kyushu, Japan. The Englishmen made friends with the natives until the arrival of some Portuguese Jesuits who told the Japanese leaders the strangers were pirates and had them imprisoned. The emperor heard of their plight, and had them brought to his palace at Osaka. The ruler finally decided that the men were harmless and released them, retaining Adams at court to teach shipbuilding and other arts to the natives. In 1613 another English sea captain arrived in Japan with letters from the king of England to the emperor of Japan. Through Adams' influence the Englishmen and the oriental ruler signed a treaty giving Britain the perpetual right to enter any ports of the empire and trade freely throughout the country.

VARIOUS KINDS OF CHARITY

And Greater Far Than the Giving of Alms Is the Practice of Charity of Thought.

Someone has said that "Charity is the highest tree in heaven." It is a saying that we can well believe, for not only does charity cover a multitude of sins but it also covers its devotees with its solace and comfort.

It is to be feared, however, that there is a misconception as to the full meaning covered by the word charity. Many people seem to understand that charity consists solely in the giving of alms. And the fact is that almsgiving is merely one form of charity.

There is a charity that we can practice toward those of our fellow men who stand in no need of alms. There are, indeed, many who are well provided with the goods of this world who stand in great need of charity. The charity of our thoughts is what we stand in need of.—Los Angeles Times.

Diamond Cutters.

There are 25,000 diamond cutters and polishers in the world. Of these only about 675 are in the United States, and these have come mostly since the outbreak of the European war, which crippled the industry in Amsterdam and Antwerp, the world's greatest centers. There were at the beginning of the present year 36 diamond-cutting establishments in this country. This is exclusive of shops where all kinds of precious stones are cut.

The number of Germans employed as diamond cutters did not exceed 600 before the war, and of these only 75 per cent worked for establishments in Germany. During the war 600 or 700 Belgian cutters emigrated to England and organized as a branch of the London Diamond Cutters' union. They did work principally for Belgian and Russian houses.

Protecting Airplane Propellers.

An aluminum plating for airplane propellers has been devised for the purpose of protecting the wood from the influence of the weather, which has been a serious problem heretofore. The plating is a thin leaf which is incorporated in the finish of the propellers, and the idea was developed by the forest products laboratory at Madison, Wis., and placed in production by the war department. The process is practically 100 per cent effective in preventing absorption of water, particularly in the stock-in-the stage. A French authority states that 80 per cent of the French propellers produced are rejected by the plants mainly because they are out of balance. This difficulty is due largely to unequal absorption or distribution of moisture and can be greatly reduced by an effective water-proofing coating.

Stopping a Great Waste.

Millions of dollars' worth of fruit have been wasted in Florida during the quarter of a century. Hereafter nothing will be wasted as the drops, culls and ripes will all be utilized by new processes evolved by a clever chemist and scientist. The growers and the public generally will be helped by these processes, as the former will reap a benefit from the sale of their waste products and the latter will have the benefits of the manufactured products which are greatly in demand.

Electrocute Leopard to Save Pelt.

A leopard used by a motion-picture concern recently took to sulking, which made him a disagreeable companion for the actors in the jungle scenes, according to Popular Mechanics Magazine. Shooting him with a high-powered rifle was first considered, but was objected to, as it would disfigure the valuable pelt. To avoid this, electrocution was decided upon, using power from a near-by station.

PRESIDENT WILSON IS SERIOUSLY ILL

PHYSICAN SAYS MR. WILSON IS NOW A VERY SICK MAN.

Washington, Oct. 3.—President Wilson is a "very sick man" and his condition is less favorable, it was said by Cary T. Grayson, the president's physician, in a statement issued from the White House.

The following bulletin was issued by Dr Grayson:

"The president is a very sick man. His condition is less favorable today, and he has remained in bed throughout the day.

"After consultation with Dr. F. X. Dercum, of Philadelphia, Drs. Sterling Ruffin and E. R. Stitt, of Washington, who all agreed as to his condition, it was determined that absolute rest is essential for some time."

There was much speculation in the capital as to the president's real condition and concern was generally expressed. When the consulting physicians left the White House shortly after half past six o'clock Dr Grayson remained and at ten o'clock he went to the executive offices and gave out his bulletin through Secretary Tumulty. Earlier in the day Dr. Grayson made known that the president's physical condition was fairly strong and that his blood pressure was good. The president's age—he is approaching his 63rd birthday—it was explained, however, made close watching of his condition essential.

THE PRINCE OF WALES

Will Spend Only Three Days in the United States.

New York, Oct. 3.—An associated Press despatch from Washington says:

"The Prince of Wales who onw is touring Canada, wil come to Washington in about a month for a visit of three days, but he will not make a tour of the United States. Mayor Babcock of Pittsburg has just been informed by Chairman Porter of the house foreign affairs committee.

"I am reliably informed," said Mr. Porter, "that it is the wish of the British Government that the Prince of Wales, upon leaving Canada should spend bit three days in Washington, returning to New York thereafter, from when hence he sails for Europe, and that of a tour of the United States should not be made."

Art's Inspiration.

A famous artist, who had art classes, had forbidden smoking in his studio. One day, after being out for half an hour, he re-entered the studio suddenly and saw one student with a lighted cigarette in his fingers, which he tried to conceal. With an air of assumed playfulness the artist approached the offender and said: "A strange crayon you have there, my friend. May I ask what you propose to draw with that?" "Clouds!" replied the student.

Death.

Death is nothing more or less than slipping back into your own subconsciousness, and so becoming greater and finer and more active—more useful, too—and with grander powers than we ever had in our limited imperfect bodies. Life is nothing but an episode in our universal life. . . . Death is just a change of direction then, really; that's all. From "The Promise of Air," by Algernon Blackwood.

Books That Profit.

There are hundreds of books, each one of which, if really read, really assimilated by the person to whom it happens to appeal, will enable that person quite unconsciously to furnish himself with ammunition which he will find of use in the battle of life.—Roosevelt.

Long Sentences.

In "Les Miserables" Victor Hugo has one sentence of a hundred lines, and earlier in the book, in one of the chapters descriptive of Waterloo, there are over 50 lines without a full stop. England's record is held by the foreign enlistment act, one section of which reaches its six hundredth word.

Meredith's Vanity.

"George Meredith, as his friends used to tell with amusement," writes Robert Lynd in the London Nation, "was a vain man. Someone has related how, in his later years, he regarded it as a matter of extreme importance that his visitors should sit in a position from which they would see his face in profile."

NELSON DAY CAMPAIGN for $500,000 October 21-22-23

"Canadians Must Sail The Seas"

WHY Canada MUST have Canadian Seamen

CANADA is face to face to-day with a great need—mercantile ships! More than a quarter of the world's shipping was destroyed in the War. We are handicapped in our foreign trade because there are no ships to buy or rent. Hence the Government's shipbuilding programme.

Aims of the NAVY LEAGUE OF CANADA

To emphasize Canada's opportunities and responsibilities on the sea.

To raise funds for the relief of our merchant seamen, injured in the war, and for dependents of those who were killed.

To maintain sailors' homes in our ports.

To train boys and young men for our merchant ships by the organization of Boys' Naval Brigades.

Patron
H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES
Dominion President
COMMODORE ÆMILIUS JARVIS

But there remains the more complex problem of manning our ships when built. Seamen cannot be turned out to order. They must be trained. If we are not to be at the mercy of foreign-born seamen, we must have our own Canadian boys ready for this service. This is absolutely imperative, and lies right at the very root of Canada's After-the-War development.

BEGIN WITH THE BOYS

The problem is purely a personal one—something you and I must assist in solving. Unless we make it possible to train Canadian boys for the sea, we cannot hope to man Canadian ships with Canadian seamen and so supply the missing link between the producing possibilities of the Dominion and the eager world markets.

To conduct the Boys' Naval Brigades and its other work, the Navy League of Canada requires $500,000. Throw yourself wholeheartedly into this campaign to make it a thorough-going success, for the sake of our boys, for the sake of the whole Dominion—yes, and in your own personal interest. MARK TWAIN'S FIRST PLAY

Cause Trouble Between Him and His Former Friend Bret Hart.

The first play Mark Twain ever wrote was in collaboration with Bret Harte, and it was the means of ending a friendship that had existed between these gifted men for thirty years.

Evidently the idea originated with Bret Harte, who had made a great hit with "The Heathen Chinee" in his stories of the west. He conceived the notion of a play to be called "Ah Sin," in which Charles Parsloe, the clever comedian, was to take the leading part. Harte had already made a success with one play, but he felt that Twain could supply the humor he lacked.

"Ah Sin" when finished was not a remarkable work of art. It was sheer melodrama, with a touch of farce, and a good deal of hap-hazard work. It was first produced in Washington, on May 7, 1877, to a crowded house. Thise friendly audience roared with laughter and unanimously voted that "Ah Sin" was a success. But it takes more than friendship to make a play a success. It takes more than big names. It takes more than money. And in spite of all the play doctors could do "Ah Sin" proved a failure. Each of the two distinguished writers blamed the other. The details of the disagreement have never become public, and probably never will, but their long friendship was broken as a result of this adventure into theatricals, and was never afterward resumed.

Who was to blame? That is a difficult question to answer. Bret Harte as a writer and a playwright, had been successful and Mark Twain was undoubtedly a success when working alone.

BILLIARD TURNEY RULES SET

State Amateur Pocket Title Matches to Start at Once.

Chicago, Oct 3—Rules to govern the coming state amateur pocket billiard tournaments were announced to-day. The preliminaries of this, the first of three tournaments to be held by the Illinois Billiard association, will start immediately, the date set for the finals will be on or about Nov 10. Players in the tournament may select the tables of whatever billiard room they desire, providing the owner is a member of the state association.

Should ten players in a district decide to take part they will all play on the same evening, five tables being used. Each player will play thirty-five points with each of the other nine contestants. That player who has the largest total shall be declared the winner and will be eligible to compete in the semi-finals, the date for which will be selected later. Winners of the semi-finals in each district will be declared the district champion and be a recipient of a gold medal.

As Cook county has been devided into five sections there will be a district champion developed on the south side, south side, north-west side, west side and the loop. These will meet in the finals Nov 10. The winner will receive a diamond medal and shall be recognized champion of the state.

Insects Preserved in Amber.

In a collection of red amber presented to the British museum, Prof. T. D. Cockerell has recognized an astonishing variety of insect forms, and has described not less than 31 new species, of which five are types of new genera. Most of them were found in a single block little larger than a man's fist, which was cut into half inch slices, in every one of which the insects are densely crowded. The amber is from Miocene clay beds of Burma, though perhaps washed from still older deposits, and nearly every large order of insects is represented, the family of ants being a notable exception.

God of the Lower World.

In one temple of Japan the image is a Japanese conception of the god of the lower world. The figure has an unusual history. An image maker, it is said, died. When he appeared before the lord of the other world he was told that in his lifetime he had never represented the lord of the world properly, and that he must return to earth and make a correct likeness. The figure is pointed out as the result of the order. It is so horrible with its red face and malevolent glare that the story seems plausible.

While playing with the other boys of the neighborhood their football came apart and they thought they could sew it together if they only had a piece of shoestring. Oliver came to the rescue. "Let's go and ask grandma for a shoestring," he suggested. "You can get about anything you ask for over at grandma's."

Keeping Cider Sweet.

To keep cider sweet place in each barrel immediately on making, mustard, four ounces; salt, one ounce, and ground chalk, one ounce. Shake well. Or cider may be preserved sweet by corking in airtight cans after the manner of preserving fruit. The liquid should be first settled and racked off from the dregs, but fermentation must not be allowed to commence before corking or it will not keep.

Injections of Cane Sugar.

Doctor Rosenthal reports to the Presse Medicale (Paris) that he has administered intravenous injections of a strong solution of saccharose in numerous cases of tuberculosis. The procedure exerts a manifest tonic action, it raises the blood pressure, augments the body weight, and indirectly produces a favorable effect on the tuberculous lesions. These results are ascribed by the author to an enhancement of the functions of the liver.

DREADED INFLUENZA

MEDICAL MEN BELIEVE IT WILL AGAIN VISIT CANADA THIS AUTUMN AND WINTER.

There is a widespread belief among medical men that the epidemic of la grippe or influenza, which swept over the world last year, will again appear in Canada during this autumn and coming winter. This dangerous trouble spares neither age nor sex, but it naturally finds its easiest victims among those who are run down in health, or those whose blood is weak and watery, and it is among the latter class in which the greatest number of fatalities occur. The surest way to prevent an attack of this dreaded trouble is to keep the blood rich and pure, and the safest and best way to do this is through the use of Dr. William's Pink Pills.

No reasonable precaution to avert an attack of influenza or la grippe should be spared. The disease itself is deadly, but its after-effects, among those who are spared, make the life of the victim one of constant misery. Ask almost any of those who have been attacked by influenza what their present condition of health is and most of them will answer: "Since I had the influenza I have never been fully well." This trouble leaves behind it a persistent weakness of the limbs, shortness of breath, bad digestion, palpitation of the heart, and a tired feeling after even slight exertion. This is due to the thin, watery blood in which la grippe almost always leaves its victims after the fever and influenza have subsided. They are at the mercy of relapses and complications, often very serious. This condition will continue until the blood is built up again, and for the purpose of building up the blood and strengthening the nerves nothing can equal a fair treatment with Dr. William's Pink Pills. From the first to last does these pills make new, rich blood which reaches every organ and nerve in the body. Thus the lingering germs are driven out, and the weak, despondent victims of influenza are transformed into cheerful, healthy, happy men and women.

But better still, you can put yourself in a condition to resist an attack of influenza by enriching the blood through the use of Dr. William's Pink Pills, and this, it seems, is the sensible thing to do at once.

Dr. William's Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ONLY TABLETS MARKED "BAYER" ARE ASPIRIN

Not Aspirin at All without the "Bayer Cross"

For Colds, Pain, Headache, Neuralgia, Toothache, Earache, and for Rheumatism Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuritis, take Aspirin marked with the name "Bayer" or you are not taking Aspirin at all.

Accept only "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" in an unbroken "Bayer" package which contains complete directions. Then you are getting real Aspirin the genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over nine teen years. Now made in Canada. Handy tin boxes containing 12 tablets cost but a few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer" packages.

There is only one Aspirin—"Bayer"—You must say "Bayer".

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

THE MERCHANTS' COLUMN

Edited by
MANSFIELD F. HOUSE
(Copyright.)

In this column, which appears every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, will appear news and short articles of special interest to merchants, their salespeople and business men and women in general.

NOT "WHAT ELSE?" BUT "LOOK AT THESE!"

WILLIAM RICHARDS, a haberdasher of Youngstown, O., got tired of "Anything else to-day?" or "Will that be all?"—particularly when his clerks insisted upon putting these questions to customers during the holiday season. So he determined to find a specific remedy.

Now the first thing in the morning, every clerk in the Richards store gathers at a little meeting which decides what article is to be pushed during the following day. As a general rule it is some accessory or dress, not very expensive but likely to be in considerable demand. Men's cravats, specially boxed for Christmas, will be the item decided upon one day, for example while handkerchiefs will be featured the next, and so on. The article agreed upon is then advertised in comparitively small space, but with a distinctive type and border arrangement, and the entire store stands ready to feel a personal pride in making the "specials" move fast.

A careful record is kept of the different articles pushed during the month and of the total number of sales made by each clerk. The one who sells the greatest number of "specials" receives a cash prize and Mr. Richards is authority for the statement that this plan has resulted in an extremely large percentage of "suggestion sales" for the combination of the advertising with the conference of the day before puts every part of the organization on its mettle.

KNOWING BOYS HELPS BLAKE SELL HANDCARS

P. W. BLAKE, of Peoria, Ill., cleaned out all the handcars for children that he could buy last year. He even bought and sold some from a competitor's stock just because he knew something about boy psychology.

Only, he says, "Easy on that 'psychology' stuff—I don't know what that is; I was just a kid once, and I have never forgotten my wants." Here is how he sold the cars:

Blake operates a tinshop in the rear of the store and has a handy man there. He knows that a boy with a car likes to feel he is like 'dad' with his car. So he had the tinner cut some oblong pieces of galvanized iron about eight by five inches covered these with a coat of white, then lettered and stenciled on them a design that was a fair imitation of an automobile license tag. He put the one of these on each car thrown on the sidewalk.

One day a young mother with the five-year old came along. The boy saw the cars with the numbers "Look! Look! See, mother, there is the one I want. Right there with the license number on!"

The mother tried to lead him by "Not here, Bruce. Father said to go to——'s, where we trade." But she tried in vain. The lad would not pass the car with the number. He had seen the others, and they lacked the license number, so she had to buy. When that boy ran his car up and down the street at home the other boys stopped him to see the tag, evidently, for a day or two another lad asked for "the car with the license tag on it."

The tag of course, was a clever way of putting the dealer's name on the car:

DRUGGISTS TO SWAP SUNDAYS.

A movement is on foot in Bethlehem, Pa., to induce the owners of the town's twelve drug stores to alter successive Sundays and keep one establishment open all day and evening. The stores now observe Sunday hours being closed a greater part of the Sabbath.

THREE BOYS BUILD UP $275,000 BUSINESS.

One day a St. Louis shoe salesman walked by a bright faced youth, who stood near the entrance to The Leader, a Mt. Vernon, Ill., department store.

"I would like to see Mr. Carp, the proprietor," said the salesman as he approached a girl in the notions stock.

The girl suppressed a smile with difficulty and the salesman wondered whether or not he had forgotten his necktie. "There he is," said the girl as she pointed to the young man at the entrance. "That's Mr. Carp, Mr. Bernard Carp. He's the man you wish to see." The salesman walked over to the young man and apologized.

"Oh, that's all right," said Bernard who is but a couple years beyond his majority. "I'm used to that."

With him Bernard has his two brothers as partners. When they opened The Leader about four years ago Bernard was nineteen, his younger brother was but nineteen years old and the other brother fourteen years old. Their father a merchant in another Illinois town, had sent them to Mt. Vernon with about $1200 worth of bankrupt stock. Their business was to clean it out. After a look over the town Bernard decided that his store, which he named The Leader, was going to be one of the town's institutions. Mr. Carp, Senr., advanced them about $2900 in money and that was what the boys operated on for the first year. That year they did a business of $344,000, the next year the store did $97,000, the third year $165,000, and last year, $197,000. The current year will run beyond the $275,000 mark.

Handle Many Lines.

And as the volume of sales increased the boys moved into one larger building after another, until to-day they occupy two floors, the lower being 54 by 125 feet and the upper 75 by 125 feet. Their stocks include men's clothing, women's ready-to-wear, dry goods, rugs, and groceries.

"It was almost enough to get our start," said Bernard, "to have people walk out of the store. They did that often in the first years. One reason was that we insisted on cash. Every cent's worth we have sold has been for cash. They thought we kids could be bluffed, but we stuck to it. Sometimes they walked out when we refused to cut a price. They thought that we were a fly-by-night store run by boys and could be worked. But we explained that we were in the game for good and had already priced our merchandise at the best possibly figure. Gradually they got to appreciate us."

Many of the prominent people of the town felt hurt to be refused credit. But from time to time the boys issued circulars explaining the advantages of the no-credit plan. One of these contained the paragraph:

"Bear in mind that there is no such thing as something for nothing and that every merchant who gives stamps, silverware, dishes, talking machines, or pianos must figure his cost of doing business, and naturally the customer must bear part of this cost.

Learned in Father's Store.

Much of the success of the youthful firm is credited to the father of the boys. According to Bernard he early trained them in merchandising had them handling trade in his store when they had to use boxes behind the counters in order to see the customers, they were so short. His first lessons were in the treatment of the trade. "Never let a customer leave the store feeling that he has not been treated fairly," was one of his rules. Another was to keep everlastingly at whatever is to be done until it is done. Then he taught them to form judgements in matters. In buying he would ask for the opinions of the boys. Not always did he follow their advice, but he always did explain why he couldn't. Now the boys are reaping the benefits of this training.

"We're all too anxious to get a thing done for any one of us to be 'boss,'" said Bernard. "And we have made friends because we were taught that the only customer worth while is the one who comes back. There is no miracle about the business, but there is a lot of hard work. We do get a lot of pleasure out of it. And, as Elbert Hubbard said, we get our happiness out of our work."

HOUSES COLLAPSE.

Terrible Hail Tempest Causes Havoc in Spain.

Madrid, Oct. 4.— Interruption of railroad traffic and telegraph communication prevents details of conditions in eastern Spain, where torrential rains have fallen, from becoming known. It is reported that eighteen bodies have been discovered at Cartagena and five at Alicante. At the latter place large hailstones were piled in some places to a depth of over six feet, many houses collapsing under the weight.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if bladder bothers You.

Eating meat regularly eventually reduces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become sluggish; they become overworked and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then be fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for a generation to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

German Souvenirs of Defeat.

A traveler in the Rhine country has written of his astonishment at the German pictorial postcards now on the market. He found himself in Cologne, and "in the first shop I entered," he says, "I was offered for half a mark many pictures which, had I been a German, I would rather have cut off my right hand than sell to a representative of the conquerors." The German shopkeeper, typical of many others, apparently had no such feeling, for he was handing over the counter pictures illustrating German scenes and people in the hour of defeat. One could buy and send home a picture postcard of a rabble of German soldiers entering the city on their retreat and the natural wonder of the traveler was how any German photographer could have had the heart to sell it as a souvenir of the city. One could buy for half a mark photographs of the British cavalry and infantry entering Cologne, or of the great cathedral serving as a background for the conquering army. This is another of the many stories that have come out of Germany of the commercial spirit taking advantage of defeat to turn a penny.

Orgmocto, a thriving town in Surrey County, N. B., was almost totally destroyed by fire with a property loss of about $500,000.

TORTURED BY RHEUMATISM

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Brought Quick and Permanent Relief

MR. P. H. McHUGH

108 Church Street, Montreal.

December 10th, 1917.

"I was a great sufferer from Rheumatism for over 16 years, I consulted specialists, took medicines, used lotions; but nothing did me good.

Then, I began to use "Fruit-a-tives"; and in 15 days, the pain was easier and the Rheumatism was better. Gradually, "Fruit-a-tives" overcame my Rheumatism; and now, for five years, I have had no return of the trouble. Also, I had severe Eczema and Constipation, and "Fruit-a-tives" relieved me of these complaints; and gave me a good appetite; and in every way restored me to health". P. H. McHUGH.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At dealers or sent post paid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

"JAZZ."

Where Did the Word and the Music Come From.

Etymologists, whether they are musically inclined or not, says the Portland Oregonian, will follow with interest a promising controversy over the origin of the word "jazz." As noun, verb and adjective it has found a place in the American language and may be expected to find its way into the dictionaries in due course. About the only issue upon which recent contributors to the discussion seem to agree is that the word probably was born in or near New Orleans. Lieut. James Europe, a negro officer with our troops in France, says that the first "jazz band" of record was conducted by a Mr. Razz, whose name survives in altered form. But another historian has discovered that the name of the leader of the band was Brown. And, according to an earlier authority, the verb "to jazz," in the sense of "speeding up things," is older than jazz music itself. Lafcadio Hearn is credited with having found it in a creole patois. The patient seeker after the ultimate roots of words will suppose that the quest at this point has only begun.

Jazz music, however, is admittedly a recent product. The ancients probably would not claim credit for it if they could. We are willing to accept the explanation that it owes its existence to pure love of the "peculiar," but it is difficult to follow Prof. Lois Morrison Patterson, who declared that "the laws that govern jazz rule in the rhythms of great original prose, verse that sings itself, and opera of ultramodernity." One of the interesting disclosures made by Lieut. Europe, who led a jazz band in Europe, is that he found it necessary to hold daily rehearsals in order to prevent the musicians from adding to their music more than I wished them to." Jazz obeys no law, apparently. Like vers libre, it represents chiefly the quest of the "different." This is found in the character of the original orchestration, no less than in the little mechanical tricks to which it owed its further development.

The colored musician is convinced that negroes should write negro music. "We have our own racial feelings," he says, "and if we try to copy whites we make bad copies." MacDowell and other Americans who have asserted that the negro music in the United States, and Paderewski, who recognized its possibilities many years ago, probably would agree with him. Yet jazz music does not appear to be so deeply rooted that there is no hope that we shall some day hear the last of it. Its present vogue has continued four or five years, which is less than half the time that ragtime, the immediate predecessor of jazz, was the popular rage. We are fickle in our taste for entertainment. It is safe to predict that the jazz band will last only until some daring originator succeeds in devising another novelty to take its place.

Italy's Exports.

Italian motor car exports showed a falling off for the first six months of 1918, compared with the corresponding period of the two preceding years. From January 1 to June 30, 1918, a total of 2,356 lorries and touring cars were exported, having a value of approximately £1,400,000, compared with 4,148 vehicles in 1917 and 2,731 in 1916. The number of touring cars exported during the first six months of 1918 was 728, this constituting a record, for the figures of the two preceding years were 244 and 569, respectively.

It's True in Terre Haute.

The other day a primary teacher in the Terre Haute schools was teaching her youngsters about animals. She had told them about domestic animals and then gave examples of the cow and the pig. Then she turned to the children. "Can't some little boy name some wild animals?" she asked.

John could. He rose with alacrity. "Ghosts and Indians!" he shouted.

Strong Man Was Chosen By French Government As Governor of Alsace

THE "lost provinces" of Alsace-Lorraine are a part of France again. By way of showing her attitude in the matter, France has put one of her strongest men who is also one of her most sincere haters of all things Prussian, at the head of the reconquered territory. He is Alexandre Millerand, former French Minister of War, and a man with many of the characteristics, according to report, of old Premier Clemenceau. His personality is described as "forceful," and he has a "fighting jaw" which somewhat resembles that of the old "Tiger." Already, under his direction, the Germanized industries of the provinces are being converted into a part of the French system.

He was a lawyer and a newspaper publisher at various times, and he was one of the leading French Socialists for many years. But he has grown conservative and, like Clemenceau, bears few of the markings of the Socialist, and, like Clemenceau, has weathered many of the storms of French politics. The two used to be friends, then became antagonized, and it was not until Clemenceau recently was wounded by an anarchist that they became wholly reconciled.

A stocky, thick-set man, with regular, swarthy features, heavy white moustache, and thick, white hair, he is the personification of strength. It has long been a saying in France that "Millerand never backs up." He fought a duel with a Paris deputy once because he would not yield a disputed point. He was wounded and so lost the duel, but he later triumphed in the issue over which they fought. It was Millerand's refusal to "back up" that caused him to resign as Minister of War in 1913, when a crisis arose over his restoration of Col. Paty du Clam to the army. Paty du Clam, because of his part in the disgraceful Dreyful affair, was in disrepute. When Millerand entered the War Ministry he found a promise left by his predecessor to give Paty du Clam a commission in the French colonial force. Millerand regarded it as a promise he was compelled to respect.

When the appointment was made a great uproar resulted, and the whole Cabinet was threatened with overthrow. Millerand saved the situation by resigning, but in his letter of resignation he declared he would follow the same course again were the same circumstances to arise.

He was Minister of Commerce under Waldeck-Rousseau, being at that time the first Socialist ever appointed to a ministerial post by the French Government. Later he was Minister of Public Works and twice was Minister of War. His return to the latter post came after the Great War had broken upon Europe. The need of a strong man was immediate then, and he was the man to whom France turned.

It has long been said that had Millerand not been forced to resign early in 1913 France would have been better prepared when war came, for Millerand was a believer in preparedness. He always had maintained that preparation for war was the aim that as War Minister he must hold ceaselessly before his eyes. "We must foresee the worst," was his watchword.

The problem Millerand faces is how to turn the Germanized industries of the provinces into an integral part of the French system.

Unique Houses.

Goodwood's famous Shell House, is unique of its kind.

Another unique dwelling-house is that locally known as the Teapot Hall, near Horncastle. It was built in the same shape as a teapot by the captain of one of the old fast-sailing tea clippers engaged in the China trade years ago.

A house that is more than half boat exists near Gravesend, and is locally said to be the original of Peggotty's boat-house at Yarmouth, described by Charles Dickens in David Copperfield. Dickens lived for some years, it will be remembered, in the neighborhood of Gravesend.

Nails.

A common nail is an excellent illustration of the difference between old and new methods. Formerly the metal was cut into strips and then forged into shape with hammers. Today they are made of steel and are lighter and stronger. Strips are cut with steam shears and fed into automatic nail machines.

MRS. CLARK FEELS 30 YEARS YOUNGER

BEFORE TAKING TANLAC SHE OFTEN CRIED OVER HER CONDITION, SHE SAYS.

"I don't believe I could have kept up much longer if it hadn't been for Tanlac," said Mrs. Henrietta Clark, of 278 Woburn Avenue, Bedford Park North Toronto,, Ontario.

"My trouble began when I lost my appetite," she continued, "and I just had to force down what little I did eat, and after eating I would be in great distress for hours. My nerves were in a dreadful state and my system became terribly run down. I could hardly sleep at night and would get up feeling so weak and exhausted that I could hardly go up and down stairs, and I would become so despondent at times over my condition that I would just break down and cry I was on the verge of a breakdown and felt miserable all the time.

"I had not taken Tanlac but for a short time before I became so much better that I actually feel ten years younger. My appetite is fine now. I eat heartily of everything and nothing hurts me at all. I am well and strong enough now to do all my housework and going up and down stairs never bothers me at all.

INDEPENDENT LABOR

The speaker heard Premier Hearst Sir Gideon Robinson and other big men speak in Hamilton at the Labor convent on, but their oratory, soundness and expression of good commonsense faded into oblivion compared to the workers in the body of the hall, declared Mr Tooms.

He concluded with reading a report of the work done by the Labor party of Australia

Ald. Gainey Withdraws.

Ald. Gainey withdrew his name from the nominations as he considered enough honor had been conferred upon him during the last year.

The next speaker was Mr Alex Morrison. He declared that he was willing to stand for nomination and abide by the constitution and platform of the Independent Labor party.

Audacity of Liberals.

After this brief address Mr. Lane spoke to the meeting. He spoke of his interest in the Labor party, both as a labor man and a farmer. He declared that he was in the fight no matter who the candidate might be. He said that he was amazed at the audacity of the Liberal convention to come out and repeat their old promises.

"The Liberals say that if they are puting power they can unite the workingmen, farmers and manufacturers. But they declare that the farmers and Labor men cannot unite themselves. Do you believe it? Does it sound reasonable?" asked Mr Lane.

Who is more likely to stand for the Labor man's interests, the 15 per cent or the 85 per cent. of the population?

Mr. Tooms Wins Out.

Then as a vote by the show of hands was too close to determine who the successful candidate was two ballots were taken before one of the nominees received a majority.

Farmers Pledges Support.

Mr R N Scott of Smith was called on to say a few words in regard to the position of the farmers in the coming elections. He could not speak for the U F O as an organization but from individual expressions, he considered that the majority of the farmers would be behind the Labor candidate. For his own part, Mr Scott stated that he would support Mr Tooms to the finish.

After the successful candidate had thanked the meeting for the honor they had placed upon him and had appealed to them for their support, the meeting adjourned.

MINISTERS IN COURT.

One Charged With Abducting Children of Other.

Montreal, Oct. 4. The Rev. Herbert R. Stevenson was arraigned before Judge Cusson yesterday upon a charge of abduction of two sons of the Rev. Maurice Day Baldwin on March 3 last. Bail was fixed at $500.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash poisons and toxins from system before putting food into stomach.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste is not eliminated daily it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the alimentary canal before eating more food.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside bathing.

His First Visit.

Mr. Lloyd George would seem, says Liverpool Post, to have had a premonition of his future eminence when he paid a first visit to London as a lad of nineteen. "Went to the house of commons," he wrote home to his uncle, "Very disappointed. I will not say but that I eyed the assembly in a spirit similar to that in which William the Conqueror eyed England on his visit to Edward the Confessor as the region of his future domain. Oh, vanity!"

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is musay and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautfully dark, glossy and attractive.

SMYRNA.

The Place In Asia Where the Rugs Come From.

Turks are making vigorous protest against the mandatory intrusted to Greece over Smyrna. Smyrna, too often known only to the Western peoples, as "the place where the rugs come from," though they do not, vies with Damascus in the claim to being the oldest city of the world. One of the seven cities of the Christian Church in Asia Minor, it also is among the seven cities that claim Homer. You will recall the lines:

"Seven wealthy towns contend from Homer dead
Through which the living Homer begged his bread."

It has passed through all the cycles of the average city's history time and time again, at one period having a government which suggests that of the Russian Soviets, and it has survived earthquakes, plagues and destructive wars.

Its known history runs back to a thousand years B.C., and it may have flourished in the unrecorded ages before that remote time for all that written history connotes. The Aeolians preceded the Greeks, who made it an Eastern centre of their early culture. It had declined and all but fallen when Alexander, after taking Sardis, released it from the yoke of the Lydias and, acting upon a suggestion said to have come to him in a dream, decided to restore it. It also fell under Roman, Mongol and, finally, Turkish dominion.

It was under the Lydians that the once proud city was split into a series of communities, which effectively tied its political and military hands, so that this dean among Grecian cities cut little figure in the golden era of Hellenic culture.

The new Smyrna, as rebuilt by Alexander, was moved about three miles south of the older site which was to the northeast of the landlocked gulf of the same name. Nestling between the "muddy green" waters of this gulf and the succession of hills behind it, Smyrna always was a city beautiful, a fact which was extolled upon coins.

Ancient coins also bore the likeness of Homer, whose identity with the older Smyrna seems fairly well founded because the Meles river, with its cave nearby that formed the Homeric "den" and "study," flowed lazily past the ancient city, though its waters since have been diverted to other and disputed channels.

To-day a thriving port, despite the Turkish disinclination to modernize its harbor facilities, Smyrna is a cosmopolitan, some say mundescript, city. The reason for the less flattering appellation is summed up by Charles Dudley Warner, who said, "One of the most ancient cities on the globe, it has no appearance of antiquity; containing all nationalities, it has no nationality; it is an Asiatic city with a European face; it produces nothing, it exchanges everything."

Among its heaviest exports, before the world war, when nearly 8,000 ships visited there yearly, were figs, tobacco, silk, raisins and carpets. The rugs known by Smyrna's name might be cited in support of Mr. Warner's last contention, for they came from the far interior districts. Smyrna is scarcely more than 200 miles southwest of Constantinople in an air line, though either a land or water journey requires a much longer and a devious route.

SAYS LABOR MEN SHOULD BE ACCORDED THE RIGHT OF SELF DETERMINATION

Cyrus McCormick of International Harvester Company Gives Important Testimony Before Labor Conference

Cleveland, O., Oct 4. The expressed desire of labor to share in the management of business was declared by Cyrus McCormick, Jr., of Chicago, works manager of the International Harvester Co., to be, in his opinion, "the most significant feature in labor conditions of the day." Mr. McCormick was speaking on "Co-Operation and Industrial Progress" before the eighth annual congress of the National Safety Council.

Pointing out that this desire had taken various forms in various parts of the world bolshevism in Russia, strikes in Central Europe, recourse to the "Whitley plan" in England and clamor for the nationalization of industry, the Harvester official continued:

"The underlying significance of all these movements is the final realization that the relations of employers and employes must from now on be formed on something besides a cash basis. The workingman is as interested as ever in his wages and in his hours, but he is asking for more. Sometimes the demands are not well understood, even by those putting them forward.

"What the workingmen really want is self-expression. They are asking the right to discuss and adjust matters affecting their own interests."

"Employe Representation" Favored.

Just as the doctrine of "caveat emptor" has vanished from business so now is vanishing the fear of collective bargaining. Mr. McCormick said, and "we find ourselves not only permitting the right of workingmen to participate in the determination of working conditions, but also discussing how his right may be most surely exercised."

The method finding most favor in this country he termed "employe representation," and its consideration by American employers he ascribed to four general reasons: (1) fear of bolshevism and consequent anarchy, (2) democratization of industry, (3) a desire to introduce "moral right" into industry, and (4) because it will eventually prove most efficient and economical.

Until recent years the American industrial system was a "benevolent despotism," he asserted, with the large employers instituting systems of insurance, workingmen's compensation, and welfare work; but "everything that was done was imposed from the top and did not come as a result of the expressed desire of the great body of the employes."

He described what he conceived to be the fundamental principles underlying any plan of employe representation, and told how successful the plan had been at the International Harvester Co plants, where it is in effect.

Through it "capital and labor are finding a very pleasant mutual understanding of each other's problems," he said, and the gap left by the growth of industry which destroyed the personal contact between employer and employe was being bridged.

"The workings of the plan have called upon the representatives of the men and the management alike to put forward their keenest intelligence." Mr McCormick said, and the International Harvester Co has been able to discover many inequalities in the wage scale that it did not dream existed."

Return of Ostrich Feathers.

We do not know what authority the paper has for making the statement, and for all we know it may be working in the interest of the producers, but the fact is a daily newspaper is responsible for the statement that ostrich plumes are coming back. That is, the paper says dealers are buying them in large quantities, and that Dame Fashion has decreed that we shall soon see more of the fluffy plumage of the great bird than has been in evidence these last few years.

About the time that ostrich plumes became really popular when it began to be evident that one would not be in style day or night unless decked with the fuzzy plumes the war came along and put an end to the fashion.

But, in all seriousness, we are glad to learn that ostrich plumes are coming back that they are again to become "the thing." They are by all odds the most graceful and charming decorations milady has ever adopted for her ornamentation. They can be used in more ways, with greater effect, than anything else we recall in the way of decoration or ornament. "Sunnier fern," as they are called, have never been fashioned into such beautiful apparel of it is apparel—as the ostrich plumes can be fashioned into. So we rejoice that this billowy stuff which doesn't really serve the ostrich any great purpose, is again to come into use for female ornamentation.

"Housewives' Shoulder."

Doctors have been puzzled by numerous cases with symptoms resembling rheumatism among patients who have not hitherto suffered with rheumatism. The sufferers are nearly all married women and the pains of the new ailment are confined to the shoulder.

The doctor who discovered the nature and the cause of the new pain is a detective man with Sherlock Holmes in his method of diagnosis, who practices in London. He noted that almost all his shoulder-pain patients dwell at some distance, with an uphill climb from the shops. He questioned his patients and elicited that they have to make several trudges home weekly with baskets of household provender that the tradesmen cannot deliver.

"You have not got rheumatism," he told them; "you have strained the shoulder muscles through carrying awkward weights. Your trouble is 'housewife's shoulder.' The cure? Make your husband take his turn."

In the Minority.

When George Bernard Shaw produced his play "Androcles," the house rose at the fall of the curtain and the author was brought on the stage to bow to the storm of applause.

A solitary man in the gallery shouted: "I call it rot!"

"My friend," said G. B. S. "I quite agree with you, but what are we two against so many of a contrary opinion?"

Death Valley.

Death valley is a narrow valley between the Panamint and Funeral mountains in California. It is traversed by the Amargara river, which is usually a dry channel, though probably it was formerly full of water. The level of the valley is covered with salt, supposed to have been brought by the torrents from the surrounding desert and left on the evaporation of the water. Death valley is considered to be the hottest and driest place in the United States. A temperature of 122 degrees has been observed.

Tom Thumb.

Tom Thumb, whose real name was Charles Sherwood Stratton, died in Middleboro, Mass., July 15, 1883. He was born at Bridgeport, Conn., in January, 1838, and was 14 years old when first engaged by P. T. Barnum, the showman, who dubbed him Gen. Tom Thumb. At that time Stratton was less than two feet high and weighed 16 pounds. In 1863 Lavinia Warren (also a dwarf) was married to Stratton. Mrs. Tom Thumb is still alive; she is known in private life as the Countess Magri, having been married three years after the death of Stratton to Count Magri, an Italian by birth and also a midget.

PRETTY OLD SCHOONER

Saw Service in U. S. Civil War and Still in Commission.

The coasting schooner Joanna Dorgain, came into harbor at Bangor, Me., the other day, and attracted attention by her spick and span appearance.

More than ninety years ago she had been built at New York, sloop-rigged, and setting sail on her first voyage under the name of Hudson. For forty years, more or less, she coasted the United States, carrying cargo, while on the shore the nation expanded, met and passed through its crisis of civil war, and opened up its great West.

Then she came to Maine, was refitted as a schooner, renamed, went back to her work, and was apparently wearing out. But twice more the old schooner was bought and restored, and the other day came into port, to the wonder of those who knew her, looking as young as ever.

On the Pike.

The old national pike, that magnificent road that used to run from Maryland to Illinois, witnessed some sharp brushes of fast driving and many an adventure of travel. The New York Tribune tells one story about Henry Clay, who was sometimes called the "Father of the Turnpike." He was traveling along the pike in a coach, when the horses ran and spilled him out headlong into the miry road. "No harm done," he said when the driver rushed to pick him up. "Only a poor mixture of Pennsylvania sand with Kentucky clay!"

Dictaphone Calls Mother.

A dictaphone with a megaphone and a loud-speaking amplifier in the receiver is shown in Popular Mechanics Magazine. With the receiver fastened to the baby's crib in the nursery upstairs, and the megaphone placed in the parlor below, the arrangement works to satisfaction. Mother may go about her housework, while baby will sleep soundly, undisturbed by the noise of the living room, but if he should waken, his cries will be instantly heard downstairs.

Rest the Eyes.

Wanted to "Honk" It.

Ethel's mother was trying to spray her throat with the atomizer, but met with considerable opposition from the small victim. "I wouldn't mind it so much," said Ethel, "if you would let me honk it myself."

WHEN MEALS HIT BACK

"Pape's Diapepsin" instantly Ends Indigestion, Sourness, Stomach Acidity

Are lumps of undigested food causing you pain? Is your stomach acid, gassy, sour, or have you flatulence, heartburn? Then take Pape's Diapepsin.

Just as soon as you eat a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin all that dyspepsia, indigestion and stomach distress caused by acidity ends. These pleasant, harmless tablets of Pape's Diapepsin never fail to make sick, upset stomachs feel fine at once, and they cost very little at drug stores.

Sincerity First Requisite.

And least of all is sincerity a quality that can be successfully imitated. It twines through the whole emotional fiber; it has its roots in the heart. "Sincerity gives wings to power," is the way an old proverb happily puts it. Go through any list of acknowledged leader of business and professional life. You will find there are few who have not been pre-eminently sincere.—H Addington Bruce.

Worst of Answers.

A certain Kansas City physician will never know just how near death he was the other day when, after a thorough examination of probably the brightest, sweetest and altogether supreme nine-months-old baby in the world, the mother asked: "Well, what do you think about my baby?" and he said: "Oh, it's a normal baby."—Kansas City Star.

Household Hint.

To make a cheap filter, take a large flower pot and stop the hole with a sponge. Cover with a few inches of powdered charcoal; fill with water, and let it stand over a pail supported by two or three sticks. The water filtering through the charcoal will be freed from all impurities. The charcoal should be changed every three months.

The Right View and the Wrong.

"The man who makes good doesn't wait for opportunity to knock; he has the door wide open," says an exchange. That's the right spirit. The other day we heard a chap complaining because old Opp didn't stick his toe in the door like a book agent.—Boston Transcript.

A Pianist.

Why are some folks so set in their ways? There's old Opportunity, for instance. For countless centuries she has been knocking at people's doors. Why doesn't the old fashioned thing use the bell, come around to the back door or else peck on the window?

Wonderful Slot Machine.

Most people are familiar with the machines which sell chocolate and chewing gum. An interesting development in this field is a large apparatus that dispenses bottled beverages, sandwiches and chewing gum. Its cooling chamber has space for the accommodation of 96 bottles, while a precooling compartment, in which bottles are chilled by immersion in the water that drains from the ice, has an equal capacity. In order to encourage patrons to return empty bottles to the machine a stick of gum is discharged when a bottle is placed in the receiver provided for it. A counterfeit detector rejects spurious coins. A complete record of all transactions is kept by a sales-registering mechanism. The only attention the machine requires is that involved in stocking and icing it.

To Polish Mahogany.

Boiled linseed oil is the finest thing for genuine old mahogany, as it hardens and preserves the wood. Pour the oil on to a pad of soft flannel and rub the wood well. If there are any cracks in the wood the oil will fill these and harden. Wipe off the superfluous oil and polish with a dry, soft cloth. A little vinegar added to the oil will make a bright, clean, dry finish.

Ancient Botany.

The oldest botanical work in the world is sculptured on the walls of a room in the great temple of Karnak at Thebes, in Egypt. It represents foreign plants brought home by an Egyptian sovereign, Thotmes III on his return from a campaign in Arabia. The sculptures show not only the plant or tree, but the leaves, fruit and seed pods separately, after the fashion of modern botanical treatises.

CONTRACT FOR NEW SCHOOL GOES TO RICHARD SHEEHY & SONS

Price $160,779, $816 More Than Tender of Graham & Hayes Who Decline Executing Their Contract—Discord Arises Between Mr. E. G. Patterson and Mr. J. W. Worth

James Graham and John E. Hayes under the firm name of Graham & Hayes, on September 3rd tendered for the masonry and carpentry work on the new school in the south-west section of the city, and their tender of $159,963 was accepted by the Board of Education. Subsequently, however, these contractors could not agree between themselves on a financial point connected with their operations under the contract, and declined executing the agreement as a firm. Mr. Hayes then offered the Board's building committee to shoulder the contract himself, and a special meeting of the Board of Education was called for last night to act on this situation. And as a result of that session the Board decided to now accept R. Sheehy & Sons' tender of $160,779, $816 more than that of Graham & Hayes. R. Sheehy & Sons' tender was the next lowest to hand on September 3rd.

Refused Less.

Prior to last night's special session, Richard Sheehy had been asked would he accept a contract at Mr. Hayes' price, and he had refused. Last evening Mr. Sheehy being ill, his solicitor, Mr John Corkery, jr., represented him at the meeting, and pointed out that his clients took the ground that it is customary in all such cases as that facing the Board for the contract to go to the next lowest tenderer; and trade etiquette would not justify his coming down to the price of the tenderers who had declined executing their contract.

Mr. John E. Hayes also put in an offer in writing to personally execute the contract his partner found it impossible to agree on.

It was learned that Mr. Graham was willing to execute the contract and that the hitch lay in the firm's agreement on adjustment not concerning the Board.

Mr. Corkery, for his clients, questioned if the Board would be justified in asking his clients, one of the original tenderers, to come down to the figure of Mr. Hayes, who is now practically a new tendered, although his price is the same as offered by himself and Mr Graham as a contracting firm.

Mr. E. G. Patterson was inclined to award the contract to Mr. Hayes and saving the $816 increase in R. Sheehy & Sons' tender.

Mr. J. W. Worth contended that had there been no tender from Graham and Hayes the contract would have gone to R Sheehy & Sons, the next lowest tenderers, and he believed the honor and integrity of the Board called for awarding the contract now to R Sheehy & Sons, which course every right-thinking citizen would endorse.

Prior to this discussion, the motion of September 9th awarding the contract to Graham & Hayes had been rescinded on motion of Mr. Patterson and Mr. Fowler.

Mr. J. M Greene did not see how the Board could consistently award the contract to any man whose tender had not been before the Board when the date for receiving tenders closed. This was, he contended, Mr Hayes' position, that of a new tenderer.

On motion of Messrs. Greene and Worth, the contract went to R Sheehy & Sons for $160,779.

A Little Discord.

Mr Patterson here moved that as five weeks had been lots in getting a contract executed the date for completion of the school be extended from November 15th, 1920, this authority to be vested in the building committee.

Mr. Worth apparently did not like such authority to be left with the building committee, for he suggested in his objection, that the committee might hold the work up five years were they so disposed.

Mr Patterson here took strong exception to Mr Worth's attitude and declared he did not propose to sit on the Board with a man who makes statements impigning the honor and integrity of members of the Board. Mr. Worth, he said, had made statements quite unworthy of him.

Mr. Worth denied having impugned the honesty and integrity of the Board and asserted his right to express his opinions as the peoples' representative.

Mr. Cameron: "Let the committee name the date for extension, to be approved of by the Board subsequently.

Mr. Worth: "The Board are here now to approve of any date named." He objected that too much power had been vested on the building committee already.

On motion of Mr Patterson the time for completing the school was extended to March 15th, 1921.

Security Reduced.

Mr. Patterson thought a security of two-third the cost of the work, provided in the contract, too much, especially as 20 per cent of the money earned by the contractors is to be kept back. One-third should be enough in his opinion.

On motion of Messrs Fowler and Greene, the security held will be one-third the amount of the contract.

Question of Privilege.

Mr. Worth here rose to a question of privilege. "If I am expected to sit on this Board" he said, "I have a right to look for courtesy from my fellowmembers. I demand that Mr. Patterson take back his remarks concerning me. I have always felt friendly toward Mr Patterson, but I cannot very well remain so if he entertain those feelings towards me expressed by him a short time ago."

Silence.

Chairman Denne: "Mr. Patterson?"

Mr Patterson: "I have nothing to say. I object to Mr. Worth's statements, and have said so."

Mr Worth here declared that in his opinion Mr. Patterson had taken a stand unworthy of a gentleman.

THE CAMPAIGN IN EAST PETERBOROUGH

ATTORNEY GENERAL LUCAS TO SPEAK IN LAKEFIELD WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

The campaign in East Peterborough in the interests of Mr. James Thompson, Conservative candidate, is progressing favorably, and there is every indication of the success of the party in that riding. A successful meeting was held in Stewart's Hall last night with over one hundred in attendance. Addresses were made by Mr. Thompson and by Mr E. R. Heyland of Toronto. Frank Kitner, a prominent farmer of the riding, occupied the chair. This gathering was in marked contrast to a meeting held in the same place on Tuesday night by the U. F. O. candidate, when only twenty-four persons turned out to hear the addresses of four speakers.

Mr. Thompson held a meeting at Hurleigh this afternoon and will be Apsley tonight.

A rousing mass meeting will be held at Lakefield Wednesday night at which the chief speaker will be Hon. I. B. Lucas, attorney-general of the Province.

CEDA GERTRUDE McCLENNEN

Ceda Gertrude McClennen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. McClennen, former residents of 145 Stewart street, died in Oshawa on September 23, aged 14 years. She was a former student at the South Central School, and her many friends in Peterboro will regret to hear of her demise.

GOVERNMENT FISH FOR STONEY LAKE

LARGE NUMBER OF EXCELLENT BASS PLACED IN STONEY AND CLEAR LAKES FRIDAY.

An Ontario Government fish car passed through here yesterday on its way to Lakefield from the Government fish pon at Mt. Pleasant. The car is like an ordinary passenger car with large tanks around the sides in which were over 400 large full grown bass. These will be placed in Stoney and Clear Lakes and it is hoped they will freely spawn next season.

The Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association have been making strenuous endeavors for some time along these lines and no what they have become successful they hope for a great fishing season next season. If these fish are lawfully preserved there is no doubt it will help is no doubt it will materially help the fishing possibilities of the future.

CITY TO BORROW FROM TORONTO BANK

MEANS BY WHICH THE COUNCIL WILL PAY FOR BRIDGE CONSTRUCTION.

At the meeting of the finance committee of the City Council last night the housing scheme was again discussed. Mr. Jas. Finnie and Mr. F. H. Dobbin were present to give their views and join in the discussion. No motion was passed nor any action taken to further this movement for the city, those present satisfying themselves with getting a better understanding of the scheme.

Reports from the relief officer regarding indigent patients in the hospitals were read and adopted.

On motion of Ald. McIntyre and Morrison, it was decided to recommend that a bylaw be passed to authorize the temporary borrowing from the Bank of Toronto to pay for the construction of the Hunter street bridge until the debentures are sold.

Some general business of minor importance was discussed and disposed of.

Those present Aldermen Taylor (chairman) Morrison, Edgar, and Mayor Duncan.

A SIMPLE METHOD TO REMEDY RHEUMATISM

AGE DOES NOT INTERFERE IF TREATMENT IS PROPERLY FOLLOWED

Many persons contend that there is no sure remedy for Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Neuritis, or their kindred diseases, but don't be based draw your own conclusions from the proof submitted.

Over two years ago, William Nesbitt, of 113 John St., Toronto, Ontario, was attacked by Rheumatism. Mr. Nesbitt was 53 years of age at the time and he feared the worst. After trying many remedies and prescriptions without obtaining relief he took a friend's advice and used Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules. Result—to-day Mr. Nesbitt says, "He hasn't lost a day's work since nor fears Rheumatism any more."

Mr. Nesbitt gives the entire credit for his recovery to T.R.C.'S. Profit by his experience. Try them.

SPARKLING MUSICAL FARCE AT GRAND TODAY

"HIS BRIDAL NIGHT" GENERALLY ACCLAIMED UNUSUALLY WORTH WHILE.

"His Bridal Night," the sparkling musical farce, generally acclaimed as one of unusual excellence, will be the attraction at the Grand today, matinee and evening. Its appearance here is one of the real events of the local theatrical season and advance interest in the management is keen and indicates big business. The book of "His Bridal Night," by Margaret Mayo, whose "Twin Beds" is well remembered, calls for two girls who look so much alike that no one can tell them apart. They were hard to find but the Crisp Twins were discovered in vaudeville where they had been creating a stir because of their remarkable likeness and sensational singing and dancing ability. They completely fill the bill. It is claimed that when pay day comes the manager of the company insists that both appear at the same time, he not being willing to take the chance of the one repeating and getting the salaries of both.

GUY BROS. MINSTRELS COMING TO THE GRAND

Years ago when the famous Guy Brothers Minstrels traveled through this country the company was known as the Guy family.

George R. Guy was a mere boy, his mother and father having full control over the company, watching every move the boys would make, allowing them after reaching the hotel after the show at night just fifteen minutes for the boys to be in bed.

George R. Guy would go to bed with the thoughts on his mind of some day owning one of the best travelling minstrel shows on the road. It preyed on his mind to such an extent that he turned to dreaming every night of the same wish.

Today his dream has come true. Mr. George R. Guy now controls the most well known and popular minstrel show on the road today. No doubt the people of Peterborough shall turn out to see Mr. Guy's wish the best company the Guy Brothers have ever had on the road and the best travelling organization of its kind today.

SHOOTS RELIGION INTO TOWN WHICH OUSTED PREACHER

The strenuous methods of the late Colonel Roosevelt in achieving reforms are recalled in "Hell Roarin' Reform," a William Fox screen production, having Tom Mix as its star, which is to be presented at the Empire Theatre for 3 days beginning Monday. The play deals with the evil spirits of Tarantula, a bandit-ridden town whose outlaw residents oust the preacher—and it is Mix's task to shoot religion and righteousness into the place. The Fox cowboy star is said to do this with his customary dash, tackling the job with the same degree of directness that Roosevelt used in tackling trusts, malefactors, mollycoddles and undesirables.

Numberless news thrills are promised in "Hell Roarin' Reform," which is declared to be the liveliest western drama in which Mix has appeared. Among other things, Mix leaps on horseback from the upper balcony of one building to the roof of another, plunging through the roof with his horse; he rides down a steep mountain trail at a headlong gallop, routs a band of stagecoach robbers by firing three guns at one time, and shoots a pipe out of a man's mouth.

Find the Joy in Things.

Do not let the things that were made for your service crush out your life with their weight. Life is full of sunshine, and beauty, and love; birds sing and flowers bloom for you as well as for others. Do not shut your eyes to the beauties of life. There is beauty in a well-scrubbed floor, there is joy in a well-cooked meal if we are not overburdened. But there is no joy in anything unless we open the door of our hearts and let in the sunshine and dispel the gloom that we have created for ourselves.—Exchange.

Has Two Meanings.

Troops is used in the plural to mean the same as soldiers, and not including in its meaning the number or whether infantry, cavalry or artillery. The word as generally used in the papers has this meaning. Therefore 2,000 troops means 2,000 soldiers. In the strict cavalry use of the word, however, a troop is the unit of formation, consisting usually of 60 troopers, commanded by a captain and corresponding to a company of infantry.

Contrary to expectation Mr. Yeo, G. T. R. track inspector, who was shot Sunday night, does not know his assailants.

STORY OF EVERY DAY LIFE FOR MISS FREDERICK

GOLDWYN STAR WINS NEW DRAMATIC LAURELS IN "THE PEACE OF ROARING RIVER."

When the beautiful and emotional Pauline Frederick comes to the Grand theatre starting Tuesday and Wednesday, in "The Peace of Roaring River," a new Goldwyn picture, directed by Victor Schertzinger, residents of Peterborough will have an opportunity of seeing this favorite player in the role of a young working woman.

Usually Miss Frederick is presented in photoplays laid amid luxurious surroundings, where she wears gorgeous gowns, jewels, and has servants aplenty, but in this production she lives a plain story of everyday life, no cars, no vast fortune, no polished manners and camouflage—just a girl alone in the world among ordinary people who have big and kindly hearts.

The Goldwyn star said this was her easiest picture because she wears but one dress throughout the action; and there are no hair-dressers, nor maids to worry her about her costumes and appearance. But her superb acting needs no such elegant background; neither does she have to depend on a large number of supporting players. She "gets over" her many colorful emotions so that the beholder is at all times aware of the thoughts and desires that surge through her heart and soul.

"The Peace of Roaring River" runs smoothly, teems with all manner of likely situations; cheers one, and thrills one, so that when it comes to a happy close, the audience is more than pleased, and is decided that the woman hero did everything just as anyone else would have done.

Through the petty jealousy and small talk of an ignorant country postmistress the town is aroused to arms against the woman who has come into their midst supposedly to wed a miner. The irate villagers reach his cabin thinking he had been shot by his financé, and when they attempt to enter, find they have a fighting woman to deal with instead of a mere young girl. Here is where she portrays the battling famale at bay—but to fully appreciate this part of the story, one must see the picture at the Grand theatre.

To Polish Shoes.

The Englishman's shoes, or "boots," are the best looking seen on the feet of any race. The reason for this is that the Englishman puts trees in his shoes, which are polished with the leather thus smoothed out. The softening polish, if applied while the shoe is on the foot, as is usual in America, creases the leather into the shape of the foot and the shoe loses its smooth effect. Trees, which add to the long life of shoes, are inexpensive and should be put in the shoes every night. If you polish your own shoes, try polishing them when on trees. You will be pleased with the result.

Freak Tree.

We are told that in Kentucky there is a tree bearing each year a crop of walnuts and a crop of mulberries, and the curious phenomenon is accounted for by the supposition that a mulberry seed fell where a walnut lay in the ground, and the young shoots came up side by side and united their forces into one solid trunk. This supposition seems feasible from the fact that the bark of the tree is on one side that of walnut and on the other that of the mulberry.

Have Good Light.

If you work at night be sure that you have a good light. Arc lights, because of their glaring rays, are exceedingly injurious. A shaded light is the best substitute at night for diffused daylight. The electric bulbs should either have a dome or a dark paper shade. A gas light composed of mantle and bulb produces a good, diffused light and when placed high enough near the ceiling does not injure the eyes.

Idiot, Genius and Murderer

ROBERT F. STROUD, said to be the most remarkable criminal of whom American penology has any record, is about to appeal to the United States Supreme Court for a new trial. He is now in the Leavenworth penitentiary serving a life sentence for murder, and one can hardly read his record without coming to the conclusion that Stroud is extremely lucky to be alive. He has killed two men, and has made efforts to kill others. One would say that a tiger loose on a city street could be hardly a greater menace to society than Stroud. Looking on the other side of this remarkable murderer one would be equally inclined to believe that, properly developed, he might have proved a mathematical or musical genius, with a brain good enough to make him an outstanding figure in the life of his country. For the man is a sort of Jekyll and Hyde. Of course, he is not sane, and might be cited in favor of Lombroso's theory that a genius is never sane, but of his brilliancy there is no question. No doubt if he were permitted to appear in person before the Supreme Court he would favor that body with an opinion of his case that would excite as profound admiration as that with which Capt. Cuttle was wont to receive the opinions of Jack Bunsby.

Of Stroud's parents, it is briefly announced that they were good people, whose ancestry reveals no taint that might partly account for this amazing criminal. He was born in Seattle, and went to school where nothing remarkable was observed of him. His first known venture in crime was when he stole some opera glasses, and was arrested. His youth pleaded for him and he was released with a warning. Shortly afterwards he went to Juneau, Alaska, and at the age of seventeen took a job as dishwasher in a restaurant. Two days later the cook quit, and Stroud having mastered the art of cooking in the preceding forty-eight hours, took the job, and performed to the entire satisfaction of the customers. Shortly afterward there was a food famine in Juneau, and Stroud got possession of the restaurant. He was able to sell food when it was almost unobtainable elsewhere, and did a tremendous business, until the police, investigating his source of supply, discovered that he was getting his provisions from a gang of thieves. Then followed a jail sentence.

On his release he fell in love with a dance hall girl, and when he found that she had another lover he went to the man's cottage and killed him. He declared that the killing was the result of a fight and escaped with a twelve-year sentence. In the course of his trial the fact was revealed that Stroud had no sense of right and wrong, so far as he himself was concerned, and rather than the prison sentence he appeared to deplore that he was placed in a false position in the eyes of the public. His first day in jail he mastered the rules and the next day amazed his hearers by delivering an address upon them, pointing out their defects and excellencies. Shortly afterward he was discovered with a fellow convict smuggling dope into the penitentiary and selling it for a good profit. The offence was detected through a blunder on the part of his companion, and for this blunder Stroud determined that the man should die. Accordingly, he attacked him with a knife, but failed to complete his murder. Thenceforth, having lost what mitigation of his sentence continued good conduct would have won, he broke all prison rules, and eventually was transferred to Leavenworth.

Arrived there one of his first acts was to make a saw out of a case knife, which he used to dig his way in the direction of a main sewer and liberty. After this a close watch was kept upon him, but this did not prevent him secreting a spoon, which he fashioned into a dagger. With this weapon he sprang upon and stabbed to death Andrew F. Turner, a prison guard, at the noon-day meal, and in the presence of 1,600 convicts. Stroud said that Turner had called him a vile name. This is the crime for which Stroud was given a life sentence, against which he is appealing, and it was while the trial was in progress that criminologists everywhere were interested in the problem presented by Stroud.

In Leavenworth Stroud has continued to baffle his warders and the experts who have come to examine him. Knowing no music, but getting hold of a violin and a guitar, he became an expert performer in three weeks. Through a correspondence course he earned two degrees from the Kansas State Agricultural College, one requiring a profound knowledge of mathematics, the other of engineering. Yet nobody saw him reading except at odd moments. As a mathematician he is said to be remarkable as a lightning calculator and in solving problems in mental arithmetic. Stroud's own explanation is that these gifts of mathematics and music just "come to him on waves." He has studied theosophy, and claims to be able to release his astral body at will. That is one side of him. The other, the idiot side, is in his ignorance of what is due others. When a little kindness is shown, he is in doubt whether to say thanks or to prostrate himself before his benefactor and burst into tears. For any slight or injury, on the other hand, he immediately begins to plot murder, a man's life blood, in his opinion, being necessary to wipe out the memory of the most genial insult. As a final illustration of his gifts, may be mentioned the fact that through correspondence, limited as it is to two letters a week, strictly censored, he has been able to interest outsiders who have furnished the several thousand dollars necessary to have his case brought before the Supreme Court.

CHICAGO'S WHITE SOX TEAM

Wm. Kidd Gleason, manager of the White Sox, is not so old as may persons imagine according to his own admission. The Kid, who is as spry and chipper as a youngster, will have a birthday on Oct. 26 and will be 54 years of age young on that day. Gleason is an old timer—one of the characters of the game. His appointment as manager of the White Sox was a promotion. The Kid was coach and assistant manager under Jimmy Callahan and Clarence Rowland. He was schooled on one of the famous teams of the olden days—the Baltimore Orioles—with John McGraw, Hugh Jennings and other famous baseball men. The Kid bats and does everything right-handed. He is loved by his players and is extremely popular with the fans. In his day Gleason was a fighter, but he is one of the most likable persons in sport and the umpires say he is reasonable and consistent.

Timely Suggestion.

A Brooklyn lady who bought some get-rich-while-you-sleep oil and mining stock recently, is now just too provoked for anything because she didn't examine the shares more closely. Some of them are red, some yellow and some green. She tried to paper her kitchen walls with them after the president of the company disappeared, but the artistic effect was not satisfactory.

In doing your spring shopping for worthless securities, insist on getting stock certificates that harmonize in color. Then you can use them for decorative purposes after the company goes to the wall.

An old piano box covered with the shares of deceased corporations makes a pretty good clothes press, provided the stock matches nicely in shade and texture. Persons who are color blind should be extremely cautious with their wild-cat investments these days.

Predictions Near Fulfillment.

Napoleon prophesised at St. Helena that there would be no kings in Germany a century after his death. Ten years before the Huns broke loose, Lord Roberts predicted that if a great European war came in our days, Ferdinand Foch, who was then an unknown officer, would be one of the most famous actors in it.

A rather neat prediction was made as far back as 1890 by the redoubtable Frenchman, Henri Rochfort, marquess and anarchist.

"We cannot get Alsace-Lorraine back by ourselves," he told an interviewer. "But one day the German eagle will get drunk with pride and will annoy the British bulldog. Then the bulldog will form an alliance with us to kill the eagle, and we shall recover the lost provinces."—London Answers.

Good Pipes From Paper Material.

"Pertinax," one of the most important of substitutes for metal, is a compressed paper material, which has been used in place of lead and copper for pipes for gas, oil and other purposes. From a British war trade report, it appears that these pipes can endure three or four times as great a pressure as lead, while their weight is only one-ninth as great, and they are watertight, insoluble and unaffected by temperatures up to about 200 degrees Centigrade. The tensile strength of the material is 14,000 pounds per square inch, nearly equaling that of the best stamped, sawed-out and drifted, and as an electric insulator approaches porcelain in effectiveness.

An Absolute Untruth

By the Referendum Committee Confusing and Misleading the Public

THE Citizens' Liberty League has discovered what appears to be a deliberate attempt to confuse and mislead the people of Ontario on the forthcoming Referendum.

Flamingly colored and sensational circulars have been sent broadcast over the Province in which it is claimed that—in the words of the advertising as shown in the copy here reproduced—"To vote 'Yes' in one column and 'No' in the others makes your ballot worthless."

That statement by the Referendum Committee is an absolute untruth. And either the Referendum Committee knew it to be untrue when they wrote it, and used it to mislead the public—or, they must confess a childlike ignorance of the whole issue that would be laughable if it were not serious to all the people—who rightly accept the printed word as true and form their opinion accordingly.

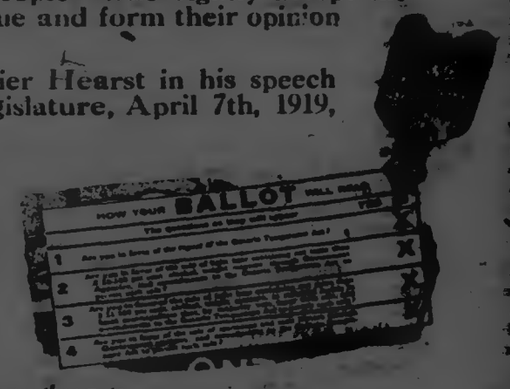
Here is what Premier Hearst in his speech to the Ontario Legislature, April 7th, 1919, distinctly stated:

"To submit the one question set forth in the present Act (The Ontario Temperance Act) would settle nothing—would not, in my opinion, be in the best interests of temperance—because after a vote on that question we would know little more about what the real sentiment of the people is on the subject than we do to-day. We would simply have to take another vote. . . . .

" Honourable gentlemen will note every question is separate.

" . . . . . each question stands by itself.

"On each question the voter must make a deliberate decision and vote accordingly. The full force of public opinion will therefore be recorded for and against each question."



The Citizens' Liberty League conscientiously believes that the only true solution of Ontario's vexed temperance problem is the repeal of The Ontario Temperance Act and the enaction of new legislation that will permit the general sale of light non-intoxicating beer and light wine, and the sale of pure spirituous liquors through Government stores under restrictions which the Government may deem it wise to adopt.

But the Citizens' Liberty League will not stoop to misrepresentation—and it is not going to allow the Referendum Committee to do so unchallenged.

The temperance problem is one of the most vital issues ever faced by the people of this Province. It will never be solved by distortion, misrepresentation and villification, but only through a fair, just and honest presentation and the weighing of the facts.

The Citizens' Liberty League calls upon the Referendum Committee to deal squarely and honestly with the Electorate.

Vote "Yes" to all Four Questions

Mark your ballot with an X. Any other marking will spoil it. Remember also—Every voter must vote on every question or his ballot will be spoiled.

SEVENTEEN STATES RATIFY SUFFRAGE

CHICAGO WOMEN ARE ELATED OVER RECENT SUCCESS OF MOVEMENT.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—Chicago suffragists are jubilant over recent development favorable to their cause throughout the country. They point out the following gains:

Massachusetts ratified the Susan B. Anthony amendment some time ago. New York has also joined the suffragists in ratifying the amendment. Arkansas, Illinois, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, New Hampshire, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas and Wisconsin are all with the suffragists, making, with Utah, seventeen States in all which have ratified the amendment.

In Utah they point approvingly to a special session of the legislature whichr atified the suffragist amendment this week. In Colorado the governor has promised to call a special amendment session for Nov. 15.

Liquor Interests Big Enemies.

"The liquor interests seem to be our big enemies here," say Chicago suffrage leaders. "They have opposed us at every turn. Perhaps it is because they realize that most women are in sympathy with prohibition. However, that is all in the past now, and we hope for smooth sailing as far as the actual getting of the vote is concerned.

"Our next big step will be an educational campaign to teach women how to handle the big weapon they have been given. They must realize that they have a political power now that they must learn to use intelligently. Women who need the vote most, to ameliorate their own conditions, are often the ones who think that it is unwomanly to vote, and simply will not allow themselves to see the immense advantages they could gain for their own individual problems by a systematic campaign to raise the standard of every one.

Biggest Interest Is Home.

"Woman's biggest interest is her home, and when she finds out that the vote will help her to make her home a better place to live in, she is going to jump at the vote eagerly and use all her brains to see how she can best use it, and when we can convince all of the women of that fact, we are going to accomplish big results."

SALVATION ARMY NOTES

The Salvation Army Band will attend the services at Rudely tomorrow. It is the occasion of the memorial service for the late Jos. Scrivins and ministers will be there from Port Hope and Toronto to participate in the services.

The local band is requested to assemble at the Temple at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning as the services at Rudley will be held by Daylight Saving time.

The open air meeting for the local corps will be held at the corner of Simcoe and Stewart streets at 10 o'clock in the morning.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

The services in St. Andrew's Church tomorrow will be special. It is the annual rally day for the congregation in all its departments. The minister will preach in the morning outlining the church's work. At 3 o'clock there will be a rally of the Sunday school and Dr. Allen will hold the first session of a young men's class.

At 7 p.m. a solid bronze memorial tablet, bearing the names of the men of St. Andrew's who gave their lives in the great war, will be unveiled. Capt. T. F. Best, a victim of two wars, who speaks to men in the Allen Theatre in the afternoon under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A., will be the preacher. The Great War Veterans will be present in a body and also the St. Andrew's troop of Boy Scouts. A great rally of young people is expected at the evening service.

HOPE TO EVEN UP THE SERIES TODAY

CHICAGO SOX RE-ASSURED BY YESTERDAY'S SHUT-OUT. CONFIDENT OF VICTORY THIS AFTERNOON.

CIN. REDS READY FOR CICOTTE

EXPECT NO TROUBLE WITH HIS "SHINE" BALLS, OR ANY OTHER TWIRLER.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, Oct. 4.—Reassured by a 3 to 0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in the third game of the world series, Chicago White Sox today declared they were ready to back up Cicotte, their one-time ace, with that fighting spirit that brought them the pennant in the American league, and even up the series, two to two.

Stung by Shutout.

The Reds, stung by the first shutout of the series, after two wins on their home field, didn't believe they again would encounter such pitching as shown by Kerr, the midget pitcher of the White Sox, and asserted their expectations of having no hard time with the "shine" and knuckle ball Cicotte would serve up if he should be Manager Glaeson's choice, or any of the other Sox twirlers. Having militarized themselves with the breeze, shadows and sun spots of Comiskey Park, Manager Moran's pinners of the National league race were confident of a better showing today.

Capacity Will Be Taxed.

Saturday always has been a good baseball day in Chicago, and the crowds that began forming around the park before midnight last night indicated that the 35,000 capacity of the enclosure would be taxed today.

Cool Weather.

Showers and cooler weather for today was the weather prediction that would bring a change from the three days of unexcelled world's series weather.—Already past the 89th mark on total attendance and $286,400 stage in gross receipts, the series gives evidence of producing record figures in both instances.

White Sox Favorites.

Experts say the betting, that opened with the White Sox favorites at 7 and 8 to 5 veered to even money as the Reds smothered the American Leaguers in the first game.

Line-up Today.

Chicago—J. Collins rf, E. Collins 2b, Weaver 3b, Jackson lf, Felsch cf, Gandil 1b, Riesberg ss, Schalk c, Cicotte p.

WOMAN GOLFERS TOURNEY

Sixteen Enter Second Round Play in American Championships.

Shawnee on the Delaware, Pa., Oct. 1.—The sixteen woman golfers who survived the first round of the national championship tournament yesterday swung into action again this morning. The most important contest of the day brought together Miss Alexa Stirling, the national champion, and Miss Marion Hollins, holder of the Metropolitan title, in the first bracket. Second only to this was the match between Miss Mildred Caverly, Philadelphia, and Mrs. W. A. Gavin, the New York star.

QUEEN COULD NOT GET INTO MOVIES

BELGIAN ROYALTY CROWDED OUT OF ALL NEW YORK SHOWS.

New York, Oct. 3.—King Albert of the Belgians, with Queen Elizabeth and Prince Leopold, were formally welcomed to New York shortly before noon today, despite the fact they have been in the city since early yesterday.

The Royal party were met at the Battery by a reception committee and escorted to the City Hall, where the official ceremony took place. At three o'clock this afternoon the Royal party motored to Central Park where they were entertained by 50,000 school children.

The King and Queen "incognito" during last evening essayed to visit a Broadway moving picture show but every theatre they visited displayed the "standing room only" sign, and they were forced to abandon the plan. The Queen, with her lady in-waiting and the Baroness de Cartier de Marchionne then visited a cabaret accompanied by Baron de Cartaman Chimay. King Albert spent the evening chatting with friends.

GOT BACK AT OBJECTOR

Indiana Slacker Farmers Had Trouble in Getting Grain Threshed.

Carmel, Oct. 1.—Farmers living northwest of Carmel, who said they were conscientious objectors in the world war, and who have been unable to persuade owners of threshing machines in this region to thresh their wheat, finally obtained a threshing outfit from Tipton County for the work. It was owned by a conscientious objector, it is said.

Many times during the work, which has just been completed, the machine was stopped for repairs, owing to the fact that horseshoes, nails, barbed wire and harrow teeth were concealed in the sheaves. The machine workers were in almost constant danger from the iron concealed in the sheaves, but all escaped injury. It is said the wheat must remain stored or taken to a market where the farmers are unknown, as the buyers in this country refuse to handle the grain.

who had gone there with the intention of robbery and crime. He feelingly pleaded with the jury to be lenient to this boy and if they could not acquit him they could at least reduce his guilt to manslaughter, the lesser crime with the lesser punishment.

Judge's Charge to the Jury.

After this feeling appeal, that should, it would appear, melt the heart of any man, the Judge laid the bare cold facts and circumstances before the jury.

The Judge explained to the Jury what murder is and what may be considered manslaughter. He then explained how a whole party of men who were connected with the crime could all be equally guilty of the crime whether they each fired a shot or not.

He pointed out to the Jury that this man was capable of dividing his spoil shortly after the crime. He asked the jury to take that fact into their consideration when determining whether or not this man did what he did, fully aware of his crime, or was he insane by the use of liquor.

He asked the gentlemen of the jury to perform their duty according to the law and the evidence, and not let any personal feelings influence their verdict.

DR. HALLAM AT ALL SAINTS' FESTIVAL

THANKSGIVING SERVICE WELL ATTENDED LAST NIGHT.

ALL ANGLICAN CLERGY UNITE

SERVICE PARTLY CHORAL. — CHOIR REFLECTS CREDIT ON THE CHOIRMASTER.

A large congregation took part in the Harvest Festival at All Saints' church last evening when the whole service throughout reflected a tone of joy and thanksgiving. The service was partly choral, the psalms being sung instead of read as on ordinary occasions, and a strong choir rendered musical offerings which testified to excellent training under choirmaster Mr. Geo. Chandler.

The rector, Rev. R. B. Grobb was assisted by Canon Davidson, of St. John's Church, Rev. W. H. White of St. Luke's and Rev. James Price of St. George's.

The sacred edifice presented a bountiful appearance in its dressing of fruits of the field, garden and orchard, and had been decorated with a taste seldom, if ever, equalled in All Saints'.

Avoid Pessimism.

Dr. Hallam, of Wycliffe College Toronto, was the special for this occasion, and for his really eloquent discourse took the theme of joy and thankfulness for present and past mercies, and urged his hearers against unwarranted pessimism. He recognized that in this fair Dominion thankfulness for present blessings is too frequently mingled with misgivings for the future. This, he thought especially the case today, but in his opinion, we are on the peak of an unrest, which will have vanished in two years, giving way to normal conditions and an era of increased prosperity. Unrest and hard times have always follow British wars, together with apprehension for a national starvation which has never yet been experienced. And, the speaker declared, history will repeat itself in this regard now.

The reverend gentleman was thankful that war with Germany had impelled habits of thrift, sobriety and a brotherhood of man in harmonizing of nation-building principles in Canada, which seemed impossible of accomplishment without some such terrible upheaval as the past world struggle.

In his opinion, selfishness is generally at the root of restlessness and apprehension reflects lack of faith in God's promised protection of Christian peoples. Prosperity he deplored, had a tendency to create a spirit of dissatisfaction, and, generally speaking, Canada never knew what Easter really stood for until Easter joy in 1915 had been overshadowed by that terrible death toll and German menace overseas, followed in 1919, however, by an exuberance of Easter joy and individual and national thankfulness for God's guiding hand to victory.

Then on the battlefield did fall.
Your death to us was a cruel blow,
That none but a grieving heart can know.

There are five simple ways to tell good tea.

First, by the bright copper color of the tea when steeped.

Second, by the exquisite aroma.

Third, by the delightful, refreshing flavor.

Fourth, by the satisfying richness.

Fifth, by the economical strength.

Make a brewing and you will find all these qualities combined in Red Rose.

102 AT HAMILTON, BERMUDA

Mrs. D. Wainwright Writes of Heat in the West Indies.

The unexpected warmth yesterday draws our attention toward the difference in weather conditions in different climates.

A letter was received recently, written about one week ago, from Mrs. D. Wainwright, formerly of this city but now of Hamilton, Bermuda. As she was writing the letter at 8 o'clock in the evening it was 102 degrees inside the house.

She spoke of going to the shore of the island a few days before and bathing in the ocean, where the surf is cast up upon the shore and the bright moon glows upon the canoe and the white sand presenting a magnificent spectacle.

This scene is hard to realize as happening now, while our leaves are turning color and dropping to the ground.

GREAT RAILWAY STRIKE IS ENDED

PREMIER HEARST IS ACCORDED HEARTY RECEPTION TO THE CITY

Met at the Depot by Large Delegation and Lunched With Citizens at the Empress—Programe for Meeting Tonigt

Sir William Hearst, Premier of Ontario, who will address a mass meeting in the Grand Opera House tonight, arrived in the city at noon today by C. P. R train, and on this his first visit to Peterborough was accorded an enthusiastic reception by prominent citizens regardless of party. Sir William appears to be in the best of health and looks like a man who is not worrying as to the future. Among those at the depot to welcome him to the city were Senator McHugh of Lindsay, Mayor Duncan, E. A. Peck, W. R. Morris, ex-Ald. Dobbin, R. J. Soden, T. E. Bradburn, C. S. McClelland, Roland Denne, R. H. Turner, J. G. Stewart, Frank Adams.

The Premier rode to the Empress Hotel in an auto, accompanied by Messrs. Peck, Denne and Morris, and lunched at that hotel with a large party of citizens. He was taken later on a tour and was shown all points of interest in the city.

President Denne and Reg H. Turner of the Exhibition Board took the Premier to the Fair grounds, where he was much impressed with the extent and modern equipment of the home of Peterboro's popular Fair. The object of this visit was by way of preparation for a request for legislative aid to establish a fat stock show for Eastern Ontario, to be located in Peterborough, such an institution as they have in Guelph and to which the Provincial Government makes an annual grant of $25,000. There is no such exhibition at present anywhere east of Toronto.

THE PROGRAM TONIGHT.

The convention tonight for the nomination of a legislative candidate will open in G. W. V. A. Hall at 8 o'clock. C. S. McClelland, vice-president of the Liberal-Conservative Association, will preside at the convention, which it is expected will be over by 8:30, when the delegates will adjourn to the mass meeting at the Opera House. President Charles Moore will preside at the mass meeting, and the nominee of the convention will make an address.

G. W. Clydesdale, secretary of the Ontario Liberal-Conservative Association, is in the city to look over the local field and to attend the meeting tonight. Mr. Clydesdale's duties have carried him to all points of the Province, and he says that the prospects are unusually bright for a sweeping victory for Premier Hearst and the Ontario Temperance Act. Mr. Clydesdale is a former resident of Dummer township.

From 2:30 to 3:30 the Premier received the women voters of the city.

At the Luncheon.

Those who attended the luncheon were as follows: Mayor Duncan, F. H. Dobbin, W. R. Morris, T. E. Bradburn, R. Denne, T. Barrie, E. A. Peck, Dr. W. A. Morrison, R. J. Soden, F. H. Dawson, S. T. Medd, Ald. Edgar, J. J. Turner, W. H. Moore, W. G. Clydesdale.

BOTH MEN AND GOVT. MAKE CONCESSIONS STRIKERS RETURNING TO THEIR POSTS

Present Wage Scale to Continue for Twelve Months Instead of Six—No Recriminations on Eithier Side—Union Agrees That its Men Shall Work Harmoniously With Those Who Returned to Work.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Oct. 6 — British railway workers were returning to their posts today, both the strikers and government had made concessions, which ended this country's greatest labor menace in history.

Relief Expressed.

Newspapers express relief and satisfaction over the settlement of the railroad strike.

The majority of papers maintain neither side is entitled to claim victory, but The Post says the strike was a disastrous failure, and the menace of the triple alliance is destroyed, while The Graphic says the Government yielded too much. The Labor Herald claims a great victory, saying an attempt of the Government and capitalists to smash trade unionism and establish low wages has been defeated, and the Geddes Brothers routed.

London, Oct. 5.—With dramatic suddenness in the quiet of the London Sunday afternoon, it was announced to a knot of people waiting in Downing Street that the great railway strike, which appeared to have brought the country almost to the brink of revolution, was settled, and that the strikers would resume work as quickly as possible.

The terms of the settlement are in the nature of a compromise. The National Union of Railwaymen agrees to call of the strike, and the Government consents to a renewal of the negotiations, the continuance of the existing wage scale for another year, instead of six months, as previously offered, and the establishment of a minimum wage of 51 shillings while the cost of living is 110 per cent. above the pre-war level.

The settlement was the result of a long conference to-day between a Trade Union delegation, including representatives of the Railwaymen's Union, and Premier Lloyd George and Andrew Bonar Law in the famous conference room in Downing Street. Prior to this there was a Cabinet meeting.

It is conceded on all sides that the settlement is the outcome of the moderate but determined efforts of the executive of the Transport Workers' Federation and men like Arthur Henderson and John Robert Clynes, who throughout have set their faces steadily against the idea of a sympathetic strike until every possible avenue of mediation has been explored.

"Abide With Me."

James Henry Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, had a tremendous ovation tonight when he appeared to address some five thousand of the men at Albert Hall. It was an impressive moment, when, after the hurricane of cheering subsided, the audience rose and sang, "Abide With Me."

Secretary Thomas, in the course of his speech, paid a warm tribute to the "great and worthy part" the Premier had played in assisting them to reach what Mr. Thomas would not claim as victory, but an "honorable settlement." It was the Premier who had invited the deputation to see him today, and there had been no question whatever of asking the men to surrender.

Secretary Thomas claimed that this had been the greatest fight of organized workers in history, and that it had been conducted solidly, loyally, peaceably and orderly, and in this, he believed, the railwaymen had given an example to the world.

Ended in Banquet.

The conference in Downing Street was a very friendly affair. All present seemed to anticipate a settlement, and after Premier Lloyd George had explained the new terms he left the delegates to discuss them. When the luncheon hour arrived, the Premier suggested that all stay, instead of separating. A raid was made on the Downing Street commissariat, and, finding it equal to the needs of the large party, a joint meal followed, the Premier's secretaries carrying the joint and assisting in carving it, while jokes flew around the table.

TERMS OF SETTLEMENT

London, Oct. 6.—The official terms of settlement of the railwaymen's strike are as follows:

1.—Work shall be resumed immediately.

2.—Negotiations will be resumed on the understanding that they shall be completed before the end of the year.

3.—Wages will be stabilized at the present level until Sept. 30, 1920, and at anytime after Aug. 1 they may be reviewed in the light of circumstances then existing.

4.—No adult railwayman in Great Britain shall receive less than 51 shillings per week while the cost of living is 110 per cent. above the pre-war level.

5.—The Railway Union agree that the men will work harmoniously with the men who returned to work or who remained at work during the strike. Nor shall there be any victimization of strikers.

6.—Arrears of wages will be paid on resumption of work.

TABLET IN MEMORY OF SOLDIER DEAD OF ST. ANDREW'S UNVEILED

Touching and Impressive Service Attended by War Veterans Boy Scouts and Large Congregation—Memory of Twelve Heroes Perpetuated—Address by Capt T. F. Best.

The memory of twelve gallant members of St. Andrew's Church, who went forth in all the glory of early manhood in defence of home and country, and who were called upon to make the supreme sacrifice, was perpetuated last evening when a memorial tablet, to keep for ever green their courage and heroism, was unveiled in the progence of a large congregation.

The sacred building was taxed to its utmost capacity, the occasion being a service in memory of the men of the church who had served in the great war, and especially of those who had died in that stupendous struggle for liberty and self-determination among nations—the weak as well as the strong—victoriously concluded on Armistice Day, November 11, 1918.

Great War Veterans attended in good strength—most of them in uniform—accompanied by their band, and they occupied the central portion of the church, while on their right flank were seated St. Andrew's Troop of Boy Scouts.

Canada's national flag had a conspicuous place across the pipes of the organ immediately back of the pastor's platform, while the memorial tablet on the face of the pulpit was fittingly veiled with twin Union Jacks. And these national ensigns, beneath and between which Capt (Rev.) James Rollins, pastor, and Capt. T. F. Best, conducted the proceedings, dressed in khaki, together with two or three hundred khaki-clad veterans in the body of the church, irresistibly carried one in memory to those trying military years that tested the strength, courage and tenacity of this Dominion, and to the great needs of which Canadians, men and women both, rose in their might and were not found wanting.

Fronting the veiled tablet stood a large memorial wreath of the deepest of dark purple laurel leaves lightly tipped at the bottom with a spray of delicate green foliage, and half encircled with twelve pure white lilies, each lily representing the sacrificed life of one of St. Andrew's soldier heroes. Across this wreath and tied with a bow was a broad purple ribbon bearing the inscription, "To those who served." This beautiful floral tribute, made up by the Peterborough Floral Co., was touchingly typical of a whole congregation's mourning for their young men who went forth to fight the great fight, and never returned. Flanking the pulpit, right and left were two large bouquets, the dominating color in which was mourning purple.

The Unveiling.

Midway in the service Mrs. George Laing and Mrs. W. G. Read, each of whom have lost a son at the front, unveiled the memorial tablet, which is of dark metal bordered by a thin line of brass, and on the face of which the names of the dead stand forth in bold Roman letter relief, also in brass.

The Dead Heroes.

This memory-perpetuating tablet is suitably inscribed as follows:

CINCINNATI WINS FIFTH GAME OF WORLD'S SERIES IN CHICAGO

Today's Game Five to Nothing in Favor of the Reds Who Put up Wonderful Contest From the Start.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Rain fell heavily Sunday and soaked Comiskey Park to such an extent that it was impossible to play the fifth game of the world's series between the Cincinnati Reds and the Chicago White Sox. The sun came out in the afternoon, and the game will be played today unless there is a further deluge.

Weather is Ideal.

With the rays of the sun becoming stronger each minute the fifth game of the world championship baseball series gave promise of being played in weather only a little short of what experts agree upon as ideal for baseball. The playing field was rapidly drying out from the drenching it experienced yesterday, although it is hardly probable that the baselines from the plate to first and third bases will be quite as fast as they were on Friday and Saturday. Tarpaulins were placed over the field Saturday night and were not removed until this morning.

Batting Order.

The batting order is as follows:

Chicago—Liebold, rf; Ed Collins, 2b; Weaver, 3b; Jackson, lf; Felsch, cf; Gandil, 1b; Risenberg, ss; Schalk, c; Williams, p.

Cincinnati—Rath, 2b; Daubert, 1b; Groh, 3b; Rousch, cf; Duncan, lf; Kopf, ss; Neale, rf; Rariden, c; Ruether or Eller, p.

Batteries

Cincinnati—Eller and Rariden.
Chicago—Williams and Schalk.

First Inning.

Cincinnati — No runs. Not hits. No errors.

Rath started the game by drawing a pass off Williams. Daubert laid down a sacrifice, Schalk throwing him out at first. Rath easily made second on the play. Groh sent a hi ngfly to Felsch and Rath held second. Rousch out, Gandil to Williams.

Chicago—No runs. One hit. No errors.

Liebold walked. E. Collins out, Kopf to Daubert. Liebold made second. Weaver singled, the ball hitting Eller's hands but proving too hot to handle. Liebold dashed to third and arrived safely. Jackson popped up a high one to Groh. Felsch sent a high fly to Duncan.

Second Inning.

Cincinnati—No runs, No hits, No errors.

Duncan fanned. Schalk backed and made an easy put out on Kopf's high foul. Neale fanned. Williams had his underhand ball working fine keeping his shoots around the players' knees.

Chicago—No runs. No hits. No errors.

Gandil took breezy swings at the ball but only connected with the atmosphere. Riesberg also fanned, going out on called strikes. Schalk fanned. Eller had perfect control of his fast ball and retired the side by striking out Gandil, Riesberg and Schalk.

Third Inning.

Cincinnati — No runs. No hits. No errors.

Gandil took Rariden's grounder back off first and beat him to the bag. Eller sent on straight into the air that Weaver came over to the plate for and captured. Rath popped an easy foul to Gandil. Williams also seemed to be working in mid season form.

Chicago—No runs. No hits. No errors.

The record for a world's series play was made in the second inning when the catchers made all put outs. Williams struck out, the last strike being called on him. Liebold also

WOMEN DECLINE TO SCRUB FLOORS

WILL ONLY GO DOWN ON THEIR KNEES FOR PRAYERS THESE DAYS.

JUST LIGHT WORK YOU KNOW

GOOD-BYE FOREVER TO DAYS OF TACKLING DIRTY BOARDS WITH SOAP

Toronto, Oct 6 — Women won't scrub floors anymore. The days of getting down on their hands and knees and tackling dirty floors with good soap, warm water and a good-sized scrubbing brush, have passed and gone forever, together with a good many other old-fashioned habits of cleanliness.

This fact was brought to light by a little woman who is in the throes of moving from her country to her city home. To get a woman to work by the day, she went to the domestic department of the Government Employment Bureau. A woman was secured to rthe day at 25 cents an hour.

When the lady started her on her job, all unsuspecting she put into her hand a scrubbing brush and soap. "Oh! ma'm, but I don't scrub floors," the wash woman said, "I just clean—light work you know," and the floor went unscrubbed. Yesterday the woman went to the employment bureau and this time definitely asked for a woman who would scrub floors.

"But we haven't got any," she was told. "Woman won't do that nowadays. Possibly we have about three who will do it—but they always ask for an extra 10 cents an hour, and they're always busy. Maybe if you go to the men's department you can get a man for the job at 45 cents an hour." But the little woman didn't go—and she was considerably enlightened as to what and what not women labor would do.

KING AND QUEEN OF BELGIUM AT NIAGARA FALLS, CANADA TODAY

Met by N. W. Rowell and Sir Jos. Pope on Behalf of Canadian Government—Their Highnesses Praises Canucks Who Fought for Belgian and the World Liberties.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Niagara Falls, Oct. 6 — King Albert of Belgium with Queen Elizabeth and their eldest son, Prince Leopold, arrived from Boston at 9 o'clock this morning, and after viewing the American falls crossed over about noon to the Canadian side, where they were met by Hon. N. W. Rowell, Sir Joseph Pope and others representing the Government of Canada.

Late in Crossing.

The royal party were later crossing to the Canadian side than was expected, because King Albert insisted upon showing his queen points of interest viewed by him on a visit years ago but which his guides had omitted from the program.

Notified Sunday.

The Canadian authorities were notified only on Sunday of the intention of the royal party to cross into Canada. The visit was purely informal and no speeches were made.

King Albert and Rowell.

On meeting the reception party at the middle of the bridge, King Albert exchanged greetings with Mr Rowell and expressed pleasure on visiting the country of so many brave fellows who had fought for Belgium and the liberties of the world. The partyremained about one hour and were driven about the park, greatly admiring the wonders of the Horseshoe Falls.

A. H. Peart of Hamilton to Testify for Imperial Reservists—G. W. V. A. Case Presented by G. C. MacNeal

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, Oct. 6—A lively session is anticipated today when A. H. Peart of Hamilton testifies before the parliamentary committee on soldiers' civil re-establishment.

Imperial Reservists.

Peart requested permission last week for a delegate to appear on behalf of the Imperial reservists. No definite action was taken, and G. C. MacNeil, Dominion secretary of the G. W. V. A., was requested by the chairman to communicate with Peart as he is also an official of the G. W. V. A.

Persisted in Claims.

Peart, however, has persisted in his claims for representation, notwithstanding that Major Schaarschmidt of British Columbia and Capt. G. F. C. Wheeler, Dominion President of the Imperial Veterans, have included the cause of the Imperial reservists when giving evidence.

Peart has been granted leave to appear, as the result of further correspondence with the committee.

It is also expected that the case for the G. W. V. A. will be presented by Secretary MacNeil today.

Jas. Low, a well-known Ottawa conarctor, was drowned in the Rideau Canal.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1919

MR. GILLESPIE'S POSITION.

THE REVIEW shares in the general public confidence in the probity of Mr. G. A. Gillespie, for the second time nominee of the Liberal party for the Legislature. Not one word can with justification be spoken against him as a citizen, as a business man, or as a public official, whether the light be turned upon his record in the latter capacity either as a civic or legislative representative. The Review repeats what it said on the day following Mr. Gillespie's nomination, that if he is defeated the reverse will be due not to his own demerits but to his associations and the leadership under which it is his misfortune to serve.

Mr. Gillespie was nominated at a convention in which Hartley Dewart was hailed as the hope of the Province. If Mr. Gillespie is elected, his election will mean another step for Hartley Dewart toward the premiership of the Province, and once Mr. Dewart gains power what have the people of Ontario to hope for on the great issue now before them? A vote for Mr. Gillespie means a vote for Mr. Dewart as premier. The latter was chosen leader not by the party as a whole but by a faction ready to sacrifice principle and tradition for the sake of power. A platform to fit his conscience and to enhance his political opportunities was prepared and adopted. If the Ontario Temperance Act is defeated and Mr. Dewart returned to power there will be a reversion to the old days when the liquor interests was the main fighting weapon of the Liberals. If the Act is sustained and Mr. Dewart is still successful, there is nothing to prevent him so amending the measure as to render it practically of no effect.

Even the leading Liberal papers of the Province have no faith in their new leader. Why, then, should the people be asked to trust him?

GRILLING SERGT. FLYNN.

A LOCAL contemporary repeats the innuendo that first appeared in a Toronto paper to the effect that Sergt. Flynn, head of one section of the Veterans, is an ignorant and unlettered man. Leaving out of consideration altogether the merits of the claim made by Sergt. Flynn and his followers, his literacy and his mathematical attainments did not interfere with his service in the war or prevent his promotion in the service. When he appeared before the commission at Ottawa, members of that body, too, sought to cast aspersions upon his race and religion. Neither of these, we take it, was questioned when he enlisted for military duty, and neither should be held up against him now as a reproach.

DEBATES IN PARLIAMENT.

THE QUESTION of saving the time and money of the public by limiting the debates in Parliament has been discussed in the House, to little purpose, it would appear, for all that is likely to come out of it. The very speeches made while that subject was before the members is sufficient proof of the burning necessity for such a rule.

Anyone who reads Hansard or the parliamentary reports in the big daily papers will agree that there is time wasted in Parliament and that much is said which were better left unuttered. At the opening of every session there is a debate on the Address in which all the old political straw is flailed again. There are on these occasions as many vain and useless repetitions as there are in the heathen's prayer. Members prominent in either party reaffirm this year what they have been saying throughout their parliamentary career.

The repetition does not stop with this time-honored debate. After the Address is disposed of the various matters to which it refers come up again for separate discussion and the same tornado of oratory is repeated.

All speeches made in the House are reported verbatim in Hansard, but the field of that publication as a popular production is limited. The metropolitan papers report at length, as a rule, only the addresses of prominent members. The young man serving his first term in the House, and who often has a message really worth listening to, is generally ignored.

It is when the House is in Committee of the Whole that the waste of time is most apparent. Freedom of speech is a right, but it is a right which is too often abused. It does not, however, sanction repetitions that have no higher object than to gain a party advantage by embarrassing the Administration and so delaying the proceedings. When the House is in regular session the rules of debate are well defined and are rigidly enforced. Every member who takes the floor must confine himself to the question before the House and is not allowed to speak more than once. There is, however, no limit as to the length of time each member may talk, no matter if he empties the House.

When Parliament resolves itself into a Committee of the Whole, every member can speak as often as he likes. It is all a question of physical endurance. He can also bring in matter that the most liberal minded are unable to regard as relevant. On occasion the House of Commons at Ottawa has been kept in constant session day and night for a week at a time, the arrival of Sunday alone serving to bring the proceedings to a halt. The object of the members in this case is to talk a measure to death. Men have been known, when they had exhausted all their own oratorical resources, to read dry reports for hours at a time, and then repeat this form of torture by beginning all over again. The killing of time was their single aim.

The time of Parliament could beyond all question be conserved, and that to the advantage of the public business, if there was not only a time limit on debate, just as there is on those rare occasions when closure is applied, but if there were fewer members of the House. One man, especially if he devote all his time to his public duties, could represent four or five of the present constituencies just as easily and effectively as he now does a single county or electoral riding. Canada's Government is beyond all question the most expensive of that of any civilized nation.

WHEN PREMIER HEARST STOOD UP.

THE EXAMINER repeats the assertion made at the Liberal convention by a lawyer from Toronto that Premier Hearst—at the time a Cabinet minister—stood up in his place in the Legislature and voted against shortening the hours for the sale of liquor. Our contemporary should not permit itself to be misled by any imported slippery orator.

In the session of 1913 the present Premier of Ontario stood up in his place in the Legislature and voted for lopping off two hours from the liquor man's working day, compelling him to keep his bar closed until 8 a.m. instead of opening at 6 o'clock as formerly. This was a long step on advance, as it ensured that the workingmen of the Province would go to their employment without the opportunity of impairing their efficiency by the indulgence in the barroom.

Sir William Hearst was Premier of Ontario when it was decreed toward the close of the second year of the war that all bars should close at 8 p.m. instead of remaining open until 11. That order may have been promulgated by the Board of License Commissioners, but the Government to which Sir William Hearst belonged had created that Board and was responsible for its action. Sir William, when the Legislature met, stood up in his place and approved of what the Board, really a part of the Government, had done in this instance.

Sir William Hearst, before he became Premier, stood up in his place in the Legislature and supported measures which closed the bars of the Province on Good Friday and other legal holidays. He rose to his feet upon every opportunity to make the working of the old license law more drastic.

The records of the two parties are before the people. Orators, even Toronto lawyers imported for the purpose, cannot hope to deceive or mislead the people, and misguided or misinformed newspapers playing cheap politics are in the same boat. The present Administration came into power in 1905, and since that time have done more to advance the cause of temperance than the Liberals did in thirty-two years. The numbered ballot, by which it was possible to hold the liquor interests in solid political phalanx, was abolished. The hours of sale were shortened, and more "closed days" for the traffic instituted. The creation of a non-partizan Board of License Commissioners was, short of the enactment of the Ontario Temperance Act, the longest progressive step of all. The license law was enforced as it never was under the Liberal regime.

Sir James Whitney always told the people of Ontario that when they supplied him with a mandate for the enactment of prohibiton he would carry out their desires. The people had faith in the integrity of the late Premier. When the mandate to which he referred was given in unmistakable terms, Sir James Whitney, unfortunately, was not alive to redeem his pledge, but his successor in office, Sir William Hearst, has kept the faith.

The Maid: "If I am the first, how does it happen you do it so expertly?"

The Man: "And if I am the first, how do you know whether I do it expertly or not?"

Very Accommodating.

"How did you get on?"

The sweet maiden breathed the words into her lover's manly ear as she met him in the passage. He had been "seeing father," and she wanted to know the result.

"Oh, your father is heartless!" said the young man indignantly. "I, I told him I could not live without you, and—"

"Yes, yes"—impatiently. "What did he say?"

"He merely offered to pay my funeral expenses—"

CARTER FOR WELLINGTON.

Five Years a Member is Again Liberal Nominee.

Guelph, Ont., Oct. 6.—Sam Carter who represented South Wellington in the legislature during the last five years, will again contest the riding as the result of a large Liberal convention at the city hall Saturday afternoon when his candidature was endorsed. No other name was brought before the convention. Mr. Carter censured the Hearst Government in many matters. He came out as an out and out prohibitionist and stated most emphatically that we would vote "No" on all four questions as regards the referendum.

POLITICAL CONFUSION IN CANADA

There has been a sad mix-up in most of the world's affairs; political situations in almost all countries are in a confused state of which almost any kind of change may be possible. Canada is not exempt from the confusion and uncertainty. The Unionist Government formed in 1917 by a coalition of leading Conservatives and Liberals, is still in power, but is visibly weakened through retirements.

Shall the coalition, formed for the carrying on of the war, be continued now that the war is over? Is a Unionist party to become a permanent institution in the affairs of the Dominion? If not, when shall the union end and old party system be resumed? That there must at no distant day be a return to something like the old party lines is held by many within and without the present Unionist party. But there are many who, attaching little importance to the points of difference between Liberals and Conservatives, hold that the Government should be carried on as a Unionist one, and that whatever Unionist organization there has been in the country during the past two years should be continued and expanded. What may be the outcome of these conflicting views within the Unionist ranks not easily seen.

Nor is all smooth in the ranks of those who call themselves Liberals. The recent Liberal Convention brought about a considerable measure of union between the two sections of the Liberal party. But that re-union has not been complete. As seen in the situation in the House of Commons. Many of the members who still claim the name of Liberals did not participate in the Convention and they are not yet prepared to join the organized Liberal party. What line will these gentlemen take in the new situation that is being created?

To add to the confusion the United Farmers and the organized Labor bodies are coming into the political arena, either separately or, as in some cases, in union, declaring themselves against the Government, and against both the old parties. There is every probability that he next general election will send quite a large number of the representatives of these classes to the House of Commons. They will not be numerous enough to undertake the responsibilities of government, but they may be numerous enough to become a very disturbing influence and menace to the Government of the day, whatever party may be in power. We shall have less rigid party lines than in former times. There will be groups of members who may at any time move from one side to the other.

Perhaps these new conditions will make for greater independence of thought and action, and that should be beneficial. But on the other hand the new situation will not make for stability of government, and stability of government is likely to be much needed. The country may have to pass through a period of political unrest and confusion before it reaches the settled conditions that are desirable.

THE NEGRO PROBLEM IN THE UNITED STATES

(New York Sun)

A strong effort is being made by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People to get Senator Curtis's resolution for a Senatorial investigation of the race problem as it effects negroes reported favorably by the Committee on Judiciary which is now considering it.

The association has prepared a brief in which it declares that up to October 1 race riots involving negroes occurred in 1919 in Washington, D. C.; Chicago, Ill., Omaha, Neb.; Knoxville, Tenn.; Longview, Tex; Norfolk, V. A.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Charlestown, S.C. and Bisbee, Ariz. What are classified as "race clashes" by the association occurred in 28 towns from Connecicut to Louisiana. According to the same authority forty-three negroes and four white men were lynched between January 1 and September 14. In the period 1889-1918, the association says, 2,492 negroes fifty negresses, 691 white men and eleven white women were lynched in the United States.

Assuming these statements to be reasonably accurate, they disclose a shameful record of lawlessness, of official incompetence or neglect of duty by the public authorities. Yet, alarming though this record is, it does not tell the whole story, and if a Senatorial inquiry will bring out that story it must consider other things besides the police blotter.

To bring it out, to lay all the facts before the American people, the Senate must go behind the barbarities of lynch law and the barbarities of mob rule and expose the political chicanery which allows a black man to be counted as an American citizen in the apportionment of Representatives in Congress, and consequently for the apportionment of electors of President and Vice-President, but bars him from the polls when he seeks to vote as white citizens vote.

A Senatorial investigation directed to showing up police chiefs unequal to their duties, sheriffs false to their oaths, and cowardly Governors would not do much good. An inquiry which honestly and fearlessly tackled the situation of the negro in its political aspects as well as in its social aspects would at least give the American people an opportunity to comprehend the extent of the negro problem and to understand the futility of attempts to solve it by meeting only local outbreaks by or against depraved individuals of the negro race.

"Music for Medicine"
Proves Popular Idea

Approaching the problem of opening new sales channels for phonographs and records was accomplished very successfully last summer by working up interest in phonograph music among the sick and bedridden of the population of Bethlehem, Allentown, Hellertown, Coplay, Easton and a score of Lehigh Valley towns.

The inspiration came to the management through circulation of that story of the Yankee doughboy whose memory after shell shock was revived by "The Little Gray Home in the West," played in a neuropathic hospital in France and when investigation into the music-o-therapy theory was made, Huff's realized that they had a big field open to them.

It was found that Mrs. Maude Ilda Ilsen, head of the department of music-therapy, was director of music in reconstruction hospitals for the American Red Cross and that by co-ordinating music with King Sane heroes were being made "well, happy and wise."

Like Medicine Ads.

Her methods were studied and then the Huff establishment ran advertisements which took the breath of patrons. They read like drug store copy. For instance one leader line on a page spread was, "Safe, Sane and Satisfactory Compounding of Prescribed Music."

Another stated that "well trained and experienced clerks and most modern facilities make possible the giving of an unequal personal service."

Then followed an explanation of the work done by Mrs. Ilsen in cooperation with doctors and surgeons in all kinds of sanitoria and hospitals with the pungent advice to read in the book of Samuel how King Saul, heir to diseases of the mind and soul, was "refreshed and well" when David played the harp. People were urged to take seriously this story from Holy Writ, the Huff advertisements claiming that Doctor Ilsen considered it the first authentic account of the therapeutic use of music in treating bodily ailments.

Now Huff's run big space advertisements which they call prescriptions. The lists are taken from the selection used in Red Cross hospitals and are those which Mrs. Ilsen uses in her work.

INSOMNIA

Evening Meditation—Raff
Ave Maria—Schubert (Violin)
Lullaby—Song—Ware

RHEUMATISM

Toccata—Bach
Rondo—Sonata, Opus 53; Presto con fuoco, Opus 31; Rondo from Sonata, Opus 49, No. 1; Minuette from Opus 49, No. 3, Beethoven.
Serenade—Schubert.
Reverie—Schutt.

HYSTERIA

Barcarole—Les Contes des Hogmann—Offenbach.
Moonlight Sonata, first movement—Beethoven.
To a Wild Rose (Celesta)—MacDowell.

DYSPEPSIA

La Cinquintaine—Gabriel Marie.
Tamborourin Chinois—Kreisler.
Hungarian Dances—Brahms.
Spanish Dances—Sarasate.
Hungarian Etude—MacDowell.
To The Sea—MacDowell.
Prelude—Rachmaninoff.
Mazurka, A Minor—Chopin.
Spring Waltz, D flat major—Carse.
March Grotesque—Singing.
Invitation to the Waltz—Weber.

Incurable diseases, neurasthenia, heart trouble, aphasia, liver diseases all are being prescribed for by Huffs and none of their staff has passed the state pharmaceutical board.

The public likes something new and the Huff service carries a message of hope to many households where some loved ones suffers. Those who have ever been in such a case know how people will grasp at anything that might carry even the remote flush of hope of relief—and the result has been that the Huff prescriptions are being rushed for big business.

It has its educational side as well, inasmuch as people are finding the beauties of the classical compositions and are getting away from the ragtime selections of which they so quickly tire.

Doctors have declared that the Huff service is based on sound medical practice, quoting the use of music in asylums and psychopathic wards. They have told patients to try the records and as a result in some instances, people have overcome their pet antipathy to the talking machine and have purchased phonographs because they must have them to take their medicine.

Big Policeman Living Testimonial

When a traffic cop in Kansas City bought a pair of cush on-sole shoes on a peculiar last, the shoe man from whom he bought them got a hunch.

This officer was unusually large, a man whom folks would notice. And his personality was such that one would remember him. He had many friends among the passersby. So one day the shoe man arranged a window of the shoes, making his appeal to men in search of foot comfort. He had the officer bring down his portrait and write a testimonial letter. This was placed in the display with the portrait. Then at the left side of the center of the display he set up a pointing hand on a post. The hand was cut from wall board. Lettered on it was:

Jerry, the traffic officer, whom you see at his corner, is on his feet all day. He weighs 290 pounds. He wears our cushion-sole shoes. That's why he smiles all day long.

Needless to say, the hand pointed in Jerry's direction. People would read the sign, glance toward the officer and then take a look at the shoes.

Stage Illusion to Make People Look

There is a certain dealer in Scranton, Pa., who, in spite of the fact that he placed good-looking clothes in his window all winter long, didn't seem to have much success with his displays. The mild weather which marked last winter throughout the country also hurt his trade, and he determined that he was going to make people stop in front of his window if he had to go out and halt them himself.

But before he tried this he took a large piece of timber and cut off one end diagonally just above the tin. He then glued a small section out side the window and put the other part of the plank inside the pane. To the passerby it looked as though the piece of timber had fallen, the end crashing through the big plate glass.

"Yes," said the dealer a few days later, "it did the trick. The people stopped to see what happened, and the price cards which they read in my window convinced them that the goods were worth while."

If We Don't Say "Thank You, It's Free"

"If any of our employees fail to thank you for your purchase, you may have it free," advertises Hickey Brothers, who have a chain of fifteen cigar stores in the cities of Moline, Rock Island, and Davenport, Iowa. Hickey stores are known as the "thank you" stores. That this policy has been successful is evident from the growth and popularity of the Hickey system. Superior service quality goods at reasonable prices were the means of attracting over 1,000,000 sales in 1918. The Hickey system is now to be extended to other cities.

A Russell Story.

A story that the late G. W. H. Russell told with gusto was of a mayor in a north of England town. His worship presented some seats for the sea front, and had this inscribed on them: "Presented to the borough by the mayor, Ald. Boggins. The sea is his and he made it."—London Chronicle.

Peculiar Feeling.

Celia had been ill for many weeks. One day when she was stronger and had been put in a chair, she slipped down to the floor and stood for a moment on her feet. "Oh," she said, in a much surprised voice, "I feel heavy to myself."

Why Be Thankful?

One good reason for being thankful all the time is that you have cool water to drink, wholesome food to eat, and fresh air to breathe. These make it possible to enjoy the kind of health that brings the state of good feeling called happiness.

Silly Jamie.

The other day Jamie came running into the house crying at the top of his voice. He was followed by Jane, who explained by saying: "Mother, I'm 'shamed of Jamie—he's so unbrave, crying 'cause a little dog chased him."

Proper Food Important.

"As a man thinketh so is he." Yes; but also: "As a man eateth so doth he think." For the brain, a part of the body, is built of food.—Los Angeles Times.

THIS WEAK, NERVOUS MOTHER

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I was very weak, always tired, my back ached, and I felt sickly most of the time. I went to a doctor and he said I had nervous indigestion, which added to my weak condition kept me worrying most of the time—and he said if I could not stop that, I could not get well. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my husband wanted me to try it. I took it for a week and felt a little better. I kept it up for three months, and I feel fine and can eat anything now without distress or nervousness."—Mrs. J. WORTHLINE, 2842 North Taylor St., Philadelphia Pa.

The majority of mothers nowadays overdo, there are so many demands upon their time and strength; the result is invariably a weakened, run-down, nervous condition with headaches, backache, irritability and depression—and soon more serious ailments develop. It is at such periods in life that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will restore a normal healthy condition, as it did to Mrs. Worthline.

A ROOSEVELT ANECDOTE.

An Amusing Incident Created a "Kind of Ritual."

One day, writes Lawrence F. Abbott in World's Work, while I was seated in Mr. Roosevelt's private office, which was a fairly good-sized room, his secretary announced the late Senator Carter of Montana. The Senator was shown into the room. He was dressed, as I recall it, in a gray frock coat and his round face, surmounted with red hair, shone with pleasure. To my intense amazement, Mr. Roosevelt leaped out of his chair, seized the Senator by the hands and they began dancing back and forth across the room, chanting the following doggerel in unison:

"Oh, the Irish and the Dutch
They don't amount to much,
But huroo for the Scandinoo-vian!"

After Senator Carter left Mr. Roosevelt, amused at the look of surprised interrogation on my face, volunteered the following explanation: "Tom Carter is a good friend of mine, although we have often disagreed radically on political principles and issues. Some years ago during a political campaign he and I were scheduled to speak on the same occasion in a town of the northwest. When we came out of the hall and were walking along the board-walk of the little village to our hotel, we met a huge Swede or Norwegian, who was somewhat exhilarated from pouring too many libations in honor of the Republican party. As he zig-zagged his way along the narrow sidewalk, we had to step aside to avoid a collision. He was singing at the top of his lungs that song about the Irish and the Dutch. Now, Senator Carter is Irish and I am Dutch, and we thought it was a very good joke on us. So every time we have met since, unless there are too many people about, we are apt to greet each other as we did just now. It has become a kind of ritual."

The Dawn In Belgian Africa.

The time has been when news from Darkest Africa in the Congo region was dark indeed; but the present and future of the tribes that embrace, all told, something like 5,000,000 human beings, scattered over a tropical territory almost as large as Europe looks full of promise as one reads the report of Mr. Frank, Belgian Minister of the Colonies, covering the period of the war and laying out a program for the future. During the war there has been practically no trouble in the Belgian Congo, probably as a result of the lines adopted by the administration, for any idea of forcing the natives into an uncongenial mold has been abandoned and the country is being governed by adapting methods to local conditions. "Not only must we decentralize our administrative organization," runs the report, "but we must continue to study and make the best possible use of native institutions, respecting and developing them in all respects, even if they offend our ideas and moral conceptions, so long as they do not offend against the essential principles of humanity and justice." Economically and industrially, the Congo may reasonably become important and prosperous in accordance with those essential fundamentals. One may hope to hear far different and better things from the Congo than one has heard in the past.

Da Vinci Thought of Tank.

Italy has just celebrated the fourth centenary of Leonardo da Vinci's death. His name has often been mentioned during the war and his prophetic genius recalled. It is known that he intended to build airplanes for war purposes, but it is now claimed also that he was the first to think of the tank. In his letters to Il Moro he speaks of armored cars which could shelter the occupants and drive right amongst the enemy's masses, slaying and shattering all opposition. It is unfortunate that more is not known of Leonardo's intentions, and of the way in which he proposed to propel his craft. Horses might possibly have been intended, for if a horse could carry less weight than the armored motor, protection in those days was more easily got than now. But it is certainly very singular to read that his cars were to charge ahead while the infantry would follow behind—for this is exactly what happened four hundred years after his death.—Manchester Guardian.

Jacob Weltner Hungarian Leader

THE coming to the fore of a man like Jacob Weltner in Hungary following the downfall of the regime of Bela Kun indicates that the Hungarian working class masses are pretty well cured of Bolshevism.

Jacob Weltner is the head of the Hungarian Soviets and as such he was the medium of communication between the Allies and the Communist Government in the negotiations that led up to the latter's resignation.

Weltner is a man of medium stature, dark complexioned, and is about forty-two years old. He is a Social Democrat of many years' standing and has played a leading role in the Socialist movement of Austria-Hungary and in the Internationale as a whole.

The writer met Weltner in Stockholm in December, 1917, soon after the beginning of the Brest-Litovsk negotiations between Germany and the Bolsheviki. He came to Stockholm in great excitement over the new turn of affairs and was particularly put out by the separate peace negotiations initiated by the Bolsheviki. Those were the days when the probability of a German victory seemed certain to the minds of neutrals and the peoples of the Central Empires.

Weltner arrived in Stockholm on a bitterly cold day and rushed immediately to the office of the Internationale Socialist Bureau to see Camille Huysmans, the secretary. His object in coming to see Huysmans was to have some measures taken to counteract the effect of the peace negotiations between Germany and the Bolsheviki and, if possible to stop them. As he put it to the writer:

"The Brest-Litovsk negotiations have put an end to the hope of a democratic general peace in Europe. If they are allowed to reach the culmination desired by Germany it means the end of a democratic Europe and particularly our own hope of democratic reforms in Austria-Hungary and Germany. Our imperialists are walking about in greater pride and self-confidence than ever before, in expectation of routing Russia at Brest-Litovsk and of 'finishing' the Allies on the West front. The Allies better get busy and start a movement for general peace negotiations. If not they will receive blows next spring from which they will never recover."

It was Weltner's idea that the Stockholm conference scheme be revived and that the laborites of all countries get together and present a plan for a general peace to the belligerent governments. Weltner felt—and felt honestly—that Germany was on the verge of victory. That his feeling was not altogether ungrounded was demonstrated next spring when the Germans made their final offensive and seemed once more to have Paris within their grasp.

As the situation stood in the winter of 1917 Weltner's fears were perfectly justifiable, and his eagerness to prevent the success of the German plans, both diplomatic and military, was the expression of a genuine desire for a democratic peace. That was why he was so strong in his condemnation of the Brest negotiations. He spoke of the Bolsheviki as "irresponsible adventurists" and condemned their opposition to the Stockholm conference.

It will be breaking no confidence to say now that as a result of Weltner's visit to Stockholm and his conferences with Huysmans, through whom he communicated with Arthur Henderson, the British labor leader, a number of the Allied envoys in Stockholm prombed Huysmans to support the Stockholm project in their recommendations to their Governments, among them to the British Minister.

Nothing came of the subject, however, despite the statement made by M. Vorovsky, the Bolshevik Minister in Stockholm, that the Bolsheviki would be willing to discontinue the Brest-Litovsk negotiations provided the Allied Governments granted passports to the Stockholm conference. Apparently M. Vorovsky was overruled in Moscow.

Weltner's visit to Stockholm coincided with that of Scheidemann, but, unlike the latter, he did not call on M. Vorovsky, preferring to do his business with Huysmans and Henderson.

When asked why the Socialists of Germany and Austria-Hungary, realizing that the moment was a grave one, did not sound the call for a revolution, Weltner replied:

"It is easy for you Entente people to talk revolution in Germany and Austria, especially at this moment when our Governments are at the height of their military and political prestige. There will be no revolution in the Central Empires until Germany is defeated in the field. Moreover, what assurance have we that after we make the revolution the Entente Governments will not pounce upon us and crush us? We cannot afford to make a revolution while you simply sit by and applaud. The question is, What are you going to do?"

Weltner's fears anent the victory of Germany were not realised, but his statement that there would be no revolution in the Central Empires until Germany is defeated in the field was borne out by history. And in that revolution—as far as his own country is concerned—the modest and vivacious labor leader and editor seems to be playing an important part. Little did the writer think that he would play that part when he made him good-bye at the railway station at Stockholm as Weltner was preparing to catch a train for Berlin and Budapest.

CALEDONIAN CLUB TO RE-ORGANIZE

ALL SCOTCHMEN OF THE CITY ASKED TO ATTEND MEETING IN WOODMEN OF THE WORLD'S HALL.

The Caledonian Club of Scotchmen will hold a re-organization meeting Friday evening in the Woodmen of the World Hall.

This club corresponds to the Robt Burns Club of Scotland and consists of Scotchmen only. Before the war this club was going strong but owing to the fact that most of the members enlisted the club dissolved. But now that a large number of members have returned it has been thought advisable to re-organize the club. For this purpose the meeting will be held on Friday evening.

Every Scotchman in the city is cordially invited to attend.

OUR ROYAL VISITOR

The Prince of Wales has captured the hearts of all Canada. Rich and poor, old and young, are enraptured with his easy manner and happy expression. He is so different to what many expected.

No wonder a great demand has been created for a real life-like portrait of our popular future King. Photographers, and artists have failed to secure a satisfactory snapshot of the Royal visitor. He was not here to pose for them. It remained for The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal to secure a portrait that would be satisfactory, and they have succeeded. Just before leaving for Canada the Prince gave a special sitting to the celebrated London, England, photographer, Van Dyke. The agents of The Family Herald were instructed to secure the right to reproduce it in Canada, and that great weekly is now offering it to its readers.

The Daily and Weekly Review has succeeded in making an arrangement with The Family Herald and Weekly Star by which our readers may have a copy. Our announcement will be found on page 8. The demand for this picture in Canada will be enormous, and we advise our readers to take advantage of the opportunity without delay.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS INCREASED SERVICE

TRANSCONTINENTAL TRAIN

EVERY DAY IN THE WEEK

Toronto - Winnipeg - Vancouver - Victoria In Effect October 5th.

A daily Transcontinenal service between Toronto—Winnipeg—Vancouver—Victoria, is the principal feature announced in the Canadian National Railways Fall and Winter Time Table.

This train will leave Toronto 9:15 p.m. daily and will be equipped with up-to-date sleeping, dining, first class day coach, tourist and colonist cars. Between Toronto and Winnipeg there will also be a compartment-observation library car.

A parlor car will be attached for the convenience of passengers, while travelling through the Rockies, so they may enjoy, in the utmost comfort, the magnificent scenery for which the Canadian National route is famous.

Further particulars can be obtained from Passenger Officers of Canada's National system of Railways.

Why Every Canadian Will Buy Victory Bonds

TRIUMPHANT, Canada emerged from the war, a nation great in arms and great in trade, a nation respected and admired by the world.

And Canada will continue to hold high her head.

Our obligations to the heroic dead, to the crippled and disabled soldiers, and to the men who were so fortunate as to return, will all be met.

That is Canada's duty.

To fulfill it, every Canadian will do his part.

Canadians will keep the machinery of prosperity humming, the factory chimneys smoking, the sea and lake ports bustling with activity, and the surplus products of farm and factory going forth to Great Britain and other lands.

But to accomplish all this more National Working Capital is needed.

The money is here, but it is in the hands of individuals rather than in the hands of the nation. It is in the savings banks, loan companies and generally scattered throughout Canada. For instance, our deposits in banks and post offices have increased in five years from one billion ($1,086,013,704) to a billion and three-quarters ($1,740,462,509), an increase of nearly two-thirds of a billion ($654,448,805).

The people will loan their individual savings to the nation to be used as National Working Capital in maintaining our commercial prosperity.

Every man and woman from every walk of life is interested in maintaining this prosperity. Therefore, every man and woman from every walk of life is personally interested in making the Victory Loan 1919 an overwhelming success.

It will serve to keep Canada in its present place, far up in the vanguard of World Progress.

WE MUST NOT FORGET MANY INCIDENTS CONNECTED WITH GREAT WORLD WAR

Sixty Thousand Dead Canadians Appeal to Their Nation to Maintain Those Holy Principles For Which They Died.

Captain T. F. Best, a South African and great war veteran, delivered an exceedingly fitting address last evening at the service in memory of the men of St. Andrew's church who died in the great war. The captain served with the Fourth Brigade in France, and he represents, he said, the Y.M.C.A.

His very able discourse lead up to an exhortation that the services of those brave men who fought in defence of home, empire and British freedom be not lost sight of by either the nation or individuals now that the war is ended and peace once more established.

He built up his address from the words of that beautiful anthem, "Lest We Forget," and conveyed to the large congregation a vivid realization of many mercies vouchsafed the Allies in the course of the war, and that debt of gratitude to its dead and its survivors yet to be made good.

Both men who fought at the front and we who stayed at home, he said, in part, would be glad to forget some things in connection with the world war; but there are incidents which must be cherished for the future. I find, he went on to say, a tendency among people to just forget the struggle and that splendid spirit of sacrifice shown both at home and overseas a spirit of sacrifice which was none other than a spirit of the cross reflected on this nation, and which must not be forgotten.

An Inspiring Sight.

The first 32,000 volunteer Canadian enlistmen he characterized as an inspiring sight. But we must not forget that their safe voyage to England and from England to France was made possible by the British admiralty. And that during the whole four years of the great world war Canada never lost in transportation a single man or a single ship owing to the watchful eye and protection of the British navy. The same may be said by the Australian contingents.

Then we must not forget, Capt. Best urged, that the Mother Country during the war transported all told 13,000,000 troops and we must take off our hats to that silent British navy without which such an accomplishment would have been impossible.

Under God, he declared, we owe our victory to that magnificent part the British navy played in the way together with the pluck and heroism of Britain's merchant marine.

Courage and Bravery.

When talking of pluck and courage, the speaker continued, we must not forget the glorious part the first Canadian division played in the great fight. He would not detract for one moment from the heroism of our infantry during the campaign of 1918, but the tenacious courage of those who first went overseas cannot be surpassed. Short of ammunition, facing overwhelming odds, each man holding 10 yards of ground against 10 men for every yard by the enemy, knee deep in water and mud, and positions dominated by German artillery on high ground, still Canada's gallant first division held on, and every time the foe came across they found our boys in the trenches from which they could not be ejected.

Killed, Not Conquered.

Then we must not forget, he urged, that our boys could be killed, but they could not be conquered, and without their noble sacrifice we in Canada would not be rejoicing in victory today.

We must not forget that British and colonial citizen armies, raised at a moment's notice, so to speak, more than held their own against Germany, which had the greatest army the world had ever seen—in numbers, organization and in morale.

Heroic Belgian.

Neither must we forget, the speaker said, the heroic fighting of plucky little Belgium, which put the whole civilized world under everlasting obligation to her. Nor France's incomparable tenacity and uncomplaining sacrifices in holding off Germany's millions.

Nothing But Miracles.

No body knows, in Captain Best's opinion, how Lord Kitchener threw across the channel in so short a time 200,000 troops incomparable in the whole world; nor how those men, bravest of the brave, retreated from Mons in the face of overwhelming numbers.

For two years the Allies had not a chance to win the war and no one can explain now it was they were not defeated in the first three months. How can we account, he asked, for their holding on and for victory at the first Battle of the Marne? That we were not outshot was a miracle and I believe he declared, that the Lord helped us. German prisoners asked where we got all the men at the Marne—they saw millions they asserted—and two officers inquired who a certain general was they saw shot through and yet he lived and still carried on. The Battle of the Marne, the speaker continued, was the turning point in the war; it cannot be explained from a military standpoint; no man, no army claims that victory. It was a miracle; somebody had been praying, as Lord Kitchener fervently exclaimed on hearing the good tidings—and God helped us. We must not forget that.

Proud of the Boys.

In conclusion, Capt. Best referred to peoples' pride in their soldier boys and the admission that they cannot do too much for them, and he urged his hearers not to forget that should they think their responsibility ends in a welcome home they make a big mistake. For until every returned soldier is properly employed, suitably housed and assimilated again into national life our duty to them is not finished. Sixty thousand dead in France and Flanders appeal to us at home to carry on the great work for which they laid down their lives, and to maintain and inculcate those holy principles for which those heroes made their supreme sacrifice we ought to live, to give and to die, if necessary.

SMALL BOY BITTEN BY DOG

Young Son of Mr. T. G. Lang Received Bite on Leg

Does Peterborough need a dog catcher? Ask the youthful son of Mr. T. G. Long, who received a bite from a dog on Gilmour street Saturday afternoon while delivering his papers. The dogs of the city seem to have a natural tendency toward biting since their long period of confinement and it would appear like a wise move if the city council would re-appoint their official dog catcher at the regular meeting tonight.

Many a young girl who objects to being the wife of a wealthy old man wouldn't object to being his widow.

HOW WAR AND INFLUENZA HAVE REDUCED THE POPULATION OF NEW YORK STATE

Both Afflictions Combined Have Cost That Commonwealth 87,000 Lives—Present Birth Rate Lowest on Record

Had there been no war and no influenza epidemic the population of the State of New York would be 87,000 larger than it is today. The effect of war, since January 1, 1918, has reduced the normal birth rate by 36,000. Epidemic influenza caused the deaths of 51,000 persons. These figures were announced in a report by Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, State Commissioner of Health. They do not take into account the loss in population sustained by deaths in action from wounds and illness, in the military forces of the State.

Against the lowest birth rate percentage on record Dr. Biggs sets a new low record for deaths. In July and August, this year, the birth rates and the death rates were the lowest for many years, he said. Loss in population is usual in warring countries, but at present Dr. Biggs finds high prices and high living costs acting as a check upon the birth rate. After war, he said, the birth rate usually advances.

The decline in birth rate is being reflected on a different scale in Europe, according to Dr. Biggs's report in the three years of the war beginning in 1914 France suffered a birth rate decline of 52 per cent., and in England and Germany the rate dropped to the lowest percentage on record.

Birth Rate Low for Months.

"For several months the birth rate of New York State has been remarkably low," said Dr. Biggs. "The rate of 18.7 and 18.8 for 1,000 population for July and August are the lowest recorded in this State since reliable data have been available. These are a fifth lower than the rates for the same months in 1918 and for the corresponding months in the five years, 1913-17.

"The rate for the first eight months of this year is 20.3, which is 11 per cent. lower than the rate for these months in 1918, and 16 per cent. lower than the rate for three months in the five years, 1914-18, inclusive. In each month of 1919 the birth rater for the whole State have been lower than the rates for the same months in any year since 1913.

"In New York city, although the number of births has for many years exceeded the deaths, the birth rate for 1918 was 23.5, the lowest annual rate in sixteen years, and thus far in 1919 it has been even lower than this, the rate for the eight months being 10 per cent. lower than that for the same period of last year and for the five years previous.

"At the same time, following the excessive death rates of the autumn and winter months, 1918 and 1919, due to influenza and its complicating pneumonia, there has occurred a great decline in the death rates throughout the State. The rates for July and August were only 10.7 and 10.4, or the lowest recorded in any month for many years.

In explanation of the mortality figures Dr. Biggs said that since the influenza epidemic the greatest vigilance has been exercised by the physicians of the State to check disease. He says the duty now devolves upon the medical profession, the public and the health authorities to co-operate in every way to keep the figures down.

Increase Preventive Work.

The efforts to reduce infant mortality should be redoubled, Dr. Biggs declared, and all precautions against sickness and accident energetically enforced. Educational measures can do much to maintain the exceptional record now achieved.

Dr. Biggs furnished figures on the German rates based on information just received. The total population of Germany fell from 67,800,000 before the war to 65,100,000 at its close, he said.

"Even more impressive are figures showing that there was an apparent excess of 700,000 deaths among the civilian population of over one year of age," he continued. "It is estimated that her births will be at least 20 per cent. below normal for some years, as the adult male population of military age fell from 14,000,000 to 12,200,000, or 13 per cent. due to war losses alone. In France in 1918 the birth rate was probably considerably less than half the death rate. In England in 1918 there were only 50,000 more births than deaths."

Dr. Biggs said that a warring country's birth rate usually rises soon after the close of the hostilities, and may often be higher for a few years afterward, but this does not always occur. As an instance he cited a report from Massachusetts that the birth rate there remained lower for many years after the civil war than it was during the five years preceding. He then set forth his opinion that economic conditions tended to reduce the birth rate.

DOES THE GLARE HURT YOUR EYES

As a rule, few eyes can endure a continuous glare, and eye-strain may be caused by an excess of light in the same way as when there is a refractive error.

Dr. Fowler has a special lens for patrons whose eyes are subjected to intense or glaring light. They are a slightly colored lens, so little as to be unnoticeable, yet affording the eyes adequate protection from extreme artificial light or the glaring sun rays.

TABLET IN MEMORY

All Young Men.

Mr. W. S. Campbell, one of the church's Board of Managers, read out the names of the honored dead, followed by a brief eulogistic address in the course of which he said the object of the occasion was to honor many young men of the church who had readily enlisted for active service and to, by the tablet unveiled, perpetuate through ages to come the memory of those who had made the supreme sacrifice.

The offertory was taken up by veterans in khaki.

Extends Welcome.

Capt. (Rev.) James Rollins had great pleasure, he said, in extending a warm welcome to those veterans who had assembled to do honor to those brave boys who had fallen. He felt sure all fully appreciated that spirit of comradeship engendered by the war, and hold in reverence the memory of those who had laid down their lives in a great cause. He was glad to see in attendance the St. Andrew's troup of Boy Scouts, to whom the presence of men who had fought and survived in the great war would be sure, be an inspiration for future guidance. He looked forward to returned soldiers making strong contributions toward that big reconstruction imminent in this country which is hoped for during the next few years. Soldiers and civilians alike, by united effort, should, he said, in Canada lay the foundation of a nation that can offer valued contribution to all that is good in the remaking of the civilized world, for which the Allies fought.

Inspiring Service.

The whole service was a touching, impressive and inspiring one, reflecting sympathy with the relatives of the dead, an appreciation of great sacrifices made and joyous thanksgiving for ultimate victory over a brutal enemy.

The musical offerings under the conduction of Mr. John Crane were of an exceptionally high order of merit and the sacred edifice was filled with arresting and harmonious melody. The large congregation readily entered into the spirit of praise so irresistibly diffused by both organist and choir, and the hymns so fittingly selected for a service of this nature were sung in heart and voice by all present.

Miss Helen McLaren sang "Crossing the Bar" in splendid soprano voice, and this talented soloist was very acceptably accompanied in Kipling's Recessional "Lest We Forget" by Mr. Farr and choir.

The service concluded with the National Anthem, benediction by Major (Canon) Davidson of St. John's and the soul-stirring notes of the "last post" by Bugler Allan Sharpe.

Capt. T. F. Best, a South African veteran, who also served four years in the great war, delivered an exceedingly appropriate address, further reference to which will be found under another heading.

WHEN finer wool can be secured; when better spinning and knitting processes are devised, it may be possible to excel the quality in these wonderful children's stockings.

But it is not possible to-day.

"Little Darling" for infants, and "Little Daisy" for children up to 12 years, are the best that can be made—a bold claim, but one that thousands of women will grant. Your own judgment will affirm it.

Only fine Australian lamb's-wool is ever used to make these soft stockings. If mothers have ever found it hard to procure "Little Darling" or "Little Daisy" hosiery, there was a good reason. Whenever there was a shortage of the proper wool, we had to make fewer of these wonderful stockings. No substitute has ever replaced that wonderful wool.

BROTHER OF LATE SIR JAMES WHITNEY SENDS WORD OF COMMENDATION

Toronto, Oct. 6.—E. C. Whitney, of Ottawa, brother of the late Sir James Whitney, and the man on which Sir James relied for advice and guidance throughout his career, and whose powerful support of public integrity was one of the most important factors in the success of the Whitney Administration, has addressed the following letter to Sir William Hearst:

"I notice that a general election is about to take place in Ontario, and I want to say a word of encouragement to you in that connection. As far as my knowledge goes you are carrying on the Government with the same reguard for the public interest and in the honest way that I know my brother did. I was conversant with all the important measures undertaken by him, and I knew well all the men he took into his confidence, or I could not make the above statement. It is very important that honest methods of Government should be continued and the people's interest closely looked after. So I wish you success in the coming elections, and I believe the verdict of the people will be favorable to you.

As for prohibition, I was not originally a prohitionist, but since the law has been in force I have seen that it is a benefit to the human race. I also know from men I meet from all parts of Canada and the United States that prohibition is proving a great advantage to both countries. Last week I met a gentleman who travels all over the Dominion, and although at first an opponent of prohibition, he states that the decrease in drunkenness has satisfied him that it is a wise and necessary law. You were, in my judgment, justified in adopting this measure as a war policy, and if the people vote to sustain it permanently, I believe they will make no mistake."

FREDERICK M. BRYANT HELD ON GRAVE CHARGE

ALLEGED TO HAVE SENT INDECENT AND SCURRILOUS LETTERS TO OTTAWA.

Hamilton, Oct. 6.— Charged with sending an indecent and scurrilous letter to the board of pensions commissioners at Ottawa, Frederick M. Bryant, 19 Wentworth street, north, was arrested here Saturday afternoon by Inspector Park of the military police and Detective Crocker.

The arrest marks the beginning of a campaign to round-up ex-soldiers who have been sending communications of this sort to Ottawa, the pensions board having been pestered beyond endurance by letters of this kind. It is stated that similar cases throughout the Dominion will be prosecuted in the same manner.

Bryant is charged under the criminal code with a breach of the postal act, and also with defamatory libel, it being alleged that he persisted in sending letters of an indecent and immoral character in regard to his own case. According to the military police he was in the army, but never left Canada.

The young lady across the way says the race question is causing so much trouble in this country that she should think it would be worth some one's while to solve it.

THE TRICALS

MICKEY MATINEE FOR EVERY DAY

AT THE GRAND MONDAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 13, 14, 15.

"Mickey" is the title of the biggest sensation of the seventh world. Wherever it has been presented it has created an interest unprecedented in the history of film productions. "Mickey" is a little mountain girl, whose adventures, pictorially presented, make a photodrama that breathes the very sunshine of life. It is a remarkable production in many ways, and not the least of these is the rare dramatic ability displayed by Mabel Normand. She brings tears to the eyes at one moment, and has her audiences roaring with laughter at the next. In addition, she performs stunts that would put in the background many of the stars who have won fame through their ability to inject thrills into a film production. There is a racing scene that is said to have anything of a similar character beaten a furlong, while the fight between the hero and the villain is one of the most realistic battles yet screened. In the contest Mickey is seen hanging from the roof of a house, while the combatants in their violent struggle wreck the building. It is a scene that never fails to arouse the enthusiasm of the spectators, and is one of the many adventures of this great picture that brings forth rounds of applause.

"Mickey" is a picture that you will want to see over and over again. You will want to tell your friends about it, but don't attempt to describe it to them, for it can't be done. Just advise them to see it, and they will agree with you that it is the greatest photo-drama that has ever been presented to Grand patrons.

Commencing Monday, October 13, "Mickey" will be seen twice daily at the Grand, where a brief season of feature picture plays has been inaugurated at a special sale of prices.

Every afternoon, 25 cents admits to any part of the house, while at the evening performances the prices will be 25c, 50c and 75c.

"THREE-GUN MAN" NOW APPEARS ON PHOTOPLAY SCREEN

A Film Full of Thrills at the Empire Tonight, Tomorrow and Wednesday.

The "two-gun man" of the bad, bad west must take a back seat, because the "three-gun man" has made his appearance. In the old shooting days, any man, outlaw or otherwise, who could operate two six-shooters simultaneously was regarded with considerable respect, and he lived longer than the fellow who could shoot accurately only with one hand.

Tom Mix, the William Fox film star, was a two-gun man when he was a Texas ranger and cowboy, and his ability to shoot with both hands got him out of some very tight holes. It was this ability, too, which helped him to wipe out the Shonts gang of outlaws on the Pecos River in New Mexico a few years ago. Now Mix, who for some time has been engaged in thrilling motion picture audiences by his daring horsemanship and athletic feats, has developed into a "three-gun man."

In "Hell Roarin' Reform," a William Fox production, which will be presented for three days at the Empire Theatre, beginning today, Mix routs a band of outlaws by operating two six-shooters and a rifle simultaneously. This is the first time, it is declared, that the remarkable feat has been accoplished.

FAMOUS MINTRELS TO BE HEARD AT THE GRAND THEATRE

The Agawan Quartette carried by the Guy Brothers' Minstrels is the finest harmony quartette that the public could listen to. They render all the popular songs with several quartette numbers. Mr. George R. Guy secured this quartette from the big time vaudeville circuit. They were previously seen and heard on the B. F. Keith circuit, Orpheum circuit, playing from coast to coast.

No doubt the people of Peterborough will turn out to a capacity house to hear this quartette, with ten other high-class vaudeville acts and a show that will please everybody.

PAULINE FREDERICK in "PAID IN FULL"

RACE WITH DEATH CAUGHT BY CAMERA IN GOLDWYN DRAMA

Runaway in "The Peace of Roaring River," Adds Realism to Latest Pauline Frederick Production.

It is seldom that the trusty camera plays tricks in motion picture photography, but in "The Peace of Roaring River," which comes to the Grand Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday, an astounding bit of freak photography will be noticed. This Goldwyn picture, which stars Pauline Frederick, gives to the world what may well be called a speaking scene.

Miss Frederick is in a cabin in the mountains. The nearby townspeople are rushing to her. One wagon, pulled by two horses, is filled with nine young women. To make the action more realistic, as this vehicle ascends the dangerous road, Director Schertzinger told the girl to drive fast, scrape the banks, and cut the edges of the road on the outer side.

When these perilous scenes were made the driver managed well, but one of the animals shied at a paper in the road, and the pursuit became a race with death. The light wagon bounced over the road toward the camera, the director yelling to the frightened young woman, "Come on! Great! Fine! Scream now—yell that's it."

But she was in despair—the wagon jabbed the banks, bounced over ridges, leaned over yawning ledges, but the great fright came when it lurched around a curve in the foreground and the outside rear wheel slid over the edge. The girls leaned over to counter-balance it, screaming their loudest. The loaded wagon stopped, hung perilously for a brief three seconds, then the girl at the reins jumped out and grasped the horses' bridles.

The camera registered this exciting incident and Director Schertzinger was congratulating them on their natural acting, but this soon changed to sympathy when one of the girls fainted.

The strange part is that on the screen, each time the film is run, the frightened girls' voices seem to be heard. Veteran picture people have pronounced it a hoodoo scene, claiming that these girls were so near death that the spirits were able to impress their voices on the film.

Schalk allowed the ball to get away from him and was charged with a passed ball. Duncan ended the inning by popping an easy fly to Jackson.

Chicago—No runs. No hits. No errors.

Weaver tapped to Eller and the latter tossed to Daubert for a put-out. Jackson went out the same way, Eller taking his slow grounder and throwing to Daubert. Felsch struck out.

Fifth Inning.

Cincinnati — No runs. One hit. No errors.

Popf singled to left centre over E. Collins' head. Neale forced Kopf at second, Riesberg to E. Collins, but arrived safely at first. Neale was out stealing, Schalk making a beautiful throw to Riesberg. Rariden flied to Felsch.

Chicago—No runs. One hit. No errors.

Rath took Gandil's grounder and threw to Daubert, putting him out. Riesberg sent a fast grass-cutter to Groh who threw him out at first. Schalk walloped one that went to Duncan, but it was held to a single. Williams ended the innings by striking out—Eller's eighth strike-out victim.

Sixth Inning.

Cincinnati — Four runs. Three hits. One error.

Eller again got a great ovation when he walked to the plate. He doubled to left centre, and took third when Felsch threw wild to third. It was a terrific drive that went clear to the fence. Rath up. Jackson and Felsch honce again moved over to the left for Rath. Williams' fourth pitch to Rath was very wide and almost got away from Schalk. Rath singled to right, scoring Eller. The Chicago infield was playing in at the time. Daubert sacrificed, Weaver to Gandil, Rath going to second. The bunt was perfectly laid. Groh up. Williams and Schalk both protested it was a strike but without avail. Williams lost temperary control and Walked Groh. Rousch sent a high fly that went to Felsch for a three base hit, scoring Rath and Groh. The play at the plate on Groh was very close and Schalk jumped up and bumped himself into Umpire Rigler. Rigler motioned Schalk to the bench and Lynn went into catch for Chicago. Felsch got his hands on Rousch's fly but was running hard toward the fence and could not hold it. Duncan lifted to Jackson and Rousch scored, the throw to the plate being wide. Duncan is credited with a sacrifice fly. Kopf ended the inning by popping a fly to Felsch.

Chicago—No hits. No runs. No errors.

Liebold up. Groh snatched Liebold's grounder and threw him out at first. E. Collins flied to Rousch. Weaver's grounder bounded into Kopf's hands and he was an easy out at first.

Seventh Inning.

Cincinnati — No runs. No hits. No errors.

Neale was out, Ed. Collins to Gandil. The grounder was hard hit but Collins handled it nicely. Rariden hoisted to Leibold an easy fly. Eller struck out, Lynn dropping the ball but touching the batter as he left the plate.

Chicago—No runs. No hits. No errors.

Jackson up. Rath took Jackson's bounder and got him at first. Felsch up. Rariden caught Felsch's high foul near the Sox dugout. Gandil flew out to Rousch. It was an easy put-out.

Eighth Inning.

Cincinnati — No runs. No hits. No errors.

Eller seemed to have the Sox at his mercy and was pitching a beautiful game of ball. Rath popped to Jackson. Daubert hoisted to Felsch in short centre field. Groh put up a high fly that Felsch took right in back of second base.

Chicago—No runs. No hits. No errors.

Neale came in fast and captured Riesberg's fly. Duncan took Lynn's high fly near the foul line. Murphy batting for Williams. Murphy fanned striking at the third one.

Ninth Inning.

Cincinnati — One run. No hits. One error.

Mayer went to the pitcher's box for the White Sox. E. Collins fumbled Rousch's grounder and he reached first safely. Duncan walked. Rousch starting to second. Mayer seemed very wild. Lowermilk began to warm up for Chicago. Kopf bunted for a sacrifice, Weaver to Gandil, Rousch taking third and Duncan second. Roush scored on Neale's out, Riesberg to Gandil. Duncan going to third. Rariden out, E. Collins to Gandil.

Chicago—No runs. One hit. No errors.

Rath came in fast and threw out Liebold. E. Collins out, Kopf to Daubert. Weaver tripled to right centre. Kopf threw out Jackson at first.

Alexandria.

Alexandria, founded by the world conqueror, Alexander the Great, is an Egyptian city that is eager to lose its connection with the faraway past and become completely modernized. Fate has favored this ambition, for the wonders that Cleopatra knew have been eaten by fire or swept away by the sea. Alexandria is a city of trade and fashion, dominated by prosperous Europeans too deeply absorbed in the stock exchange to be even vaguely interested in the romantic side of their city.

Tides of the Ocean.

The incoming and the outgoing of the tides is caused by the gravitational influence of the moon. The moon, so to speak, draws or lifts the water from the depths on the same principle that a pump lifts water. And as with a pump, the water rushes in to fill the space left; so the shallow water near shore rushes out to fill the extra space caused by rising of the water, on the principle that water seeks its own level.

Outlawing Time.

"Ladies," announced the president of an afternoon bridge club, "it has been moved and seconded that there shall be no conversation at the card tables. What shall we do with the motion?" "I suggest," said a sprightly member, "that we discuss it while we play."

The Church-Goers.

If some men were to quote the well-known psalm they would have to say, "I was glad to make excuses when they said to us, 'let us go into the house of the Lord.'" The 'they' referring probably to the women of the house, or the church-going neighbors.—Exchange.

Poesy's Appeal.

Never did poesy appear so full of heaven to me as when I saw how it pierced through pride and fear to the lives of the poorest men.—Lowell.

GOOD SPORT AT HUNT CLUB MEET

HOT WEATHER AT THE ESLINGTON AVENUE COURSE, TORONTO SATURDAY.

LADIES IN SUMMER ATTIRE

BAND OF THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S BODYGUARD IN ATTENDANCE—GREAT DAY.

Toronto, Oct. 6.—A very large and decidedly enthusiastic gathering witnessed the races at the autumn meeting of the Toronto Hunt Club on the Eglinton avenue course, Saturday. The sporting element of Toronto was well represented. Hundreds of cars were parked in the adjoining field, while the men and women strolled around or stood in groups. Some of the ladies sweltered in furs, while others were attired in gay summer clothing. The latter were by far the most comfortable, for the rays of the sun were very hot, and there was scarcely a breeze stirring. The band of the Governor General's bodyguard enlivened the proceedings at intervals with selections of dashing popular music, and the members of the hunt club in their "pink" coats gave a picturesqueness to the scene which transported one back to days of Dickens.

The results:

First race—Fairbank Steeplechase, an open steeplechase, for novice horses, about two miles, thorobreds to carry 168 lbs., half breds 155 lbs.

1. Frank Proctor's Greek Patriot, 168, (Frank Proctor.)
2. Geo. W. Beardmore's Atar Ire, 168 (McFarlane.)
3. E. Gordon Wills' Fergus, 168 (Little.)

Also ran, Gold Trap, Capt. W. Rawlinson.

Second race—Pony race, 1-3 mile, pony to be under 14 hands, rider 15 years and under;

1. Dorothy Cassels.
2. Miss Phippen.
3. Miss Johnston.

Third race; George Beardmore Steeplechase, open handicap steeplechase, about 2 1-2 miles. Race closed with 51 subscriptions and six nominations.

1. Maid of Frome, Frank Proctor 163, (Frank Proctor.)
2. Morpeth, Roselawn Stables, 168 (R. Wood.)
3. Borthmark, W. L. Christie, 155, (W. L. Christie.)

Also rans: Jim—O. Pepper Sause, and Maxim Belle.

Fourth Race—Todmorden Plate. Open Handicap, 4 furlongs flat.

1. Gold Galore, Roselawn Stables
2. Wuska R. E. Whitewood, 140, (Whitewood.)
3. Brookress, Charles Purvis, 150, (Cummings.)

Vanguard, Old Pop, Ella Jennings, Katie, Billy.

Fifth race—Thorncliffe Steeplechase. A handicap steeplechase for qualified hunters, about two miles;

1. Roselawn Stables' Singletime, 155, (McFarlane.)
2. J. D. Hawthorne's Woolfonso, 165, (Proctor.)
3. Geo. Beardmore's Joe Gaiety 152, McColl.

Also runs—None.

Sixth race.—Fourth C.M.R. cup. An open steeplechase for amateur riders about three miles, horses to carry 180 lbs.

1. Capt. William Fletcher's Pardon (Hodgson.)
2. Gordon Taylor's Woodbine, (Arnoldi).

Also rans—Fred H. English's Hercules.

THE RUGGED LIFE MADE FIGHTERS

DEMPSEY AND HIS LIKE DEVELOPED FROM ROUGHIN' IT IN COUNTRY AIR

KNEW NO TEMPTING CITY LIFE

MUST AGAIN GET DOWN TO REAL ACID TEST OF ENDURANCE

JACK KELLY SAYS

Many of the boys starting out to become fistic champions nowadays are inclined to do their training in fancy gymns., with rather luxurious environments, instead of roughing it in the hills and dales of some rugged backwoods in the pure bracing country air, far from the noise and razzle-dazzle of the gay and festive tempting city life.

The fall for the excitement glamor and adulation of the stuffy, overcrowded, contaminating big towns, where they imagine they are of some considerable importance, indeed.

Their few hours a day gym. training may work out all right for the five or ten-round no-decision affairs, but it won't do when the hard 20 session bouts become legalized all over the country, as they eventually will in time.

We must sooner or later get down to the real acid test of endurance and skill in extended bouts, to make any legitimate progress in the manly art, and the sooner the better.

Started Roughing It.

Mostly all of the greatest fighters I ever knew started out roughing it, or working at some rather rugged trade before they became famous.

John L. Sullivan labored as a tinsmith for about three or four years. If Jim Corbett had worked at a hard trade in his youth he would have been a wonder with his great skill as a boxer. Jim Jeffries began his career as a boilermaker. Bob Fitzsimmons was a blacksmith. Jess Willard had plenty of open air roughing it as a cowboy.

No one hardly ever had such tough experiences as Jack Dempsey in his early days in the wild and "wooly West," hoboing it from town to town under the most strenuous circumstances. And how the young champion likes to tell of his thrilling adventures on the road, when he frequently was compelled to fight a finish battle for ten or twenty dollars, or do some rough work here and there to keep himself on earth.

It was really these hard knocks and tough hustling that make Jack the desperate fighter he is to-day. He never acquired his rugged physique in any fancy gym. It was meeting all comers under the most strenuous conditions that made him as hard as nails. Dempsey is no parlor sparrer nor was he born with a silver spoon in his mouth, for he came from humble plebeian stock like all the other famous champions of the ring.

Smoke-loving Animals.

Curious stories are told by soldiers who have returned from the East of the extraordinary love of tobacco possessed by camels and dromedaries. It is said that they can be made to do almost anything under its influence.

The driver carries a triangular piece of wood, which is pierced at one point like a cigar-holder. This is inserted in the beast's mouth, the cigar being then lit and pressed into the hole. The camel immediately closes its eyes and puffs away through its mouth and nostrils till the cigar is entirely consumed. It seems thoroughly to enjoy the experience.

Furthermore, the nicotine appears to exercise a stimulating and refreshing effect upon the animal, so that, though ready to all appearances to drop from fatigue before its smoke, it will prod on for many more miles after it.

Making Ice.

The method commonly used for the commercial production of ice is to sink oblong metal boxes containing distilled or filtered water into tanks of salt water, through which run iron pipes. Then compressed ammonia gas is released in these pipes, and by its rapid expansions, produces an intense cold that freezes the water in the boxes into cakes averaging 200 to 300 pounds in weight. In cold storage the same process is used minus the water. The iron pipes into which the compressed ammonia goes run on the side or top, or both, of the cold storage room and cause it to become freezing cold.

Bird Life at Selborne

WHEN I set out for Selborne over the high table land from Petersfield, through Froxfield and East Tisted, I felt I was doing the best I could for the promise of the day by keeping an attentive eye for the birds in my neighborhood, and an attentive inward ear for that refined and spiritualized conversation, like the vivid though leisurely intonations of two blackbirds. I was glad to find the yellowhammer common along the hedgerows, for he is a favorite of mine, and I wasted a good deal of time watching them singing their little hymns of praise, like a sighing gust of wind among tall grasses, beaks comically lifted to heaven and golden heads shining in the sun.

It is a curious thing that White never distinguished between the yellow and the much rarer cirl bunting. Here, too, turtle doves have settled for the summer and their low, tremulous croodling notes accompanied me for a couple of miles. They have a bewitching love-flight, sailing down to earth, with arched wings and expanded white-barred tails, in a slanting glide, that makes the curves of Milo's Venus look insignificant. There were several pairs of lapwings building in the fields, and I once turned aside to try and find a nest, not because I cared whether I found it or not, but simply for the pleasure of having their company in a world where the wild birds shun our presence as Coleridge's walker fled the "fearful fiend, that close behind him treads."

So I walked about, enjoying the unique sensation of these glorious birds following me all over the field, dying close around my head, and displaying the utmost anxiety and fearlessness. But at last I grew ashamed of getting my pleasure at the expense of a noble passion, and slunk off, being seen safely and some distance off the premises by the outraged tenants. So I jogged along that lavish and varied, though never grand country; finding both whitethroats, the lesser just as demonstrative and excitable as his cousin, and singing his garrulous warble (like the chaffinch's without the upward note at the end, and shriller and more piercing), with crest raised, body shaken, and throat puffed out in the fine frenzy of melody; hearing an occasional blackcap and garden warbler, and seeing two or three jays and magpies, loveliest of all the feathered outcasts—until I arrived at the long, winding street of Selborne village.

The first thing I did was to climb the "zigzag" (constructed in White's time) of Selborne Hangar, to wander on the common. Birds do not frequent the beech while White called "the most lovely of all forest trees, whether we consider its smooth rind or bark, its glossy foliage or graceful pendulous boughts," for the simple reason that its woods permit no undergrowth, and nowadays there are no honey-buzzards (as there were in his) to build upon the canopy of foliage. But there were none on the common, the wildest, most desolate, and untamed land commanding many a fine prospect of the irregular, rolling, fecund Hampshire country. It was a paradise for birds, with wide spaces, isolated trees, thick matted undergrowth of bramble and furze and thorn, and, indeed, every variety of unclipped, untended bush, and little areas of bracken and grassland.

Yet in this seventh heaven of feathered cherubs, I heard but the commonest songs and saw but three birds—a swallow, a jay, and a hen blackbird. True, I found a throstle's nest, and that went some way toward compensating me. How wonderfully beautiful the eggs are, in their natural home—little blue oval skies, powdered at the poles with black stars and with greenish tinge over the blue, as if the earth had stained the heavens! In the collector's cabinet they look and are no more than pebbles or colored marbles. So I made haste to avoid the bitterness which a realization of the steady decline in wild-bird life always brings, and set off down the pretty village street for the Plestor, the little square with the sycamore, which has supplanted the vast oak — the delight of young and old"—overturned, by a tempest, in 1703.—The Nation.

All Writing Own Epitaph.

We are all busy—busy writing epitaphs. We do not let a day pass without doing something in this line, and we are all busy, not in writing epitaphs for others, but in writing our own.—Congregationalist.

One on Lord Russell.

Mr. J. A. Strahan, in his book of legal reminiscences, "The Bench and Bar of England," tells a story of how Lord Russell of Killowen was scored off by a festive young officer of the Guards, who happened to be his partner at whist. The latter had dined well but not wisely, played very badly, and merely laughed when taken to task, so the Lord Chief Justice suddenly flung his hand on the table, and said, angrily: "This is not whist; it is confounded tomfoolery."

"Keep your feathers on, old cock," replied the astonished Guardsman, "there's no harm done."

Almost speechless with rage, the Lord Chief Justice asked, in a hoarse voice: "Do you know, sir, whom you are addressing?"

"Of course I do," was the reply; "but remember, my boy, you are not in your blasted old police court now."

Those English Punsters.

The match shortage in England is used by the British press to recall a story of the well-known firm of Bryant & May, match manufacturers. One day when they were in the heyday of their prosperity the senior partner, Mr. Bryant, dressed in the height of fashion, drove a spanking team on the Ascot race course.

"Halloa!" exclaimed a wit, pointing to the horses, "Bryant's got his match there."

"Yes, and Bryant himself looks very striking on the box."

Find Indian Stone Celts.

In an article on Indian stone celts in the Wisconsin Archeologist, Charles E. Brown, chief of the state historical museum, describes the various classes of celts, or stone hatchets, and in what Wisconsin localities many of them have been found. Jefferson county has been the source of many celts, and other counties in which they have been found are Dane, Calumet, Brown, Waupaca, Walworth, Winnebago, Waukesha and Washington.

Our War With Spain.

On the 18th of April, 1898, the United States senate and the house of representatives declared jointly that the Cubans "are and of a right ought to be free and independent" and empowered President McKinley to use the land and naval forces of the United States to their utmost capacity to carry the resolution into effect. This resolution constituted our declaration of war against Spain.

Battle of San Jacinto.

The battle of San Jacinto was fought April 21, 1836, between 1,600 Mexicans under Santa Anna and 800 Americans under Sam Houston. Santa Anna was defeated and he and 730 of his men were captured, 630 killed and 208 wounded. The Texas loss was 2 killed and 23 wounded. This battle decided the independence of Texas, and the day is observed in the state as a holiday.

The Making of a Match.

Thorpe gives the following proportions for match head and for striking surface: Head composition: Potassium chlorat, five parts; potassium bichromat, two parts; glass powder, three parts; gum, two parts. Rubbing surface: Antimony trisulfid, five parts; red phosphorus, three parts; manganese dioxid, one and one-half parts; gum, four parts.—Electrical Experimenter.

Many a fellow fishes all day and catches nothing but visionary mackerel.

The boy who plays marbles for keeps may be giving away public libraries in after years.

A man doesn't like to go to bed with the chickens and yet he always wants to roost high.

When a young man begins to call on a girl twice a week his mother fears the worst.

The foolish man ties up his dog at night and lets his children run loose.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Said:

"After all what a man does with his money is to invest, and there is no better way to do it than in Life Insurance. As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance.

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT

A young man sixteen years of age took out a 15 years Endowment (No. 214380) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.30 for fifteen years and he now has, through that investment, an immediate estate of $3495.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 18 PER CENT COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR PAID?

No wonder Sir Wilfrid said—and he might have added (no better place than the Sun Life of Canada)—"there is no better way to invest it than in LIFE INSURANCE."

CHILDREN'S AID TAG DAY OCT. 11TH

Our annual tag day will be held on the 11th. October this year and we thought the people who were generous enough to furnish us with funds might like to know what we are doing. In the first place we are glad the people have confidence enough in us not to want us to reveal a great deal of the sadness of the unfortunates with whom we have to deal, but there is a bright side always to every cloud, and our work has not been without some measure of reward. Our work has caused us to deal with a great many adults as well as children and we believe a great many homes have been benefited and unfortunate people encouraged by our visits without the necessity of a removal of the children from the home. We have tried to interest ourselves in the life work of every child under our care and have no little task when you realize we have some 145 of them. We see to their placements in good homes and after 14 years of age to their contracts for wages, and are keeping in trust for these children a very considerable sum of money which will be repaid to them later on with the accrued interest.

We could give a great number of cases where our placements have been of great benefit to the children but one or two will give some idea of our work.

Two girls were taken over by us for protection while the father was away at the war and were placed out in splendid homes, where they are contented and happy. After the father came home, the mother, who had been a sufferer for a long time, and could not care for the children, died. The father was so pleased with our treatment of his girls, decided that they will be left for sometime yet, where they are going to school and doing well.

Another little girl who is over school age and drawing wages is so satisfied with her new home that she says she does not want to come back to Peterborough for two or three years, when the people will not know her and she will make out she does not know them.

A visit to our Shelter at any time would reveal the work that is being done here. Our superintendent, Mrs. Read, says little, but does a great deal. Go and see her.

We may be facing a very severe winter, so we are in hopes that the public will be very generous this year when our Tag Day comes on October 11.

Yours,
GEO. W. POWELL,
Agent.

DEFAULTER FINED $250

William Harrington of Enniamore Gave Himself Up and Paid His Fine.

William Harrington of Enniamore was fined $250 in police court this morning for defaulting when called to the colors in May 1918.

Inspector J. G. Graham of the Dominion Police laid the information and sent out a warning to all other defaulters that it is wise for them to come in at once and surrender to save further trouble.

Mr. Graham laid the information against six defaulters at Lindsay last week all of whom were threatened to a $250 fine.

STRUCK BY STREET CAR

Four-year-old Girl Had Narrow Escape This Afternoon.

Little four-year-old Louise Erster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Erster, narrowly escaped serious injury, if not death, at 3:40 this afternoon, when she was struck by street car No. 32. The car was proceeding south on George street, when the little one ran in front of it from behind an auto standing alongside the car. The child did not see the car and the motorman could not see the girl until a few feet ahead of him, crossing the track. The farmer applied his brakes at once, and fortunately the child was merely struck by the car fender and rolled off the track. She sustained bruises on her head but so far as could be ascertained on going to press, suffered no other injury. Mr. and Mrs. Erster live on George street, over Mr. Zack's dry good store, opposite which the accident happened.

CHEERFUL MESSAGE FROM CAPTAIN BEST

SPOKE TO MEETING OF MEN AT ALLEN THEATRE ABOUT OPTIMISM

"I believe in a smiling religion, one full of happiness and joy," declared Capt. T. F. Best at the Y. M. C. A. meeting held in the Allen theatre yesterday afternoon.

This was the first of a series of meetings to be held under Y.M.C.A. auspices on Sunday afternoon, perhaps monthly, where one of the Association's best men will address audiences of men. The meeting yesterday was full of gladness and cheer which opened the season in a way that will be remembered by all those who attended.

In his introductory remarks Capt. Best complimented the theatre which the "Y" had been fortunate enough to secure. He considered it the right size to fill on a men's Sunday afternoon meeting and it comfort and beauty is exceptional.

Capt. Best stated that he thought a great many people did not go to church because they have an idea that religion is a very serious matter and something to avoid. He declared that it was only natural to dodge that long-faced religion. But the true Christian can be picked out by his happy smile. "The fellow who ought to be happy and carry a smile is the one who is right with God."

The speaker then went on to relate story after story that set the audience laughing over and over again. He told funny stories of typical cranks and grouchers and hum.

"But the secret of true happiness which went to show the advantage of being optimistic, cheerful and the natural consequence is happiness.

"If the grouch is allowed to grow in your nature it will be out on top all the time," the speaker said, "but it is a little advantage to go through life with a smile and can always find something bright if you will only look for it. The secret of the great morale of the Canadian troops was in no small measure due to their wonderful optimism and cheerfulness. I was wonderful to see how one optimistic, cheerful fellow could keep a whole troop going.

"But the secret of true happiness is to be right with our conscience and with our God. Get right with God and get right with your fellow man. The great joys of life come from giving, not receiving, from unselfishness and not selfishness, for it is not natural for one not to be happy who is spreading joy and happiness. Go out and give something to somebody and it will warm your heart until you thank God that you lived that day. The secret of joy is service," declared Capt. Best.

"Christianity is sacrifice and brotherliness as tonight by Christ who went about always doing good for others. The boy, girl, man or woman is best who lives like Jesus always remembering His message. 'In as much as ye did it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye did it unto Me.'"

ROUSING RECEPTION TENDERED PREMIER SIR WM. HEARST BY LARGE AND ENTHUSIASTIC GATHERING CAMPAIGN IN R. J. SODEN'S INTERESTS IS OPENED

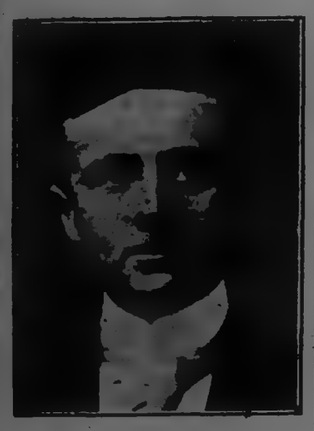
Prime Minister Outlines Record of Five Years' Administration in Opposition to Which Liberals Can Find no Concrete Cause for Complaint—Interests of Labor Advanced, and Progressive Legislation Generally Adopted—Unity of Action Toward Reduction in Cost of Living.

Sir William Hearst, Prime Minister of Ontario, opened the Liberal-Conservative Provincial election campaign for West Peterborough last night in the Grand Opera House where he addressed a large and enthusiastic audience in the interests of the party's local nominee, Mr R. J. Soden, and of that capable administration which he (Sir William) has the honor to lead. The Premier spoke for over an hour, and in a clear concise and forceful form which held the large crowd, including many ladies, in rapt attention to a masterly review of a progressive legislation the last five strenuous years, against which the Opposition can find no real course for complaint. His utterances were frequently broken by storms of applause when he referred to many measures that have redounded to the credit of the Hearst administration, which took up the late Sir James Whitney's commendable policy of "government for and of the people," and only one interruption occurred, and that was when a gentleman in the audience, evidently an anti-prohibitionist, complained bitterly of having to pay $2 for a prescription to get a drink.

The meeting was evidently in accord with Ontario's present government, and a spirit of general endorsation of the Ontario Temperance Act as a war measure and its submittal to the electorate for their mandate now that war is over, was in abundant evidence.

President C. E. Moore of the Liberal-Conservative Association made a capable chairman, and preliminary, but fittingly short addresses (in difference to the distinguished visitor) were made by Dr. Morrison and Mr. T. E. Bradburn, ex-M P P.

The Opera House orchestra contributed selections prior to the real business of the evening.



C. E. MOORE,
President of West Peterborough Liberal-Conservative Association.

Dr. Morrison.

Eulogized the Premier for his capable leadership during four of the most strenuous years in the province's history, in the course of which, he said, he had placed many good laws on the statute, none more exemplory, however, than the Ontario Temperance Act. He had admired Sir William's definite, straight-forward pledge to a big deputation in regard to that act, which pledge he put into effect for three years, and now appeals to the people for their mandate on that same war measure which resulted in increasing the output of munitions by 75 per cent. The speaker felt perfectly satisfied that after three years' experience of the Ontario Temperance Act, all sensible men and women fully realize that it has resulted in a general uplift of the province and will see to it through the ballot box, that that measure is left on the statute books. Personally, Dr. Morrison would rather see a return to the pre-war license act than have the Ontario temperance measure in force under a government not in sympathy with it.

The speaker congratulated the Prime Minister in the appointment of such capable ministers as Hon. Dr. Cody, Minister of Education, Minister of Agriculture Henry, a practical farmer himself, and in the activities of Brigadier-General Ross of Kingston under the government, who had with his application of anti-typhoid vaccine done more to save life in the ranks of our citizen army than had been accomplished by any other means.

The doctor concluded with the hope that Sir William would find a capable, genuine labor man as Minister of the Department of Labor.

J. E. Bradburn.

This gentleman, a former member of the Provincial Legislature, said he was out to support the nominee of the convention, whoever he might be, so long as that nominee stands solidly behind Sir William Hearst who, he declared, had given to this province the best government, bar none, Ontario have ever been blessed with. As to the temperance question, you need not be a bit alarmed, Mr. Bradburn said. "You'll get all you want" (laughter), although the speaker did not mean his pledge in the way it was evidently taken. In conclusion, Mr. Bradburn pitied Mr. Gillespie (politically) whom he felt convinced was in the wrong boat this time, and would go down to defeat in the face of a large majority vote polled for his opponent the Conservative candidate. (Cheers).

THE PRIME MINISTER.

Sir William Hearst rose to speak amid enthusiastic and prolonged applause. He felt it a pleasure to meet citizens and discuss with them public questions of movement and measure enacted by that government of which he had the honor to be the head. He was especially pleased to meet so large a gathering of citizens of Peterborough, a city, noted for its enterprise, public spiritedness and progressiveness, and also for the integrity of its citizenship

Characterizing these times as crucial in the history of the province, Sir William urged all citizens to play their part in the issues before them with proper consideration, even to the sinking of all party differences if necessary. He paid a warm tribute to the intelligence of the ladies in national and provincial questions, and congratulated them on having, for the first time, in the history of this province, the same voting privilege in the elections as men. He opined that their opinion would have an ennobling influence on the trend of provincial affairs, and prove uplifting to Canadian citizenship. Women, he said, when war broke out, rose to the occasion, and proved worthy of the best British traditions, none more so than the women of Ontario province. (Applause). Not satisfied with sending their sons and husbands to the front, they engaged in all patriotic work, and even enrolled among the ranks of munition workers, taking their places at machines and benches with men in our great battle for liberty and justice. In the field, in Red Cross work, in patriotic endeavors at hospitals in England, France and Flanders, and away near the front, women played their noble part. Then what else was there for us to do than to give them equal partnership with men in making the laws of this province? He spoke of women's present-day opportunities for preferment on school boards, in town and city councils, for seats in the legislature, and expressed great confidence in their judgment in all matters affecting the interests of the country in general.

Clean and Honest.

The Premier here recalled that when invited to assume office he pledged himself to carry out and maintain that policy of clean, honest and progressive administration in-

SOME SAYINGS BY SIR WILLIAM HEARST

I believe the women of the province will have an ennobling influence upon the politics of Ontario.

What was there to do but give women the franchise after the heroic part they played in the war?

Opportunity spells responsibility. We look to the women in Ontario to discharge the trust that has been placed in them

After five years as Premier, I ask you if I have faithfully carried out the honest administration of the late Sir James Whitney

No Government ever appealed to the people with a cleaner record than ours.

I only ask that you look on that record fairly.

Promises may be all right to get into power but it is performances that count.

We do not ask for your support on our promises, but on our records.

Mr. Dewart says that it is time the Government was discussed aside from all moral issues. We are perfectly willing to have this done.

Our record is so good that there has been practically no criticism of it.

We have a debt of $75,000,000 and I have no apology to make for we have good value for every dollar of it.

We equipped the Orphington Hospital in England, the best hospital that there was in Europe during the war

Not a single session has passed without some labor legislation being enacted

The Workmen's Compensation Act has been amended at every session since it was first enacted.

The Workmen's Compensation Act is the best in existence for the worker and the employer alike.

I intend to call to the new Department of Labor some man who has the confidence of the workingmen of Ontario.

If we are returned to power we will give greater tax exemptions to the married man with a family.

I have nothing for which to apologise, nothing to take back for my stand on the temperance question.

A man worthy to be Premier of a great province must be ready to do what he believes to be right no matter what happens to him politically.

SIR WILLIAM HEARST,
Prime Minister of the Province of Ontario.

NEW NOTE TO HUNS FROM GEN. FOCH

REPLY TO ALLIED NOTE FOR WITHDRAWAL OF TROOPS UNSATISFACTORY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, Oct. 7.—A German reply to the Alliance note demanding withdrawal of General Von Der Goltz's troops from Baltic provinces was discussed by the Supreme Council at the resumption of its meetings this morning. It was learned that the reply was considered unsatisfactory, and that Marshall Foch was instructed to draw up a new note to send the Germans.

SCHOOL BOARD MEMBERS OPPOSE APPOINTMENT OF MRS. MORRIS

Say Precedent Does Not Hold in Her Case as She Has Never Been Elected a Member of Board—Board Faced by Big Problems.

The members of the Board of Education will at a special session tonight elect a successor to Mr. G. N. Gordon, who resigned last session and whose term would not have expired until the end of 1920. If the members of the Board followed a precedent long established they would fill the vacancy by the appointment of Mrs. W. R. Morris, who was a candidate at the last election and who polled the highest vote of any of the defended candidates.

There is no statutory directions for the filling of a vacancy on the School Board. The law says only that the members shall appoint a successor to a member deceased or retiring at the session following his resignation. It is a matter of choice with the members as to electing Mrs. Morris or chosing some other person.

Prominent members of the Board stated today that they are not in this case held by the precedent above referred to for the simple reason that Mrs. Morris had never at any time been elected a member of the board.

Had she been a defeated member instead of merely a candidate the case would have been entirely different. In this they are not in any way to be understood as prejudiced against the principle of equal suffrage or as reflecting in the slightest degree upon the attainments of Mrs. Morris, for the position which her friends now intend should be hers.

The members of the School Board are faced by big problems. A new school must be erected at heavy expense. The Collegiate Institute is at present taxed to capacity and must soon be enlarged. The erection of a technical school cannot much longer be delayed. The cost of the latter institution will be comparatively light as the heavy end of the expense will be borne by the Government. Still the members seen today seemed to feel that a man of experience is to be desired for the position; some man who would not quit in a huff if denied his own way or who found himself confronted by a serious situation. If any of the veteran members now on retirement, chose to serve the city again, the position would be given them. These include Dr. Morrison, Robert Fair, W. H. Hill, John Crane, Vincent Eastwood, Col. Miller, B. F. Ackerman and others, who had a part in erecting so many of the school buildings of the city.

GREAT BRITAIN IS DEMOCRATIC

EVIDENCE OF THIS FURNISHED IN RECENT STRIKE, DECLARES LLOYD GEORGE.

ALL CLASSES WORK TOGETHER

PREMIER CLAIMS TO BE A WORKING MAN IN ALL BUT 8-HOUR DAY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Oct. 7.—Proof that Great Britain is a really democratic country was furnished by the recent railway strike episode. Premier Lloyd George declared in an address today, speaking at the Mansion House at a reception to Field Marshal Allenby, conqueror of Palestine, who was given the freedom of the city.

The Premier said: "Now that the episode on the home front is over, all ranks and classes must work together, the country needs it. We all belong to working classes in this country. I claim to be a working man in all except eight hour day. The strike proved that this is really a democratic country where public opinion must prevail."

STRIKERS PARADE STREETS

HOLD FORBIDDEN MASS MEETINGS AND DEFY MILITARY AND CIVIC AUTHORITY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Gary, Indiana, Oct. 7.—The site of one of the United States Steel Corporations greatest plants, affected for more than two weeks by the strike in the steel industry, today is under military control of approximately 1,000 federal soldiers, commanded by Major-General Leonard Wood commandant of central department of army.

Strikers Paraded.

Five hundred more troops fresh from riot duty at Omaha, Neb., were on their way here early today. The call for federal troops was made by Governor Goodrich of Indiana after thousands of strikers paraded and held mass meetings after being forbidden by the Mayor, the police and the approximately 200 state militiamen stationed at Gary.

R. J. SODEN UNAMINIOUS CHOICE OF CONSERVATIVE CONVENTION

Nominated by E. A. Peck and H. G. Webber Harmony and Enthusiasm Mark the Proceedings.

R. J. SODEN,
Liberal-Conservative nominee for West Peterborough.

The convention of the Liberal-Conservative party, held in the G. W. V. A. auditorium last night, was marked by enthusiasm and perfect harmony. There were a number of ladies among the delegates. Mr. C. S. McClelland, vice-president of the association, who presided, President Moore being engaged in the same duty at the mass meeting in the Grand Opera House, announced when he called the meeting to order that the proceedings would be short in order to give those present an opportunity to hear Premier Hearst's address. Mr. McClelland spoke of the unity which prevailed in the party, and predicted victory on polling day.

On motion of Ed. Manning and Frank Adams, the reading of the minutes of the last annual meeting was dispensed with. Nominations being called for, Mr. E. A Peck took the platform, and in a short address presented the name of Mr. R. J. Soden, speaking of him as a worthy citizen and as a capable man who will make an excellent representative and who he believes will be elected to the Legislature by a handsome majority.

Mr. Soden's nomination was seconded by Mr. H. G. Webber, who in his own person represents Conservatism, staunch temperance principles, and who is one of the representative farmers of the district.

After waiting for a few minutes for other names to be presented, and none being offered, the chairman declared the nominations closed. On motion of W. G. Howden and C. B. Coones the nomination of Mr. Soden was made unanimous.

The nominee of the convention thanked the delegates for the honor they had conferred upon him. He had not sought the nomination, but had agreed to become a candidate only after Mr. E. A. Peck had been prevented by business and family ties from entering the field. He stands, he said, four square with Premier Hearst on all the issues of the day. He was defeated in 1914 because he was believed to be in advance of his party. Some of the Conservatives in the riding on that occasion refused to support him because they were of the opinion that he had gone too far. Temperance Liberals did not vote for him because they believed that he would not, as a follower of Sir James Whitney, be able to accomplish anything for the cause. Neither of these could be blamed for the course they had taken. But now everything is different. Between candidate and [illegible] there is perfect accord.

Mr. Soden promised to do his utmost in the campaign and asked every delegate present to take off his coat and help him redeem the riding. If elected, he will give West Peterborough the best service of which he is capable, and will always endeavor to advance the best interests not only of the riding but of the entire Province and Dominion as well. The Conservative party is a unit today, more harmonious than it has ever been, and victory is in sight.

After a majority of the delegates had signed Mr. Soden's nomination paper, many of the women present affixing their signatures, the convention adjourned in a body to the Hearst meeting, seats having been reserved for them in the Opera House

STEEL STRIKERS HOLD UP CARS REVOLVERS USED, MAN WOUNDED

Ties and Blocks of Granite Piled up on Railway Tracks Police Hurry to Scene, Put Rioters to Flight.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 7.—Several men were slightly hurt, and one was reported wounded by a bullet from a revolver this morn. when a crowd of 1,000 men held up cars of the Buffalo and Lake Erie Traction Co between the city line and Lackawanna.

Ties on Track.

Ties and blocks of concrete piled up on tracks held up the first car, and ultimately blocked six of them carrying workmen to the Lakawanna Steel Co., one of these local plants closed by the strike. Fusilades of rocks met the cars as they came to a standstill.

Workmen Fought.

The workmen fought back and several of them, according to police information, used revolvers.

A detail of police hurried to the scene in an automobile patrol and quickly put the rioters to flight.

BOTH INDIANA HARBOR AND EAST CHICAGO UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Federal Troops Enforce Order in Sixteenth Day of Nation-Wide Steel Strike—Men Returning to Work.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Oct. 7 —The sixteenth day of the steel strike opened today with Indiana Harbor and East Chicago, Ind., under martial law and patrolled by state troops, and Gary, Ind., under the military control of 1,000 federal troops commanded by Major-General Wood. Major-General Wood has issued orders forbidding parades and mass meetings in Gary, and the carrying of fire arms by all except authorized to so by military and municipal officials. Picketing will not be interferred with.

Returning to Work.

Strikers were returning to work in increasing numbers, and the increased activity of pickets caused State officials grave concern.

No Changes Elsewhere.

Elsewhere in Chicago steel centre and in the Youngstown districts no material changes in the situation were reported.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1919.

R. J. SODEN THE NOMINEE.

R. J. SODEN has been selected as the standard-bearer of the Conservative party in the present campaign, his nomination having been made last night at a convention marked by harmony and enthusiasm. Mr. Soden's nomination means that the riding of West Peterborough will be redeemed at the elections on October 20. This constituency will send to the Legislature a man whose fidelity to the present Administration is unquestioned, a man, too, who, in order to give free expression to his own sentiments, will not find it necessary to occasionally swerve in support to the other side of the House.

Mr. Soden is no stranger to those whose support he now asks. He was the candidate of the party in 1914, and at that time was the victim of his adherence to his own convictions. Five years ago Mr. Soden was far in advance of his own and the opposing party on the temperance issue. He was for total prohibition then, just as he is today, not merely for the closing of the bars. This platform accomplished his defeat. Temperance voters in his own party resented what they regarded as a difference of opinion with the then leader. Temperance people politically opposed to Mr. Soden could not bring themselves to believe that, no matter what his temperance principles, he would be able to accomplish anything on behalf of the cause while his associates and leader [illegible] Mr. Soden went down to defeat, losing the election by a margin of 162 votes.

Mr. Soden has for his opponent today the same upright gentleman who defeated him in 1914, but the conditions are exactly reversed. Mr. Gillespie is in the same quandary now as Mr. Soden was five years ago and the result two weeks hence is likely to work out as it did in 1914.

Mr. Soden deserves the reward of popular support for the sacrifice he made in 1914, for the defeat which he suffered by reason of his fidelity to principle. The policies which he adopted then have since been vindicated. The Province has had three years of total prohibition, and, unless all signs fail, the Ontario Temperance Act will be sustained by the vote of the people, who are not slow to recognize the benefit that measure has been to the people.

Mr. Soden from the beginning of the war was an active worker in every move calculated to assure victory for the Allies. He took a prominent part in recruiting meetings and in raising money for the Patriotic Fund. He was past the military age, but offered his services in any capacity. When an attempt was made here to recruit the 247th Battalion he was made quartermaster of that unit with the rank of honorary captain. He would have been sent overseas as a non-combatant but for the failure to complete the battalion. But his family was represented in the army of the Empire. His only son enlisted just as soon as he attained the age of eighteen, and saw two years of active service, from the battle of Paschendaele to the last engagement of the war.

Mr. Soden enters the campaign with every prospect of success. He has the prestige of a united convention behind him. There is not a single discordant element in the local Conservative party.

Mr. Soden is a progressive without being an extremist. He is aggressive, a good speaker, and will keep the name of Peterborough in honorable prominence if he is elected to the Legislature. He is a man whose public service will be a credit to any community, one, too, whose integrity, personally or politically, is high above reproach.

PREMIER HEARST'S ADDRESS.

PREMIER HEARST at the Grand Opera House last night spoke as a statesman of high ideals rather than as a politician with his own selfish ends in view. His address was one of the most masterly statements of achievement ever heard in this city. He has no apology to offer, nothing to extenuate in any part of the record of his administration. Like every big man who is convinced of the righteousness of his own cause, he can afford to be magnanimous, and not one unkind word came from him with reference to his opponents. On the other hand, he gracefully acknowledged the support he had received from the party in opposition on all occasions when war measures were up for consideration.

It was the first visit of Sir William to Peterborough, and the impression which he made is entirely favorable. He is a man of fine platform presence and a lucid and entertaining speaker. The large audience accorded him the compliment of following his lengthy address with the closest attention. He has nothing to conceal, nothing in his record to extenuate. He goes to the country with no shadow of scandal upon his administration. He is ready to meet all criticism, to probe every charge that may be made against him.

Sir William believes that women, now that they have the franchise, will elevate politics, just as they have every cause with which they have been associated. He accepts the issue raised by Hartley Dewart when the latter claims that the record of the present Administration should be considered apart from the great moral issue. On this point Sir William courts the fullest investigation. Financially the affairs of the Province are sound, as Sir William most convincingly shows. Labor legislation has been advanced during his administration, and further measures in the interests of the working-men are in contemplation. The action of the League of Nations in providing for uniform labor laws throughout the civilized world has created the necessity for progressive measures in Canada, and these will be adopted in Ontario to the limit of legislative jurisdiction.

Sir William made perfectly clear what is implied in the four questions on the referendum ballot, and why the four were finally agreed upon in the Legislature. Every variety of public opinion is to be given a chance for expression, otherwise there could be nothing final in the verdict rendered on polling day.

In an eloquent peroration, Sir William set a high standard for the future of Canada and for the Province. Perhaps his dream of future national development is in distant prospect, but it is only the man who dreams of greatness who distinguishes himself by achievement. Men of the stamp of Sir William Hearst are needed to attain the high ideals he sets for his nation.

A WINTER FAIR FOR PETERBOROUGH.

ONE OF THE MOST significant incidents in the visit of Sir William Hearst to this city yesterday was his inspection of the up-to-date Fair grounds made under the special escort of President Roland Deane and R. H. Turner of the Exhibition Board. Sir William was impressed by the modern arrangements, and leaves Peterborough convinced that this city's annual exhibition is something more than the average country fair.

It is proposed to ask the Legislature for a grant to enable the Exhibition Board to establish a fat stock show in this city. Eastern Ontario is entitled to such an institution, and Peterborough is the logical location for it. There should be no discrimination as between the eastern and the western portion of the Province. Western Ontario has already been liberally provided for in this respect. The stock business in this section will never be properly developed until some such inducement as a winter fair is given to the farmers. Sir William Hearst has seen for himself that the Exhibition Board of this city are well qualified to conduct a fall fair in keeping with the growth of the city, and thus the first step has been gained in the move to secure legislative aid for the encouragement of the stock raising industry in this section of the Province.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN DOCTOR.

IN AN AUDIENCE such as that which gathered in the Grand Opera House last night to listen to the address of Premier Hearst it would be too much to expect that the entire audience would be with the speaker. There was one riffle in the proceedings, once when the man in the gallery was in evidence. That was when Sir William said that if the Ontario Temperance Act is sustained it will be still possible to obtain liquor for medicinal purposes on a doctor's prescription.

"Yes," interjected a voice from the upper regions, "and pay the doctor $2 for an order."

"Whatever his charge you will be required to pay it," [illegible]

The man who interrupted the Premier last night is a type of a class the members of which object to paying for a doctor's prescription for liquor while handing him over his fee for other lines of service without a murmur. If liquor is useful as a medicine, it should be prescribed only by a skilled physician, just as other drugs are. The trouble with the man in the gallery and his kind is that in this regard they assume to supplant the doctors. They would, when they deem themselves in need of liquor, make their own diagnosis and do their own prescribing. If generally adopted, this system would result in the elimination of the race.

If any doctor in Ontario abuses the confidence that has been placed in him, the law will deal with his case. There is another safeguard. The members of the Ontario Medical Association will see to it that the honor of the profession is maintained. There is sufficient probity among the physicians of the Province to keep up the high standard set for those of their calling.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

A VOTE for Mr. Gillespie means a vote for Hartley Dewart as Premier.

• • • • •

VOTE EARLY on the referendum, and often, if four times can be so regarded.

• • • • •

THE LOCAL Conservative party goes into this campaign united as it never was before in its history.

• • • • •

AND THIS IS the Premier, this the Administration whom the Examiner accuses of going to sleep on the job!

• • • • •

A VOTE for R. J. Soden will help to keep in office the Premier whose course on all questions is an open book.

• • • • •

MR. SODEN will have to go some in this campaign to get ahead of his leader, as he did on a former occasion.

• • • • •

LET THE CAMPAIGN now in full swing be conducted on the high plane that Premier Hearst set up in his address last night.

• • • • •

THE GLOBE says it would not vote for any candidate who would not declare himself on the temperance issue. According to this the Globe would not vote for any candidate who would support such a man for the premiership.

EDITOR'S MAIL

NEW ORDER OF THINGS

Editor, Review.—In the newly awakened flood of ideas, given birth by the great war, the thought crystalising that working men and women—the producers of all wealth—are entitled to a share in the reconstruction of the economic world, and a voice as to how it shall be done. The old order of class privilege is giving way to the pressure of the economic plan of the greatest good to the greatest number. Heretofore any reforms have always been put in force by the ruling minority irrespective of the wishes of those ruled, and then only to increase the efficiency of the individual to the end that he may produce more wealth, not for the betterment of his own condition, but that of his employer. Workers in the world here have discovered that the drones have performed their natural functions and can now be dispensed with. Their elimination is a painful (to them) but absolutely necessary act if the world is to again enjoy the peaceful pursuit of happiness and freedom that is the natural right of every human born in it.

To regain this freedom it is not necessary to resort to the bloody bludgeon of might, as do the despots, and physically annihilate those they can no longer control, for we in Canada have a less bloody but equally powerful weapon at hand—the ballot.

To secure the greatest good to the greatest number of laws that give special privileges to no minority of citizens, and that can be accomplished only by the election to the legislature of individuals that represent the majority, and the workers being 85 per cent of the population of Canada who can argue with truth, that they be not represented according to numbers as true democracy demands.

The awakening of the 85 per cent is demonstrated by the nomination of 21 straight labor candidates in Ontario,—truly a remarkable showing of vigilant wakefulness. There is no question that the 85 per cent can and will send their representatives to parliament. To the consternation of the ruling minority, labor has now a solidarity it has heretofore lacked. Workers are now doing their own thinking and their thoughts are directed to the work of destroying the evils of class legislation.

In West Peterborough a representative of the 85 per cent is in the field, and as a previous civic election proves that labor is now a compact body, who can deny it will be successful in the struggle for legislative honors. The diversity of opinions and methods of securing reforms prevalent among the workers, and which was always taken advantage of by the professional politician in the past, have now disappeared, all the workers' efforts having been merged in one effort to secure a representation that will see to it that such reforms are instituted as will give a more equitable distribution of the honey in this wonderful hive called Canada. Long life to labor in Parliament, is the wish of one worker who has never been able to get a fair share of the honey.

PURITY - QUALITY - ECONOMY

With the increased cost of labor and materials due to war conditions, it is not reasonable to suppose that a really first class baking powder can be made and sold at the old prices. Rather than sacrifice the quality of we found it necessary to make slight increases in price during the war period. Even though Magic Baking Powder may cost a few cents more than the ordinary kinds it is still by far the most economical baking powder on the market today when purity, strength and leavening qualities are taken into consideration.

MR. BURNHAM INSISTS ON RIGHT OF MEMBERS TO RECOMMEND OFFICIALS

Men Who Are Entrusted to Carry on the Business of the Country Are, He Says, Surely Worthy of Confidence in This Matter.

When the Civil Service Act was under discussion in Parliament, Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P., according to Hansard, delivered the following address:

Mr. J. H. BURNHAM (Peterborough, West): Mr. Speaker, I believe it is a rule of order that when a member expresses an opinion decidedly against a measure under considera[illegible] committee appointed to consider that measure. All those members, if I am right, who are expressing a hostile opinion to this Bill are therefore excluded from the committee, and the consequence is that the committee, being composed of men who have expressed a favorable opinion will necessarily bring in a favorable report.

Putting the Outside Service under the Civil Service Commission means a vast expense to the country. A few illustrations will show what I mean. A member told me this afternoon of the case of a postmistress, located 130 miles north of Kingston, in the backwoods, and receiving $80 a year who resigned. It was necessary for the post office inspector to go to that locality and make inquiries. Had he been permitted to do so, he could have inquired of the member for the constituency and had the whole question decided for next to nothing. But he went to the locality and back to Kingston; then he went to the locality again and back again to Kingston. Three or four times he had to make that journey, with the result that the expense ran up to hundreds of dollars. In my own constituency a postmastership in the back country—a trifling affair but a very great convenience to tourists and others who visit that district in the summer time became the subject of inquiry in the same way. The inspector kept racing back and forth, whereas if he had inquired of me he could have dealt with the whole situation in a few minutes.

If the member is not fit to make a suggestion about a matter of this kind, why, put the member out. The principle of a member representing his constituency and being asked various things in connection with it for the benefit of that constituency is perfectly sound. That there are some members who are unfit to give an opinion, may be possible. Well then, bring in a Bill to prohibit these members having anything to say about such matters—or leave it to the people who may be trusted to rectify the matter in very short order.

Mr. LEGER: The member is responsible to the people.

Mr. BURNHAM: The member is responsible to the people; the people have elected him on that understanding; and for the central authorities in Ottawa or anywhere else to go sneaking round and making inquiries from all sorts of irresponsible persons in the constituency is disgusting, it cannot last and it won't last; no such principle as that can possibly continue in existence very long. No self respecting member, no man who has any respect for himself at all, would put up with it. I quite understand why it is that there is such seething discontent in the House; members are beginning to realize what they did when they put the mark of the beast upon themselves.

To exclude women from this commission is an absurdity. Women comprise at least half of the electorate of the country; women are in Civil Service. It naturally follows that they should have representation on the commission. The soldiers and labor may be left to take care of themselves; they are well able to do it, and they certainly will do it. But I make the plea for the poor member that he be represented on the commission. The poor outcast—do let him, Mr. Speaker, be represented on the commissioner, because if he is not fit to be consulted in such a trifling matter [illegible] give an opinion upon the business of the country? It is an absurdity. We are here—what? A gathering of men declared morally unfit to do the business of the country—not only to do the business of the country, but to do the most trifling things connected with the various constituences that we represent. Certainly this is a matter that ought to be looked into and the principle recognised that the people of this country, including members of Parliament, are respectable people unless they are shown to be otherwise.

Long-Standing Evil

Effective Measures Taken

Since childhood Mr. A. Call was under the shadow of a great evil, which always menaced his comfort and safety. Read what he says:—

"I was troubled with my kidneys since childhood and spent a large amount of money trying to get cured. Instead of getting better, I kept getting worse until a friend of mine advised me to try Gin Pills. I did so, and after taking one box, I was able to get out of bed and walk around. Two more boxes relieved me completely, and since then I have had no return of the trouble."

Many people have kidney and bladder trouble without knowing it. They think nothing of the backache, the pains in the sides, the constant headaches, the rheumatic, sciatic and neuralgic pains, the floating specks before the eyes, the swollen joints, the highly-colored urine—all signs of trouble—all signs which should receive immediate attention and treatment with Gin Pills, which are by far the most effective of all preparations, and which may help you to avoid a fatal operation. They quickly relieve pain and heal the congested tissues, bringing the organs back to normal. At druggists and dealers, 50c a box. Money back if no relief. Send for free sample.

AS NEIGHBORS SEE SIR ROBERT BORDEN

(Christian Science Monitor)

One of the most welcome features about all of Sir Robert Borden's utterances is the way in which he invariably, sooner or later, carries his subject into its broadest possible issues. Few men are better able than is the Canadian Premier to bring out the local application of a great problem, and few men are more careful to do this. But it is alway rather the vision of the universal aspect than the local aspect which Sir Robert strives to leave with his hearers. Again and again, as the great war swayed back and forth from allied victory, it was given to Sir Robert Borden to make some utterance, either in his own country or at the other side of the Atlantic which was hailed in every allied country as a word of leadership encouragement, and hope for which every one was waiting. In those days his utterances were, for the most part, in the nature of stirring appeals to greater effort, appeals which, however much they might begin with national considerations always ended in the purest and highest sense. The Canadian Premier might begin with an appeal for Canada. He invariably ended with an appeal for humanity.

To-day, Sir Robert, with the first part at any rate, of a great work accomplished, is engaged, on occasions eagerly welcomed, in paying tribute where tribute is due. Some weeks ago, on the eve of propogation, the Canadian House of Commons listened to a very noble tribute paid by the Premier to the soldiers and sailors of the Dominion, and within the last few days it has listened to an equal noble tribute to the Canadian people as a whole.

There was nothing perfunctory about either utterance. At this date, it is hard to imagine that anything new could be found to be said in the way of appreciation of the great work of the soldiers and sailors at the front. And yet, as Sir Robert Borden told of his journey through [illegible] France and Belgium along the terrible line which Canadians had struggled so long to hold, few among those who heard him could have been conscious of any repetition. For Sir Robert Borden was, surely, well interpreting the thoughts of all when he said simply, as he did, "For us the story will never grow old." No one was forgotten in this tribute. The engineers behind the lines, the men of the forestry corps, the men who, at the command of duty, remained in Canada or Great Britain "chafing under their desire to see service at the front," the Canadian sailors who dared everything for Canada and her allies on the seven seas were all remembered. And then, specially notably perhaps came the tribute to the Canadian women at the front, for their glorious and unselfish service."

Sir Robert Borden has always been ready to speak first of those who were at the front. Whilst the war was in progress he pointed to their hardships and trials, uncomplainingly and valiantly borne, as a great example and inspiration for all, and, to-day, he is ever ready to "tell again the story" of this devotion. No one, however, knows better than Sir Robert Borden how worthy of tribute are those who stayed at home, those who, with the men and women at the front, made up all that the world understands by the word Canada. And so in his speech in the House of Commons, the other day, Sir Robert spoke of Canada, of her resolve which had, "given inspiration," of her sacrifices that had been "conspicious," and of her efforts which had been "unabated to the end."

But there remained the broader tribute still, and Sir Robert Borden did not fail to pay it, the tribute to every one, of whatever nation, who fought in the cause of righteousness. Thus from the world's effort he passed from the world's hope. "As far back as the dawn of history," he said in conclusion, "men have been conscious of the evils of war, and from the earliest times war-wearied nations have held high hopes of a [illegible] in which war should cease. Such to-day is the universal aspiration of mankind."

CONSTANT PAIN AFTER EATING

The Tortures of Dyspepsia Corrected by "Fruit-a-tives"

St. Marys, N.B.

"For two years, I suffered tortures from Severe Dyspepsia. I had constant pains after eating; pains down the sides and back; and horrible bitter stuff often came up in my mouth

I tried Doctors, but they did not help me. But as soon as I started taking 'Fruit-a-tives', I began to improve and this medicine, made of fruit juices, relieved me when everything else failed."

GASOLINE PUMPS MUST BE REMOVED

THESE PROVE A NUISANCE TO OTHER PLACES OF BUSINESS—GIVEN UNTIL THE SIGNING OF PEACE.

At the regular meeting of the city Council last night the question of having gasoline pumping stations on the street was discussed. The matter was brought up by a request from Yelland & Morten to install a pump beside the Driscoll Terrace. It was pointed out by Ald. Gainey that according to a previous resolution passed by the Council all such pumps must be removed on the signing of peace and suggested that the applicants be informed of this circumstance.

Then Ald. Turner rose and stated that he would like to see that resolution of the Council rescinded. "In every town and city on this side, and on the other, those tanks are placed along the side of the streets for the convenience of the people, and, I think, the Council's action to rid the city of these pumps arbitrary," declared Ald. Turner.

The Mayor explained that there were two sides of the question to consider. It is very inconvenient for those whose place of business is next one of these pumps to have the road in front of his place blocked for hours at a time. The Mayor did not think it was fair to allow these places of business to be blocked and yet he realized the great convenience of the gasoline pumps.

No action was taken to rescind the previous ruling of the Council, so, unless the councillors decide otherwise, all gasoline pumps must be removed from the street curbs immediately after peace has been officially ratified.

MR. GILLESPIE'S CAMPAIGN.

Mr. Gillespie intends to open his campaign next Thursday evening in North Monaghan. At 7:30 a meeting will be held in May's schoolhouse and at 8 o'clock the same evening a meeting will be held in the town hall. TORONTO STAR ENDORSES PREMIER HEARST

After pausing and shivering on the brink for some time in semi-readiness as to raiment, the Toronto Star casts off the last shred of its political garments and dives head first into the pool. It comes out four square not only for the Ontario Temperance Act itself, but for Premier Hearst as well, being logically unable to disassociate the one from the other. In this course the Star, which a few days ago condemned the nickel policy of Hartley Dewart, has gone one step further than the Globe, which, unable as it may be to accept the provincial Liberal leader, cannot refrain from criticising the policy of Sir William Hearst, aside from the temperance question. That, however, is a course which no one is more ready to accept than Premier Hearst himself.

The referendum ballot is entirely different from the party ballot on election day, and some say that a prohibitionist will do his duty when he votes four solid "Noes" on the referendum.

But suppose he contents himself with that. Let us suppose that the "Noes" have it by an overwhelming majority and that prohibition carries all along the line, but that Sir William Hearst is involved in defeat. What will have defeated him? The conclusion will be inevitable that his defeat was due to the fact that he champions prohibition although leader of a party which to a large extent did not approve of his action; that his loyalty to the cause of temperance lost him large numbers of Conservative votes, while his service to the cause of prohibition did not win him the support of enough Liberal prohibitionists.

Do the people who vote for prohibition want it? If so, it seems necessary that they should prove in a manner that public men and political parties will understand. In the last general election in a Province that is supposedly strong for prohibition Hon. N. W. Rowell went down to complete defeat advocating the abolition of the bars. If in this election Sir William Hearst goes down to defeat because he put the Ontario Temperance Act into effect, every politician in the country will draw the inference—no matter how the vote on the referendum goes—that the public man who trusts to prohibition sentiment where political voting is concerned is a doomed man.

Sir William Hearst has taken the boldest course on behalf of the cause of temperance of any public man in the history of either political party in Canadian public life; he took his course contrary to the inclinations of his party; the support of large sections of his party is falling away from him because of his course in this great issue. Those who believe that he did the right thing ought to support him for having done it, and not leave him to be dealt with by those whose enmity he has incurred.

NEW SONGS AT Y. M. C. A. MINSTRELS

Several of Asa Huycke's New Songs Will be Rendered and Copies Sold.

One of the many features of the big Y. M. C. A. Minstrel Show this year is the rendition of several of Mr. Asa Huycke's new original Minstrel songs. These include: "My Lovin' Coal Black Minstrel Boy" "Toreador Rag" "Those Lovin' Lies" "She's Got it on Her Daughter Like a Tent" "Sweet Canadian Snow-Drop." Some of these songs will be published and sold at the show.

Among the clever end men are George Wesley, Vern. Morphet, Norm Laing, Jerry McClelland, Harold Huff G. S. Rich, Geo. Logan and Morg. Cottingham.

The male chorus of forty voices will be assisted by a ladies' chorus of thirty-five voices. These, under the direction of Mr. Huycke will possibly produce the best amateur Minstrel Show ever presented in Peteboro.

It has been found necessary to change the practice for this evening from the Y. W. C. A. to the Y. M. C. A. building. All members are requested to be on hand at 7:30 sharp for a good rehearsal.

Y. M. C. A. Gym. Notes

"Fall in" was the command which last evening started the Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium Classes away to what promises to be a most successful season. At 5:30 the Business Men's Class met and had a good work out under the physical director. At 7:00 the Junior Employed Boys' Class got together on the floor and spent a very busy hour at physical culture and games. At 8:00 the Senior Men were on hand and after a very successful course of physical training played a red hot game of basketball.

The classes now being under way there will be something doing all the time for men and boys, so find out about your class and line up for a profitable and enjoyable season's work in the Gym.

On Saturday last about 22 members of the Boys Deparment took part in the first hike of the season. The boys met at the Y. Building and after a game of basketball in the gymnasium and a dip in the plunge announced themselves ready for the day's outing. Under the supervision of the Boys' Secretary they walked out the creek which runs through the city, to the old familiar swimming hole. A fire was lighted and dinner prepared after which a game of baseball was played. When tired of this sport a treasure hunt was organized to search out hidden nickels. A game of football brought the outing to a close and the boys arrived back in the city at 4 o'clock tired but ready for the next hike.

ARE THE DAYS OF MIRACLES OVER?

IS SUPERSTITION AND FALSE BELIEF TO OVERSHADOW FACTS ANY LONGER?

When a woman who has been sick for years becomes well after taking a certain scientific preparation—can you deny that the remedy must be good?

Read these extracts taken from a letter written to us by Mrs. H. Cross, of 302 King Street West, Toronto:—

"I suffered for several years with inflammatory Rheumatism and could hardly get up or down stairs. My husband bought me a box of Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules, and almost immediately I felt relief. The swellings started to go down and the stiffness left my knees. I might say that previously to using T.R.C.'s I had tried almost everything under the sun without success. I am a happier and wiser woman now, and I cannot thank you enough for the aid T.R.C.'s have given me."

It's the same story from hundreds of other Rheumatic sufferers. They tried T.R.C.'s and T.R.C.'s fixed them up. If you suffer, try them.

Ask your Druggist or write us for our new booklet. It is interesting and costs you nothing (Templetons, 142 King West, Toronto). We mail T.R.C.'s anywhere on receipt of $1.00.

ROUSING RECEPTION

augurated by the late Sir James Whitney, his predecessor. And today not one single act of wrong doing can be charged against the present government; no administration ever appealed to the people with a cleaner record. (Prolonged cheers).

He spoke of the shelving of the party's political future in order that all people—Liberals and Conservatives alike—might unite in the one great object of winning the war, and pointed with pride to the war record of Ontario, not excelled by any other province either in the Dominion or overseas. The government forgot politics and neglected political propaganda, Sir William here went on to say, content to await till the struggle was over and then abide by the verdict of the people whatever that verdict might be. I might well plead five strenuous years of national danger as an excuse for lack of legislation, but I ask no excuse, and can point to reforms and enactments that will compare with those of any administration, and which will stand for years in exemplification of what a government can do for development and progress. (Applause).

Mr. Dewart, the Premier said, declares he has a platform, in which may be found a plank for any public need, and I have no doubt he can discover a few more planks the next two weeks (Laughter).

No-Called Charges.

Turning to Mr. Dewart's insinuation of charges against the government, Sir William wanted to know why he had not laid those so-called charges down in the House? What had he not introduced charges of maladministration on the floor of the legislature? He did make one charge but that was not only not proven but had been indisputably disproven (Prolonged applause). Failing in any definite charge against the government, he now confines himself to criticism of deceased ministers—the late Attorney-General Foi and Minister of Agriculture J. S Duff—and to vague and general insinuations. In fact our record is so good, asserted Sir William, that the Opposition is now substituting denunciation and abuse for concrete allegations of misconduct.

Financial Record.

Turning to the financial operations of the government, the Premier pointed to an increase in revenue of over $8,000,000. The succession duties of $3,157,000 in 1918 were seven times the amount of revenue from this source in 1904, while revenues from corporations in 1918 were $1,803,000, or five times that of the last year of Liberal administration—and who can complain, he asked, that we take this money from men of wealth, and rich estates that can well afford to pay. From taxes alone the government derives half a million more than in 1904, and from the levy on motor vehicles we drew before the war. Of this income we raise $1,676,235 per annum goes for agriculture, and $1,270,000 more has gone to hospitals and churches than before the present administration came into power. As to education, grants for that purpose in 1904 of less than a million had been increased to $3,507,000 per year to lift the burden of maintenance from off the shoulders of the people.

Sir William here told of the work of combatting disease, for which anti-typhoid vaccine to the value of $221,376 had been distributed free of charge, thus reducing the death rate in cities and towns to an appreciable extent.

$1,200,000 Surplus

Speaking of the government's work as a whole, he declared his administration had made possible improved hospital service, better labor conditions, increased workingmen's compensation in case of accidents, provided free of charge employment bureaus and given the public better service generally. And in spite of these facts the last four years we have had an annual surplus of $1,200,000, and have been able to borrow at fair rates of interest in furtherance of the Hydro-Electric scheme and other public works.

Provincial Debt

In referring to the public debt of $75,000,000 complained of by the U. F.O., the Prime Minister pointed out that the province had good value for every dollar of debt. As with farmers and business men, it pays to borrow money for expensive investment. Against that $75,000,000, we have he said, $5,000,000 cash in the bank; we have expended over $20,000,000 on the Temiskaming railway, which is today an outstanding example of public ownership and the best equipped railway in the country. We can sell at any time at 100 cents on the dollar but intend to hold it in development of that great resourceful district of Northern Ontario. Then there are $36,000,000 invested in Hydro-Electric, three or four million in crown lands and large sums in drainage debentures. Altogether, this province has over $71,000,000 of assets which could be turned into cash tomorrow.

The War Tax.

Turning to the war tax of $71,000,000 a year—$8,000,000 in four years—the Premier, while paying a tribute to the splendid way in which the Opposition had supported all war measures, regretted that they seemed afraid that some of that war tax would find its way into other revenues, when the truth is we spent nearly $2,000,000 more on war than were raised from that special levy. He, here outlined the cost of building, equipping and maintaining the Lipsington Military Hospital in England positively the best institution of its kind in all Europe and gave the Government's contributions to patriotic purposes as $2,300,000, to say nothing of Christmas gifts and comforts, the last two years, to soldiers overseas, the establishment of a Soldiers' Aid Commission, and providing free training and equipment for returned men to facilitate their re-establishment again in civilian life. "We did our level best for the soldiers at the front in every way," declared Sir William, and are prepared to stand by him now until we have paid in full the debt of gratitude due him." (Prolonged applause.)

Labor Legislation.

The Premier spoke of many efforts to perfect legislation in the interests of labor, not a session passing, he said, but what some new provision was put in the statute books in the way of compensation, assuring there by working conditions, protection for wages and opportunity for educational and industrial advancement.

Housing Scheme.

He pointed to the Housing Scheme as another example of the leadership given by the Government. A total of 1,300 houses had been completed, and plans for building 4,000 more next year were already in hand. "Throughout the Province there is general satisfaction with the working of the Act," he added.

Workmen's Compensation.

He referred at length to the Workmen's Compensation Act, amended to eliminate litigation and consequent reductions and delays in payments. Today, practically every dollar paid by the employer goes to the injured employee. Then pensions and allowances for widows, under this act, have been largely increased and arministration by the Government keeps costs down in the interests of both employer and employee. Since that act was passed, he declared, $9,250,000 had been expended in compensation, of which $4,000,000 was distributed last year.

Government last year's session voted $1,000,000 toward free employment bureaus, he pointed out and those institutions last year placed 1,000,000 men in positions.

A Labor Minister.

Reverting to the labor question again, the Premier explained the act by which miners were guaranteed 8 hours a day, women and children protected from unscrupulous employers in the the matter of long hours, and to which department he intended calling a Minister of Labor, when working men, women and children would be enacted.

For Boys and Girls.

The Premier next told of investigations by the Government into opportunities for boys and girls, with the intention of opening a juvenile department, with bureaus to safeguard budding working young folk of the province against what is termed blind alley occupations.

Tax Exemptions.

He here went on to explain the increased income tax principle, which will afford greater exemption to the workingman with a family, and he talked of that bill already drafted that will give pensions to mothers to allow of their children being brought up as worthy citizens of the state. He also spoke of the provincial government's acquiescence in that general scheme for unity of law, in furtherance of a reduction in the high cost of living, and of that minimum wage act he has concluded shall be inaugurated and enforced to assure women and children receiving salaries upon which they can decently live." (Cheers.)

Educational Policy.

Sir William told of monies expended in education by his progressive government, which raised both the standard of education and teaching, and allowed substantial increases in the salaries of teachers. In this direction $250,000 had been appropriated for rural schools, and Peterborough City had not been overlooked by the administration, which had raised its school grants of $2,246 in 1904 to $12,000 for 1918, with provision for an increase to $18,992 this year. Referring briefly to the appointment of Dr. Cody as Minister of Agriculture, the Premier eulogized that honorable gentleman as the very man of high ideals he had been looking for. The key-note of his principle is educational facilities for every class in every community. (Applause.)

The speaker told of the Government's consolidated school plan for rural districts, by which one good graded school serves a considerable district, to which school centre little ones are conveyed in automobiles. At one such central school in Northern Ontario, the average attendance is greater than that of any other school in the province. The present administration, he promised, will give substantial grants toward each and every one such school consolidation schemes. (Applause.)

The Prime Minister here drew attention to the fact that notwithstanding the high cost of living the price of school supplies had remained the same as before the war, and less than under the Liberal regime. The Hearst administration had saved the province $1,250,000 in the price of school books alone.

Temperance Question

Sir William explained the O. T. A. in regard to which he had no apologies to make. While we cannot prohibit the manufacture of liquor, that act has abolished the bars and drinking in public places. (Applause.) It was a war measure, he said, and as such released for war purposes large sums of money, and increased the province's fighting force. And now that victory is won, a referendum invites an expression of public opinion on the act at a time when men from overseas can have and can participate in that vote. This is a free British country, the speaker said, the majority must rule, and responsibility for a continuance of the O. T. A. now rests on the shoulders of the electorate. Whatever that vote may be, he will if returned to power, carry out the people's mandate to the letter as far as possible. The Premier here clearly explained the questions on the ballot paper, and stated that a majority vote for number one would repeal the whole measure, in which event the province would go back to the old license act. In case of a negative vote, questions two, three and four give opportunity for amendments to that license act. "If you want the Ontario Temperance Act to stand as it is," he advised, "you had better vote four no's."

Shoulder to Shoulder

Prime Minister Sir William Hearst concluded a truly forceful and convincing address to an eloquent appeal for unity of purpose in planning for a better world, where ignorance and vice and want are banished, and in which justice prevails, and a fullest measure of opportunity is given for the development of this province's abundant natural resources. Let us stand shoulder to shoulder, he urged.

TORONTO WOMAN HAS RECOVERED

MRS. DOWNS COULD HARDLY GET ABOUT THE HOUSE—ENJOYS WORK NOW.

Before taking Tanlac I was so weak that I could hardly get about the house, but I thoroughly enjoy my work now, said Mrs. Mary Downs, of 1 Currie street, Toronto, Ont.

"Sometime ago," she continued, "I had to undergo an operation and it looked like I would never get over the shock. I lost my appetite and actually would go for days without eating a thing. I was so weak the least exertion would soon exhaust me. I could hardly get any sleep at night and would often be subject to fearful nightmares that would shake my nerves so I would tremble like a leaf on waking up.

"I was just in the awful fix when I started on Tanlac, and it wasn't long before I felt it was bracing me up and making me eat. Now my appetite has returned and I relish every bite, my nerves are much stronger and I rest well at night and never have those terrible nightmares anymore. I am able to do all my housework now without half trying and never feel tired and worn out like I did before."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, by G. Pringle & Son.

Intolerance or Compromise?

A Challenge to Common Sense!

DON'T let anyone tell you that the issue on October 20th is "The Beer or the Boy"—"Is Alcohol a Poison or Not?"—"Economy or Extravagance"—any such an abstraction.

The plain situation is—three sections of the people of this Province are absolutely dissatisfied with the Ontario Temperance Act and want new legislation that will permit the sale of light beer and wine generally, and the sale of pure, spirituous liquors only through Government agencies.

These three sections of the population are ninety per cent. of organized labor, by actual vote; a large number of returned soldier organizations, by actual vote; thousands of the rank and file of the electorate who have joined the Citizens' Liberty League.

The plain issue then is—Are you going to vote for the safe, sane, fair compromise that these men and women want; or, are you going to insist on the retention of the unsatisfactory Ontario Temperance Act—insist on the retention of legislation that is breeding and will continue to breed dissatisfaction and discontent among our workers, returned men and a large section of the citizens generally?

Which are You for—Compromise and Harmony, or Intolerance and Widespread Resentment?

Study the ballot and analyze the situation conscientiously. This is one of the most vital concerns you have just now — a settlement of Ontario's vexed temperance problem that will be in the best interests of all the people.

Vote "YES" to all Four Questions

Mark your ballot with an X. Any other marking will spoil it. Remember, also—every voter must vote on every question or his ballot will be spoiled.

with less thought for self and more consideration for our fellow man. If we can but catch something of that spirit of self-sacrifice exemplified in our soldiers at the front, Canada will go forward in leaps and bounds, and prove worthy of that sea of blood shed in her defence.

The Premier returned to his seat amid prolonged applause.

The Nominee.

Mr. R. T. Soden, the Liberal Conservative nominee, received a flattering reception and in the course of a brief address, the hour being late, he eulogized the Hearst Government's unbeaten record for clean and honest administration, and bespoke its return to power in the whole province's best interests. Referring to the Ontario Temperance Act, he declared every man, woman and child knows where I stand—"I vote four no's."—(Cheers.)—because that law which was good enough as an economic measure during the war, filled the pockets of men and women heretofore empty, made the province and this city law-abiding, and wiped police court dockets clean of crime— that law is equally good enough for me, in time of peace. War is not yet over he asserted, for if we are to compete successfully with the Hun in his bid for world-trade, Canada needs all the brains, brawn and clear-headed qualities available, to guard against his taking from us that trade-liberty for which we fought. Mr. Soden would leave labour and other measures for another occasion, and would merely declare that he stands firmly behind the record of Sir. William Hearst, and any future legislation placed in the statute books of this province by his government. Mr. Soden closed with eulogistic reference to the satisfactory surplus accumulated by the Hearst administratilon without recourse to any burdensome taxation on the people.

The big meeting dispersed after singing the National Anthem and giving three hearty and enthusiastic cheers for the Prime Minister and R. J. Soden, the nominee.

PLANS FOR SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT MUST BE READY BY DEC. 1

Site of 17½ Acres Owned by A. Wilson is Chosen and Must be Either Purchased or Expropriated Immediately.

Plans and specifications for the city sewage disposal plant must be drawn up, ready for inspection by December 1. This is the ruling of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board as reported by City Engineer Parsons and City Solicitor Widdifield as last night's regular Council meeting.

"The site must be selected immediately," said Mr. Parsons, "as it is dangerous to have any more delay in the matter." This was expressly agreed to by the Mayor and Mr. Widdifield.

Mr. Parsons pointed out that it would be advisable to install the plant on the east side of the river. No matter if the plant is guaranteed not to produce odor it is nevertheless a sewage disposal plant and should not be placed in a residential district. No matter which side of the river it is placed it must be pumped across the river as the Ashburnham sewage must be taken care of by the plant as well as the west side. Mr. Parsons recommended the 17½ acres, owned by Mr. A. Wilson, and which is already fenced off and which, he thought, would be ample room for the successful operation of a plant large enough for this city.

On a motion by Aldermen McIntyre and Edgar, it was decided to negotiate for this 17½ acres of land and if this failed steps should be taken immediately to expropriate.

As soon as the site has been definitely determined, Mr. Parsons will commence his plans for the plant. This means that everything will be ready by Dec. 1 as required by the ruling of the Board.

Deputation From N. Monaghan.

A deputation was received from North Monaghan, consisting of Warden McIntosh and Councillors Wilson and Foster. They came to protest against the city handing over to them certain accounts in connection with some improvements on the boundary road.

The account consisted of 75 for [illegible] grading and $1,052.35 for gravel. Mr. McIntosh pointed out that since 1916 there had been an agreement between the city and the Township of Monaghan that the township should do the work on the boundary and the city should bear half the expense. He failed to see why the chairman of the Board of Works had gone ahead with this work without consulting the township and then had sent the account to them.

As Ald. Phelan, chairman of the Board of Works, was absent, the matter was left over for a meeting of the Board to be called shortly when the Monaghan deputation can present their claims and perhaps a better understanding could be arrived at between the two parties.

Sewers to be Constructed.

A bylaw was passed authorizing the engineer to proceed with the construction of sewers on McDonnell street west to Cambridge street and on Bethune street from Simcoe street to a point 120 feet south of Simcoe street.

The Mayor and Ald. Turner were authorized to obtain the right of way from the east side of the river opposite Simcoe street required to open a road to Burnham street. This is one move toward appropriating the property on the east side of the river immediately south of the bridge for park purposes.

Plumbing Question.

The report of the Property Committee showed that steps had been taken to improve the plumbing conditions of the city. An outside plumber will be brought into the city to investigate the conditions and if his report shows that they are not satisfactory steps will be immediately taken to make them so.

Mr. Peter Thompson, plumbing inspector, had promised to ardently pursue his duties and perform the smoke tests, etc., at the proper time and now that the Council were behind him he would force the plumbers of the city to realize his position. In order to help him perform his work properly his salary was raised to $80 per month.

The Property Committee was given instructions to carefully look over the plumbing regulation bylaw and if any changes are necessary bring them before the Council with recommendations to amend the bylaws.

Boy Scouts Praised.

A letter was read from the Boy Scouts thanking the Council for their generous contribution toward helping them send a troop of 101 to Toronto and enclosing a letter from Provincial headquarters which greatly praised the appearance and demeanour of the Peterborough troop.

A bylaw was passed allowing $60 to be paid for certain park tools which were procured.

JOKE ENDED IN HAPPY MARRIAGE

PAULINE FREDERICK'S LATEST GOLDWYN PICTURE OFFERS SOLUTION OF DIFFICULT SUBJECT.

Pauline Frederick's latest Goldwyn picture is an unusual solution of a difficult subject presenting as it does the serious dilemma of a finely bred girl who, in a state of physical exhaustion yields to the foolish advice of her landlady and permits her to answer an advertisement in a paper devoted to "Matrimonial News." The alluring advertisement has been inserted by the vicious postmistress of a western mining town in an attempt to humiliate the most "desirable" citizen of the town for being blind to that lady's charms. She carries on the correspondence with the girl in the east, with the result that the latter sells her last few pieces of jewelry to pay her way west. When she finally arrives and is driven to the mountain shack of her supposed fiance, she finds him absent, and subsequently spends the night waiting for his return.

The next morning he returns from a bear hunt, absolutely ignorant of the plot which has made both him and the girl victims of the spite of a vindictive woman. As neither the girl nor the man seem able to comprehend the reason for the other's actions when they meet, the girl decides to leave, but finds that the man confronting her believes himself to be the victim of a blackmailing intrigue. As he bars her way, she shoots him. Fortunately the wound is not serious and the girl remains to nurse him back to health. In the course of her stay, the plot is unravelled; and what began as a cruel joke ended in a happy marriage.

GUY BROS. ARE COMING TO GRAND

The Guy Brothers' Minstrels shall appear at the Grand with an entirely new company. This is the forty-fourth year for this wonderful organization to be on the road.

The company this season is by far the best minstrel company Mr. Geo. R. Guy has ever organized. They carry a brand new first part setting with a grand concert orchestra.

The vaudeville surpasses anything previously seen here before. The Baum Brothers in their musical act being well worth the price of admission alone. Kelda the contortionist, outshines any act of its kind in the vaudeville line today. The Agawam quartette, secured direct from playing the big time vaudeville houses will also be with this company, they were secured at a high salary and no doubt are the best harmony four Mr. George R. Guy has ever had. No doubt the theatrical-going public shall all turn out on Friday, October 11th, to see the famous Guy Brothers' Minstrels.

THE KISS BURGLAR

"The Kiss Burglar," a musical romance with book and lyrics by Glen MacDonough, and music by Raymond Hubbell is scheduled to appear at the Grand, Saturday, matinee and evening.

This new musical comedy, which ran for six solid months at the George M. Cohn Theatre, has the main elements of success with a consistent story, sprightly and melodious numbers, lively dances and plenty of humor, together with a very efficient cast, and the famous Peacock Alley chorus. The story centres around a rather improbably but very charming grand duchess who is visiting a New York couple anxious to break into society and who employ a press agent for that purpose. A young American business man, who a year before in Trieste had to flee for his life after knocking down a prince for having cheated at cards, escaped his pursuers by dashing through an open window into a dark room, where he found himself confronted by a beautiful woman, who, taking him for a burglar, had offered her jewels, he taking a kiss instead, as she fainted in his arms. He tells [illegible] seizes upon it and induces a friend to go through the same performance with the duchess, so he may write up the story, in the interest of his employer, the duchess' host.

The scene of the rehearsal of this stolen kiss and the theft itself supply comedy of the most laughable description. Of course, there are complications, as the Duchess is in search of the original kiss burglar, and he, of his unknown charmer, and after various complications they are brought together. On this story is built a musical play which has the rare merit of being unusual, and if the melodies that fit into the story at times sound reminiscent they are always tuneful, varying from the lively and the catchy to the dreamingly haunting. All New York adored its wonderful story, remarkable atmosphere and brilliant music. An enormous company including the famous Peacock Alley chorus, with the original Cohn Theatre production will be seen here as on Broadway. Sale of seats open at the box office.

POPULAR SONG WRITER SERENADES "MICKEY"

NEIL MORET DISCLOSES INSPIRATION.

POPULAR SONG WRITER

Neil Moret, the popular song writer, gave the "Mickey" cast a great surprise at their studio one day, by an unexpected music recital in which he serenaded Mickey. There were many exclamations of delight, of course, since no one had imagined he had even seen any of the scenes in this great photoplay, which will be shown at the Grand Theatre, on Monday and Tuesday. Miss Normand, particularly, was pleased with the song, which brought out in such sweet and melodious music, the very spirit of the photoplay.

Today this song, which the photoplay inspired, is proving one of the most popular hits of the year, one million copies having already been sold to the public, song and dance records having been made by the leading talking machine companies, and piano roll companies.

There was a good deal of questioning later on as to how he knew anything about "Mickey." No one in the company had ever noticed Mr. Moret there during the rehearsals. In order to get some peace on the subject, therefore, he told them that he had first noticed Mickey when he dropped into the studio for a chat one day with one of the directors. At that time the very first scenes were being "shot," and attracted by the charming personality of "Mickey," he stayed the entire day. Two hours later, inspired by this fascinating photoplay, he wrote the song dedicated to "Mickey," and which he called "Mickey."

But why Miss Normand should be at all peeved, after the first surprise of the song, no one could quite fathom. As for Neil Moret, he set it down as "just like a woman." It leaked out, however several days later, when Miss Norman said she was "afraid" of Mickey. "It sticks so," she complained, "just as Peter Pan is identical with Maude Adams." Nevertheless, just ask Miss Normand some day how proud she is of her twin sister "Mickey." She loves that mischievous little girl so much as everyone else does, she has confided many times.

LOAD OF HAY UPSETS ON HUNTER STREET THIS MORNING

Entire Contents of Large Load cast Upon the Pavement—No Damage Done.

A new kind of accident was witnessed on Hunter street this morning when a large load of hay upsetand cast its contents upon the road. Some people are suspicious enough of farmers to think that they often put the best on top and the part underneath is not of an equal quality. Perhaps it was for the satisfaction of such doubters that this farmers turned the bottom of his load up for inspection.

But whatever the reason the fact is that as he was attempting to back his load into the laneway next to Lane & Enos' furniture store the team cramped the wagon and it upset. Nobody was injured and nothing was broken.

WHITE SOX WIN SIXTH GAME OF WORLD SERIES BALL-SCORE -5-4

Chicago Made Three Runs in Sixth Inning---Fine Battery Work of Both Teams.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Cincinnati, Oct. 7.—Cincinnati today greeted her returning victorious baseball team, while everything was in readiness for a resumption of the world's series of 1919 between the White Sox and Reds at Redland Field this afternoon. The weather forecast fair and cool. It is thought Cincinnati will clean up the series today.

Crowd on Hand Early.

Perfect baseball weather with sun shining brilliantly and a cloudless sky greeted the fans that journeyed to the park two hours before the beginning of the sixth game of the world series of 1919 between the Reds and the White Sox here today. At noon the pavillions were almost filled to capacity, but bleacherites seemed slow in arriving and while rightfield stands were half filled, the field bleachers were empty. However, the crowd appeared in gay mood and each selection played by the band met with much applause.

The line-up for today's game is:

Chicago—J. Collins rf; E. Collins, 2b; Weaver, 3b; Jackson, lf; Felsch, cf; Gandil, 1b; Risberg, ss; Schalk, c; Kerr, p.

Cincinnati—Rath, 1b; Daubert, 1b; Groh, 2b; Rousch, cf; Duncan, lf; Kopf, ss; Neale, rf; Rariden, c; Ruether, p.

The umpires are Evans behind the plate, Quigley at first base, Nallin at second bas and Rigler at third base.

Batteries.

White Sox—Kerr and Schalk.
Reds—Ruether and Rariden.

First Inning.

Chicago—No runs. One hit. No errors.

J. Collins opened hostilities by popping a high fly in back of second base that Rath captured. E. Collins up. Rousch came in fast and got his low fly. Weaver singled through Kopf into centre field. The Cincinnati short stop could not quite get it. Jackson sent an easy pop-up to Groh.

Cincinnati — No runs. Two hits. No errors.

Rath hoisted to Risberg on the third ball pitched. It was an easy out. Daubere bounded the first ball pitched to Kerr who tossed him out at first. Groh doubled to right centre. It was a liner that landed between Felsch and J. Collins and was retrieved quickly by the latter. Rousch singled to Risberg but Groh was caught by over running third, Risberg to Weaver. Rousch's hit was over toward the second sack.

Second Inning.

Chicago—No runs. No hits. No errors.

Felsch sent a long fly almost to the bleachers, but Neale got under and captured it. Gandil put a Texas leaguer out towards right but it fell a few inches out. Kopf took Gandil's bounce and tossed to Daubert for a put-out. Risberg hoisted a high fly to Neale.

Cincinnati — No runs. No hits. One error.

Duncan was safe when Risberg fumbled his easy grounder, Kopf walked. Neale forced Duncan at third, Kerr to Weaver. Neale attempted to sacrifice, but Kerr made a quick throw to third. Rariden forced Neale, E. Collins to Risberg. Kopf taking third. Risberg claimed that Neale interfered with him but the claim was not allowed. Ruether bounded one to Kerr who threw to first for the out-out.

Third Inning.

Chicago—No runs. No hits. No errors.

Schalk up. Ruether failed to get the ball over the plate and walked Schalk. Kerr sacrificed, Groh to Rath. Schalk went to second. It was a well-laid bunt. J. Collins sent a high fly to Rousch in short left centre. E. Collins up. Duncan made a great running catch and captured Ed. Collins' liner in left centre.

Cincinnati — Two runs. Two hits. No errors.

Duncan was cheered to the echo as he walked to the bench. The outfield played in for Rath. Rath proved easy, E. Collins taking his grounder and tossing it to Gandil. Daubert singled to right. It was a clean drive right over E. Collins' head. Groh struck out. The third strike was called on him. Rousch up. Daubert stole second. He slipped off the bag after reaching it but scrambled back before E. Collins could tag him. Rousch was hit by one of Kerr's fast ones but he trotted to first unassisted. Duncan doubled to right centre, bringing in Daubert and Rousch. It was a mighty wallop. Felsch ran away back and caught Kopf's long fly.

Fourth Innings.

Chicago—No runs. One hit. No errors.

Duncan took Weaver's line drive that went almost to the left field crowd. Rariden went back nearly to the grandstand and got Jackson's high foul. Felsch singled through the pitcher's box, the ball rolling to centre. Gandil up. Kopf threw out Gandil, stopping in time to get his grounder after starting for second to cover the bag as Felsch went down.

Cincinnati — Two runs. Two hits. One errors.

Neale tripled to right centre. There was an argument that Neale did not touch one of the bases, but the umpires did not allow the claim. Rariden sent an easy bounder that E. Collins grabbed and tossed him out at first, Neale holding third. Ruether doubled. Neale scored on the hit which went over the third base, the ball hitting the left field pavilion. [illegible] to Risberg, but the latter permitted Ruether to go to third in his attempt to put him out and Ruether scored. Rath took second and Rather stole third. Daubert hoisted to Jachson and Rath was caught at the plate for a double play, Schalk getting the put-out. It was a great throw of Jackson's.

Fifth Innings.

Chicago—One run. One hit. No errors.

Risberg walked, Schalk also received a base on balls. Ruether appeared to be coming unsteady. Kerr singled, advancing both runners a base. Risberg over ran third, but Groh failed to put Kopf's throw on him. J. Collins filed to Rousch and the latter's throw was so fast that Risberg, who had started for home, turned back and held third. E. Collins filed to Rousch and Risberg scored. Schalk failed to go to third on the play and Kerr ran down to second. Groh, seeing the predicament, ran over and touched Kerr off, Rousch getting an assist on the play.

Cincinnati — No runs. One hit. One error.

Groh sent a high fly to Felsch. J. Collins, after making a good run for it, captured Rousch's fly. Felsch went fly, puttin ghis hands on it but dropping it. Duncan reached third. Risberg threw out Kopf.

Sixth Inning.

Chicago—Three runs. Four hits. No errors.

Ring now pitching for Cincinnati.

Weaver popped up a Texas leaguer that went for a double when Kopf and Duncan played an Alphonse-Gaston act. Jackson singled into centre and Weaver crossed the plate. Felsch doubled to the centre field crowd, Jackson scoring. This was enough for Ruether and Ring relieved him on the pitching mound. Gandil up. Ring was very slow and deliberate. Gandil hoisted to Daubert who got the ball in back of first base, Felsch holding second. Risberg up. Kopf took Risberg's grounder and threw to Daubert, putting him out, Felsch taking third. Schalk singled between short and third, scoring Felsch, and tieing the scor. Kerr up. Schalk stole second. Groh grabbed Kerr's grounded and retired the side by throwing him out at first. Groh made a great stop and a beautiful throw.

Cincinnati — No runs. One hit. No errors.

Neale singie through the pitcher's box, the ball bounded a little too high [illegible] Kerr. J. Collins took Rariden's drive, Neale holding first. Ring struck out. Neale was out stealing, Schalk to Risberg.

Seventh Inning.

Chicago—No runs. No hits. No errors.

Liebold batted for J. Collins and will play right field for Chicago. Liebold up. Kopf came over fast and took Liebold's grounder, throwing him out at first. Eddie Collins hoisted a high one that Rousch got under and caught. Weaver batted left handed and Rath took his grounder and threw him out at first.

Cincinnati — No runs. One hit. No errors.

Rath hoisted one into short left field for a single. Jackson made a gallant attempt and turned a somersault trying to get it but barely missed. Daubert attempted to sacrifice the first ball, but it rolled foul. He laid the next one down nicely for a sacrifice, Kerr to Gandil. Rath went to second. Groh walked, after fouling off several. Groh succeeded in working Kerr for a pass. Rousch forced Groh at second, Risberg to E. Collins who completed a double play by throwing to Gandil and getting Rousch.

Eighth Inning.

Chicago—No runs. No hits. No errors.

Jackson up. The outfielders played deep for Jackson. Jackson walked. Felsch sent a high fly to Neale, ackson holding first. Ring also walked Gandil and appeared very unsteady. Jackson on second. Rousch came in fast and got Risberg's line drive and then ran to second and tossed the ball to Rath, racing Jackson for a double play. It was a wonderful catch and looked safe, so much so that Jackson had rounded third.

Cincinnati — No runs. Two hits. No errors.

Gandil ran almost to the right field [illegible] took Daubert's throw. Kopf changed his bat and lined out to Kerr. Kerr apparently hurt his hand in catching Kopf's liner. Kerr resumed pitching and Neale singled to left on his first pitched ball. Rariden singled, the ball bouncing out of Kerr's hands, Neale going to second. Risberg grabbed Ring's grass-cutter and tossing to E. Collins forced Rariden for the third out.

Ninth Inning.

Chicago—No runs. No hits. No errors.

Schalk struck out, the final strike being called on him. Kerr drove to Ring who tossed to Daubert, getting him. Liebold walked. Ring was having trouble finding the plate. Liebold stole second, beating the throw easily after getting a big lead. E. Collins lifted a high fly to Rousch.

Cincinnati — No runs. One hit. No errors.

Rath up. Weaver threw Rath out at first. Daubert singled to centre. It was a clean line drive. Groh up. Risberg took Groh's grounder and tossing to E. Collins forced Daubert at second. Groh was safe at first. Rousch up. Groh was out stealing, Schalk to E. Collins.

Tenth Inning.

Chicago—One run. Three hits. No errors.

Weaver opened the tenth with a double to left that Duncan could not quite reach. Jackson first sacrificed but attempt went foul. Jackson singled, Weaver going to third. Jackson laid down a bunt and beat it out. Felsch struck out, taking a swing at the final one. Gandil singled into centre, scoring Weaver and putting Jackson on second. Risberg lined to Kopf who threw to Rath at second, doubling Jackson.

Cincinnati — No runk. No hits. No errors.

Rousch up. Collins threw out Rousch at first. Duncan out on a foul to Schalk behind the plate Kopf up E. Collins threw out Kopf at first.

SMALL BOY RUN OVER BY VAN, DIES

Edward O'Brien, the four-year-old son of Mr. Thomas O'Brien, 28 Cricket Place, East City, lost his life as the result of a very unfortunate accident yesterday evening. The little fellow was playing in front of his own home and when Barbeau's moving van appeared on the scene he thought it was his chance for a free ride. He caught on to the wagon, but after riding a short distance was shaken off and the huge van ran over his legs, above the knee. Dr. Gallivan was immediately summoned and the patient was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital where he died late last night.

The deceased had besides his mother and father, one brother, John, and two sisters, Helen and Francis. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock.

PREM. LLOYD GEORGE DENOUNCES LATE STRIKE AS PRUSSIANISM

Declares at Public Luncheon That the Nation Means to be Master in Her Own House—A Just, Fair and Generous Master, But Always Master.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Oct. 8. — Premier Lloyd George surprised his coutrymen as he frequently does, by denouncing the railwaymen's strike as "Prussianism" and "another effort to hold up the community and strangle it into "submission," at the Lord Mayor's Mansion House luncheon in honor of Field Marshall Allenby, yesterday.

Unusual Occasion.

The occasion was an unusual one for such a topic, but the Premier has the habit of doing unusual things at unusual times. Nobody expected anything more sensational than compliments to the conqueror of Palestine. "The nation means to be master in her own house," Mr. Lloyd George declared, "a just master, fair master, generous master, but always master in her own house."

A Government Victory

This was actually accepted as a proclamation of the Premier's view that the Government won a victory over the strikers. J. H. Thomas, leader of the recent strike, speaking on Sunday night, dwelt upon the settlement as a compromise and yesterday issued a statement appealing for reconciliation and a burial of hard feelings. When Lloyd George makes an important speechnewspapers try to read between the lines to discover his political purposes.

Broken With Labor.

General interpretation of the speech is that the Premier has broken with labor unions, and wants to draw to his support the middle classes, who apparently tended todrop away from him as a result of the recent fierce campaign, upon alleged governmental extravagance.

SEVENTH GAME OF WORLD BALL SERIES GOES TO THE WHITE SOX

Chicago Wins Her Third Game With a Score of 4-1 Excellent Work by Both Batteries.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 8.—Fighting with their backs to the wall, but hopeful despite their four defeats, the White Sox meet the Reds today in the seventh game of the world's series.

The Reds and the 32,000 fans who witnessed yesterday's ten-inning battle, felt confident that the contest would be a decisive one, and that before night Moran's men would be proclaimed baseball champions of the world. Before the game started it was believed that Manager Gleason of the White Sox would send Cicotte to the mound to face the Red legs. Supporters of the Reds believed that "Slim" Sallee would be Manager Moran's pitching selection.

Today's Lineup.

The lineup for the game today is as follows:

Chicago—J. Collins rf, E. Collins 3b, Weaver 3b, Jackson lf, Felsch cf, Gandil 1b, Risberg ss, Schalk c, Cicotte p.

Cincinnati—Rath 2b, Daubert 1b, Groh 3b, Rousch cf, Duncan lf, Kopf ss, Neale rf, Wing c, Sallee p.

First Inning.

J. Collins opened the game with a clean single through second base. E. Collins sacrificed, Sallee to Daubert. J. Collins going to second. It was a beautiful bunt. Weaver hoisted a long fly that Rousch got under, J. Collins holding second. Jackson singled to left, scoring J. Collins, but overran first and was caught between first and second. He got out of the trouble, however, when Daubert fumbled the ball on a toss from Kopf. Felsch bunted safely and Jackson took second. Gandil up.

Felsch was forced when Gandil drove to Kopf, who tossed him out at second. Rath making the put-out. Felsch is playing right field and J. Collins centre for Chicago. Duncan and Kopf and Rath get an assist on Daubert's error.

One run, three hits, one error.

Cincinnati—Rath reached first safely when E. Collins allowed his grounder to go through him, Collins being charged with an error. Daubert popped a high fly to E. Collins. Groh struck out. Rousch up. E. Collins grabbed Rousch's drive and tossed to Risberg, forcing Rath.

No runs, no hits, one error.

Second Inning.

Chicago—Kopf threw out Risberg at first. It was a fast grounder and well handled. Schalk filed to Neale, who took it after a long run toward centre field. Cicotte up. Groh took Cicotte's slow bounder and threw to Daubert for the put-out.

No runs, no hits, no errors.

Cincinnati—Duncan smashed at the first pitched ball and hoisted a fly to J. Collins in centre. Kopf drove a liner into left centre for a clean single. Neale fouled out to Weaver, the latter taking it near third base and holding Kopf at first. Wing up. Kopf was out stealing, Schalk to Risberg.

No runs, one hit, no errors.

Third Inning.

Chicago — J. Collins singled through the box. It was a hard hit ball that bounced off Sallee's glove. E. Collins beat out a bounder that Kopf couldn't get over in time, J. Collins going to second. Weaver attempted to sacrifice, but fouled the ball. Kopf took Weaver's tap and stepped on second, forcing E. Collins. He claimed that he interfered with his throw to catch Weaver and Rigler allowed it, ordering Weaver out. Jackson singled to centre, scoring J. Collins. Felsch forced Jackson, Kopf to Rath. Kopf got the ball in deep short and the play at second was very close.

One run. Three hits. No errors.

Cincinnati — Wingo up. Cicotte lost temporary control and walked Wingo, the first man up. Sallee filed to Felsch in right, the latter getting it on the foul line, Wingo holding first. Rath forced Wingo, Risberg to E. Collins. Daubert drove a hot one to Cicotte who speared it with one hand and tossed him out at first.

No runs. No hits. No errors.

Fourth Inning.

Chicago — Gandil filed to Neale, who came into short right field to get it. Risberg up. Daubert reached over the right foul line fence to the box seats and grabbed Risberg's foul. Schalk up. Schalk reached first on a hit that Groh made a great stop of, but could not get it over to first in time. Cicotte lifted a floater that Rousch took care of.

No runs. One hit. No errors.

Cincinnati—Groh bounced one to E. Collins and the White Sox second sacker took his time to throw for the put-out. Rousch went out the same way, E. Collins to Gandil. Duncan up. Weaver threw out Duncan at first, getting the ball on a bound and getting it to Gandil away ahead of the runner.

No runs. No hits. No errors.

Fifth Inning.

Chicago—J. Collins hit the first ball pitched and it resulted in a high fly that Neale took care of. E. Collins drove a clean single through second base into centre field. Weaver reached first when Groh fumbled his drive, E. Collins reaching second. Jackson up. Rath booted Jackson's grounder and he was safe at first, filling the bases. Felsch singled to Rousch, scoring E. Collins and Weaver, Jackson holding second. This was enough for Sallee, and Fisher went in for Cincinnati. Gandil up. Fisher threw out Gandil at first. Jackson took third and Felsch went to second. Fisher slipped as he picked up the ball, but managed to get his man. Risberg fanned.

Two runs. Two hits. Two errors.

Cincinnati—The umpire examined the ball, but tossed it back to Cicotte. Kopf sent a high fly to Jack-

SEWING CLASSES IN PUB. SCHOOLS

LOCAL BOARD TO EXPEND $170 FOR THE PURCHASE MATERIALS REQUIRED.

DR. McCULLOCH MADE INSPECTOR

SALARY $650 FOR SERVICES DURING SCHOOL YEAR ENDING JUNE 30th.

The following report of the Board of Eductaion's Supervision Committee was submitted by chairman Dr. Neal last night and adopted:

Report of Supervision Committee

1. That sewing classes be commenced immediately in all the public schools, as recommended by the Inspector, and that the sum of $170.00 be expended on the purchase of materials required in connection therewith.

2. That the Inspector's recommendation to have but one grade in Form II (Book II) and cover the whole of the prescribed work in one year, be adopted.

3. That the request of the male teachers of the public school staff, for the privilege of holding a Field Day, be granted, and that the sum of $50 be granted them towards defraying the expenses in connection therewith.

4. That Dr. J. Malcolm McCulloch be appointed for the work of Medical Inpection in the public schools, for the term ending June 30, next and that he be paid for such services at the rate of $650.00 for the school year.

Campaign Notes

A meeting on behalf of Mr. R. J. Soden, the candidate of the Liberal-Conservative party, will be held in St. Martin's Hall, Ashburnham, on Thursday evening, October 16, at 8 o'clock. There will be addresses by Mr. Soden, Mr. V. J. McElderry and others.

Mr. Soden has opened club rooms at 176 Simcoe street. A meeting of workers will be held this evening for purposes of organization.

The mass meeting announced to be held at Lakefield tonight, with Attorney-General Lucas as the chief speaker, has been cancelled, as Mr. Lucas found it impossible to attend.

The campaign of Mr. Thompson in East Peterborough is progressing favorably, and meetings, at which the attendance is good and the interest lively, are being held nightly.

From all parts of the riding Mr. Soden is receiving congratulations upon his nomination, and promises of support.

Mr. Tooms, candidate of the Independent Labor party, opens his campaign tonight at May's school house. Addresses will be given by Mr. Tooms and other Labor leaders.

The first meeting on behalf of Mr. Gillespie will be held at May's school house tomorrow night. Half an hour later another meeting will be held at the North Monaghan town hall. Mr. Gillespie announces that he will define his policy, and a statement of his position is awaited with the greatest interest.

STRIKING STILL IN GREAT BRITAIN

MOULDERS' STRIKE OF LONG DURATION SERIOUSLY AFFECTING INDUSTRY IN NORTH

IMPORTANT LEGISLATION SOON

NEXT SESSION OF PARLIAMENT TO INTRODUCE MEASURES TO PREVENT STRIKES.

London, Oct. 8.— Leading Labor men with whom the settlement of the railway strike was discussed yesterday issued warnings against the ending of the dispute now being regarded as final and as ending all the labor troubles. It is pointed out that the protracted strike of iron moulders which is seriously affecting the engineering industry of the north is still unsettled.

There were other disquieting incidents showing that the temper of labor was still on edge. It in particularly complained of that the Government delayed putting into operation the joint industrial council established at the beginning of the year to secure a universal living wage and a forty-eight hour week.

It is expected, according to labor correspondents, that industrial legislation will form the feature of the next sesion of Parliament. It is believed that the Government is considering measures to develop the machinery of conciliation in all industries in order to prevent strikes, probably by the creation of a system of arbitration courts with a supreme appeal tribunal.

Chairman Gosling, of the Mediation Committee in the recent railway strike, advocates a permanent central trades union committee, empowered to deal with the Government in all negotiations. "Otherwise," he states "The movement will break the bounds of chaos. The result of Sunday's settlement of the railway strike merely turned aside the point of the wedge Labor was ready to drive home."

SAM ZILUSKI THIRD FOREIGNER TO BE FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

Received Verdict at Noon To-day With Plea for Mercy Evidence Similar to Previous Trials With Exception of a Confession—Martynuk Next on Trial.

A verdict of guilty, with a plea for mercy, was brought in against Samuel Ziluski at noon today. Amidst a dead silence the jury for the third time during the Fall Assizes here, brought in a verdict of guilty of murder. The fact that this man participated in the robbery although he did not fire the shot that killed Philop Yanoff, was sufficient to convict him of murder.

Same Evidence

The evidence in this case was the same throughout as in the cases of the other two prisoners who were found guilty of the charge of murder. Dr. Thompson, the county constable, and foreigners, who witnessed the robbery as members of the bunk house, were all sent into the witness box yesterday afternoon and evening and gave their evidence as in the former cases.

The only additional witness was Detective Workman, who told of a confession the prisoner had made to him while in the Peterborough jail. Mr. Essery strenuously objected to this evidence being taken and the jury was asked to retire until the judge became satisfied the proper warning had been given to make his confession evidence.

His Confession

The confession was that the prisoner had accompanied the rest of the gang on their expedition and had had in his possession one of the light revolvers. This was not the one that fired the shot. He also confessed having thrown his money oot of the right hand side of the car while the constable was on the left hand side. Although this money was searched for it was never recovered.

Prisoner Fainted.

A very sad incident occurred in connection with this trial about 9:30 o'clock last night. The prisoner began to show signs of nervousness and in spite of a drink of water supplied him by his guards, he fainted and it was with great difficulty he was brought to.

Essery's Reasoning.

At this morning's session Mr. Essery addressed the jury at great length going into every detail of the case and imploring the jury not to convict this man upon such doubtful evidence. Even though this was the man who wore the boots with the rubber heel he pointed out that there were thousands of rubber heels similar to that one throughout the country. He also laid great stress upon the fact that no constable could swear that he had taken off or seen taken off any article connected with the robbery after it took place. There was nothing to show that he was connected with the crime and on the evidence he urged the jury not to pass a sentence upon this man that would mean that he would lose his life.

His Honor charged the jury that no matter what the consequences were they were in duty bound to give their verdict on the evidence and not to allow any personal feelings to influence them with their decision.

Judge's Address.

The Judge reviewed the circumstances to the jury and urged upon them the necessity of doing their duty according to the evidence. He pointed out all that he pointed out to the previous juries, including the way the law reads that all connected with the robbery should be equally guilty of murder.

The jury retired about 11.30 o'clock this morning and brought in their verdict a little over an hour later.

During the time this jury were retired a new one was empannelled and the trial of the next prisoner, Alick Martynuh was started. The evidence so far in this case is exactly similar to that of the previous cases.

Mr S. N. Gordon is defending Martynuh.

ANTI-BOLSHEVIK FORCES DRIVE BACK REDS AND CAPTURE 15,000

City of Varonezh Falls to General Denikine—All Russian Cavalry Now Advancing on Uhman.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Oct. 8.— Capture of the city of Voronezh, 275 miles southeast of Moscow, by the anti-Bolshevik forces of General Denikine is admitted in a Russian Soviet wireless message from Moscow received today.

Advancing on Uhman

General Denikine's cavalry is advancing on Uhman, 35 miles north of Voronezh. A message from General Denikine's headquarters received October 7, reported the capture of 15,000 Bolsheviki (during operations around Voronezh,) but did not definitely announce the capture of that city. Voronezh is on a line about 125 miles east of Orel, toward which latter important centre in old Russia General Denikine's troops were recently reported rapidly advancing.

200 Miles Front

The late advances form General Denekine's forces indicate that they are moving ahead against Moscow on a front of at least 200 miles in width and probably considerably greater.

WARNED BY U. S. AND GT. BRITIAN

SHOULD PRESENT FIUMÉ SITUATION CONTINUE, ITALY RISKS CONNECTION FROM ALLIANCE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Rome, Oct. 8.—Much excitement in political circles and extended comment in the press has been caused by the reported receipt of warnings from Great Britain and the United States to Italy with regard to the situation at Fiume.

It is declared that the British warning stated in effect that if "the present illegal situation" at Fiume should continue, Italy would "run the risk of being put out of the alliance and peace conference" and that Italy received a few days ago a similar warning from the United States

POLICE INVESTIGATION RESUMED THIS MORNING AT COURT HOUSE

Allegations by Gerald Dunsford Positively Denied—Under Keen Cross Examination

The police investigation re-opened this morning about 10.30 o'clock in the library of the Court House. This was necessitated by the fact that the court trying the murder charges was sitting in the court room.

As before, Mr. R. R. Hall appeared for Detective Newhall, Mr. Dan O'Connell appeared for Mr. Stewart, Mr Widdifield was prosecuting for the commission, all three of whom were on hand in their places.

First witness called this morning swore positively that Dunford and Newhall and himself had never had a conversation since the middle of last winter.

He told of Dunford coming to him after the Johnston conviction and Dunsford had said to him: "Old Joe has you down in black and white for being mixed up in some liquor dealings and it would be an awful thing for you to get mixed up in that. I am in right with Old Joe (Mr. Stewart) and I can fix you up for $1.50. I did not know what he was taking about and I ignored him." declared the witness.

Under cross-examination by Mr. O'Connell witness told of different occasions when he befriended Dunford. At the present time Dunford is indebted to him to the amount of two or three hundred dollars. He had heard of different jokes in connection with Stewart seizing water instead of liquor at Kendry. He had heard these jokes chiefly on the street, although he may have heard it in his store or in Ackey's barn.

The witness told of the trip he had had out the Warsaw road, which, according to the evidence of previous witnesses, was a case of liquor stealing. He was induced to go on this expedition by a ruse on the part of Akey. Akey had come to him and asked him if he wanted a ride home. He consented but before he was taken home, he was carried out on the Warsaw road but he never found out, for a certainty, that there was liquor connected with the trip.

He told of different occasions when he had lent money to Sullivan to meet payments. He swore that he never loaned money for liquor transactions nor never had any dealings in liquor. He considered that Sullivan was innocent of the Kendry charge and that was the reason he had paid the fine. He had received nearly all of this sum back from Sullivan since that time.

"Did you ever phone Newhall that Sullivan wanted to see him?" "I never did," answered witness. "I can not explain what Dunford said about that."

After Sullivan's Kendry case Newhall had come to his (Taylor's) store and had stated that he could not read between the lines. He had not criticised the prosecution or judgment of the case.

He swore that Dunford had never talked over any liquor dealings or plans with him. "I would not lend money to anyone to deal in liquor. I am a teetotaller and have no connections in liquor whatever," decared the witness emphatically.

He then told of one peculiar instance where he had lent money similarly that went to show he had no particularly friendly feeling toward Sullivan, but would help anyone in trouble.

There was a soldier and a girl arrested at the Police Court. A lady friend of his had become interested in the case and had come to him for financial assistance. He did not know who they were, but he paid the man's fine thinking that he would secure the fine for the lady. Later in the afternoon the man came to him with a request to him to pay the fine of the lady. He did not know that he was the man who had paid his own fine. Within two days he had received the $30 from Trenton. He told this simply to show to the commission that his actions toward Sullivan were not prompted by any motives of friendship.

The remainder of Mr. O'Connell's exhaustive cross-examination was postponed until two o'clock this afternoon.

THEN SUPPORT HEARST.

(Toronto Star, Liberal.)

BETWEEN the two leaders there is, in our opinion, no room for choice on the part of those who agree with us in thinking that the Prohibition issue is by far the greatest one now before the electors of Ontario. If the people believe in Prohibition they should stand by the man who gave it to them; they should rally to the man who is being assailed for having given it to them; they should support for the Premiership the man whose sincere convictions on this question guarantee his steadfast adherence to Prohibition after the people have declared for it at the polls on the 20th instant.

If Prohibition is to be a success it is not only necessary to carry the referendum, it is equally necessary to carry the Premiership.

IS IT TO BE SODEN OR GILLESPIE?

MR. GILLESPIE was nominated at a straight Liberal [illegible] porter of Mr. Hartley Dewart as leader. The selection of Mr. Gillespie was based on his allegiance to Mr. Dewart. The temperance principles of the candidate were made much of by the speakers. How can the temperance voters of West Peterborough be expected to accept Mr. Gillespie as their candidate when his success at the polls would mean endorsation of Hartley Dewart?

The temperance question is the overshadowing issue in the campaign now at its height in all parts of the Province. On no other part of the record is the Administration of Premier Hearst assailable. The Globe and the Toronto Star have for years been the outspoken exponents of the temperance policy of the Liberal party. Both of these papers regarded the selection of Mr. Dewart for leader as a tactical blunder, not to put too fine a point upon it. Both renounce him today and declare that the temperance cause will be placed in jeopardy if Mr. Dewart becomes Premier of Ontario. The Globe says that no prohibitionist can safely vote for any man who refuses to state his personal views on the Ontario Temperance Act. Any man as representative in the ranks who is elected as a supporter of Hartley Dewart, no matter what his personal sentiments may be, is vastly less of a menace to the temperance cause than is a Premier hostile to that issue.

A vote for Mr. Gillespie as representative is a vote for Hartley Dewart for Premier. The issue is plain. If a vote of want of confidence in the Hearst Government were taken in the House, it would, the people may rest assured, be upon any but a temperance question. Mr. Gillespie, if he remained true to the convention that placed him in nomination, would be bound to vote with the Liberals. He would be deprived of an opportunity to give expression to his convictions on prohibition. And the Globe and the Star frankly warn the public what they may expect—and fear—if Mr. Dewart ever becomes Prime Minister of Ontario. As the Star points out in its leading editorial of yesterday, the Premier dominates the Cabinet, and is really in his own person the Government of the Province.

A vote for Mr. Soden is a vote to perpetuate the safest and most progressive Government Ontario has ever had, a Government that has reform after reform to its credit. In his address at the Grand Opera House Monday night, Premier Hearst said: "A man worthy to be Premier of a great province must be ready to do what he believes to be right, no matter what happens to him politically."

The voters of West Peterborough should carefully weigh these words. They express the convictions of a man who has already demonstrated his sincerity. Premier Hearst in 1916 did what he believed to be right when the temperance question was before the Legislature. He was warned by leading members of his own party that if he enacted war-time prohibition he would be digging his own political grave. The prospect did not turn him from his lofty purpose. He staked his official life on that issue and today has no apology to offer for his course.

Premier Hearst, regardless of consequences, stood by the temperance people in 1916. He is surely now entitled to their support. In his address in this city he declared himself in terms that cannot be misunderstood. The great issue of the day is safe in his hands. He is a man to be trusted. West Peterborough temperance voters have now a friend at the head of the Provincial Government, a man in every way entitled to their confidence.

A vote for R. J. Soden means a vote for Premier Hearst. A vote for G. A. Gillespie means a vote for Hartley Dewart, a man whom the leading papers of his own party refuse to endorse as leader and who tell the public that his accession to the Premiership would be nothing short of a calamity.

MR. TOOMS' TRIALS.

MR. THOMAS TOOMS, the nominee of the Independent Labor party for legislative honors, is already paying the penalty of prominence and is denying rumors as to his past. Some enemy has started the story that some years ago Mr. Tooms was a member of the capitalistic class to the extent that he kept a grocery on George street, that he failed in the venture and went broke. There is nothing in the report. The story teller has simply confused the name of Mr. Tooms with that of another man whose surname is different although it sounds somewhat the same. The Labor candidate has always been a workingman and as such is fully qualified for the position of honor as nominee of his party which he now holds.

BACK IN THE HARNESS.

THE BOARD of Education certainly made a wise choice last night when they appointed Mr. Vincent Eastwood to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. G. N. Gordon. Mr. Eastwood is not in the city at present, but it is believed that he will get into the harness again and consents to serve the city as a member of one of the most important branches of the civic government. Mr. Eastwood has had seventeen years' experience in educational matters. During that long term of service he not only acted as chairman of the Board, but served at the head of every committee at different times. He has always taken an active interest in educational matters, and is now chairman of the committee which looks after the industrial classes. He understands the building question from the ground up, and the citizens are to be congratulated upon securing again the benefit of his long years of experience, especially at the present time, when so many big problems confront the Board. Mr. Eastwood refused to be a candidate when his term expired last year, but his former colleagues, who appreciated the value of his work, will again have the benefit of his wise counsel.

FIVE YEARS OF PROGRESS.

A VAST VOLUME of water has run under the Hunter street bridge since the Provincial elections of 1914. A war, world wide in its scope, momentous in the issues involved, has been fought and won. Ontario has adopted a prohibition law.

There have been changes, there has been progress and development in the past five years, but the temperance sentiments of Mr. R. J. Soden remain as firmly set as ever. He was the candidate of the party in 1914 and was defeated. He is again candidate, but in order to attain that honor at the hands of the public he has not modified his views. The party has simply grown up in the meantime, and has on this issue attained the standard which Mr. Soden set in 1914. The same, too, can be said of many of the members of the party who supported Mr. Soden in the convention Monday night. They were not prohibitionists in 1914, but after three [illegible] ferent way of thinking and will not only support Mr. Soden on polling day, but will place four crosses in the "no" column of the referendum ballot.

THE REFERENDUM EXPLAINED.

THERE SHOULD no longer be any doubt as to what is meant by the four questions on the referendum ballot. Premier Hearst in his address here made every point perfectly plain.

Every voter must answer each question or his ballot will be spoiled. This condition is imposed to secure a majority vote on every issue raised. If a majority vote for the repeal of the Act, the old license system is to be restored. It would be impossible to amend a law which has been wiped off the statute books.

If a majority vote "no" on the first question but in affirmative on the fourth, the Government will have no alternative but to amend the Ontario Temperance Act so as to permit the sale of malt and distilled liquor in Government agencies.

Prohibitionists have only one safe course before them and that is to vote in the negative on all four questions. To do otherwise would defeat the purpose that they have in view. The sale of liquor in shops under Government control has been tried out in other places and abandoned as a failure. The experiment was first made in South Carolina, where the idea originated. It has also been tried in the West, to be succeeded by total prohibition. The liquor shop, even under Government control, has nothing to recommend it as against a well-regulated barroom. Such a system simply makes drinking places of the homes. In the barroom the man who drinks buys liquor by the glass. In the shop he purchases by the bottle. If liquor is an evil, the evil measures in proportion to the amount which it is possible to purchase.

There are few, if any, today who favor a return to the open bar. Why, then, replace a discarded system by another which has, on actual trial, proved more of a public detriment than the other? If the Ontario Temperance Act is sustained it will still be made possible to obtain liquor for legitimate purposes, and amendments in this regard may be looked for.

If the Act is sustained and Premier Hearst is returned to power, the measure is safe. If Hartley Dewart is made Premier of Ontario, there is nothing to prevent him so amending the Act as to render it of no effect. He would owe that to the faction to whom he is indebted for his present prominent position in the political field.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

HEARST OR DEWART, which is it to be?

* * * * * *

A POLITICAL party divided against itself cannot hope to prevail.

* * * * *

A GOOD MANY prospects please, but not that of Mr Dewart as the Premier of Ontario.

* * * * *

IS IT TO BE strong beer for the fathers or shoes and warm clothing for the children?

* * * * *

DIVIDED IN 1914, the Conservative party lost. United as it is today it cannot fail to win.

* * * * *

A VOTE for Mr. Gillespie means a vote for Mr. Dewart and the leading organ of the party cannot stand for the latter.

* * * * *

DEMOBLIZATIO[illegible] will not be complete until the army of war story writers and lecturers can be induced to desist.

* * * * *

THE MAN who votes for prohibition will follow up this step by voting for the candidate who will be in a position to support it

* * * * *

PREMIER HEARST does not find it necessary to conceal his own personal sentiments. It is the inverted bushel measure for those of Hartley Dewart, [illegible]

EDITOR'S MAIL

AN AMUSING SOCIETY.

Editor of Review.—It is very entertaining to watch from day to day the campaign that is being conducted by the Liberty League.

They do not wish the return of the bars. Not they. They think they would be very wicked. Nevertheless they advise us all to vote "yes" to the first question on the ballot, although we have the word of the Prime Minister that the legal effect of this would be to revise the license law, and bring back the bars. But, they say, vote for repeal and then take chances on what the government will do. In other words roll up a tremendous vote that on its very face would appear to indicate a revulsion of feeling regarding the O. T. A. and then trust to the politicians to do the rest. And we are expected to call this government by the people! Apparently night schools are badly needed to teach the first principles of democracy.

Then they tell us that our liberties are being so seriously curtailed that it is necessary to start a new organization to prevent us all from being made slaves. And when we look into this statement we find exactly what we always find when we crack a bad nut, that there is nothing in it.

Then they tell us emphatically that "the purpose of the League is to fight the prohibitionists" and at the same time they indignantly deny that the purpose of he League is to help the liquor traffic.

Then they put up an orator who assures us that although he has been a liberal drinker all his life he now at the age of eighty enjoys vigorous health, and that his father, who also was a bird of the same plumage, was equally virile.

This little yarn goes very nicely until the next day when his brother contradicts the whole story, and declares that the orator is only sixty.

Then the Liberty League calmly admits that his claims [illegible] and he appears to be proud of it. The entertainment is Kalerdoscopic, but it can hardly be termed high class.

A man once put the following sign over the door of his little wood-working shop". all kinds of twisting and turning done here." Possibly he would be kind enough to lend that sign to the Liberty League. It is very amusing to read long letters form Liberty Leagues that fairly bristle with quotations form the Scriptures. Imagine anyone going to the good book to bolster up a bad cause!

This reminds me of the old story of the two shipwrecked sailors who were cast adrift in a small boat. Their case being desperate, it was suggested that one of them offer a prayer. But they both said that they did not know how to pray, or to sing a hymn. So finally one sailor said, "well mate we have simply got to do something religious, so I purpose that we take up a collection."

This is precisely the position of the Liberty League. To bolster up their cause they start in to quote scripture by the yard. Their quotations may, or may not, be germane to the question, but that is neither here nor there for like the sailor they have, at least "done something religious."

And what is the occasion of all of these performances?

They are simply frantic efforts to bring on a repeal of an act that, although defective, has done such a vast amount of good, notably in improving living conditions for helpless women and poor little children, and in many cases other ways, that a great many men, formerly opposed to prohibition, including a number of very prominent Anglican clergymen, have publicly anounced that because of these good results, they are now supporters of the act. To quote the work of a deservedly obscure poet:

Why do they tell us the beer is so light,
When they know it's so strong it would make us all tight;
And why do they shout for the cause of the free,
When all that they want is to go on the spree.

THE TELEPHONE GIRL

(New York Sun.)—Consider the telephone girl. Often the tempers of patrons are ruined by her seeming leisureliness, and abrupt comment thereon follows. Yet how often in times which call for courage and quick action she responds with notable exhibitions of those qualities claimed too freely, perhaps, as exclusively masculine! Fire, earthquake, storm, riot; nature or man running wild; such emergencies have often been promptly reported by telephone girls; aids to authorities, helpful in relief. (And this useful public service has not infrequently been performed when the operator herself was in personal danger. The proper authorities early received reports of street fighting in the recent Arkansas riots from a girl telephone operator who "between screams told an official that fighting was in progress in the streets." The screams may well be overlooked when one reads that near the plucky girl "fifteen hundred negroes had assembled armed with high power rifles." She screamed, yes, but she brought "reinforcements, guns and ammunition" to preserve the public peace. That is something to recall when there is delay in receiving the responsive inquiry "Number, please?"

TEN COMMANDMENTS

APPLIED TO FIRE PREVENTION

1. Have all flues and chimneys properly cleaned before attempting to use them.

2. Look very carefully at the chimney or flue, at the point just above the peak of the roof where the chimney goes through, as the lower part may have settled and the upper portion, being held up by the roof timbers, may have pulled away, leaving an open space or break in the chimney that will permit sparks slipping through into the attic or concealed space.

3. Be sure that all flue holes that are not to be used this year have good metal stops, as innumerable fires are caused by sparks through papering over unused pipe holes in chimneys.

4. Clean the ventilating colors around all flues, removing all lint, cobwebs and dust, leaving nothing in the ventilator, in this way permitting the air to cool the pipe where it goes through.

5. Be careful that the supply of kindling wood, is not piled up in the yard in such manner as to carry fire to your house, in case your neighbor's house should burn.

6. It is best to keep all lightwood, kindlings and boxes in sheds, stables or basements, in orderly piles, and not to have papers or excelsior mixed with it.

7. Extra caution should be used in the handling of gasoline. In the winter months all windows and doors are closed, eliminating the possibility of the air blowing the inflamable vapours away.

8. Never use gasoline inside the house for cleaning and when compelled to use it for any other purpose do not forget that you are handling a powerful explosive which may endanger your life and property.

9. Remove all dry grass and leaves from your premises before some one carelessly throws a match away.

10. Do not dry clothing and inflammable materials above or near hot stoves.

If you will obey the above commandments you can prevent many fires and much loss of life and property. Try it! It is worth while.

BON MARCHE CO. RECEIVING ORDERS

CAN NOT MEET THE DEMAND FOR THEIR GOODS—BUSINESS FLOURISHING.

The company of local business men formed recently and known as the Bon Marche Manufacturing Company are receiving business beyond all expectation. The orders are being received so fast and for such large quantities that it is impossible to supply the demand. At present there are eight employed manufacturing all kinds of ladies' lingerie, including silk goods and children's wash goods.

This is a 100,000 company and judging by their present rapidly growing business, they will soon be a real asset to Peterborough industrially.

They are occupying the Knights of Pythias Hall, Simcoe street.

The officers elected recently are:
President—Mr. Edgar Worth.
Vice-president—Mr. E. Bruce Fowler.
Managing Director — Mr. J. E Bates.
Directors—Mr. J. W. Worth and Mr. Walter Worth.
Accountant—Mr. W. R. Morris.
Solicitor—Mr. I. E. L. Goodwill
Secretary Mr D. Lawrie.

GRANITE FINISH FOR THE BRIDGE

BY A MAJORITY OF ONE THE PREVIOUS DECISIONS REMAIN UNALTERED.

At the meeting of the Board of Works last night in the absence of the chairman the Mayor presided. The matter brought up for discussion was to decide finally whether the finish of the bridge should be chipped granite or whether the rubbed concrete finish would answer the purpose.

The difference in price was estimated at $5250.

No action was taken, which means the chipped granite finish will be placed on the bridge as previously decided.

MILLBROOK CENTRAL EXHIBIT BREAKS ALL FORMER RECORDS

The Millbrook Central Exhibition held on Thursday and Friday of this week surpassed in exhibits and attendance, all previous records. Favored with delightful weather, people from far and near came by train, motor and other conveyance, till over 2,000 people passed through the gates. Never in the history of Millbrook were so many autos in evidence.

Every class from 1 to 22, except in exceptional cases, was well represented. Judges had their work cut out for them.

The aeroplane flights were a new feature for Millbrook Fair, and many enjoyed a trip with the aviator. The concert by the all Star Co., of Toronto, was a real treat to all who were able to obtain seats.

Sail Right In To Your Meals

When You Get Acquainted With Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, There Will Be No Perils From Gas, Sour Risings And Other Stormy Experiences of Indigestion.

How often you meet people who say—to eat that would be my finish.

With Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets a Dyspeptic Sails Right In to the Goods Things to Eat.

But they can eat melons, fried fish, mince pie, cheese and such terrors of the dyspeptic provided the meal is followed with a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet.

Thus to rule out all the tasty and savory foods for fear of indigestion, gas and a sour stomach, is both needless and depressing.

These tablets are composed of digestants and stomachics in such proportion as to digest food and thus relieve the stomach of an excess burden, particularly if the stomach has been overworked. It is a safe rule to follow each meal with a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet, then you may eat what you like wherever you are and not be rated a forlorn dyspeptic.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets may be found in all drug stores throughout the United States and Canada.

DOWNEYVILLE

(Special Correspondence)

Downeyville, Oct. 8. — Miss Lila Lucas who has been spending a few days in Ops has returned home.

Miss Katie Morrisey of Lindsay, is visiting at Mr. Patrick Collins.

Mr. Dennis Shine was in Oshawa for a few days during the past week.

A very large crowd attended the annual school fair, which was held on Friday last. The exhibits were exceptionally good, there being poultry, eggs, vegetables, fruit, seeds, sewing and baking. The diffeernt out-of-door sports included jumping, foot races and driving. After the sports an interesting program was carried out. Rev. Fathers Casey and O'Leary of Lindsay were present to congratulate the pupils on their successful work during the past year.

APSLEY

(Special Correspondence.)

Apsley, Oct. 8.—Mr. James Thompson M. L. A. held an enthusiastic meeting in the town hall on Saturday evening. Quite a large crowd was in attendance. He dealt with the county roads, consolidated schools, school fairs, referendum and the main questions of the day. Mr William Hales ably filled the position of chairman. At the close of the meeting an opportunity was given for discussion on any of the topics. Three cheers were given for the King and afterwards for Mr. Thompson. Before dispersing all joined in singing the National Anthem.

The death occurred in Chandos on September 29 of Mrs. Stephen Scott. Deceased had been in poor health for some time. She leaves to mourn her loss two sons William and Robert. Lately returned from overseas and one daughter, Mrs. Robert Peters, of Anstruther, all of whom have our deepest sympathy.

The remains were taken from her late residence on October 1 to the Methodist Church, Apsley, where a funeral service was held, Rev. J. H. Beck officiating thence to the Union Cemetery for interment.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Robert Knox, Thomas Stephens, M. Scott and A. Wilson.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is sign you have been eating too much meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

VETERANS SUBMIT THEIR PROPOSALS

SCHEDULE PREPARED BY THEM FOR AIDING MEN WHO SAW SERVICE.

Ottawa, Oct. 7. — Cash grants, ranging from $75 for non-combatants, who enlisted in Canada in 1918, to $2,500 for combatants who enlisted and saw service in France in 1914, were asked by the G. W. V. A. at the committee dealing with soldiers' re-establishment. Service between these two extremes is graded.

The G. W. V. A. estimate the cost at $397,800,000. On this they figure that 25 per cent will not be necessary, because some will not claim the amount and others not prove their need of re-establishment. Another 25 per cent would be absorbed by the Government in land bonds. Thus the actual cost would be $200,000,000.

Fighting Men Get Most.

The plan makes a great distinction between the assistance to be granted combatants, and non-combatants. There would be very few receive $2,500 as the Princess Pats were the only Canadians to get to France during 1914.

The total enlistments were 591,000, but under this plan 105,000 would be disqualified for less than six months' service, 15,000 be deducted for duplicate enlistments, 5,000 be taken off for desertions, leaving 466,000 qualified for the grant. There would be only 47,000 applicants on account of service in Canada only, 184,000 on account of service in Canada and England, and 235,000 because of service in France as well.

A Cash Advance

The suggestion is that $500 should be paid on November 1 in cash where that amount would be due under the scheme, and that the balance of financial aid to which the beneficiary is eligible should be paid in a manner suitable to the real re-establishment of the man according to his individual needs.

VINCENT EASTWOOD APPOINTED MEMBER BOARD OF EDUCATION

Chosen by the Members of the Board at Last Night's Meeting to Fill Vacancy

The rules of precedent were broken last night at the meeting of the Board of Education, and Mr. Vincent Eastwood was appointed to the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. S. N. Gordon. Before the vote was taken the chairman spoke in favour of electing some member who had previously served years upon the board. He pointed out the great task confronting the Board. The Collegiate must be enlarged and a gymnasium built. Premier Hearst had stated in connection with technical schools that one-third of the cost would be borne by the Ontario Government, one-third by the Dominion and one-third by the city. This problem along with many others of grave importance must be faced by the Peterborough Board of Education and, old-time and tried members would materially help the new members in dealing with these problems.

Mr. J. W. Worth differed in opinion from the chairman. He thought that as Mrs. Morris had been the highest in the confidence of the people at the last election the vacancy should be filled by her. He drew attention to the fact that the chairman of the building committee who had so ably dealt with the preparations for building the new school was serving his first term on the board. He did not see why it was necessary to bring a former member of the Board back again when first term members could do such efficient work.

A ballot was taken on the nominations and the result was that Mr. Vincent Eastwood was elected to the vacancy. The others to receive votes were Mrs. Morris and Mr. R. Munroe.

Dental Survey

Permission was granted to Mr. Mowatt to co-operate with the provincial authorities in connection with a dental survey of the children of the city. Mr. Mowat stated that this was a provincial movement under the direction of Dr. Fred Conroy, of Toronto and was not for the purpose of performing any operations upon the teeth of the children, but was wholly educational. A description of the condition of the child's teeth will be sent to the parents with advice as to the best policy to pursue in connection with them. Also the statistics of the condition of the children's teeth in the city would be of great interest.

Cadet Corps Commenced.

A letter was read from Col. Gillespie in which he highly praised the efficiency of the Collegiate Cadet Corps and in which he hoped for an equal efficiency with more advanced work this year. Col. Gillespie's letter was full of commendation for the work of the officers and men of the cadet corps.

WHEN MEALS HIT BACK

"Pape's Diapepsin" instantly Ends Indigestion, Sourness, Stomach Acidity

Are lumps of undigested food causing you pain? Is your stomach acid, gassy, sour, or have you flatulence, heartburn? Then take Pape's Diapepsin.

Just as soon as you eat a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin all that dyspepsia, indigestion and stomach distress caused by acidity ends. These pleasant, harmless tablets of Pape's Diapepsin never fail to make sick, upset stomachs feel fine at once, and they cost very little at drug stores.

GIRLS! DRAW A MOIST CLOTH THROUGH HAIR

Let "Danderine" save your hair and double its beauty

Oh, girls, such an abundance of thick, heavy, invigorated hair; a perfect mass of wavy, silky hair, gloriously fluffy, bright and so easy to manage.

Just moisten a cloth with a little "Danderine" and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this magically removes all dirt, excess oil and grease, but your hair is not left brittle, dry, stringy or faded, but charmingly soft, with glossy, golden gleams and tender lights. The youthful glints, tints and color are again in your hair.

"Danderine" is a tonic-beautifier. Besides doubling the beauty of the hair at once, it checks dandruff and stops falling hair. Get delightful Danderine for a few cents at any drug or toilet counter and use it as a dressing and invigorator as told on bottle.

Field Days

Permission was granted to the public school teachers, allowing them to hold their Field Day on the afternoon of Wednesday, Oct. 8, (today.) Permission was also granted for the Collegiate Field Day to be held tomorrow and the usual grant of $30 was raised to $40 to help the Collegiate to have a better Field Day than ever.

Acknowledgments.

The Board gratefully acknowledge having received for the local collegiate a steel engraving from Mrs. W. H. Denham and a beautifully framed picture of the second battle of Ypres from Mrs. T.F. Mathews. The appreciation of the members for these handsome gifts was sent to both ladies.

Attendance

The reports showed an average attendance of 383 at the Collegiate for a total of 400 on the roll. The attendance at the public schools in one case was 91 p.c. and in all the others reached the 92 per cent mark.

"JIM"

JIM was a lineman before the war. It was difficult to find a uniform broad enough across the shoulders for him when he "joined up" in 1914.

Jim found army discipline hard at first, but picked up the "war business" very quickly. He was one of the first of the "trench raiders," a Canadian contribution to the art of warfare. Jim seemed to bear a charmed life. Time after time in the dead of night Jim jumped into a German trench, spreading fear and disaster, and returned safe and sound.

But one fell night his luck gave out. He stepped into a stream of machine gun bullets. When consciousness came to him again, far in the rear of our lines, he was horrified to find his right leg missing.

During the ensuing months Jim's progress was —Clearing Station,— Boulogne,— "Blighty" and Home—Canada!

The shock of the operation left Jim pretty weak for a time. He was content to sit idly in a chair in the sun. But this grew tiresome after a bit. When he began to think about getting back to work he realized that a lineman with an artificial leg was rather impractical. That was his trade. He had spent years at it. And now he was barred from following it.

At this critical juncture, the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment came forward and with knowledge and experience pointed the way out.

After long and earnest discussion, it was mutually decided that the nearest thing to his old trade was that of a telegrapher despatcher. If Jim couldn't any more string wires on the poles he could learn to send the messages over the wires that the other fellow put up. So under the direction of the D.S.C.R. telegraph instructor Jim studied and perfected himself as an operator. This accomplished, the D.S.C.R. quickly found him a position.

Jim is all right now. He's contented as only a man who works can be contented. He is earning more money than before. His enthusiasm is high for the D.S.C.R., which gave him the training whereby he is again an independent and prosperous citizen. After all, it was for Canada that Jim fought and suffered —and Canada is only too eager to repay Jim and every man impaired in body or health through service to his country.

* * * * * * *

The records of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment contain endless details in the matter of re-training ex-soldiers—a disabled farm laborer is now a machinist; a carpenter who lost four fingers on his right hand is now a draughtsman at a good salary; a former plasterer is now a printer. So it goes—a long and interesting record of men deprived of limbs or impaired in health—equipped with training and knowledge, now following new and suitable trades.

This great nation-wide organization of the D.S.C.R. requires a considerable expenditure. To meet its expenses a part of the Victory Loan 1919 is to be used But its maintenance, until every disabled ex-soldier is fitted with a vocation enabling him to earn for himself an adequate and independent living, is one of the most sacred obligations that Canada has to discharge. Support to the limit of your ability—the

The name "Bayer" identifies the only genuine Aspirin,—the Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over nineteen years and now made in Canada. Always buy an unbroken package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" which contains proper directions for Colds, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Neuritis, Joint Pains, and Pain generally. Tin boxes of 12 tablets cost but a few cents. Larger "Bayer" packages.

There is only one Aspirin—"Bayer"—You must say "Bayer"

(Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

$12,000 INVESTED $9,000 PROFITS

BRITISH COLUMBIA CURER OF HAMS IN THE GET-RICH-QUICK CLASS.

Victoria, B.C., Oct. 8.— Only one witness was examined yesterday by Lieut.-Col. L. D. Hulme, conducting the inquiry into the cost of living in Vancouver, for the Board of Commerce, but three commodities were dealt with bacon, butter, and eggs.

On an investment of about $12,000 James Reid, carrying on a business as a ham curer, informed the board that he estimated his net profits at about nine thousand dollars annually. The reason prices were so high, he declared, was because the Government had fixed the price of wheat the result being that the farmers were turning all their attention to grain instead of pork.

STOMACH ON A STRIKE

wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sick, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented and turned sour; head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food—just eat a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin to help neutralize acidity and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless antacid is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs so little at drug stores.

TONIGHT AT THE TEMPLE.

There will be a special Young People's service at seven o'clock this evening at the Temple to meet Lieut. Col. Bettridge. All the young people of the corps and Sunday School are invited and all young people's workers are also requested to be present.

At eight o'clock the Colonel will conduct a very special holiness meeting for the senior portion. The band and songsters will be present and will render suitable music.

This is a public meeting and all who are interested in such a gathering are invited to be present. The Colonel is well known to temple audiences, and there should be a large number to meet him.

DEWS OF EVE

No More Gentle Than "Cascarets" for the Liver, Bowels

It is just as needless as it is dangerous to take violent or nasty cathartics. Nature provides no shock absorbers for your liver and bowels against calomel, harsh pills, sickening oil and salts. Cascarets give quick relief without injury from Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, Gases and Sick Headache. Cascarets work while you sleep, removing the toxins, poisons and sour, indigestible waste without griping or inconvenience. Cascarets regulate by strengthening the bowel muscles. They cost so little too.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE.

Thanksgiving service will be held in the Baptist Church next Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Special music by the choir, and appropriate messages will be given by the pastor, the Rev. F. Ashton.

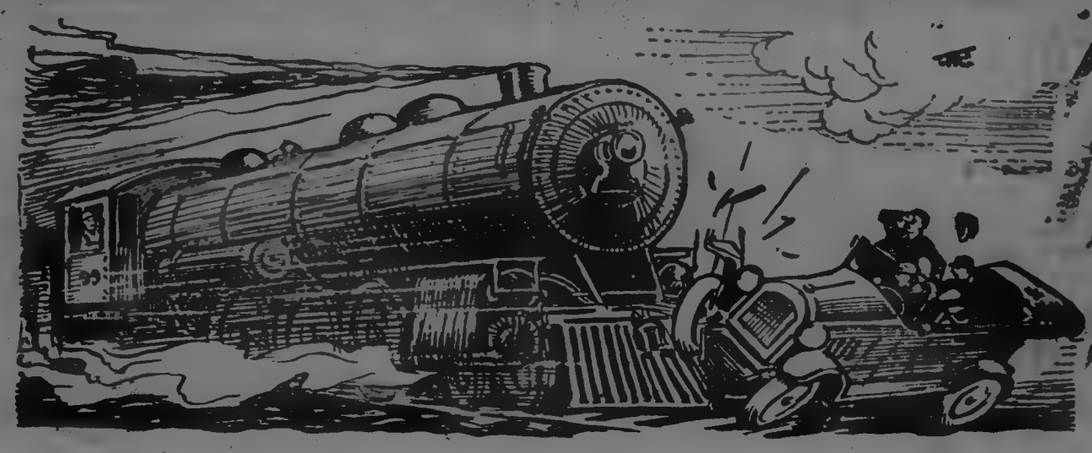
The thank-offering will be applied to the local needs of the church. A large congregation is expected to "Enter His Courts With Thanksgiving." A welcome for all.

NEARLY MILLION AND HALF

Will Be Cost of New Hospital to be Built in Ottawa.

Ottawa, Oct. 8.— Messrs. Steven, and Lee, of Toronto and Boston, specialists in hospital architecture, will draft the plans for the proposed new Ottawa Civic Hospital. The agreement between the city and Messrs. Stevens and Lee was approved by unanimous vote by the City Council. ment, Stevens and new mdthmnoti Under the terms of the agreement, Stevens and Lee will be paid seven per cent of $1,400,000 in instalments as the work progresses.

Cold facts often cause hot arguments.



Your Life is in Hands of Others Every Day

AS never before the need of modern traffic is for a clear head and steady hands. The man at the throttle, the steering wheel or the switch board must know what he is doing, must be ready on the instant for emergency, and must make no mistakes. Beer befuddles and unnerves.

IN this new world of machinery and power the "boozer" has no place. In the railway business the confirmed "boozer" can't be trusted with the lives of his fellows. The Railway Brotherhoods don't want him. Beer makes him unsteady.

On the streets and highroads the "joy rider with booze on board" is a menace to traffic, to his own life and to the lives of others. Beer makes motoring dangerous.

Flying-men learned the disastrous results of alcohol taken preparatory to encountering the enemy in mid-air. Alcohol was proved by casualties to shake the nerves and destroy control. Beer impairs judgment.

In business and industrial organizations, the drinking man is the "last man hired and first man fired." Beer makes men slow, stupid, and unreliable.

Beer and all other intoxicating beverages have no place in a world run by machinery. The safety of too many others is involved when an unsteady hand and a drink-befuddled brain is left in control of the steering wheel or the engine throttle.

Remember that the Beer of the ballot is intoxicating beer. Mark Your Ballot with an X after each question under the word "No." If you don't mark an X after each question your ballot is spoiled.

DOES THE GLARE HURT YOUR EYES

As a rule, few eyes can endure a continuous glare, and eye-strain may be caused by an excess of light in the same way as when there is a refractive error.

Dr. Fowler has a special lens for patrons whose eyes are subjected to intense or glaring light. They are a slightly colored lens, so little as to be unnoticeable, yet affording the eyes adequate protection from extreme artificial light or the glaring sun rays.

GEORGE GUY'S DREAM

Years ago when the famous Guy Brothers' Minstrels travelled through this country the company was known as the Guy Family.

George R. Guy was a mere boy, his mother and father having full control over the company watching every move the boys would make, allowing them after reaching the hotel after the show at night just fifteen minutes for the boys to be in bed.

George R. Guy would go to bed with the thoughts on his mind of some day owning one of the best travelling minstrel shows on the road. It preyed on his mind to such an extent that he turned to dreaming every night of the same wish.

Today his dream has come true. Mr. George R. Guy now controls the most well-known and popular minstrel show on the road today. No doubt the people of Peterborough shall turn out to see Mr. Guy's wish, the best company the Guy Brothers have ever had on the road and the best travelling organization of its kind today.

Necessary evils are often blessings in disguise.

THEATRICAL

FAMED MUSICAL CRAZE COMING

No more pleasurable anticipation had been afforded local theatregoers in several seasons than the announcement that Coutts and Tennis' original Cohan Theatre production, "The Kiss Burglar," the most brilliant and fascinating of recent musical successes is to be presented at the Grand for one day only, Saturday, matinee and evening. Coming here direct from a six month's run at the George M. Cohan Theatre, the birthplace of many of the most popular musical entertainments of the last quarter of a century. Not in years have the exacting theatre-going public found a musical offering so completely to their liking as this latest musical craze which early bookings made previous to its opening on Broadway prevented it running for another solid year, and the genuine enthusiasm which crowded houses have accorded this irresistable musical comedy so far on its tour of the larger cities indicates that its popularity throughout the country will prove not one degree less phenomenal than its record making vogue with all classes of pleasure-seekers in New York.

Much of the success of "The Kiss Burglar" is credited to its fresh and timely appealing story and effective manner in which mirth, merriment, melody, pathos, fun and originality has been harmoniously combined, while the tuneful songs with which its brilliant score abounds will become popular in every nook and corner of the land. The book and lyrics is from the pen of Glen MacDonough and the music from the pen of that popular American writer, Raymond Hubbell. An enormous company is carried, which includes the famous Peacock Alley chorus, and the original Cohan Theatre production will make this the season's greatest musical comedy event. Sale of seats opens at the box office Thursday morning at 10 a.m.

"OH BOY" MUSICAL COMEDY HIT

A clever book and beautiful score combine to make "Oh, Boy" the brightest and smartest musical comedy hit in years. "Oh, Boy" is presented by F. Ray Comstock and William Elliott and is the fourth in the series of New York Princess Theatremusical comedies and comes to the Grand Thursday evening, Oct. 16th.

"Oh, Boy" is the joint work of Guy Boltin, P. G. Wodehouse and Jerome Kern. Mr. Boltin and Mr. Wodehouse providing the book lyrics and Mr. Kern the music.

F. Ray Comstock and William Elliott, under whose management "Oh, Boy" is presented, will send here an organization which will measure up to the standard of New York Princess Theatre productions.

Some of the most popular musical numbers are, "An Old-Fashioned Wife," "Rolled Into One," "Till the Clouds Roll By," "The First Day of May," "Koo-la-Loo" and "Nesting Time in Flatbush."

DANIS FAILS TO FOOL LISSER

PECULIAR INCIDENT OF RING TACTICS WHICH RESULTED IN FAILURE

A smart trick that did not work was attempted in the Davis-Lisner bout at Massey Hall Saturday night. In the sixth round, when Davis had suddenly realized that he had to go his limit to hold the Toronto lad he noticed a cent on the floor of the ring. "Heigh Scotty, look at the cent," he shouted. He expected Lisner to look down and had his right ready to crash him the instant he looked away. But Scotty didn't fall for that one. The words were hardly out of Davis' mouth before Lisner popped him one on the nose. "Scent that one with your scenter," he yelled back. "Right on the scenter," returned Davis. It was—right on the center and you can spell it both ways. There is a lot of stuff pulled in the ring that the spectators do not see or hear.

PEACE OF ROARING RIVER

"The Peace of Roaring River," with Pauline Frederick as the star, was the feature picture at the Grand last night and is a picture well worth seeing. Miss Frederick is always at her best in an emotional role such as she has in this film and she is ably supported by a strong company. The action is centred around a western mining camp and there are some very tense scenes shown.

Ann Murdock in "Passion" scores a distinct hit with her dainty acting. The spectator is given a good view of an American amusement park and also a wrestling match.

A most amusing Charlie Chaplin comedy completes the programme which will be repeated tonight.

FISHING CAT DISCOVERED IN FILMS

Mack Sennett likes to use animals in pictures, and in "Mickey," featuring Mabel Normand, to be shown at the Grand Theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, two cats are used to bring out a strikingly dramatic contrast in the story, which will attract attention not only as a picture, but as a nature study.

One is a lean, scrawny frog hunter, who rustles for his grub in the mountain cabin where little Mickey lives with her foster father. One of the "close-ups" of the picture shows this cat actually fishing for frogs in a mountain stream. If anyone were to write a magazine story about a cat that went fishing, some professors of natural history would begin to shriek "nature fake!" But they will have to believe what their eyes see. This old feline ragamuffin sneaks out to the water's edge. A paw suddenly flashes out with the speed of a snake striking, and the frog is hooked.

They found this cat in the California mountains, where they went to film Miss Normand in some of the scenes from "Mickey." The old miner whose cabin they used told them that the cat learned to fish from being left alone for days at a time in the cabin. He had to hustle for this food or starve. He hustled.

Nature men would probably call this a revision to type. In their jungle days, before they became domesticated, cats undoubtedly were fishers. So natural history will say that they did not learn how to fish, this cat remembered how to fish. It took up the heritage of a savage past.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW

To the Voter

TO establish that the 2.51% beer to be voted on—the "Beer of the Ballot"—is not intoxicating, The Ontario Brewers' Association deposited $5,000 with the Canada Permanent Trust Company on September 16th.

¶ On September 19th, The Ontario Brewers' Association formally challenged the Referendum Committee through the Press to deposit an equal amount with the same Trust Company to support their contention that this beer is intoxicating.

¶ That challenge has never been accepted—clear admittance by the Referendum Committee they do not consider that they have a case. It is too late now to make the tests and render a decision before the day of voting—October 20th—but the failure of the Referendum Committee to answer our challenge will not be overlooked by the man or woman who votes on facts and evidence, and not on sentiment or false statements.

¶ We again assert that 2.51% beer—"The Beer of the Ballot"—is not intoxicating. Tests have only recently been made which prove this conclusively—we will mail a copy of the test to anyone sufficently interested to write for it.

¶ Moreover, while the "Beer of the Ballot" has an alcoholic strength of but 2.51%, official tests made by the laboratory of the Inland Revenue Department—published in Bulletin 196—showed that the beers on general sale before The Ontario Temperance Act and Prohibition were enacted, had an alcoholic content ranging as high as 7.38% by weight measure—practically three times as strong as the beer to be voted on October 20th. Even such American beers as were sold in Canada and always spoken of as "very light, non-intoxicating beers," were over fifty per cent. stronger than the "Beer of the Ballot."

¶ The "Beer of the Ballot" is a mildly stimulating, healthful and refreshing beverage, brewed from a high grade of malt and hops—containing only sufficient alcohol to make it digestible and nourishing.

TEACHERS TO MEET IN ANNUAL SESSION

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY IS DATE SET FOR PEDAGOGIC CONFERENCE

The annual session of the Teachers' Institute for the city of Peterborough will be held in the lecture room of the Public Library next Thursday and Friday with morning and afternoon sessions on both days, and one in the evening on Thursday at 8 o'clock in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall. The County Teachers' Institute will meet in the Normal School on Thursday, but joint sessions of the two branches will be held on Friday. Mr. R. F. Downey is president of the city Institute.

The public are cordially invited to attend the session Thursday evening when the following program will be rendered:

Quartete — Messrs. Park, Steer, Downey and Kerr.

Solo—H. M. Park.

Quartette — Messrs. Park, Steer, Downey and Kerr.

Address, "Richard Bransley Sheridan, Dramatist, Wit and Statesman," Dr. Rigby, Port Hope.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

YOUNG PEOPLE ORGANIZE

New Association Formed at St. Luke's Church and Officers Elected.

At a well-attended meeting held in the Sunday School rooms of St. Luke's Church last night a young people's association was formed. Officers were elected and a constitution drafted which will be adopted at the next meeting to be held on the evening of Oct. 14th. The object of the association is to promote the social side of church work particularly among the younger members of St. Luke's congregation. Meetings will probably be held twice a month.

The following are the officers elected:

Patron—The rector, Rev. W. H. White.

President—H. B. Johnston.

Vice-president—Miss Clara Adams.

Secretary—Miss Burgess.

Treasurer—Mr. E. Maniece.

Drinking a Glass of Hot Water is a Splendid Habit

Cleanse and sweeten the system each morning and wash away poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise; splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, cash, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before eating more food.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a fine appetite for breakfast. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store, but is enough to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism an enthusiast on internal sanitation.

CHEAP INSURANCE FOR THE VETERANS

GOVERNMENT MAY MAKE FURTHER PREMIUMS FOR THE RETURNED MEN

Ottawa, Oct. 8.—Several additions to the present provisions for the re-establishment of returned soldiers in civil life may, it is said, result from the deliberations of the Commons committee now considering the subject. A revision of the pension scale may be forthcoming to provide more generously for dependents of soldiers who fell at the front and for men incapacitated by injuries sustained in service. Government assistance to men who are unable by reason of injuries to secure life insurance, and Government aid in the form of unemployment insurance for ex-soldiers are also said to be possibilities.

MR. A. H. STRATTON'S CAR WAS RUN DOWN BY A STREET CAR

Mr. A. H. Stratton, accompanied by his niece, Mrs. H. D. Robertson and the latter's son, Francis, 5 years old, were riding in Mr. Stratton's auto at noon today when a street car collided with them at the corner of Hunter and Park streets It is alleged that the accident was due to the failure of the brakes on the street car to work. The occupants of the auto were thrown out Mr. Stratton and Mrs. Robertson were badly shaken up but the boy was more seriously injured. It is believed that while he was lying on the pavement another vehicle ran over him. He was rushed to Nicholls' Hospital where the doctors found that one of his feet was so badly injured that it may be necessary to amputate a portion of it.

The auto is badly damaged.

SOCIAL & PERSONAL

LOCKHART—ROBERTSON.

In St. Paul's Presbyterian Church at 12:30 today in the presence of an exceedingly large gathering of connections, friends and acquaintances, Ruth Macdonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander J. Robertson, this city, was united in marriage to Mr. Reginald Alexander Lockhart (lieutenant in the Canadian Field Artillery), son of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald R. Lockhart, 36 Dale avenue, Toronto, and nephew of Chief Justice and Mrs. Hodgins, Toronto. The wedding was a military one.

The officiating clergyman was Rev. Robert Pogue, minister of St. Paul's. The church, prettily decorated with flags and roses, was taxed to its utmost capacity.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was beautifully attired in a gown of ivory brocaded satin with a court train lined with American Beauties and Carrickmacross lace rimmings, customary wedding veil caught back with a silver bandeau, and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. Miss Phyllis Robertson was maid of honor and was charmingly gowned in pink taffeta with pink georgette crepe, pink and gold hat with pink ostrich tips, gold slippers, and carried a bouquet of ophelia roses.

Miss Esme Aylmer and Miss Louise Lockhart were bridesmaids, and prettily dressed in blue taffeta and crepe de chine, black velvet tams with gold touches, and black shoes and stockings. They carried bouquets of pink roses.

Miss Barbara Birks was flower girl, attired in a white net frock over pink and a petalled hat of pink taffeta with long pink streamers.

The bride's mother was handsomely gowned in black taffeta and ninon dress, and wore a beautiful large [illegible] corsage bouquet. The bride's sister, Mrs. Northledge Birks, was strikingly attired in a gown of American Beauty satin with black net overdress and black hat.

Wilmot Gordon and Robertson Birks served as train bearers, and wore white man-o'-war sailor suits. Lieut. James Lockhart, brother of the groom, acted as best man. The ushers were Capt. Hugh Sykes, M.C., Capt. Douglas Huycke, Mr. Douglas Lockhart and Mr. Walter Perks.

The bridal party entered the church to the playing of the wedding march by Mr. John Crane, the ushers leading, followed by the bridesmaids, maid of honor, flower girl, the bride on her father's arm, and the train bearers. Miss Helen MacLaren sang "Because" during the signing of the register, after which the procession passed out of the church and through a guard of honor composed of twelve officers with crossed swords, to the cars in readiness to convey them to the home of the bride's father, where an enjoyable wedding reception was held.

During the reception the bride withdrew, and later appeared handsomely attired in her travelling suit of henna silvertoned velour cloth, a coatee of seal and grey squirrel, and a grey squirrel hat with bird of Paradise trimmings.

After receiving the good wishes of a host of friends and guest the happy couple left for New York on their honeymoon, after which they will reside in Toronto.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lockhart, Rosedale, Toronto, Mrs. James Lockhart, grandmother of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Teleg Howland, Miss Kate Howland, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Burritt, Mr and Mrs. Alfred Cameron, Dr. and Mrs. D. Bruce MacDonald, all of Toronto; Dr. J. J. and Mrs. Robertson, Belleville; Miss Anna Paul and Mrs. Fred Paul, Montreal; Miss Jessie Watson, Hamilton; Capt. Dalton Boyd and Miss Boyd, Toronto; Dr. G. B. Calder, Watertown; Miss Taylor, Toronto; Dr. S. S. and Mrs. Davidson, Ottawa; Miss Elizabeth Fowlds, Mrs. Charles Fowlds, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fowlds, Hastings.

The wedding presents were both numerous and costly, a warm tribute to the high esteem and respect in which the young couple and their families are held by a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Miss Helen Munroe, of Montreal is the guest of Mrs. William Davidson, Dickson street.

Miss Mollie Young sang a solo in St. Paul's Church, Lakefield, on Sunday.

son, the latter getting it easily. Neale singled to left. It was a clean drive. Wingo walked, Neale going to second. Fisher was called from the plate by Manager Moran and Ruether batted for him Luque was warming up for the Reds. Ruether up The crowd cheered madly. Ruether popped an easy foul to Weaver. Neale holding second and Wingo first. James began to warm up for Chicago. Rath was out, Weaver to Gandil. Rath broke his bat when he hit the ball.

No runs. One hit. No errors.

Luque is pitching for Cincinnati.

Sixth Inning.

Chicago—Schalk hoisted a high one that Duncan took care of. Cicotte switched his batting position to the left side. He popped up to Rousch. Collins hit one past Groh that went for a double. It was hard hit and Duncan fielded it in the extreme left field. E. Collins struck out but Wingo dropped the ball and had to throw to Daubert to get him.

No runs. One hit. No errors.

Up to this juncture Cicotte had pitched a masterly game, only two singles being made off his delivery.

Cincinnati—Daubert struck out, the third ball being called on him. Groh doubled to left, the ball clearing the fence in front of the bleachers and rolling under them. It was held to a two-baser by the ground rules. Rousch up. Cicotte grabbed Rousch's bounder and tossed him out at first, while Groh was going to third. Duncan put a clean single through the pitcher's box, Groh trotting home. Kopf up. E. Collins took Kopf's grass-cutter and tossed to Risberg, forcing Duncan at second for the third out.

One runs. Two hits. No errors.

Seventh Inning.

Chicago—Weaver fouled off several and then struck out, the third one being called on him. Jackson up. Rath grabbed Jackson's grounder and retired him easily at first. Felsch fanned, taking a good swing at the final one, but missing it.

No runs. No hits. No errors.

Cincinnati — Neale struck out. Wingo walked His third pass to first today. Luque fanned. Rath singled to centre. It was a clean hit that J. Collins fielded fast and Wingo got no farther than second. Daubert was out at first when E. Collins got his drive and tossed to Gandil. Collins momentarily fumbled the ball and the play was close but Nallin called Daubert out.

No runs. One hit No errors

Eighth Inning.

Chicago—Kopf went away back into left and took Gandil's lifter. Risberg lifted a high one that Rousch got under but muffed. Risberg tried to make second and was thrown out, Rousch to Rath. Schalk up Kopf got Schalk's hard drive and making a beautiful throw to first, nailed him.

No runs. No hits. One errors.

Cincinnati—Groh drove a liner out to left that Jackson camped under and captured E Collins got Rousch's bounce near second and threw to Gandil for the put-out. Risberg got Duncan's roller and retired him at first.

No runs. No hits. No errors.

Ninth Inning.

Cicotte fanned on three pitched balls. J. Collins' foul hit was only a few inches outside the line in right field. Rousch came over into left centre and captured J. Collins' drive E. Collins out, Rath to Daubert.

No runs. No hits. No errors.

Cincinnati—Kopf up. E. Collins took Kopf's high fly. Neale filed to Jackson. Wingo singled through E. Collins into right field. Magee batting for Luque. Magee singled into right, Wingo holding second. Rath up. Smith ran for Magee. Rath filed to Felsch.

No runs. Two hits. No errors.

THREE PETERBOROUGH BOYS BEAT VARSITY

DICK SHEEHY, GAMEY STRATTON AND PETE CAMPBELL PLAY FOR "OLD BOYS" AND WIN.

The Old Boys of Toronto Varsity defeated this year's team last Saturday afternoon by the close score of 8 to 5 in a game of rugby that was full of all the thrills and excitement that the game provides. The three players who had most to do or the victory for the Old Boys were former Peterborough boys, namely "Gamey" Stratton on the half line Dick Sheehy at flying-wing and Pete Campbell at quarter. Dick Sheehy and Dawson of the half line made the most sensational runs of the game and Sheehy was considered one of the steadiest and ablest players on the field. Pete Campbell guided the team through the whole play and it was largely due to his masterly judgment that victory came to his team. He with "Gamey" Stratton, performed the feature play of the whole game when they combined for a triple pass for a long gain.

It will be welcome news to the sport lovers of this city to hear of the exceptional performance of our athletes in other cities even if they are not given the opportunity to perform at home.

NOTICE TO WOMEN VOTERS.

CONTRADICTORY EVIDENCE AT THE POLICE INVESTIGATION

Alleged Bootleggers Deny all Connection With Liquor, and Police Protection in Any Shape or Form—Serious Charge Laid Against Constable Boyd.

The police investigation reopened at two o'clock yesterday afternoon in the court house, with Sergt. James Reid in the witness box. He swore that he remembered pouring the liquor, previously referred to as the Bridgenorth liquor, in company with Mr. Stewart, down the sewer. This is the liquor which Mr. Stewart thought was taken to Chief Thompson's house. He swore he also remembered that the empty bottles had been handed over to Mr. J. M. Brooks to convey to O'Keefe's factory.

When the question as to whether ex-Sergt Brown should be sent for or not. The Mayor considered it was not necessary to go to that expense out. Mr. O'Connell submitted that it was important that he should be sent for as it was he who told Stewart that the liquor was taken to the Chief's residence. The court finally ruled that Sergt. Brown should be sent for.

Ray Sullivan Takes the Stand.

The next witness in this investigation was Mr. Ray Sullivan. In spite of the fact that he had received two convictions against him he denied even having brought any liquor into the city since the Ontario Temperance Act came into force. He emphatically denied having any knowledge of the [illegible] ment. The only thing he knew about it was that Hamilton had said to him "let us go up and get some booze at Archie Moore's." I thought he was drunk at the time and put him off saying I hadn's time just then," declared the witness. "I never told anyone I could get police protection at any time, because I couldn't, said Mr. Sullivan.

Exhaustive Cross-Examination

Mr. O'Connell put the witness through a very exhaustive and gruelling cross-examination concerning the liquor charges previously laid against him. He had been in Montreal the day previous to the capturing of the liquor at Kendry but he knew nothing of the liquor at Kendry. When he got off the train he met a man, a friend of his family, who informed him that his brother Joe was very sick in Toronto. He went to his home but the door was locked and he then went to Ernie Taylor's to borrow enough money to go to his brother's in Toronto. He could not get the money then but later got the money from his own till and went to Toronto during the afternoon. He had been in Montreal for the double purpose of seeing a doctor from whom he was receiving treatment and to bargain for some barber equipment.

He was not at Kendry that morning and he was in no way connected with the whiskey for which he was convicted. According to his statements.

His story of the third of April case was, that, on the night before Dunford had come to him and asked him to go on a trip the following day. He agreed, not knowing why or where they were going. He went with Dunford about seven o'clock on the morning of April 3. "We went to Kendry and found four large boxes on the station. I asked Dunford what was in them and he replied dynamite.. Later, on the way home, I found out it was liquor. When I ascertained this, I refused to sit on the truck while going up town for fear of getting pinched." He then told of leaving the liquor at his brother-in-law's place a few miles out on the gravel road upon the promise of Dunford to go and get the liquor before his brother-in-law returned. Sullivan admitted that this was his own suggestion for the purpose of avoiding his own and incidentally Dunford's arrest.

"Did you ever have any financial connection with any whiskey dealings?"

"I [illegible] drink and I never sold a drop of whiskey. I saw liquor only once in Hamilton's, and I used to often stay there over night and I sometimes gambled there."

Charge of April 3.

When asked why he did not defend himself in the witness box in connection with the April 3 charges, the witness explained it in the following manner. He stated that he was

SAYS LIBERAL CANDIDATE GEO. H. GILLESPIE IS THE HEAD OF BUDDING COMBINE

Thomas Tooms Talks to Electors of North Monaghan--Explains Referendum and Recall Plank in Labor Platform—If Elected Would Give Periodical Account of His Stewardship to Electors.

Thomas Tooms, the Independent Labor candidate for West Peterborough, addressed a gathering, mainly of labor men, in May's School house last night. The room was well filled.

Peter McArthur, president of the Independent Labor party, presided over its meeting, which gave both the candidate and he an attentive hearing, with no interruptions whatever.

Anxious to Know.

Peter McArthur thinks West Peterborough is quite anxious to know what the Labor party is capable of, and he seems quite confident that this election is going to offer an object lesson in the election of Thomas Tooms. "It's a three-cornered fight," he said, "unless some one drops out and that one will certainly not be the Labor candidate, who is going to keep on until he reaches the winning post."

He admitted an up-hill fight for Mr. Tooms, owing to a paucity of funds and lack of support from the press, and that a united effort on the part of labor is needed.

Mr. McArthur complained of The Examiner's criticism of the recall plank in Labor's platform, and said its editor, by his own criticism, failed to recognize the object of the referendum coupled with the recall. Contrary to The Examiner, Labor candidates are subject to recall on a referendum vote of the electors, and not at the pleasure of the party's executive. Workingmen, he declared, do not believe in the centralization of power in any one class, but in honest and fair government for all interests.

Mr. McArthur concluded by characterizing the candidate as the ablest political working man in Peterborough, a deep student of political economy, and capable of representing this riding in the Provincial House in a manner which would measure up to either of his opponents.

Thomas Tooms.

The Labor candidate prefaced his address with eulogy for this city's labor aldermen, whose record on the Council had, he said, encouraged his candidature. The Labor party, he went on to say, had made up their minds to get Labor men on every legislative board in the Dominion. "We are going to make ourselves heard. Not one working man or woman," he said, "whom I have canvassed have turned me down; they all say a Labor candidate is the very thing wanted in Peterborough—and I am confident of election."

This is not so much a Labor question, Mr. Tooms contended, as one of humanity and justice. Declaring that the country needed demo-

BRITISH MINERS NOW TAKE THE STAGE DEMAND NATIONALIZATION OF MINES

J. H. Thomas, Leader of the Recent Railway Strike, Heads Deputation to Premier Lloyd George Pressing for Government's Acceptance of Coal Commission's Majority Report—Grave Situation is Probable.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Oct. 9.—With the country not yet fully recovered from the affects of the railroad strike British miners will take the stage today, when a deputation will call on Premier Lloyd George to press for complete nationalisation of mines.

Thomas the Leader.

The deputation, as announced, consists of members of the Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress, which met recently in Glasgow, and members of the Executive Committee of the Miners' Federation

By coincidence J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, and leader of the recent strike, will head the deputation as the new chairman of the Parliamentary Committee. This step will be taken in accordance with a resolution adopted at the recent Trades Union Congress at Glasgow, which pledged the Congress to co-operate with the Miners' Federation in compelling the Government to accept the majority report submitted by the Coal Commission, headed by Sir John Sankey.

It will be recalled that Premier Lloyd George, before Parliament adjourned, announced the Government's decision not to accept the majority report which recommended shorter hours, higher wages and a reform in the ownership system, and suggested nationalization, but said the Government would merely nationalize mine rates with a sort of joint control of the industry. If Mr. Lloyd George reiterates this decision today, and refuses to accept nationalisation, as it is assumed he will, a special Trades Union Congress will be convened to decide upon the form of action to be taken by the miners to compel acquiescence in their demands.

Greater Menace

Opinion differs as to whether the country may be called upon to face another period of industrial turmoil or whether the miners will adopt less drastic tactics. The Mail's Labor correspondent writes: "Should the Government prove obdurate, it is quite possible the nation will find itself in a few days in a position of even greater menace than it faced last week."

No Lightning Strike

Elsewhere the view is strong that there is not likely to be a resort to another "lightnig strike," and that a ballot of miners throughout the country will be held before anything [illegible] that he opinions of members of the executive committee of the Miners' Federation are sharply divided some deprecating the strong action following the recent industrial upheaval, while extremists are said to favor an immediate strike.

CINCINNATI WINS WORLD SERIES BY 5 TO 3 GAMES

Chicago, Oct 9.—Weather was inclined to be rainy, an dit was possible this morning that the eighth game of the world's series, between Chicago and Cincinnati scheduled for today, would have to be postponed.

Few wagers were reported this morning on outcome of the series. Prevailing odds on series apparently are about two and a half to two in favor of Cincinnati with even money on today's game. Probable line-up and batting order follows:

Cincinnati—Rath, 2b; Daubert, 1b; Groh, 3b; Rousch, cf; Duncan, lf; Kopf, ss; Neale, rf; Rariden, c; Eller, p.

Chicago—Liebold, cf; E. Collins, 2b; Weaver, 3b; Jackson, lf; Felsch, rf; Gandil, 1b; Risberg, ss; Schalk, c; Williams, p.

Batteries.

Cincinnati—Eller and Jackson.
Chicago—Williams and Schalk.

First Inning.

Cincinnati—Rath up. The first ball pitched by Williams split the plate but Rath did not make a bid for it. Rath opened the contest with a pop fly that Risberg got in short left field. Daubert singled to centre. It was a line drive that Liebold mad ea great effort for but could not quite reach before it touched the ground. Groh fouled the first one off. Groh fouled the third ball into the left field pavillion. Groh singled to right, it was a short hit that cleared over first base and Daubert held second. Rousch doubled past first base to the right field pavillion, scoring Daubert and putting Groh on third. Duncan up. James is warming up for Chicago. Duncan doubled to left field, scoring Groh and Rousch. It was a line drive that went over Weaver's head and Jackson fielded in the extreme left field corner. This was enough for Williams and Big Bill James went into the box for Gleason's team. Kopf up. James could not locate the plate properly and walked Kopf. Duncan retained second. Neale took a terrific swipe at the second ball but missed. Neale Fanned, the third but Schalk recovered the ball before any damage could be done. Rariden lifted a Texas leaguer over first base, scoring Duncan and putting Kopf on third. Eller up. The crowd gave [illegible] a hand clap ovation when he went into the battera' box. Rariden stole second. Eller ended the innings by flying out to Felsch.

Four runs. Five hits. No errors.

The Reds displayed the most consecutive hitting of the series in this inning. Their wallops off Williams were all clean hits.

Chicago—Eller's first pitch was over the pan. Liebold started for the Sox with a clean single to left that Duncan fielded fast and prevented him from stretching into a double. E. Collins doubled to left, Liebold going to third. Weaver fanned. Eller got his first victim when he slipped the third strike over on Weaver. Jackson lifted a puny fly that Kopf captured back of third, Liebold holding third and E. Collins second. Felsch tried to dodge the ball but it hit his bat. Felsch fanned.

No runs. Two hits. No errors.

Second Inning.

Cincinnati—Rath struck out. Daubert flied out to Jackson who got the ball after a short run. Groh called for the ball and examined it but the umpire ruled it was O.K. Groh singled to Gandil. The latter got the ball in back of first, but could not get up in time. Groh turned his ankle when he stepped on first base and play was delayed for a few minutes, but he resumed and took his position on first base. Rousch doubled to left field, scoring Groh on the hit but Rousch was caught between second and thir dwhen Liebold threw to Risberg and in the run down Schalk and Weaver got assists while E. Collins finally put the ball on him.

One run. Two hits. No errors.

Chicago—Gandil line flied to Daubert. Risberg up. Eller had trouble finding the plate and walked Risberg. The ball was again examined by Schalk and the umpire, but was returned to the pitcher. Schalk up. Rariden dropped Schalk's high foul and was given an error Schalk again wanted the umpire to examine the ball and he tossed it back to Eller. Schalk singled to left Duncan came in fast, but the ball hit the ground first. Risberg reaching second. James hit a high foul to Groh and neither base runners advanced. Liebold struck out.

No runs. One hit. One errors.

Third Inning.

Cincinnati—Duncan up. Weaver took Duncan's high bounder and threw him out at first. Kopf up

HEROIC CAPTAIN GUEST OF TORONTO

SIR BERTRAM HAYES, R.N.R., K.B.E. MASTER OF OLYMPIC A MODEST MAN

Toronto, Oct. 9. — Sir Bertram Hayes, R.N.R., K.B.E., captain of the Olympic, the troopship which transported safely 200,000 soldiers and which is credited with having sunk three submarines during the period of the war, arrived in the city yesterday morning at 8:30 on the C. P. R. train from New York. He is the guest of the city and addressed the Canadian Club at their luncheon at 12:45.

Sir Bertram was greeted at the station by His Worship Wayor Church, and by Mr. H. G. Thorley, general passenger agent for the White Star Line. He is a man of fine physique, broad-shouldered tall and with the typically ruddy British countenance of the great English seamen who dared Germany to challenge British naval supremacy.

Sir Bertram had been on duty with his ship without leave since the outbreak of the war and is now enjoying a well-earned rest. For his splendid war services he was decorated and knighted by His Majesty the King.

Not Taking Chances.

"I don't think that the Germans worked their submarine warfare as they might have worked it. They never took any chances. If the boot had been on the other foot they wouldn't have been a German ship on the sea," said Sir Bertram, when asked his opinion on the effectiveness of the German submarine blockade. The Germans were simply afraid, and that was all.

Sir Bertram also spoke in high terms of praise of the Canadian people and particularly of the thousands of Canadian soldiers whom he had taken across the Atlantic during the period of the war.

"I believe that the greatest compliment that I ever received was when I was at the station at Southampton harbor when a troop train carrying Canadian soldiers came in Someone yelled out: What ship are we going home on?" and upon being informed that it was to be the Olympic a tremendous cheer was sent up from the whole length of the train."

Quite Unassuming.

The one impressive thing about Sir Bertram is that so great a commander should show so much modesty. This indeed he extends almost to the point of bashfulness, and when talking of the exploits of his ship he always refers to his men and his company in such a way as to make one infer that he was only a casual onlooker.

He says the Olympic had travelled 184,000miles, had burned 347,000 tons of coal and at the same time had carried more than 200,000 Canadian, American and Imperial troops. This was her war record.

Besides she had assumed no inactive part in the actual theatres of naval warfare. She rescued the officers and men from H.M.S. Audacious when that dreadnought was sinking off the Irish coast. Of the Olympic's combats with the German submarines, Capt. Hayes said, "I think that we sank three, but we are only credited with one by the Admiralty Office, since it is necessary to bring in adequate and material evidence before a genuine count is registered. We were attacked ten times by enemy submarines.

"Everyone seems to think that the Olympic was a success," continued Sir Bertram. "This success was due to the instructions which the managers issued before we started on each trip. We never heard a complaint, never lost a life and never had an accident while we were transporting Canadians. The management gave us to understand that they were not out to make money and we were told to spare no expense in making the boys comfortable.

Sir Bertram Hayes was born at Birkenhead. He went to sea in 1880 and in 1889 he joined the White Star line. During the South African war he assumed his first command when he took charge of the troopship Britannic.

LOOKS LIKE STEEL STRIKERS RETURNING TO WORK SHORTLY

Immediate Industrial Truce for Three Months to Arbitrate Differences Between Workers and Empolyers.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, Oct. 9.—An immediate industrial truce, to continue for three months, the creation of an arbitration board by the President and Congress, and the immediate arbitration of the nation-wide steel strike, were among proposals made today to the industrial conference here.

Industrial Truce

The first two were presented by representatives of the public, and the last by the Labor group. Bernard M. Baruch, chairman of the Public group, made the proposal for the industrial truce, while Samuel Gompers, president of the A. F. of L., and chairman of the Labor group, proposed arbitration of the steel strike.

Return To Work

Gompers' plan contemplates the immediate return of the steel strikers to work, pending the outcome of efforts to arbitrate the dispute.

MORE EVIDENCE AT INVESTIGATION

SEVERAL WITNESSES DENY BEING CONNECTED WITH LIQUOR TRANSACTIONS

CHARGE AGAINST BOYD DENIED

EVEN MR. O'CONNELL REFUSES TO CREDIT THE EVIDENCE OF EMMET FAUX.

The police investigation re-opened this morning with Emmet Faux in the witness box undergoing a cross-examination by Mr Hall.

He repeated his statement of the message which was sent through him to Johnston by Boyd. He swore that it was on the morning of the day that Johnston received his fine. He told Mr. Ray of this incident the same morning.

He told of being connected for selling liquor for which he served a six-month term in jail. He bought three pints of Columbian spirits at a drug store and mixed it with water and wine and rank it. He remembered coming home from work on a Monday and he felt very sick. When he got there he remembered seeing Constable Boyd and he remembered [illegible] him something to drink in a cup, but for two days after that he was unconscience and did not know what happened. He did not remember Detective Newhall coming to him at that time.

Had Grievances.

Witness admitted that he had grievances against certain members of the Police Force.

He admitted that Archie Moore was the man who suggested that he come to the investigation. He told him that if he wanted to get even with the police now was his chance.

Faux told of Stewart coming to his home urging him to come to the investigation. Stewart told the witness that if he did not come to the investigation he would have to go to jail and that was the reason why he was there.

On questioning he swore that he could not remember Dunford coming to see Johnston in the jail while both he and Johnston were there.

He admitted having talked over the matter of Johnston's escape with Dunford since he got out of jail.

On cross-examination by Mr. O'Connell witness stated that Moore mentioned the Boyd statement to him before he told it to Moore. He could not explain how Moore found out about it because he could not remember having said anything about it to anyone.

Mr. O'Connell became disgusted at the uncertainty of the evidence of the witness and broke off his cross-examination, declaring he didn't believe the witness.

Ray's Evidence.

Mr. Ray was the next witness and swore that Boyd's name had never been mentioned to him in connection with Johnston's escape. There had been something said between him and Faux of the suggestion of Johnston's escape but it was said long after Johnston had been taken away. There had been no mention of the police being connected with his escape.

P. C. Boyd was the next witness and declared the statement of Faux was a lie. He produced hi sdaily report, which showed that he had not been to the jail on the morning of the day of Johnston's trial but had been there about 3.15 in the afternoon.

He told of arresting Faux on the charge of selling the liquor which eventually killed Burgoine.

Liquor Taken to Hospital.

Ed. Cooney was called as the next witness and produced his discharge papers which showed that was discharged on Dec 21st, 1916.

He told of being home around Christmas, 1915, on sick leave. It was at this time that he took the case of liquor from the police station to St Joseph's Hospital.

Mr. John Foster, an expressman of the city, was the next witness and told of Newhall coming to him and asking him if he drew a couple of cases of liquor to the House of Providence. He replied to Newhall that he had not taken them and did not know who did. He supposed New-

Campaign Notes

Mr. C. J. Seymour has been placed in charge of Mr. Soden's committee rooms at 176 Simcoe street. The work of organisation is being pushed and Mr. Soden is receiving cheering messages from all parts of the riding.

The following list of meetings has already been arranged, and at these gatherings Mr. Soden and other speakers will discuss all the issues of the day:

Friday, Oct. 10—Bridgenorth.
Monday, Oct. 13—Young's Point.
Tuesday, Oct. 14—Hall's Bridge.
Wednesday, Oct. 1g — Ventress School House.
Thursday, Oct. 16—Ennismore.
Friday, Oct. 17 — May's School House.
Friday, Oct. 17—Town Hall. N. Monaghan.

Mr. T. Tooms, candidate of the Independent Labor party, and Mr. Alex Morrison, member of the executive committee, started out in an auto this morning to tour the townships in the riding for the purpose of arranging for meetings and getting acquainted with the voters.

Mr. Gillespie expected to attend the fair at the Indian village this afternoon, but the rain interfered with his arrangements.

IN CANCUS ON PROHIBITION

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, Oct. 9. — Unionist members of the house went into caucus this morning on prohibition and railway bills, and were still in discussion on these measures at 1 o'clock. It is understood the constitutional aspects on prohibition measures were taken up, and many members questioned the right of the Dominion Government to delegate these powers to the provinces.

About 2 o'clock, with the conference still proceeding among Ontario members, many members and senators from other provinces left the caucus room. No official statement is yet available.

TURK NATIONALIST GOVT.

Proclaimed at Konieh by Mustapha Kemal, Who is Entrenched

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Oct. 9.—Word is received here that Mustapha Kemal, Turkish Nationalist leader, has proclaimed a Turkish Nationalist Government at Konieh, where he is entrenched with three hundred thousand men.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1919.

THEN SUPPORT HEARST.

(Toronto Star, Liberal.)

THE PEOPLE who believe in prohibition want it. In order that they may have it they want a Prime Minister who believes in it and wants it. Only in that way can they be sure of a Government that will give it to them, enforce it, and consent to nothing that will undermine it.

MR. GILLESPIE'S PLATFORM.

MR. G. A. GILLESPIE, in his address to the electors of West Peterborough, sets out by frankly admitting that he is the nominee of the Liberal party. Then he somewhat paregorically adds that on the temperance issue he stands ready to support any Government that may be elected in order to carry ont the will of the people.

Mr. Gillespie's profession of independence will not satisfy te public. There is no getting away from the fact that he is the choice of a party, and of the hard-shell members of that organization. His election in West Peterborough might mean the Premiership for Hartley Dewart, as, on the final reckoning, Mr. Gillespie would be counted with the Liberals. That fact is the best of reasons why the electors should vote not for Mr. Gillespie, but for Mr. Soden.

It is not on the temperance question alone that Mr. Gillespie is at odds with the leader whom he is expected to support. The Liberal nominee speaks of his own war record. Every one knows that during the war Mr. Gillespie worked in the interests of the soldiers and that he supported the Union Government two years ago, a course exactly the reverse of that followed by Mr. Dewart.

Mr. Gillespie in his address devotes considerable space to the subject of education. He believes that the opportunities for the farmers in this respect should be extended.

The Agricultural College at Guelph enjoys the reputation of being one of the best institutions of the kind on the American continent, a place where the sons of farmers can receive an excellent education in their profession. The college is well patronised and the results of its teachings are manifest in every part of Ontario where its graduated are situated. There has been progress in every profession and trade during the past twenty years, working conditions are better, but in no line has there been greater advancement than in the agricultural industry.

Why, as Mr. Gillespie suggests, should there be one system of education in the city and another in the country? The modern educationists aim to give equal opportunities to all. Whether people live in the townships or in the city their early education should be along the same lines. If later they decide to choose a profession, there are institutions for their training. If they elect to become farmers, education in the higher branches of that calling are available.

The son of a farmer has as much right to free choice of calling as has the son of any resident in the city. He should not be coerced into remaining on the land any more than the son of a carpenter or a shoemaker should be expected to take up his father's trade. To specialize in agricultural training in the rural schools would simply tend to narrow the opportunities of the pupils for future effort. The right of selection in such an important matter as the choice of life's work must not be denied any individual.

Mr. Gillespie says he is in favor of improved highways. The good roads policy of the Hearst administration is regarded as the best ever promulgated by any individual. The strength of that policy lies in the fact that its adoption is optional with the various municipalities. Its popularity is demonstrated by the further fact that it has been adopted in every county in Ontario except Peterborough, and is working out satisfactorily everywhere. If the roads in this riding are not up to date, it is certain that the Hearst Administration cannot be held responsible.

There is nothing to be gained by dragging purely Federal issues into this campaign. Measures for aiding the returned soldiers must be taken by the Dominion Government, and the various provincial legislatures can do but little in this direction.

LIBERAL JUGGLING.

THE GLOBE asserts—and the Examiner echoes—that the only true friends of temperance are to be found in the Liberal party of Ontario. It is an easy task to show that on this issue the record of the party is shady. If not, how does it happen that the party in convention last summer elected as leader a man who is personally opposed to prohibition and who for that very reason was elected a member of the Legislature?

WHEN VIRTUE WAS A POLITICAL NECESSITY.

THE EXAMINER does not believe that any Liberal prohibitonist should support a Hearst candidate in the coming election. Then it parrots the assertion of the Globe to the effect that Liberal members of the Legislature fought for the abolition of the bars while they were in a minority in the Legislature.

In the annals of the political history of Ontario the action of the Liberals here referred to will always stand out as an example of making a political virtue of what was a grim necessity. Thirty-two years in power, the Liberals did nothing to advance the cause of temperance, but made the liquor trade an adjunct of their administration. They went into the campaign of 1911 with Mr. Rowell as leader. He enjoyed the reputation of a temperance worker, but he faced the people on that occasion without making any promises as to his future course on this question. All of the Liberal candidates in Ontario were warned from headquarters that the temperance question was loaded, that it was dangerous as part of a candidate's outfit, and were advised to leave it severely alone. Campaign speakers also were instructed to follow the same course. If Mr. Rowell had been made Premier in 1911, the abolish-the-bar policy would never have seen the light of day.

But Mr. Rowell went to the Legislature with a scant and feeble following. He had not a plank on which to stand. His temperance policy was the final resort of a broken and discredited party reduced to the last ebb of necessity.

But the public had no faith in the pledges of the Liberals. The temperance record of the party was against them. That was demonstrated in 1914 when Mr. Rowell in the election of that year fared no better than he did in 1911.

The temperance people of Ontario had no faith in the Liberals five years ago. They have as little today, less in fact, because Premier Hearst has demonstrated his willingness to give the temperance people what they want regardless of consequences to himself. That courageous action now deserves reward.

LET SODEN BE THE CHOICE.

SOME OF THE WOMEN who will exercise the franchise for the first time in the coming election have asked The Review if they can vote for a candidate as well as for the referendum. All doubts on this point should be cleared up at once.

The women of Ontario can vote on exactly the same terms as the men. Not only can they declare themselves on the referendum, but can vote for any of the three candidates in the running. And the women should remember that it is their duty as well as their right to vote for a candidate. It would avail little in the interests of temperance to vote four "noes" on the referendum ballot unless this step is followed up by a vote in favor of the Premier who will give the referendum vote effect.

It is believed that a majority of the new women voters of Peterborough are in favor of total prohibition, and will so vote. If the Ontario Temperance Act is sustained, the measure will be safe if its final disposition is entrusted to Premier Hearst. He has proved himself in this regard. He is not reduced to the necessity of relying on promises, but has honorable and courageous performance to his credit.

There is only one way in which the voters of the city, men and women, can show their appreciation of the high services of Premier Hearst, only one way in which they can assure safety for prohibition, and that is by voting for R. J. Soden for the Legislature. To adopt any other course is simply to take a chance on the paramount issue now before the people. A vote for Mr. Soden means a vote for Premier Hearst. A vote for Mr. Gillespie mesns a vote for Hartley Dewart.

Let the tempearnce voters of West Peterborough contrast the two leaders. Premier Hearst is personally in favor of prohibition and will vote on the referendum in support of the Act which he created. Hartley Dewart refuses, with political guile, to declare his personal sentiments. The reason for this is obvious. The faction to whom he owes his present position know where he stands. If he openly espoused their cause, if he stated publicly that he would vote against the Act, he would forfeit his last chance to secure any support whatever from the temperance forces.

TAG DAY FOR THE CHILDREN.

NOTHING MORE than the mere mention of the fact that a tag day will be held Saturday to raise funds for the support of the Children's Aid Shelter should be necessary to secure the co-operation of the public in this splended work. The interests of the society are safeguarded by some of the best citizens in Peterborough who cheerfully devote their services. Mr. George W. Powell, the agent, is the one man for the position, thoroughly alive to the importance of his duties and of his responsibilities. The society has to a great extent to rely upon the generosity of the public, and one of the means adopted to raise the necessary funds is to hold an annual tag day.

Every unfortunate child cared for by the society is given the chance to develop into a useful citizen. Every child is an asset to the nation. Caring for the unfortunate is one of the first duties, one of the highest privileges, of humanity.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

THE ELECTION of Mr. Gillespie might make Martley Dewart Premier of Ontario.

* * * * * *

DON'T TRUST the Premiership of the Province to Mr. Dewart. The risk is too great.

* * * * * *

MR. GILLESPIE as representative could do little for temperance if Mr. Dewart were Premier.

* * * * * *

THERE IS no politics, or should be none, in the temperance issue. It is a plain question of public welfare.

* * * * * *

THE REPORT that the five-cent cigar is coming back synchronizes with the official report of an abundant cabbage crop.

* * * * * *

THE STAR and the Globe were on the winning side in 1917, even if they did renounce their party. History is repeating itself.

* * * * * *

THE WOMEN of Ontario have for years been praying for prohibition. Now, thanks to a progressive Government, they have a chance to vote for it.

* * * * * *

TAKE NO CHANCES. Vote "no" four times on the referendum, and then secure the safety of the Act by supporting a Hearst candidate.

* * * * * *

WOMEN VOTED in the election of 1917 and were none the worse for aiding in a worthy cause. Their opportunity on October 20 is wider than ever.

* * * * * *

IF YOU WANT prohibition, support Premier Hearst, the man who first gave it to the Province. The only way in which you can do this is to vote for Mr. Soden.

Easy To Quit Smoking If You Only Try

(By One Who Tried)

"Quit smoking," said the doctor. "It's ruining your digestion and breaking down your nerves. Furthermore, it's numbing your brain. Anybody that knows you can see that."

So I quit smoking.

For the first day or two it was easy. Furthermore, I had a glow of pride in being able to quit. Besides it saved money, and saving money in these days is well worth doing.

I quit on Monday. Thursday when I went down to work I sniffed a pleasant aroma of tobacco in the air. A man just ahead of me was lighting a long chocolate colored cigar.

"Pooh!" I said to myself. "Poor devil. He little knows that his nerves are cracking and his brain becoming numb. No doubt he'd be a success if he didn't smoke.

I glanced at him as he passed. He was the man who lived in the house on the corner.

At the office that day something was the matter. I couldn't concentrate. I fidgeted about in my chair for an hour without being able to do anything.

"Why don't you light your pipe?" said the man at the next desk. "You act kind of dippy this morning."

"I've quit smoking," I replied. "It numbs the brain. Anybody who knows you can see that."

"You must have smoked since infancy," he snapped, and went back to his work, with a savage growl that indicated complete displeasure.

There was a lot of letters to write—important letters—and I couldn't write them.

Just as I'd get started with "Dear Sir" the fiend ot the next desk would breathe a cloud of flagrant smoke, and I'd have to stop and grit my teeth. My pipe and tobacco were still on my desk. I took them both and threw them into the waste basket.

I got up and walked about the room. It didn't help any. I looked out of the window. Every second man on the street was smoking a cigar or a cigarette or a pipe. I never saw so many men smoking.

"Poor saps," I muttered. They don't know any better."

At noon I went to lunch. The man across the table had the effrontery to light a big black cigar when he finished his meal. I could have killed him. But instead I took it out in pitying him. He would learn—when it was too late. The poor deluded fool to be endangering his health that way!

When I reached my desk again the office boy came in.

"A man to see you," he said.

"Is he smoking?"

"Yep."

"Tell him I'm out."

"But he knows you're in."

"Tell him I'm busy."

"But he has an important business engagement with you."

"Tell him what I told you to tell him, do you hear?"

"But he's Mr.——"

"I don't care who he is. Tell him to get out, and get out yourself."

The boy got out. Presently the visitor called me up on the telephone and briefly but energetically told me what he thought of me, which was not much. However, it couldn't be helped.

I fooled uselessly around the office all the afternoon and went home early. Nothing accomplished, nothing done had left my night's repose unearned. I wasn't due to get any repose anyway.

"Tired, dear?" said the head of the family.

"No, I'm not tired."

"Headache?"

"No."

"Well what is the matter?"

"Nothing is the matter. Can't you give me a little peace?"

"I'm so glad you've quit smoking You look so much better."

I went upstairs.

There was nothing the matter with my appetite. I ate a big dinner. But that made me want to smoke all the more, as good dinners always do.

Somebody once told me that chewing on a stick would abate the desire to smoke. I got a stick and chewed it to atoms. I wanted to smoke more than ever. In an hour I had chewed up all the sticks I could find, and my throat was full of slivers.

I went out and took a walk. The town looked dingy and disagreeable. Furthermore every one I met seemed to be smoking. I looked in at a window. The lady of the house and two guests were puffing cigarettes. A cat crossed my path. I kicked it, or rather at it, although never before have I been cruel to a dumb creature.

I went to bed as soon as I got home Soon I found myself chewing the coverlet. But it had no particular taste, so I got up and found a box of cough drops. I disposed of the lot. In an hour I was very ill and remained ill the rest of the night.

In the morning I said uncalled for and unfair things about breakfast. I also referred to the cook, so acidly that she gave me a very singular piece of her mind and quit.

My wife was in tears when I left, but I didn't care.

On the corner I met my next door neighbor.

"Have a cigar?" he inquired, extending a bad one.

"Sure," I said, and lighted it.

It tasted like nectar. I smoked five of my favorite sort that morning, and did three day's work. It was the best day I ever knew.

My brain is probably numb, my nerves shattered and my digestion ruined, but I don't care. I can smoke when I want to, anyway.

A COMEDY OF ERRORS

He looks for a gas leak with a match; and found it.

He lighted a match to see if his gasoline tanks was empty. It was not.

He smoked while filling his auto tank, but will do so no more.

He smoked in bed, so did the bed clothes.

He threw matches into the waste paper basket. He is wiser now.

He threw a cigarette stub into some rubbish, it went on burning.

He saved his oily waste and rags and they destroyed his shop.

He washed his hands in gasoline near the stove. The nurse washes them now.

He allowed dangerous conditions to remain because "he never had a fire." He no longer boasts of that record.

He did not worry about fire because he had "plenty of insurance," but he forgot the safety of his wife and children.

He used a torch to thaw out frozen water pipes and set the house on fire.

She cleaned her gloves with gasoline and saved fifteen cents, but paid the doctor and druggist fifteen dollars.

She poured coal oil on a sluggish fire to brighten it. It did.

She poured coal oil into the lamp while the wick was burning.

She put gasoline into the wash boiler on the stove to make washing easier. She did no more washing that week.

She dried clothes too near the stove.

She used the wrong oil can.

She used the woodbox back of the range as a waste paper receptacle.

She gave matches to her children to go out and burn leaves in the yard. The cotton dresses burned easier than the leaves.

She looked for a dress in the clothes closet with a candle.

She was "coming right back," so left the electric curren on her iron.

She swung the gas bracket too close to the curtains.

She fixed up a fine tissue paper made shade for the lamp.

She filled the tank of her gasoline stove while one burner was on.

The comedies were turned to tragedies, the scenes of action are in ashes, and many of the actors are maimed or everlastingly asleep. Others continue to follow their example and over 250 persons are annually burnt to death in Canada.

The Prince of Wales

A large photo of the popular heir to the throne for all Daily and Weekly Review readers.

The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal have secured the exclusive rights for all Canada for a real good photo, 16 x 22 inches, of the Prince of Wales. It is by VanDyke, the celebrated London (England) photographer, taken on the eve of the Prince's departure for Canada.

The Daily and Weekly Review have made arrangements with the Family Herald and Weekly Star, whereby we are permitted to include the Prince's photo in a clubbing offer.

We now make the following offer, good until December 31st, 1919:

THE Family Herald and Weekly Star one year, $1.25 The Daily Review one year, $3.00. The Weekly Review one year, $1.50.

We offer both papers for one year each, and an autographed copy of the Prince of Wales' portrait, 16 x 22 inches, all for—Daily Review $4.25, Weekly Review, $2.25.

All orders to be sent to this office.

CINCINNATI WINS

Weaver came over fast, getting Kopf's grounder and throwing to Gandil for the put-out. Neale, thinking the ball had been touched before it rolled foul, stayed on first base and the crowd booed him. He resumed his place in the batters box and fouled the next ball. He then drew his fourth ball and walked. Rariden up. Neale was caught stealing, Schalk to E. Collins.

No runs. No hits. No errors.

Chicago—E. Collins line flies to Duncan. It was a hard hit drive but almost directly into the hands of the the Red left fielder. Weaver hoisted a high fly that Rath made a circus catch of, going back and barely getting it. Jackson put one into the right field bleachers for a home run. It was the longest hit made during the series at this park. Neale, who was playing deep, backed up to the fence and waited for the ball to go over his head. Felsch up. Kopf took Felsch's grounder and tossed to Daubert for the third out.

One run. One hit. No errors.

The crowd gave Jackson a big hand as he took his place in left field.

Fourth Inning.

Cincinnati—Rariden hit into Gandil's hands for the first out. Eller was hit by a first pitched ball and trotted to first. Rath attempted to sacrifice but the ball rolled foul. Rath singled to second base, Risberg managing to stop it but could not recover it in time efor a put-out. Eller took second. Daubert singled to centre and Eller was caught at the plate when Liebold made a wonderful throw to Schalk. Rath reaching third and Daubert going to second on the throw-in. Groh popped out to E. Collins.

No runs. Two hits. No errors.

Chicago—Gandil hoisted to Neale, who caught the ball in right centre while on a full run. Risberg struck out, the last strike being called on him. Schalk up. Groh gathered in Schalk's grounder and threw him out at first.

No runs. No hits. No errors.

Fifth Innings.

Cincinnati—Rousch up. E. Collins got Rousch's grounder and threw to Gandil for a put out. Duncan flied to E. Collins. Kopf tripled to right, the ball going over first base and reaching the extreme right field corner before Felsch retrieved it. Neale singled between third and short and Kopf scored. Rariden examined the ball and then threw it back to James. Neale stole second. Schalk's throw was a little to the left of the bag. James almost caught Neale with a quick throw to second. Risberg threw Rariden out at first.

One run. Two hits. No errors.

Chicago—James fouled one that hit his foot and bounced on fair ground. The umpire called it foul. James struck out. Liebold up. Kopf made a great stop of Liebold's grass cutter and got the ball over to first ahead of the runner. E. Collins up. Kopf also took E. Collins' grounder and thre wto first for the put-out.

No runs No hits. No errors.

James pulled out. Wilkinson now pitching.

Sixth Inning.

Cincinnati—Eller singled through the box. Rath up. Every Cincinnati player has now made at least one hit. James got Rath in the three and two hole and then walked him by pitching one wide. This finished James and he was ordered from the box by Manager Gleason, Wilkinson relieving him. Wilkinson's first offering to Daubert was extremely high, but Schalk held onto it. Daubert attempted to sacrifice but fouled it. Daubert bunted in front of the plate and Schalk threw wild to catch Eller at third, Eller reaching there safely. Rath taking second and Daubert first. Groh fanned, striking at the final one. Rousch struck so hard that the bat flew out of his hands and went almost to first base. Rousch singled over E. Collins' head, bringing home Eller and Rath and putting Daubert on third. The infield was playing in for the hit and the ball took a high bound just out of reach of Collins. Duncan singled to right, scoring Daubert and putting Rousch on third. Duncan took second on the throw in. Kopf walked, filling the bases again. Neale fouled off the first one into the grandstand. Neale forced Rousch at the plate when Weaver grabbed his drive and threw to Schalk. Rariden up. Kopf was caught off second by a snap throw, Schalk to Risberg.

Three runs. Three hits. One error.

All nine men on the Cincinnati team faced the pitchers in this inning.

Chicago—Weaver singled over first, the ball taking a nasty bound and hitting Daubert on the shins. Jackson hoisted a long fly that Rousch got. Rousch was playing extremely deep. Rousch also took care of Felsch's high fly. Gandil up. Neale camped under Gandil's fly and captured it.

No runs. One hit. No errors.

Seventh Inning.

Cincinnati—Rariden up. Felsch took Rariden's fly, the latter hitting at the first ball pitched. Eller struck out, striking at but missing the third one. Rath walked. Rath stole second, getting off to a good lead and beating the throw. Daubert also walked. Wilkinson was wild at this juncture. Groh hoisted to Liebold for the third out.

No runs. No hits. No errors.

Chicago—Risberg hoisted one to Rath in short right centre. Schalk lifted a high foul that Rariden got under and caught. Wilkinson struck out.

No runs. No hits. No errors.

Eller appeared to be growing stronger as the game progressed.

UNABLE TO WORK FOR FIVE MONTHS

Toronto Man Had Given Up Hope of Ever Getting Well—Tanlac Restores Him.

"My wonderful improvement since taking Tanlac has astonished many persons who knew how sick I was before," said W. M. Haston, of 6 Cavell Street, Toronto, Ont.

"I had suffered from stomach trouble for seven or eight years," he continued, "and couldn't get a thing to relieve me. My apetite failed, nothing agreed with me and gas would form on my stomach and bloat me terribly. My heart would palpitate so I could hardly get my breath, and finally I got so bad off that I had to quit working. I fell off considerably in weight and felt that my case was hopeless."

"Since taking Tanlac I feel like a new man. I have gained eight pounds, my apetite is just fine, and I eat three big meals every day, and haven't a sign of indigestion. A few bottles of Tanlac have done me more good than everything else I have ever taken put together, and I never miss a day from my work now. I am glad to recommend Tanlac, for it certainly fixed me up all right."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, by G. Pringle & Son.

Eighth Inning.

Cincinnati—Rousch was hit by the second ball pitched and walked to first. Wilkinson claimed he was not hit but the claim was disallowed. Duncan sacrificed, Wilkinson to Gandil. Kopf hoisted a foul to Weaver. Neale walked, after getting Wilkinson in the three and two hole, he drew another wide one and walked. Rariden singled to left and Rousch second. Neale reaching third and Rariden second on Jackson's throw to the plate. Eller up. Risberg threw out Eller at first, making a pretty throw from deep short.

One run. One hit. No errors.

Chicago—Leibold arched a fly to Neale in deep right. E. Collins singled through the pitcher's box, Rousch retrieving it. Weaver doubled to the right field box seats, putting E. Collins on third. Jackson up. The outfield again moved back for Jackson. Jackson doubled to right, scoring E. Collins and Weaver. It was a hard line drive. Felsch popped an easy one to Daubert and Jackson held second. Gandil tripled to right field, Jackson scoring. Neale lost the ball in the sun and it landed fully thirty feet away from him. He did not locate it until it hit the ground. Risberg up. Rousch fumbled Risberg's fly, Gandil trotting across the plate. Rousch wavered when the ball got into the sun but finally got to it and then made a fumble. Schalk up. Rath tossed out Schalk at first.

Four runs. Four hits. One error.

Ninth Inning.

Cincinnati—Rath singled over second, Risberg managing to knock down his grounder but could not get it to first in time. Daubert sacrificed, Wilkinson to Gandil, Rath taking second. Groh hoisted to Liebold Rath holding second. Rousch up. Weaver threw out Rousch, Gandil taking the throw.

No runs. One hit. No errors.

Chicago—Ninth innings 2nd half Murphy batted for Wilkinson. Murphy was hit by the third pitched ball and walked to first, the crowd was in an uproar. Liebold up Rousch made a circus catch of Liebold's fly, barely getting to it and turning a somersault holding the ball. Murphy held at first. E. Collins singled to centre, Murphy going to second. Weaver up. The umpire again examined the ball and tossed it back to Eller. Neale grabbed Weaver's fly but Murphy made third after the catch. E. Collins held on first. Jackson up. E. Collins stole second. Rath threw out Jackson at first.

No runs. One hit. No errors.

35,000 LONGSHOREMEN ON STRIKE IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 9.—The placing of an absolute embargo on New York freight for trans-Atlantic shipping loomed up as a possibility today as the longshoremen's strike entered its third day, apparently spreading rapidly.

Thirty-five thousand longshoremen have quit work, and the number may grow to 60,000.

The strikers are demanding $1.00 an hour and $1.50 for overtime, having refused an award by the national adjustment commission of 75 cents an hour with $1 for overtime. The I. W. W. is behind the strike.

WOULD IMPAIR THE CREDIT OF CANADA

TO GRANT SOLDIERS' GRATUITIES OF $2,000 SAYS SIR THOMAS WHITE

Ottawa, Oct. 9.—A further statement of the difficulties facing the Government which make the payment of $200,000,000 or more in gratuities a difficult matter for the Administration to face was placed before the Special Committee on Soldiers' Civil Reestablishment, by Sir Thomas White, former Minister of Finance.

The former Minister of Finance called attention to the very heavy expenditures which the Government was called upon to face from the forthcoming Victory Loan. Without any new debts being incurred, the major portion of this loan would be taken up in bank debt and other obligations.

"Canada's financial position," he said, "while it should not be called critical, is still sufficiently serious, because of five years' war expenditure, to call for most careful consideration. The policy of all the nations which were belligerents will be toward retrenchment for the next few years."

WANTED 25 USED UPRIGHT PIANOS

Have You a Piano In Your Home That is Silent Too Much of The Time?

Then sell it to us. We will pay cash for it at a reasonable valuation, based upon the date of its manufacture and its condition. Or if you prefer, you may accept the figure as so much cash to apply towards the purchase of a Player-Piano, or an Edison Diamond Disc. Hundreds of good pianos are silent because the one member of the family that plays is not at home. A modern Player-Piano in its place would bring new life into the home, as it can be played by any member, old or young, who can reach the pedal from a bench.

For dance music, song accompaniment or any kind of piano music, one of our Player-Pianos will bring countless new pleasures into the family circle.

THE SONG ROLLS

There is a great deal of pleasure to be found in playing and singing our new song rolls, with both words and music. There is an extensive selection of the latest popular and standard songs, and any one can play the accompaniments for themselves or others to sing.

OUR OFFER AND TERMS

Come in and tell us what instrument you have that you are not getting full service from. Our representative will go and see it and place a cash valuation upon it. You may then accept this if it satisfies you, or, if you wish to replace your silent piano with one that will give you music at the wish of any member of the family, or a Diamond Disc Edison Phonograph that will give perfect re-creation of every class of music, the amount can be applied toward the purchase of your selection of the new instrument. The balance, if any, can be arranged on convenient terms to suit you, and make the EXCHANGE AT ONCE, as we are anxious to secure at least 25 USED UPRIGHT PIANOS to fill an immediate need.

If you are unable to come to our store, do not delay investigating this opportunity. Fill in the coupon below, mail it to us, and it will receive prompt attention.

WIDE POWERS IN AUSTRALIAN BILL

PROVIDES FOR CONTROL OF COMBINES AND SUPERVISION ON LABOR PRODUCTION

Melbourne, Oct. 8.— In the House of Representatives today Premier Hughes moved a constitution amendment bill which proposes to give the Commonwealth power to deal with all industrial matters, whether affecting one or more states, to control combines, trusts and monopolies and also to make arrangements regarding the production manufacture and supply of goods.

If accepted by a referendum these alterations will be effective for three years. They must be endorsed by a Commonwealth convention before the end of 1920, otherwise they will lapse.

The Laborites objected to the proposal to limit the period of the constitutional alterations to three years. Mr. Tudor will today submit a motion for deletion of the time limit, and will move another in favor of putting railway employes under the Commonwealth Arbitration Act.

BELGIAN KING DRIVES AN ENGINE

RAN LOCOMOTIVE OF HIS OWN TRAIN FOR TEN MILES WITHOUT A JOLT

Chicago, Oct. 8.— The King of the Belgians today ran the engine of his own train for ten miles. The special train on which the king and his party are traveling westward was stopped at Wauseon, Ohio, while his majesty climbed into the cab of the engine and took over the throttle from the grimy pilot. The king, who has a thorough knowledge of locomotive engineering ran the heavy train for ten miles without a jolt. Then he stopped the engine and returned to his car.

The King travelling unofficially with his queen and the Duke of Brant, passed through Ohio and Indiana, today en route to California. The train was stopped for an hour at Toledo, the home of Brand Whitlock, American ambassador to Belgium, where the party received an enthusiastic welcome. The stop was made by the king as a personal friend of Mr Whitlock and not as an official visit.

The royal train arrived in Chicago late last night. It immediately was switched on another road and resumed its journey.

TEMPERANCE BILLS BEFORE COMMONS

PROVINCES TO HAVE FULL POWER TO DEAL WITH TRAFFIC

Ottawa, Oct. 8.—Two bills which set forth the policy of the Dominion Government with respect to the prohibition of the importation, transportation and manufacture of alcoholic beverages were introduced in the House of Commons by Hon. C. J. Doherty. Briefly, the policy adopted is to permit the provinces to decide for themselves the measure of prohibition they desire and to provide means whereby they may obtain what they want. By one bill a method is provided whereby the people of any province may declare by their votes to a plebiscite whether or not they wish to stop altogether the manufacture of liquor within their borders and to prevent importation of it into their respective territories. This measure, an amendment to the Canada Temperance Act, or, as it is commonly called, the Scott Act, may be put into operation by a resolution of a provincial Legislature. Acting upon such a resolution the Dominion Government will take a plebiscite in the province, and if the majority of the people call for "bone dry" prohibition, will issue a proclamation forbidding the manufacture of liquor in the province or its importation into the province. The other bill extends the provisions of the Act in aid of provincial prohibitory legislation known as the Doherty Act, to enable a province by legislation to prevent the manufacture within its borders of liquor to be used in violation of its laws. At present the Doherty Act enables the provinces to deal with importations of liquor into their territory for illegal purposes. The new bills do not repeal the order-in-Council passed under the authority of the War Measures Act and prohibiting manufacture, importation and transportation of liquor in Canada. That order, according to its terms, is to remain in operation for a year from the proclamation of peace. The War Measures Act, however, becomes inoperative immediately the return of peace is proclaimed. It has been contended therefore that the order-in-Council would cease to be valid when the peace proclamation was issued.

CONSERVATION

is of more importance to the country today than ever.

Do Manufacturers Realise

the necessity of better Fire Protection? Do they realize

WHAT FIRE PREVENTION MEANS?

Fires during 1918 in Industrial Plants numbered only 486 or 5% of the total number for the year; but these 486 fires caused a loss of $7,865,322 or 48% of the total Fire Waste of the Province.

Cleanliness, Order and Forethought are important factors towards reducing this preventable waste. Manufacturers should provide better and more systematic Inspection and Watchman Service.

More efficient fire fighting equipment—Chemical Fire Extinguishers and Automatic Sprinklers. In 15,000 fires, tabulated by the N. F. P. A., Boston, where Automatic Sprinklers were installed, 85% were put out by one Sprinkler Head.

FORBID ALIENS TO CARRY FIREARMS

GOVERNMENT ALSO EXTENDS THE TIME FOR IMPORTATION OF OLEOMARGARINE

Ottawa, Oct. 8. — After much debate the Minister of Justice succeeded in getting through an amendment to the Criminal Code forbidding aliens to carry firearms or other dangerous weapons without a license.

Many Opposition members sprang to the defense of the alien on the ground that he has as much right to tote a gun as any british citizen.

An amendment, moved by S. W. Jacobs of Montreal, putting the foreigners on the same footing as British subjects was defeated by 65 to 34. Jos. Archambault of Chambly-Vercheres and the cross-benchers voted with the Government.

The farmers in the House jumped with both feet on a bill to extend the time during which oleomargarin may be manufactured in or imported into Canada. Donald Sutherland, the arch-champion of Ontario's agriculturists, demanded a vote, and in a slim House was defeated by 22 to 15.

DIVORCE HABIT GROWS

Poor Avail Themselves of Low Rates In London, England.

London, Oct. 8. — The number of divorce cases set for hearing in London in 1914 was 2,533; in 1918, 4,113; and at the present rate of going the total for 1919 will be else to 6,000. The increase is mainly due to the new law under which "poor men's divorces" are made possible by a low rate of fees, these fees having heretofore been prohibitive for all except the well-to-do. The vast bulk of these are directly attributable to the war, but there are evidences of a growth of the divorce habit which hardly makes it probable that the pre-war figures will ever again be touched.

SUMMER TIME ON THE EAST COAST

WATER IN ATLANTIC OCEAN WOULD BOIL AN EGG.

Norfolk, Oc. 8. — Marine men blame the Gulf Stream for the summer weather now prevailing along the Atlantic Coast. They say it is almost boiling. In Norfolk today the temperature was 86; 100 miles out to sea it was 101.

Marine men say it is almost unbearable to remain on deck during the day. Water dipped from the stream is almost warm enough to poach an egg. It bubbles like water just on the point of boiling.

Reports that the stream was ten miles nearer the coast last week than it was in July have also been brought in. This is given as the reason why the weather is so hot along the coast. In Lynchburg Friday the temperature reached 94 degrees, the hottest on record since 1874.

BOMB THROWN ON STEEL PLANT

ATTEMPT TO WRECK PREMISES OF AMERICAN SHEET AND TIN PLATE PROPERTY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Pittsburg, Oct. 8.—An attempt was made to wreck the plant of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Co. at McKeesport early today, when a missile believed to have been a bomb was thrown in the shipping department. It exploded, tearing a large hole in the roof of the structure. No one was injured.

CONTRADICTORY

afraid to go into the box because of a threat Dunford made to him the night before the trial. Dunford came to him and told him that if he should contradict anything he (Dunford) would say he would give evidence which would bring a fine of $500 up on himself, his sister and his borther in law. Dunford also stated that he had Joe Stewart behind him which would make it possible. Therefore to save his sister and brother-in-law, who were not even aware of the presence of the liquor on the premises, Sullivan refused to give evidence against Dunford.

Convicted by Newhall.

On cross-examination by Mr. Hall, the witness admitted having received a $100 fine on the information laid by Detective Newhall. It was a charge of allowing gambling in his pool room, but the case was appealed and his fine returned to him. Nevertheless, as pointed out by Mr. Hall, and agreed to by the witness, the showed that he was not on very friendly terms with Detective Newhall. The witness made the astonishing statement that it cost him $6 to get his $100 fine back.

James Akey, Witness.

The next witness called was James Akey, the owner of a livery business on Charlotte street. He swore that he had never heard of any attempt to go and steal some whiskey at Archie Moore's house.

Witness denied emphatically that he had had any scheme with Sergt. Blade had never talked about liquor liquor out of Stewart's office. Sergt. Blade had never talekd about liquor to him, according to his evidence.

Speaking of his trip in search of liquor which was supposed to have been hid while on its way from Indian River, the witness frankly admitted having gone on that expedition. Someone, he thought it was Dunford, had come and asked him to go out and search for some liquor which had been lost. He went on account of the fun of the thing and the time they would have if they got the liquor.

Two Trips.

They had made two trips, one out the Keene road and later on out the Warsaw road. On neither trip had they found any liquor and he had never heard of the liquor or what became of it since.

Mr. Akey swore that he had never met Detective Newhall at a furniture store on George street and that he knows of no liquor case in which either of these men had any connection.

Where Was This Liquor.

Witness was asked if he ever heard any mention of liquor being at Archie Moore's house and he replied that he had. He had heard that some was under his bed, some was under the stove and that he slept on some.

He swore he had never heard of any plot or scheme of stealing liquor from the High County Constable's residence during the time that the constable was away to the north country. As far as he knew there had never been any such scheme on foot.

"Did you ever go to Mr. Stewart's office with Sergt. Blade for the purpose of getting some confiscated liquor?"

"This is the first time I ever heard of it," replied Mr. Akey. "If Dunford states I told him I did, then he is lying.

When asked if Blade's name had ever been mentioned to him in connection with liquor, he replied that it had. "One day Mr. Stewart came to my yard and told me that he had heard that Blade was connected with getting in whiskey. "He told me that he would make it worth my while if I caught Blade and informed him out it. I replied to Mr. Stewart," stated the witness, "I'll get him."

His explanation of this statement was that he was just putting off Mr. Stewart.

No Liquor Dealings With Sullivan.

He swore that no question of liquor had ever been mentioned to him by Sullivan.

In connection with the plot to free Johnston from jail, Mr. Akey declared emphatically that he had never heard of it. In fact, he did not know Johnston, and as never seen him as far as he knew.

Bert Howden Next Witness.

Bert Howden was the next witness.

"Do you remember telling Mr. Stewart that Hamilton was being tipped off by the police of his (Stewart's) approach?"

"I do not remember telling Stewart anything like that, and if I did it was while I was intoxicated and did not know what I was saying."

"Hamilton would never sell me whiskey although I have drunk some of my own on his premises."

"Did you ever drink with Mr. Stewart out in the country?"

"I did some time ago."

"Did you ever have any liquor with you on those occasions?"

"I never had it in a bottle although I may have had some in mystomach."

Charge Against Boyd.

The next witness called was Emmett Franx, who received a six month's sentence at the county jail for drinking wood alcohol.

He swore of having a conversation with Constable Boyd while he was at the jail. Boyd had sent a message through him to Johnston, who was also confined at the jail at the time, that if Joe Stewart came to the jail after him (Johnston) he was to make his escape and receive police protection. The witness informed Mr Rae, of the jail, of this message the day it was delivered. Archie Moore had come for Johnston instead of Stewart.

The cross-examination of this witness was deferred until this morning.

to give Boyd a chance to defend himself.

Stewart Told His Story Publickly.

The last witness called yesterday afternoon was Bruce Patterson, who stated that Mr. Stewart and Dunford had told him of nearly all the circumstances which had been later brought out during the investigation. Mr. Stewart had made the statement that when he exposed the actions of the police it would make your eyes stick out of your head.

The court adjourned till 10 o'clock this morning.

Making a purely vegetable Medicine

1875—1919

In 1875, Lydia E. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., gathered and dried the roots and herbs which she used in the now famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, from the fields and forests,—then steeped them on her kitchen stove and filled a few bottles at a time, to alleviate the suffering of her women friends, neighbors and acquaintances, and the success of this medicine was unparalleled.

After 44 Years

These illustrations show the present method by which vast quantities of this well-known remedy are produced and from exactly the same kind of roots and herbs used by Mrs. Pinkham in the beginning.

First—The various herbs used are of the finest quality, and gathered at the time their medicinal strength is the highest.

Second—After the herbs are properly ground and mixed, the medicinal properties are extracted by soaking in large stone jars, covered.

Third—Then the extract is drained through percolators, acting somewhat like a coffee percolator.

Fourth—To insure a thoroughly pure medicine, it is carefully pasteurized by heat in special apparatus, and bottled hot.

Throughout the entire process, from the crude herb to the finished medicine in bottle, cleanliness and exactness are the watch-words.

The Reliability of Testimonials Guaranteed

The testimonials published by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company come to them unsolicited. Never knowingly have they published an untruthful letter, never is a letter published without the written consent of the writer. The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and illness. It is easy to realize how these poor, suffering women feel when restored to health; and their keen desire to help other women who are suffering as they did.

SAYS LIBERAL

cractic control of industry, he said he stands for political and industrial democracy, that autocratic tyranny resulting from industrial control by syndicates and monopolies might be eliminated. Responsibility for present-day unrest and living conditions, he said, lies with a ring of capitalists who control the government.

"We believe," he here stated, "that the cold storage syste maud grain elevators are merely a means for inflating prices."

Labor Representation.

The speaker claimed that Labor is represented in one man to 200 seats on all the legislatures in Canada; manufactures and professional men are represented in 85 per cent. of legislative seats, farmers 13 and Labor .5. "Then," he asked, "how is Labor to get justice if it elects to legislatures manufacturers and professional men? The only remedy lies in Labor, long-suffering of tyranny at the hands of certain employers, and understanding the psychology of working conditions, electing its own representation in parliament. You need not be afraid, he added, the working man is quite as capable of representing Labor as professional men and manufacturers.

Among Labor wants, advocated by Mr. Tooms, are an old age pension fun for men who have given their life an denergy to the state, and the wiping out of pauperism; more even distribution of wealth, for he believed there are more millionaires to the square inch in Canada than in any country in the world; and a share in our industries. In the latter connection, he claimed the: by introducing modern and improved machinery and speeding it up manufacturers take advantage of the working man; he charged one local industry with speeding up new machines and forcing a man to do twice as much work 10 hours a day at practically the same wage as before. "We stand," he said, "for 8 hours a day and a share in modern machinery in the way of distributing its increased output over a greater number of employees, and we further stand for a six-hour day if necessary to relieve distress caused by lack of employment."

Mr. Tooms stated that his party did not profess to be perfect, but, personally, if elected, he would do the best he could in the community's interest, and he did not think it would require much effort to make as good a representative as either of his opponents. He declared the people had been robbed of their share of the wealth of the land to keep up plained of his tarpolian being gone non-producers, whom he stamped as parasites living on other people's energies. He stands for government control and expoitation of Canada's natural resources; also for free and higher education for the masses, for, he quoted, educate the slaves and their shackels will fall off. He pledged himself, if elected, to at certain periods give a public report of his stewardship—keep the electorate fully informed of what is doing in parliament, and if he does not live up to his platform, then he can be recalled by a referendum.

Mr. Tooms called Mr. Gillespie the head of a budding combine—a syndicate which, he charged, gets its milk and dairy supplies from the farmer at reduced prices and sells it to the consumer. "I'll leave it with you," he said, "whether the farmer is getting a fair price, and whether you are paying a fair price."

Thomas Lane.

In a brief address this gentleman urged support for Mr. Tooms. He had to laugh at the papers. One, he said, had nothing against Mr. Gillespie except that he belonged to the wrong party, while the other had nothing to say against Mr. Soden only he was of the wrong party also. The only conclusion left, said Lane, is that the Independent Labor party is the right one and Mr. Tooms the right man. He declared that 15 per cent. of the population lives on the profits of workers, and 85 per cent. are producers, and its near time that 85 per cent. awakened and had that representation in government they are entitled to. "So long as the old-time parties are in power, he said, they represent the 15 per cent. non-producers."

Mr. Lane hinted for financial support of the candidate. We are not worrying about the result of the campaign, he added, but we have to earn the money for it, and for the other fellows, too. He had no doubt but that a farmer would be elected in East Peterborough, and thought a farmer from the east would get along better with a Labor man that with either a Liberal or a Conservative, for, he contended, farmers' and Labor interests are practically on the same plane.

A Charge.

Mr. McArthur, in a last word, charged the press with attempting to prejudice people against Labor candidates by misstatements. For instance, one Toronto paper had said Mr. Tooms would not get 200 votes. That paper knew nothing of the conditions in West Peterborough for where he (McArthur) is employed there are 200 going to vote for Tooms.

And, by the way, this meeting forgot "The King" on dispersing.

MORE EVIDENCE

hall was simply endeavoring to find out who did take the liquor.

Geo. Evan's Tells His Story.

Then Mr. Geo. Evans entered the witness box and told of taking Hamilton to Kendry last April. Witness swore he had never had any liquor dealings with Hamilton Dunford or anyone else. His story of the trip to Kendry with Hamilton was the same in detail as told by Hamilton

He hal only heard of the story of getting the whiskey out of Moore's house as a joke on the street and once in the same way in the King George Hotel.

He swore that he didn't see Mr Stewart on that morning at Kendry He had seen Archie Moore on that morning and had a talk with him.

He emphatically denied the story of being connected with a plot to steal any liquor, in company with Sergt. Blade, out of Stewart's office Mr. Evans swore that he had never heard of such a scheme.

Had No Connection With Liquor.

Mr. Wm. Poison, a partner to Akey in the livery business, was the next witness to give evidence. He told the same story about the two trips after the stolen whiskey as told yesterday by Akey.

Dunford was the guide of the party and apparently was the only member who knew anything about the liquor.

Never Heard of Police Protection.

He never heard of police protection being given to any wrong doers. He denied Dunford's statements about him being connected with any members of the police force for stealing liquor from either Moore's house or Stewart's office.

He agreed with Evans that it would take at least half an hour to drive a car from Kendry to Peterborough in April.

MARTYNUK CONVICTED OF MURDER IS RECOMMENDED TO MERCY

Jury out Hours, Return 2.30 and asks Definition of Murder and Manslaughter.

The jury, in whose hands rests the fate of Nartynuk, charged with being an accessary in the Havelock murder, returned at 2:30 this afternoon for a definition of the two terms manslaughter and murder. The desired information being given by Judge Mulock, they again retired to deliberate on their verdict.

The jury brought in a verdict of murder within the next hour, but coupled their verdict with a strong plea for mercy for the prisoner.

Contrary to expectation the Crown put Sam Ziluski, the man committed yesterday morning for murder, in te witness box during the trial of Alexander Martinuk. Ziluski told his story apparently truthfully, for he did not put himself in the best possible light, and he stuck fast to his story in detail in spite of severe cross-examination. He showed signs of nervousness while giving his testimony, but this was possibly largely due to his present physical condition. He was severely gassed while serving with the Canadian railway trops overseas.

He stated that he knew three of the other men before the trip to Havelock, but he had never before met Bahri. On the afternoon of the 22nd of June he had met Thom Kornchek in a pool room in Toronto. Tom asked him if he wanted to go and get some money. He did not say where at the time. He, with Bahri, Kornchek and Rotyuski, went to the North Toronto station, but found there was no train from there to Havelock. They started for the Union Station, but he (Ziluski) got off the street car on the way down and went for Martynuk. He told Martynuk that he knew where they could get some work, and after some persuasion succeeded in getting him to go along. He had never heard Martynuk told that he was going to Havelock.

"Who had the whiskey"

"Tom (Kornchek) had the whiskey."

"When did you first see the black revolver?"

"I saw it first outside the bunk house after we came out."

Witness then told of how they had got off at the station at Havelock and walked toward the quarry, Bahri leading the way. When within a short distance of the quarry they all sat down and had a lunch, also a drink from the bottle of whiskey. Tom told Martynuk while they were eating their supper of how they were going to get the money.

Bahri led the way to the bunk house, and Kornchek entered first and was the first to go upstairs. He was the only man upstairs when the shot was fired. Witness had one of the white revolvers with him but had no flashlight. Philip Rotyuski and Tom Kornchek were the men who had both. He swore that he had not heard Vanoff ask for water, but did hear him say he felt sick. He did not know he had been shot.

"Did you point your revolver at any man and demand his money?"

"No; I carried my gun, but pointed it up in the air."

There was no light lit upstairs while he was ther eexcept the flashlights. He went downstairs and stood guard while the rest went upstairs.

In his opinion Kornchek had not known any one was in the bush in front of him, and he thought Tom fired to scare the sleepers.

Then another surprise was afforded when Mr. Gordon, who was defending Martynuk, sent him into the witness box to tell his own story, and in doing so he exposed him to the cross-examination of the Crown.

He told of Sam Ziluski coming to him that day and taking him to the Union Station. There were there five men besides himself, the other four prisoners, and a man named John whom he did not know. He swore he went to Havelock because he understood there was work to be obtained there.

They had a couple of drinks on the road near the quarry, and it made him feel happy, so that he went with Kornchek and the others

Kornchek went up the stairs first and he (Martynuk) and Bahir had protested against being mixed up in any dealings of this kind.

Kornchek told him that the reason he fired the shot was because he slipped on the top step and on account of the hair trigger the gun went off. They all thought the ball let was in either the steps or the floor.

Witness stated he had received

And that the 23rd day of October, A.D., 1919, at Ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the said Office in the said Municipality, has been fixed for the purpose of appointing persons to attend at the Polling places and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk.

And that if the assent of the electors is obtained to the said proposed By-law, it will be taken into consideration by the Municipal Council of the said Corporation at a meeting thereof to be held after the expiration of One month from the date of the first publication of this notice and that the first publication was made on the 25th day of September, A.D., 1919.

Take Notice Further a tenant who desires to vote on the proposed By-law must deliver to the Clerk not later than the 10th day before the day appointed for taking the vote a declaration under The Canada Evidence Act, that he is a tenant whose lease extends for the time for which the debt on liability is to be created or in which the money to be raised by the proposed By-law is payable, or for at least Twenty-one (21) years and that he has by the lease covenanted to pay all Municipal taxes in respect to the property or which he is a tenant other than local improvement rates.

S. R. ARMSTRONG
Clerk.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE WEST RIDING OF PETERBOROUGH

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

Having again received the unanimous nomination of the Liberal Convention of West Peterborough as a candidate for Parliamentary honors at the ensuing Provincial Election, to be held on October 20th, I desire to solicit your hearty support in favor of my election.

WAR WORK

Having represented you for the past five years (war years), I can safely say that during that period, while every effort was being made to win the war—my record is known to you all, and on that record I ask you to judge me on the position I have taken on all measures affecting the war work.

TEMPERANCE QUESTION

When I was elected in 1914 I stated my views on the Temperance question during that campaign; I pledged myself to vote for Temperance legislation on all occasions brought forward by whatever party, and the record in the House will show that I carried out that pledge.

The Referendum vote is to be taken on the same date as the Provincial election, October 20, and if I am again elected your representative I promise to give my whole-hearted support to the Government elected to carry out the will of the people as expressed by their votes on the Referendum ballot.

AGRICULTURAL LEGISLATION.

During the years preceding 1914 every one agreed that the Department of Agriculture was asleep. The very first opportunity offered in the House I introduced the question of a forward movement in Agriculture, and, along with other Liberal members of the House, have earnestly advocated a more strenuous progressive policy in Agriculture.

The shortage of production, the problem of farm help, and the numerous perplexing questions affecting the farmer, cannot be solved unless we seriously consider the cause and apply the remedy.

During the past few years of unrest in the country, due mainly to excessive living costs, I have advocated that demonstration farms be established in different counties, and increased attention be paid to the education to be received in our Agricultural College and Experimental Farms, and that the knowledge gained at the Agricultural College be put into practice on Demonstration Farms, where a profit and loss account could be kept, and the costs of producing 100 pounds of milk or a pound of pork, or any of the many products of the farm, could be ascertained and established, such information being sadly lacking today. By such a system of education the farm would be looked upon as a business manufacturing plant, that would attract the best brains to the development of the greatest asset in Canada, today—the farm. Our production is unlimited. The markets of the world are calling for food, and our own citizens living from hand to mouth at tremendous prices, wondering what the next six months have in store for them.

PROVINCIAL HIGHWAYS

Our highways need much repair. Auto and truck traffic is becoming daily increased, and we must develop a road policy which will make for hauling our produce to market as cheaply as possible. To this matter I promise to give my best thought.

EDUCATION

Education, I am pleased to say, is in the hands of a new Minister, in whom we hope for great things. I believe in a separate education for the city and rural districts. An education in the rural districts to educate the boy and girl in the great lessons of Agriculture, making two blades of grass grow where one grew before, developing the average cow of Ontario today, which gives 5,000 pounds of milk in a milking period of 10,000 pounds, producing a pound of pork or beef at a lower cost, and giving to the world the blessing which we most need—a reduction in the high cost of living.

THE LABOR QUESTION

Regarding the important question of Labor, my own policy has been to treat Labor as I would wish to be treated myself. I have had a good deal of experience with labor of various kinds and conditions, and have never had any trouble along that line, and do not expect to have any.

OUR RETURNED HEROES

To me, the welfare of the returned soldiers and soldiers' wives is one of the most essential duties of our country. Therefore I promise that I will give my hearty support to every movement calculated to promote their very best interests. The soldiers who fought for me for five years deserve, and may expect to receive, my earnest consideration during the remaining years of my life.

THE WOMAN VOTE

I am delighted to know that the women are to enjoy equal privileges with men in the use of the franchise at this election, and in the exercise of this privilege I have the greatest faith in their good judgment and purifying influence. Their power with the ballot on October 20, especially with the Prohibition and Labor problems, will, I feel certain, be of far-reaching effect. I will, therefore, consider the votes of the ladies counted in my favor at the approaching election to be instruction to take high grounds on all matters calculated to elevate the morals of this community as well as of the whole Dominion.

CONCLUSION

These questions I have dealt with are, to my mind, the outstanding questions of the day. If I am elected again as your representative, I promise to give the best of my ability, my mature judgment on all questions affecting the interests of the West Riding of Peterborough, the Province of Ontario, the Dominion of Canada, and the British Empire, of which we today are so justly proud.

Thanking you, ladies and gentlemen, for your support in the past, and soliciting your support again on the 20th day of October, I remain,

Your obedient servant,
GEO. A. GILLESPIE.

10c GLASSES ON $1,000 EYES

If there were no gullible people in the world there would be no 10-cent glasses. If you have accident insurance you would get $1000 each for the loss of your eyesight. The insurance companies consider an eye worth that amount. To you it is worth ten times that figure. Are you going to risk injuring the eyes permanently by giving them only the assistance of a pair of 10-cent glasses? Your eyes deserve the best you can give them. With Dr. Fowler's guaranteed "PEBLO" Glasses goes his expert service in correctly fitting them. Full value for your money.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Said:

"After all what a man does with his money is to invest, and there is no better way to in it than in Life Insurance.

As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance.

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT

A young man sixteen years of age took out a 15 years Endowment (No. 210380) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.30 for fifteen years and he now has, through that investment, an immediate estate of $2495.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 15 PER CENT COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR PAID?

No wonder Sir Wilfrid said—and he might have added (no better place than the Sun Life of Canada)—"there is no better way to invest it than in LIFE INSURANCE."

PIES ARE TABOO

As a character study "Mickey," which will be shown at the Grand Theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, is a real work of art. You will never forget this adorable little waif. The story of "Mickey" is vivid with action, much of which is laid in that wonderful twilight zone of comedy where half the laughs are wet with tears.

Mickey is a sweet, wholesome, mischievous little girl, raised by her foster father, an old miner, and her foster mother, a wise old Indian Squaw, in the mountain country far away from the glamour and chill of the city.

Later she is sent to the city "to make a lady of her," at the home of her aunt, a seeming, jealous hypocrite—and she doesn't find her path exactly strewn with roses. But throughout, the old cheerful, high spirits of little Mickey prevail, and with her sheer happy perserverence she conquers what seem unbearable burdens and difficulties for the little waif. There are wistful and pathetic touches in "Mickey," as well as humor laid in with delicacy and a sure touch.

Miss Normand is always a charming comedienne, but she is at her very best in this part—in this vivid and appealing comedy drama with real living characters—told without squash pies, battles or the seduction of the innocent heroine.

"THE WEAKER VESSEL" PRAISEWORTHY PHOTOPLAY

Mary MacLaren's New Universal Production is Seen at Empire Theatre.

"The Weaker Vessel," Mary MacLaren's first Universal picture since "The Unpainted Woman," opens tonight at the Empire Theatre. The new production is in every way a worthy successor to Mary MacLaren's long list of successful photodramas. The story, by Elmer Ellsworth, would be interesting on the printed page, but enhanced by the enormous possibilities of the motion picture camera, it is a pictured narrative that combines the utmost in humor, pure comedy, and human interest with little touches of pathos.

The story opens in the little village of Cicero, New York, where Abby Hopkins, played by Miss MacLaren, is inveigled by her father's persuasion to marry the village chronic marryer, J.B. Hanks. She detests the man, detests the notion of being Mrs. Hanks number three, but above other things she has her own opinions of woman's place in the world, and she knows that somewhere in the world is the man she can love.

Disgusted at Hanks, she deserts him a few minutes after the marriage goes to New York and becomes a waitress in one of Child's restaurants. She is befriended by Ruth Sterner, a fellow waitress, who burns the midnight electricity writing plays. Aboy meets J. Booth Hunter, an actor of genius, who is on the toboggan with booze for a companion. She realizes that in Hunter, she has found the man she can love. Hanks and Hunter, however, have a failing in common—Booze. But instead of being disgusted at Hunter during his moments of inebriation, she is sympathetic, amused and determined to make him cut out the enemy that is preventing his success.

The picture is realistic to an unusual degree. The small town life is reproduced with fidelity, bringing in characters that inhabit every small town. Johnnie Cooke, as J. B. Hanks, is too comical to win the ill-will of the audience in spite of his portrayal of the chronic widower, and Thurston Hall, who plays opposite Miss MacLaren, has made a masterpiece out of the part of J. Booth Hunter. His is a humor of a different sort, but equally amusing.

TEACHERS ARE IN CONVENTION

SPLENDID DEMONSTRATION OF HOW MUSIC SHOULD BE TAUGHT IN SCHOOLS

The annual convention of the county of Peterborough Teachers' Institute opened this morning at nine-thirty in the assembly hall of the Normal School.

After the opening exercises the minutes of the last meeting were read and the treasurer's report given. The various business was discussed, after which a splendid address was given by the president of the association, Miss I. Duff. The report of the O.E.A. was given by Miss Crowe and Miss Klinck and was enjoyed by all. A special feature of the morning's program was a splendid demonstration of how music is taught in the Peterborough schools by Miss M. Armstrong of the Central School staff of this city. A report on the work of the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario was read by the secretary of the Peterborough branch, Mrs. A. Stillson.

In the afternoon the new school laws were discussed by Mr. Lees and Mr. Broderick. Mr. Broderick spoke on the compulsory school attendance act and Mr. Lees dealt with the Consolidated School Act. Miss Rolena Carter gave an address on "Teaching a Rural Community," and the reading course was taken up by Mr. Broderick. A lecture on history by Mr. Lees completed the program for the afternoon.

This evening Dr. Rigsby, of Port Hope, will address the convention at the Collegiate hall and deliver a lecture on Richard Bringley Sheridan.

PHILOP ROTYUSHI MAKES CONFESSION

ADMITS KNOWING OF AND PARTICIPATING IN CRIME—EACH ROBBER RECEIVED $80

After the judge's address to the jury concerning the Martynuk case and the jury had retired the case of Philop Potyuski commenced this morning.

The same vidence was briefly given as in the former cases and the entire evidence was in before noon today.

Ziluski was again put in as a crown witness and told the same story as he told at the Martynuk trial yesterday.

Then Mr. Essery put the prisoner into the box and he told the entire story. He told of knowing why they were going there and of carrying firearms into the bunkhouse and of participating in the sharing of the booty. He swore that each man had received an equal alotment of $80.

In reference to the man called John the prisoner knew nothing of him other than he saw him at the Union station. Tom Kornchek was the man who had the dealings with that man. The court adjourned about 12.30 o'clock.

only $10 of the booty, but was too excited at the time, and partially under the influence of liquor, to know whether he was being cheated or not.

He swore that neither he nor Ziluski had brought any money to the bush. He received his prize money from Kornchek. He swore that he had not thrown any of his money away. He had not carried a revolver or flashlight to the bunk house.

"The first I heard that a man had been killed near Havelock was when I was in Indian River station," declared witness in conclusion.

Mr. Gordon made a strenuous appeal to the jury to consider the fact that this man was not connected [illegible] accompanied the other men only while under the influence of liquor and the influence of a stronger mind and so his case should be reduced to manslaughter.

Mr. Rigney in his address to the jury pointed out that they were all connected with the robbery in which the killing took place and so were all equally guilty. He did not consider that Martynuk was too much under the influence of liquor to realize what he was doing.

THEATRICALS

THE SMARTEST AND BRIGHTEST COMEDY

"Oh Boy," the smartest and brightest musical comedy of many seasons and the fourth of the series of New York Princess Theatre musical comedies will be the offering at the Grand, Thursday evening only, Oct. 1th.

"Oh Boy" is the joint work of Guy Bolton, P. G. Wodehouse and Jerome Kern. Mr. Bolton and Mr. Wodehouse provided the book and lyrics, and Mr. Kern composed the music. F. Ray Comstock and William Elliott, the producers of "Oh Boy" will send here a special organization in keeping with the high standard of excellence maintained by all New York Princess Theatre offerings.

Some of the most popular musical numbers are "An Old-Fashioned Wife "Rolled Into One," "Till the Clouds Roll By," "The First Day of May," "Koo-ka-loo," and "Nesting Time in Flatbush."

THE KISS BURGLAR A MUSICAL TREAT

It has been the plaint of dramatic reviewers for ages, that certain plays would not be accepted by the public on account of the salaciousness of their plots. That the great majority of theatregoers do not want pruriency on the stage is ably evidenced by the success that has greeted Coutts and Tennis' smacking musical success "The Kiss Burglar," scheduled to appear at the Grand matinee and evening, Saturday, which will be by far the best musical offering that will appear here this season, which comes direct from the George M. Cohan Theatre. And seeing this romantic tale of love, life, youth and alluring tunes should be your happiness, and if you have a wife, mother, sweetheart, you should share the happiness that this season's production affords, with them.

He who confers happiness is a true benefactor, and to its myrid stockholders. "The Kiss Burglar" is paying royal dividends of joy, with its striking array of gifted entertainers. Its hosts of beautiful young women marvelously garbed, and its beautiful stage settings, it forms a veritable banquet for the eye and ear. A perfect riot of exquisite color that will always linger pleasantly in the memories of the fortunate who behold it. Happiness is the divine right of all and "The Kiss Burglar" is the epitome of happiness. The book and lyrics are from the pen of Glen MacDonough, whose works are well known. While the music was written by Raymond Hubbell whose tunes set the world to humming. An enormous company, including the famous Peacock Alley chorus, which promises to become popular overnight, and the original Cohan Theater production, all go to make "The Kiss Burglar" the season's most interesting musical event. Sale of seats open.

The new apiary building in connection with the Guelph Agricultural College will cost $40,000 when complete.

The Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation have purchased the Dwyer property at Halifax, N.S., to build a church on.

GREEN WINS FROM 100 YARD CHAMPION

FINALLY BEATS PONTON IN 100 YARD DASH BY FOUR YARDS

After trying hard all season, C. Greene, of the G.A.C., has at last succeeded in beating Alex. Ponton, the Canadian sprint champion, and triple winner of the Hamilton B. Wills Cup. He turned the trick Saturday in the 100-yard race at the G.W.V.A. combined cycle, motorcycle and foot running meet at Exhibition track, but strange to say Ponton came right back in the fourth 100-metre race for the Wills Cup, and beat Greene. Ponton, Greene and Johnston was the order in the 220 yards.

Jack Tressider won the half-mile handicap after a nice race in 1.58 1-5. W. McCready was second and Pollard W. Scholes of Gladstone hung to Harry Tressider to the stretch lead and then galloped over him on end. Jimmie Dillon, the pacemaker for 2½ miles, was third. The time was 15.22 3-5. Champion Jake Freeman had to walk two miles in 14.17 2-5 to win the handicap, but he won hardily from Harry Leask and Charlie Barnes.

New Records.

The motorcycle events produced some rare sport.

The five and ten-mile amateur records were broken. W. E. Dellimore reduced the five-mile mark to 5.55 3-5 and Wilfred Morrison, riding a great race, reduced the ten-mile mark to 11.48. Morrison led the five-mile race for four miles, but Dellimore finished with a rush and caught him. O'Donnell finished third.

In the 10-mile, Friend was second and O'Donnell third. One 5-mile side car race went to O'Donnell, with Butler second and Bepple third, and the other to Menton, with Butler and Bepple second and third again.

Cycle Surprises.

The cycle races furnished some surprises. In the mile open, Champion Harold Bounsall was hard pushed by young Frank Cassidy and W. Taylor, while Norman Webster, the Alberta champion, was beaten off. In the two-mile handicap, all the scratch men were wiped out. Gordon, the Long Branch boy, won, with Christie second and Bond, the Lambton boy, third.

The mile race for boys saw Champion Elson MacKay home in front, but he had a narrow squeak. C. Davey, one of the H.M.A.C. lads, specially "prepped" to measure MacKay, had MacKay beaten at the stretch head but in the stretch drive MacKay out-gained him and won by a foot. The special boys' race for the Goodyear prizes was won by Carlton, with McDonald second and Ravenhill third. The Dunlop Co. race for veterans went to Mis, with Sparks second and Harbord third.

KERR'S EXPERIENCE AS BALL TWIRLER

WAS TRADED LAST SPRING TO CHARLES A. COMISKEY BY CLARENCE ROWLAND

Chicago claims Rishard (Dick) Kerr, White Sox, pitcher as the pitching surprise of the season.

This pitcher was traded to Charles A. Comiskey last spring by Clarence Rowland, now president and manager of the Millwaukee Brewers. Rowland told his former boss he was turning over a wonderful pitcher, who was prepared in every way to make good in the big baseball show.

For Kerr Rowland secured seven players from the White Sox magnate as well as a cash consideration. Rowland, who led the Sox to a world's flag in 1917, needed promising young fielders for his Millwaukee club and Comiskey needed a corking good pitcher and needed him badly. Both Rowland and Comiskey are to-day satisfied with the deal.

There wasn't a happier man in the loop to-day than Rowland. He won the world's flag for Comiskey in 1917 and he has saved the championship or at least prolonged the battle this year.

"I knew Kerr was a finished pitcher in every sense of the word when I turned him over to Comiskey," said Rowland. "This pitcher had natural talent, which he has supplemented with hard work and excellent training in the minors. He possesses wonderful control is steady, has a splendid curve and a change in pace. Kerr went into the majors with superlative nerve under fire—aquality possessed by few youngsters. I was sure he would become a sensation with the White Sox. Joe Cantillon, who watched him for two years when he played with the Millwaukee ball club against Minneapolis, pronounced him a finished pitcher."

Kerr is comparitively a youngster although, he has had extended experience playing on many ball clubs in different leagues. He was born at St. Louis, July 3, 1893. His home town is Paris, Tex., where he will go after the world's series games. He began his professional career in 1909 with the Parasould Club in the Arkansas league, where he remained in 1910. In 1911 he went to the Cairo club, with which he played until he suffered a broken leg. The accident happened in a July 4 game.

In 1912 Kerr wandered to Cleburne, Tex., where he pitched for the town team and the next season found him hurling for a club in Paris, Tex. While in this town he discovered the girl who later became Mrs. Kerr. That is the principal reason why Dick likes Texas better than any other state.

With the Fort Worth club of the Texas League Kerr set the enviable record in 1915 of winning twenty-one games and losing only ten. He was called to Memphis in the Southern league in 1916. With this team he won twenty-four games and dropped only twelve.

Kerr then became the property of Millwaukee in the American association, where he had splendid seasons in 1917 and 1918. A part of the 1918 season he pitched for the Fairbanks-Morse team. With this team in the war year, he played with Buck Weaver and several other members of the Sox. Out of nineteen games he lost only three. Dick was the property of the Millwaukee Club when Rowland and Brennan bought that franchise.

The Real Issue of the Referendum Oct. 20th

EVERY effort is being made by certain interests to confuse and mislead you into thinking that you must either vote for the retention of The Ontario Temperance Act in its present form—or see the old license system revived with all its abuses and evils.

Let it be clearly understood here and now—No one wants the whiskey bar back and the general sale of liquor—the Government does not want it, the Citizens' Liberty League does not want it—even the Brewers and Distillers are opposed to it. There is no sentiment in this Province supporting a return to the old license system and the sale of whiskey over the bar. The Citizens' Liberty League does not and will not support such a course.

But—the Liberty League conscientiously believes that anyone who makes a careful study of Ontario's vexed temperance problem will agree that The Ontario Temperance Act, as it now stands, is too drastic in its prohibitory measures. Ninety per cent. of Ontario's labor unions have asked for a more palatable beer—the Beer of the Ballot—a little stronger than the beer sold under The Ontario Temperance Act, yet absolutely non-intoxicating. The same request has been made by a large number of the returned soldier organizations and citizens generally.

Vote "Yes" on Questions 2 and 3—Assure These Men the Beer of the Ballot.

These men are neither drunkards nor children. They are the same men who form the backbone of Ontario's industrial life—they are the same men who fought Germany to a standstill and brought Canada to the forefront among the nations.

In voting "Yes" to all four questions, you will not be voting for a return to the whiskey bar, but you will be voting for the sane, moderate compromise that the labor and soldier organizations are asking for—the sale of light beer and wine generally and the sale of pure, spirituous liquor only through Government agencies.

Which are you for—Intolerance or Compromise? Vote "Yes" to all Four Questions.

Mark your ballot with an X. Any other marking will spoil it. Remember, also—every voter must vote on every question or his ballot will be spoiled.

BIG U. S. AIRPLANE FELL INTO LAKE

OCCUPANTS RESCUED BY STEAMER—TRANSCONTINENTAL DERBY STARTED TODAY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Mineola, N. Y., Oct. 9.—Rain held up virtually all westbound flyers in the army's transcontinental contest early today at control stations in Rochester, Buffalo, Bryan and Cleveland. At Chicago weather conditions were sufficiently improved at noon to allow the westbound flyers to resume.

Two Rescued

SOUTH WARD WOMENS WORKERS' CONFERENCE

An enthusiastic conference of the women's referendum committees of the south ward was held Tuesday evening in the Park Street Baptist Church. Mrs. Thos. Brown, ward chairman, presided, and Mrs. James Kendry, Mrs. A. J. Thomas and Mr A. B. Cunningham were present to give information regarding the successful landing of the "Four No" ballot in the ballot box.

A demonstration polling booth complete in every detail, even to the booth constable, provided interesting and instructive information on how to vote Ontario dry by means of the "Four No" ballot.

That many women would spoil their ballots was shown when Deputy Returning Officer Brown announced that there was only one spoiled ballot.

Cheering reports of the ever-rising tide of public opinoin in favor of a dry province, a clean city and a happy home, gave a consciousness of coming victory and a determination to make that victory overwhelming and complete.

Earnest women, conscious of the right so long denied them of protecting the sacred rights of childhood and home, gave unmistakable evidence of the willingness and ability to use that power effectively.

Women no longer stand as silent partners or helpless sufferes in a nation's great issues. Provision will be made whereby the busy mother may have her children cared for while she goes to cast her ballot for their further protection when they leave the home to make their way in life. She is determined that the British flag shall never again stand as a legal protector of licensed pitfalls in her child's path.

CRESSMAN'S TEA ROOMS WILL OPEN TOMORROW

Accommodation Afforded For The General Public — Equipment Complete.

Friends and patrons of the Cressman Company as well as the citizens in general will be interested to know that their modernly equipped tea room is now open to the public. Conveniently situated on the third floor of the building, this beautiful apartment fills a much needed want for shoppers as well as others who will be glad to take advantage of this opportunity for a dainty meal and tasteful and artistic surroundings The colour scheme throughout is immensely pleasing and restful to the eyes, being entirely devoid of glare or clash. The predominating tone is a soft pearlgrey—something resembling a silvery mist with an under tone of rosesate glow. The walls of the room are decorated in a way that would delight the most facetious, consisting of a subtly interwoven floral design in pale grey with gleams of pale pink as a slight diversion. The windows lend a somewhat deeper color note being curtained in rose chintz in a pattern beautifully adapted to the surroundings. The furnishings which are delightfully simple in design are enamelled in grey and harmonize perfectly with the entire color scheme while the floor is carpeted in a corresponding shade. Those who patronize this ideal tea-room are assured of an appetizing repast and persons who take advantage of its service once will no doubt be frequent visitors. Just here it might be well to mention that the tables may be reserved for afternoon teas. This is a splendid addition to a thoroughly modern and up-to-the-minute concern.

FIRE AT C. G. E.

BURNED FOR NEARLY TWO HOURS BEFORE OVERCOME MUCH DAMAGE

A rather serious fire broke out in the new north building of the C.G.E. this morning at 11:10 and quickly spread to the varnish department, in which are kept huge vats of japan and varnish. The fire-brigade quickly responded to the alarm and worked like Trojans to confine and prevent the spread of the flames until 12:52 at which hour what might have proven a most disastrous fire had been extinguished.

The flames having reached the store department at one time, much valuable material has in consequence been considerably damaged by water The origin of the fire is as yet unknown as also is the amount of damage, which will certainly run up into thousands.

No stoppage in operations will result, and no hands lose time as a result of this blaze.

WOMEN'S INTEREST IN ELECTIONS

WHAT WILL INFLUENCE THEM IN CASTING THEIR VOTES PAST SERVICES OR PROMISES?

The fact that women have the vote in the forthcoming provincial elections, introduces a new element and a new interest

"But the women will not be bothered using their vote. They don't care. They are not interested in politics" some people are saying.

Those who express such views are mistaken. Already there is evidence that women are fully alive to their responsibilities, and that they are taking the matter seriously.

Before the war Ontario women as a whole, were not deeply concerned about voting. There was a small percentage of the women urging it, but with the average woman there was indifference. Then came the war Men answered the call to arms, and no less truly, women answered the same call. They realized then as never before that the affairs of the nation, were their affairs, and the splendid service women gave, and the wonderful work they did, must ever shine as a beacon light of loyalty for coming generations of women.

Given to Franchise.

It was this amazing record of service and the practical and effective way in which they threw themselves into the breach, which resulted in the Hearst Government giving Ontario women the franchise The Government was quick to recognize women's ability and activities, and felt that the voice of women would be as valuable in peace developments as in war work. Consequently the Women Suffrage bill was brought in, and was passed. And every woman in Ontario owes a debt of gratitude to the Government for voluntarily giving them the full privileges of citizenship

Nor did it stop there. A later bill gave the right to women to sit in the Provincial Legislature, and in the past week throughout Ontario many [illegible] candidates for election. In most cases it is noticed, the women have declined the nomination.

How To Vote.

And now comes the very vital matter of voting. How shall the woman with the right to cast her vote, decide who is worthy of it?

It is better to look to past records rather than to rely on mere promises for the future, in deciding that party best fitted to guide the affairs of the province through the years ahead. What has the Hearst Government done during its administration, particularly in the years of war when new conditions demanded initiative and farsightedness? How did the Government meet the needs of war time? Were the sons of Ontario who went overseas adequately provided for, and are the returning men being re-established in civil occupations?

If there were nothing more than just the service that has been rendered in this respect, the Hearst Government would deserve the vote of every woman in the province.

Can we ever forget those early days of the war, when the men heard the call, and when the women bravely smiled "good-bye"? They were days illumined with a sacred spirit of patriotism, yet overshadowed with fear for the safety of dear ones. Men from Ontario enlisted in thousands, and women of Ontario put aside thoughts of self, and gave themselves up to patriotic work

Looked After Soldiers.

It was not long before the Ontario Government foreseeing the great need that was bound to arise, gave a completely equipped hospital, also providing for its maintenance, to be erected in England This is known to Canadians as Orpington. What that hospital with its perfect equipment, meant to thousands of men in giving them the very best possible chance for life, cannot be estimated Men terribly mutilated, have been restored to health and strength. Men disfigured beyond recognition, actually had their faces and their warform bodies built anew. All that modern science could do, was achieved. No expense was spared. The province of Ontario believed in nothing but the best for the men who had served and suffered. Over a million dollars was spent by the government in this humane work

Maple Leaf Club.

But the Ontario Government did not confine its gifts to the wounded. here was the thousands of Ontario men in the troops. What was to happen to these men, many mere lads, when they were on leave from camp or from the trenches?

Many a Mother has blessed the Maple Leaf Clubs," established in London, England, where every Canadian man in khaki was welcomed. She may not have realized that it was the Hearst Government which saw his need, and which maintained six of these clubs. There, weary after exhausting days in the trenches, the men went as though they were going home With the mud of Flanders caked on their clothing, with the desolation of the battle field in their eyes; they went home to the "Maple Leaf club, home to this place where refreshing baths, clean beds, and good food awaited them

Nor were there only the material benefits. There was the smile of welcome of someone actually from home, that spot so unutterably dear. And when, leave over, they had to return to France, there was someone to bid them God speed, someone as the representative of Ontario to "mother" and "father" very lonely lad

Ontario mothers of soldier sons may well be grateful to the Hearst Government for the safeguard of the "Maple Leaf Clubs."

At Christmas time when hearts turned longingly to the home people this very human Government sent gifts from the province for every Ontario man overseas

Cared for Dependents.

While caring for the men, their dependents at home were not forgotten. The Ontario Government gave generously to the Patriotic Fund, thus assuring comfort for the women and children and relieving the men overseas of all anxiety. As an instance of the money thus expended, the Ontario grant to this fund in 1917 was $1,000,000 Besides this about $140,000 was given to local independent organizations to assist in similar work In 1918 the monthly contribution from the province to the Patriotic Fund was $100,000 a month

It may not be generally known that all the typhoid and paratyphoid vaccine used by the Canadian troops was the free gift of the Provincial Board of Health. This totalled over two million doses, and without doubt saved thousands of precious lives It meant that typhoid which in the South African war caused more deaths than all other causes, was practically [illegible]

The work of Ontario Government for the returned men is equally outstanding, but must be dealt with in another article. The foregoing, is but one of the many splendid things which the Hearst Government has accomplished during its administration. Surely the men who have guided the destinies of Ontario through the period of war, who in that time have enacted laws which stand for justice, for honor, and for advancement and development, and who have been outstanding in their efforts towards improving laws relating to women and children, deserve the continued support of every thinking woman. This will be the first time women will have had an opportunity to thank the members of the Ontario Government for its wise and human legislation, and it can be safely assumed that women will not let the opportunity pass.

NO SOLUTION YET AS TO LIQUOR CHARGES AGIANST LOCAL POLICE

Evidence Submitted on Oath Flatly and Emphatically Denied James Akey Declares Constable Moore's Mind is Wandering—Dunsford Alleges He Was urged to Prejure Himself.

Mr. Archie Moore, high constable of the county, occupied the stand most of the time at yesterday afternoon's session of the police investigation. His testimony had the effect of more deeply tangling up the affair and making a decision much more difficult. His evidence was flately contradicted by Akey immediately after his examination.

One thing is certain in this case and that is somebody is lying or somebody's mind is wandering." It is yet to be ascertained who this party is.

Archie Moore enterred the witness box and told of what he knew about the Kendry liquor of April 30. He told of seeing Ray Sullivan, helping to take some boxes off the train. As he and Mr Stewart approached the station the two men jumped into an automobile and drove off toward Peterborough at a furious rate The boxes were taken to his house where they remained till May 13.

Heated Argument.

Then Mr. Akey was then called by thejudge and he emphatically denied having ever admitted to Moore that he was at Kendry on the morning of April 30th.

A heated discussion arose, in which Akey told Moore he thought his mind was wandering. Each man frankly denied the statement of the other, although they were both under oath.

Great amusement was caused when Mr. Moore had some difficulty in remembering what took place and Akey exclaimed that he knew his (Moore's) memory was faulty.

Gerald Dunford Again.

Then Gerald Dunford was called for the second time, during the investigation, and was put through a cross-examination by Mr. Hall.

Mr. Hall then rehearsed in detail the circumstances relating to the liquor case, in which the witness and Johnston had been caught. He got the witness to admit telling Stewart the night before about the shipmen.

"Did Mr. Wynch say anything to you about letting any liquor off at Kendry that morning?"

"No, I am positive he did not."

"If you had caught Akey or any of these people in liquor transactions, would you have told Stewart about it?"

"No, I only told Stewart about those two transactions and about me bringing the stuff on April 3."

"Did you yourself want to see Johnston escape?"

"I suppose I did."

"Did you ever talk over the matter of Johnston's escape with Mr. O'Brien?"

"No, I never did."

"When did you get Johnston's fine?"

"After sentence was given."

"I did not have any of the money till after Johnston was fined"

"Don't you remember discussing the plans of Johnston's escape in Mr. O'Brien's office?"

"No, I don't remember anything about it."

Mr. O'Connell: "All these men have come here and denied your story. What do you say about that?"

"They all lied," declared Dunford.

"Sullivan told me himself that he was at Kendry on the morning of April 30, and had recognized Joe Stewart while there."

"Mr. Gordon phoned me twenty minutes before the Sullivan trial and told me that if I would not go in and lie at the trial he would implicate me in the liquor dealings."

"Who gave you instructions concerning some liquor early last winter?"

"Sullivan."

"There was a definite plan to steal whiskey from Moore's place in which Akey and Sullivan and myself were involved."

Mr O'Brien asked the witness if all his evidence was of the same truth as what he had said about Mr. Gordon.

The witness replied it was.

Mr. Widdifield informed the court that that was the case for the commission, but Mr. Hall had certain witnesses he wished to call and he (Mr. Widdifield) requested that Mr Hall call his own witnesses from now on and free Mr Widdifield of any more prosecution

Mr. Hall requested that the remainder of the investigation be carried out in the same manner as it commenced and requested that Mr Widdifield carry on the investigation. This was agreed to and the court adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

Attempts to Get Him Off Guard.

At another time a man, who gave the name as Martin Maher, urgently requested him to be at Indian River on a Saturday night to attend to some boys who were making a nuisance of themselves there. He did not go but later, after making enquiries, he found out that there was nothing in the boys making a nuisance of themselves. He considered that this was a plot to get him away from his house to allow somebody a chance to steal the liquor. He has failed to find the man named Maher

Witness denied ever having pointed out a man to Mr. Flannery and asking him if that were Sullivan.

Mr. Moore emphatically denied ever telling Emmet Faux that if he had anything against the police now was the time to tell it. He stated that Faux told him the sory about Boyd voluntarily.

The witness told of going to Akey and asking him if he had ever heard of a plot to steal the liquor from his place under police protection. Mr. Akey had denied to him of knowing anything of such a scheme.

1% Hours of Examination.

Then Mr. Hall put Mr Moore through a very quelling cross-examination. He told of going to the police station on the 15th of May to find the names of some men that he was after. The chief was sitting there and came over and said to him, "There is no need of us being bad friends." They left as good friends.

Mr. Moore could not explain why he had not informed Chief Thompson or one of the commissions of those rumors being around town about Newhall being in league with these liquor thieves.

Mr. Stewart showed him Hamilton's statement on the fourteenth of May, the day after it was made in Toronto.

"I didn't know a thing about Dunford getting a share of the fine or of him being connected with anything inconnection with the prosecution of the law.

Mr Moore told of one time he refused to go with Mr. Stewart. A car load of whiskey was supposed to be brought to the picnic at Ennismore from Lindsay. He refused to accompany Mr. Stewart on this expedition because he considered that the suspicion was too remote.

Mr. Hall referred to a time in 1892 when Mr. Stewart had accused Mr. Moore of setting fire to buildings while he was a member of the fire department. Mr Moore told of the incident and of being honorably acquitted of the charged laid against him.

"Do you think Mr. Stewart acted unjustly at that time?"

"No, I can't say as I do, he was an officer and had to do his duty."

Alleged to Have Admitted Presence.

Witness stated that Akey had told him on different occasions that he was the driver of the car that was seen at Kendry, and Akey also went on to state that he would have sworn to the fact in the Sullivan trial if he had been asked. Akey had made this confession voluntarily, according to Moore.

"Can you positively swear that it was Sullivan that was at Kendry?"

"No, I couldn't say that. It happened so quick.

"Up till the Sullivan trial there was not any bad feeling between me and any member of the force," said Mr. Moore.

"But since the trial I have not spoken to Boyd for instance."

"What else have you against the police?"

"Nothing worth speaking of."

The only thing Mr. Moore had against the police was that they were inclined to interfere with his duty.

After Mr. Hall had cross-examined Moore for about one hour and three quarters, he was subject to a few questions by M O'Brien, on behalf of Sullivan, in which Mr. Moore swore that he hadn't told anyone that he had a warrant for Sullivan before he escaped.

NO IRREGULARITY IN PERMIT OF WINE TO JEWS FOR USE AT CHURCH FESTIVAL

J. D. Flavelle Replies to H. H. Dewart's Charges of Attempted Bribery by License Commissioners to Win Jewish Votes—Board Assumes all Responsibility for Authority Given to Import Wine for Religion Purposes—Prosecution Would Follow any Abuse of Privilege.

At the southwest Toronto nomination meeting Mr. H. H. Dewart made charges against J. D. Flavelle and the Board of License Commissioners for Ontario, of which Mr. Flavelle is the sale of wine to members of the Jewish community for communion purposes, and summarized it as follows:

(1) Attempted bribery of the Jewish vote.

(2) The ceremony of "Kiddush" is more properly a blessing at the evening meal during the festival over bread than by drinking beer or wine.

(3) No precautions taken in the distribution; gentiles easily obtained the liquor.

(4) No limit to the order; one man obtained six bottles. brandy, contains 62 per cen. proof spirits.

(6) A Jewish caretaker signed 400 orders which were accepted.

(7) Between 3,00 and 6,000 bottles were sold between Monday and Tuesday noon.

(8) Barnet Stone, the vendor, is the Conservative organizer among the Jews; he was a profiteer, during the war, in clothing

Flavelle's Reply.

"I have to say that by the provisions of the Ontario Temperance Act the Board of License Commissioners of which I am chairman, are authorized to appoint such persons as may appear desirable for the purpose of importing into the province under the provisions of any statute of Canada, or any order in council passed thereunder, wine for use in divine service.

On the 30th of September, at a regular meeting of the Board, the Chief Rabbi of the Jewish community of Toronto, waited upon the Board and, after hearing his application the following resolution was passed."

Copy of resolution passed by the Board of License Commissioners for Ontario on the 30th day of September 1919:

"Whereas representations have been made the Board of License Commissioners by the Chief Rabbi of the Jewish religion in Toronto, that it is necessary that suitable wine should be provided for the use of members of the Jewish community in Toronto during the feast of the Tabernacles or the year 1919, under the direction of the Rabbi of each congregation; and an application has been made to the Board for authority to import such wine as may be necessary for that purpose during the said feast, being a religious observance extending from Tuesday the 7th day of October until noon of Thursday on the 16th day of October, and it appearing desirable

Therefore be it resolved that Barnet Stone, residing at 633 Euclid Ave, in the city of Toronto, be appointed as special vendor, under the provisions of section six A. of the Ontario Temperance Act, for the period aforesaid, it being understood that the said wine shall be obtained through the Government dispensary at Toronto by the said vendor, who shall distribute the same under the directions of the Rabbi of each such congregation as aforesaid.

Signed,

J. D. FLAVELLE,
Chairman

For Religious Festival.

It was reported to the Board by the Rabbi that the wine referred to was for use by the Jewish community in religious observances for the purpose of celebrating the "Feast of the Tabernacles," as requested by the Hebrew Ritual; that the festival lasts for eight days, commencing on Tuesday 7th October, and ending on Thursday, 16th October. The Rabbi recommended Mr. Stone who is a member of the Jewish community for the appointment in question, and vouches for his reliability, and thereupon the appointment was made.

Acted in Good Faith.

If any irregularity, such as charged by Mr. Dewart has taken place, there is nothing to stop whoever is guilty thereof from being dealt with pursuant to the act, and until some evidence is forthcoming, proving that the act has been contravened, the Board feels justified in assuming that the authorities of the Jewish Church have acted in perfect good faith. Whatever responsibility attaches to the action of the Board, is assumed in full by the Board. Neither the Prime Minister, or the Provincial Secretary were consulted or as far as the Board is aware had the slighest knowledge of the Rabbi's application, which was dealt with the same as all other matters of business coming before the Board.

It will be noticed that the law is applicable to the churches of the Christian community, as well as to the Jews; and I presume that not even Mr. Dewart would contend that wine for communion purposes should not be available. All proper precaution had been taken by the Board in connection with this application, and if there has been any impropriety or irregularity, it will be dealt with according to law. Irrespective of who the guilty parties may be.

BRITISH MINERS AND OTHER TRADES PRESENTING AN AGGRESSIVE FRONT

Resent Lloyd George's Refusal to Nationalize Miners—Talk of Strike After October 22

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Oct. 9.—Miners and other trades unionists in all parts of the country are very restless today, following the definite declaration of Loyd George to the committee yesterday that nationalization of mines would not be considered by the Government.

No Strike Yet.

It is thought there will be no strike however, till after October 22nd when the committee will report to the Trades Union Congress in Glasgow. It is becoming increasingly evident that, apart from arguments claiming that nationalisation would be a benefit to the community, a strong feeling exists among workers that the present system of private ownership carries with it indefensible injustice to the miners. This feeling clearly rankles in the minds of workers.

Not Stop at Mines.

It is not concealed, moreover, that the present agitation, if it secures its immediate aim, will not stop at mines.

"The nationalisation of mines," says the Herald (Labor organ), "is the question immediately at issue, but it is, of course a procursor to a complete policy of nationalization of every industry. Here is the battle joined." On neither side is there any doubt that the fight will be a stern one.

DUNSFORD'S STORY AGAIN DENIED

JUDGE GORDON DECLARES REFUSED TO LISTEN TO DUNFOKD BECAUSE HE WAS A PROSECUTION WITNESS

SULLIVAN SEEN HERE APRIL 30

SEVERAL WITNESSES SWEAR THEY SAW HIM HERE ABOUT 6:30 IN THE MORNING

The police investigation this morning was continued but the evidence produced was not of the same interest as that of yesterday afternoon.

The investigation will evidently not be concluded today as Judge Huycke postponed a case he intended to hear tomorow until later as he considers he will be engaged in this investigation tomorrow.

Mr. Gordon was the first to enter the witness box and stated that there was no foundation for the statement made by Dunford yesterday that he had urged him to lie in the trial of Sullivan.

He had phoned Dunford at that time but when he found out that Dunford was a witness of the prosecution he refused to discuss the case with him. Dunford had informed Mr. Gordon that if Sullivan did not lay down and plead guilty, it would cost him $1,000. He said he had Old Joe behind him and that was how he could get Sullivan. Mr. Gordon told Dunford that he was a cheerful liar, and he could not get Stewart behind him.

"I told him to get out but I did not listen to his story because he was a witness of the prosecution."

Then Herbert Martin was called and stated that he knew Sullivan very well. He swore that he saw Sullivan at 6:35 on the morning of April 30 in the city on Romaine street, west of Park.

Then Cecil Wood, a farmer from near Kendry station was called as a witness. He swore that he was at Kendry the morning of April 3. When he arrived at Kendry there was a man there who, he thinks, was Sullivan, although he could not swear it was Sullivan. Later on Dunford came up in a Ford truck and the two of them loaded some large boxes on the truck and drove away.

He swore there was no person in the car except Dunford when it arrived but the two of them drove away when at the request of Mr. Hall Sullivan was put in the box to explain how he was at the station when Dunford arrived. They had arrived there together but Dunford said he wanted to go and phone for a man named Storen. Witness did not know this man. Dunford went north on the road to phone for Storen and it was while he was returning from phoning that Wood saw Dunford.

The next witness was Ida Burke He swore that he knew Sullivan for a long time. He met Sullivan on the morning of April 30 at 6:35 o'clock at the C. P. R. station and was talking to him when the train pulled out He told of Stewart serving him a suppeonaed to appear at the Sullivan trial. When Stewart found out that he was going to swear that he met Sullivan that morning he hesitated to suppeane him and threatened to have him connected with the liquor charges.

"I ask Stewart to give me my suppeane then because I didn't want no policemen coming up to me while I am working in the gang."

"Stewart replied that no policemen do my work, me and the police are not pulling."

"What do you know of these liquor dealings?"

"I don't know anything."

"Did you drive to Kendry in an automobile on April 30th?"

"No, I did not."

Then Constable Wiggs told of meeting Sullivan on the morning of April 30th.

"What time did you see Sullivan?"

"Between 6:30 and 6:40 o'clock."

"Did you ever go to Mr. Stewart and ask him what there was in it for reporting any liquor transactions to him?"

"I don't remember doing that."

"Did you ever hear of any police protection for liquor being stolen from Moore's house?"

"No. I never heard of such a thing"

"Is there the utmost loyalty and respect among the police force.?"

"There is;"

The next witness was J. Moncton a clerk of the Board of License Commissioners, Toronto.

He brought with him some correspondence between Mr. Stewart and the board which will probably be read this afternoon.

The court adjourned till two o'clock

DEATH SENTENCE FOR FIVE MEN IMPLICATED IN ONE MURDER

All Will go to the Gallows on the Same Date January 14th 1920,for the Murder of Philop Yanoff, Near Havelock on June 22nd Last.

The court room of the County Court House was filled to capacity last evening when one of the most tensely, dramatic scenes, in view of its probable climax in death, was witnessed. For the first time in the history of the courts of Ontario five men were sentenced to pay the supreme penalty on the one night.

It was a solemn scene and one that will be remembered for life by all those who were present.

When Chief Justice Mulock entered the court room about five minutes past eight the five convicted men were all huddled together in the prisoner's box. The court crier called the assembly to order and a dead silence filled the room for a few minutes.

Then Sir William spoke in slow, serious tones, calling upon the first condemned man, Thomas Kornchek, to stand up When asked if he had anything to say, why the sentence should not be imposed, he could not understand The interpreter told him the question, and after conferring with his lawyer, Mr Essery, he declared he was ready for sentence.

The judge then went on in slow solemn tones to explain why sentence of death must be passed upon him. He explained how the evidence went to show that it was his (Kornchek's) hand that had fired the shot that killed Philop Yanoff near Havelock on the 22nd day of June last. The evidence showed that he was a party, and possibly the central figure, in the terrible crime and the jury had on the evidence been forced to find him guilty of murder. It is they who brought in a recommendation of mercy for you, as for the others, continued the judge, and whether this will be of avail or not, is not for me to say, but I would recommend that you b not boyed up with any hope from this but occupy the three months between now and the day of the fulfillment of your sentence to prepare yourself for the great future.

Kornchek was sentenced to be hanged on the fourteenth of January, 1920, as were all other four guilty men.

Then Michael Bahri stood up in answer to his name and stated that he had nothing to say why the sentence should not now be imposed upon him The judge pointed out to him that, although the evidence goes to show that it was not his hand that fired the shot that killed Yanoff, nevertheless he was an active party in the robbery, during the course of which the terrible crime of murder was committed. And according to the laws of this land, he is equally guilty of murder and must receive the same sentence as he who fired the shot.

The evidence showed that this was the man who guided the band of desparate robbers to that bunk house on that morning on their adventure that proved of such serious consequence to themselves.

As before, Sir William urged the condemned man not to be boyed up with the hope of gaining a cancellation of his sentence by means of the recommendation of mercy, but to occupy the time before him between now and January 14 in preparing himself for the Great Future

Sam Ziluski, the bearer of the discharge button from the Canadian army and the one who is still suffering from the effects of gas poisoning, was the next to receive his sentence.

With only two remaining in the prisoner's box, Alexander Martynick stood up to answer his name. He had nothing more to say than he had stated in the witness box. The jury had brought in a very strong recommendation of mercy in his case because, according to the evidence, he was not as deeply implicated in the crime as his associates, only consenting to participate under pressure from his companions and the exhilarated feeling of strong drink [illegible] was the last prisoner to be [illegible] strong, and according to the evidence, he had accompanied his companions into that bunk house and so was responsible for the crime that was committed there.

Then, after all his companions had been taken away, Philop Rotynski stood to receive his sentence.

Sir William declared that the sentencing of these five men was the most painful act in his judicial career. He stated that it was his duty to pan sentence upon many young men for such crimes as were committed by these men and he failed to understand why men would defy the law and risk their own lives for the hope of a few dollars.

As the others, the judge implored Rotynski not to be boyd up with any hope of mercy but to urgently pray for forgiveness and future salvation. He stated to the prisoner that he was allowed ample time between now and January 14th to make reparation to his Maker for the terrible crime in which he had been involved

Then the last prisoner was led away and after an exceptionally trying session the fall assizes of the County of Peterborough ended.

The manner in which the men received their sentence to death was remarkable. Although they faced the judge with serious sorrowful expressions, not the slightest trace of panic or terror could be read in their faces. Not one of them as much as flinched when the terrible sentence was pronounced and they stood erect, without complaint, and were led away to their cell there to await, for three months the terrible consequences of their crime.

18 MONTHS FOR SINN FEIN M. P.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Dublin, Oct. 10.—Patrick O'Keefe, Sinn Fein member of Parliment for the northern division of Cork, who was acquitted on September 25 by a court martial on the charge of having arms in his possession, but who was held on further charges, including an accusation of sedition, was sentenced today to eighteen months' imprisonment for seditious utterances.

He was arrested on September 12 during raids and searches for arms carried out by the authorities here and elsewhere in Ireland.

When a Chicago street car conductor told Mrs. Ella Brown, aged 53, she "looked 60," she slapped his face.

Campaign Notes

It is the Examiner, not the members of the Provincial Cabinet, that is asleep and dreaming strange dreams.

The number of the telephone on Mr. Soden's committee rooms, 176 Simcoe street, is 1490.

Mr. Soden will speak at Bridgenorth tonight. Monday he will hold a meeting at Young's Point.

Mr. James Thompson, the Government candidate, is finding easy sledding in East Peterborough and is meeting with a flattering reception in every part of the riding. With Mr. E. S. Heyland, Toronto, he spoke at a meeting at Warsaw last night. A meeting will be held at Villiers tonight.

THE DUTY OF PATRIOTS.

The decent citizens who like an occasional glass—and we know there are many such—do not need figures to prove to them that the drink habit makes for poverty, crime, lunacy, degradation and misery. The suppression of the liquor traffic during the last few years has brought a little of heaven into multitudes of unhappy homes and appreciably improved business conditions. How then can any patriotic citizen cast a ballot in favor of the bar-room and grog shop? Toronto Star, Liberal.

HOW, THEN, can any patriotic citizen help to vote into the Premiership a man who, attempt to conceal it as he may for political gain, is opposed to prohibition?

MR. SODEN AS A CITIZEN.

THE CONSTITUENCY whose sitting members, either in the Federal or Provincial House, is politically opposed to the Government in power, is under a decided disadvantage, owing to the present sytem under which the country operates. In that case the defeated candidate really has more influence at headquarters than the elected representative, and it is to the [illegible] constituency must look for anything in the way of favors

This has been the situation in West Peterborough for the past five years. Mr. R. J. Soden has served this riding well during that period, and his services have been renderd not only without compensation but at a financial sacrifice.

It was Mr. Soden who secured a $300 grant from the Ontario Government for the 93rd Battalion when Premier Hearst had allotted a certain sum among various districts for recruiting purposes.

Mr. Soden it was who in all cases where provincial public works and building contracts were concerned represented the claims of Peterborough builders and dealers in supplies for recognition and a share in the business. In this work no distinction was made as to the political affiliation of the persons interested.

Mr. Soden has in the time referred to secured for the County of Peterborough upwards of $3000, to be expended on colonization roads. This money went to the northeast section of Smith township, to Harvey, Galway Cavendish and Ennismore.

Mr. Soden has always been active in the interests of the local Agricultural Society. Before the war he headed a deputation of local citizens to Toronto. It was Mr. Soden who on that occasion urged a grant of $25,000 to establish a Winter Fair in Peterborough and an annual grant of $5000 thereafter for prizes to encourage the live stock industry in this section. There is no question that, but for the war, this request would have been granted, and a fat stock show would now be one of the institutions in Peterborough.

It was Mr. Soden who, with President Denne and R. H Turner, of the Fair Board, accompanied Premier Hearst the other day on a visit to Exhibition Park by way of preliminary to the renewal of the request for the grant above referred to. Premier Hearst was impressed with the extent of the arrangements, the up-to-date equipment If Mr. Soden as a private citizen has been able to ac- and teh prospects of a grant are brighter than ever. complish what he has since his defeat in 1914, how much greater will be his influence and opportunities if he is sent to the Legislature as the elected representative from West Peterborough?

WILL MR. GILLESPIE ANSWER?

MR. GILLESPIE has been nominated by the Liberals. He has opened his campaign. Will he tell the electors whether he would, if elected and the opportunity arose support Hartley Dewart for the Premiership?

THE LIBERALS AND THE ISSUE.

WE BELIEVE that if the Examiner was more conversant with the political history of the Province, and if it had a clearer understanding of the present situation, it would not make so many rash and foolish statements with regard to the Liberal party's record on the temperance question. It would let sleeping dogs lie instead of stirring them up to make mischief. Even a tyro in politics will leave alone the odious record of his own party rather than make a search for virtue where none exists.

How can the temperance people of Ontario be asked to confide in the Liberal party in the face of the record? Three times under Liberal regime Ontario voted itself dry and three times the majority were disappointed as to any result of their declaration. The late Sir Wilfrid Laurier prior to 1896 promised, if elected, to submit the temperance question to a fererendum vote. He did so, and exary province in the Dominion except Quebec declared for prohibition. The late Liberal Administration seized upon Quebec's attitude as an excuse for shelving the whole question.

Pressed into a corner by the temperance people of Ontario, the late Sir Oliver Mowat, at that time Provincial Premier, took a temperance plebiscite and again the moral reformers triumphed. The Government refused to accept the mandate, but for the purposes of delay raised the point that the liquor question was not a provincial matter, but came within Federal jurisdiction. This point was eventually settled by the Privy Council when it was decided that the enactment of a general prohibitory law was a provincial right. Even with this ruling to guide them the Liberal Government maintained their partnership with the liquor interests.

The late Sir George Ross, while Premier, took another temperance plebiscite, and the majority for prohibition was nearly one hundred thousand, certainly sufficient to assure the enforcement of the law, had it been enacted. However, the vote was surrounded by so many conditions that the wily politicians in power at the time found no difficulty in evading the issue again and once more the liquor tramc was left undisturbed.

The Liberal party did have a sincere temperance advocate in the person of Newton W. Rowell, but he was unable to win the confidence of the public, three times the dupe of Liberal pledges. Mr. Rowell has been read out of the Liberal party because two years ago he did his duty as he saw it when winning the war was the paramount issue. Mr. Rowell has been replaced as provincial leader, not by a man whose temperance principles are above question, but by a man whose record stamps him as an opponent of prohibition. Hartley Dewart was elected a member of the Legislature, he was placed in the leadership by the anti-prohibitionists in his own party. There were others from whom to make a choice, but two temperance men in the Legislature were passed over for Mr. Dewart.

How can the Examiner prate of the righteousness of its party in the face of such a record? How can Mr. Gillespie, with such a leader, appeal to the temperance voters of West Peterborough for support? Make Hartley Dewart Premier of Ontario and ways will be found for rendering the Ontario Temperance Act of no effect if it is sustained. The party that has disregarded the verdict of the temperance people three times already is likely to repeat its breach of faith.

AND THERE'S THE DANGER.

EX-MAYOR DUFFUS, in his address at May's school house last night, showed that he is not satisfied to have Mr. Gillespie serve in the Opposition. He wants him and his friends in power. This means Hartley Dewart as Premier, the real danger in the situation. The ex mayor has made it plain that a vote for Mr. Gillespie means a vote for Mr. Dewart.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

LEARN to vote "no" and to vote it four times.

* * * * *

VOTING "no" has the edge on merely saying it.

* * * * *

IS IT TO BE [illegible] for the clerks or books for the children?

* * * * *

MILK as well as booze is likely to play a prominent part in the present campaign.

* * * * *

WOMEN should remember that they can vote for a candidate as well as for one of the candidates.

* * * * *

THERE MUST BE no strike of the voters one week from Monday. The issues involved are too grave

* * * * *

THE SINCERE temperance Liberal finding nothing possible to say in favor of the party leader proceed to say it.

* * * * *

DON'T PIN your faith to the slippery gentleman profuse with promises. Back up the man who has done things.

* * * * *

THERE IS ALWAYS the risk that Hartley Dewart may be Premier A vote for Mr. Gillespie means a step nearer the goal of ambition of the leader.

* * * * *

IT IS SUCH guileless faith as The Examiner seems to have in the promises of its own party that has made the masses dupes and victims for ages.

* * * * *

PROVIDENCE is on the side of the strongest battalion whether strength is due to numbers or morale, and on the side of the majority provided they vote right.

* * * * *

WHEN THE VOTERS elect five members to the Board of Education next January they will look for some men who can make a better attendance showing than seven meetings out of a total of sixteen.

* * * * *

THE ALIEN may vote against prohibition, but the alien has no right to attempt to force upon the people of Ontario the same social conditions as those in Europe and from which he fled.

* * * * *

IN ALL THIS temperance movement, from the day he decided to introduce war-time prohibition Premier Hearst has never been accused of an attempt to play politics.

EGGS WERE 5 CENTS A DOZEN

According to history the Roman Emperor Diocletian, 1,600 years ago, fixed the price of eggs at 5 cents a dozen, and the wages of unskilled labor at 15 cents a day. The prices of other articles of food were proportional to these, and a Roman laboring man could thus, if he wished to, buy three-dozen eggs a day Along in the seventies here in America the wage of unskilled labor had climbed to a dollar a day, and eggs in the season of their plenty sold for 12 cents a dozen. The laboring man had scored again, for he could then take eight dozen eggs home with him at sunset if he so desired.

During the last few years it has been a neck-and-neck, nip-and-tuck race between eggs and wages and their relative position has not greatly changed. Eggs, "State fresh" and "We stern fresh," are now quoted at home at about 50 cents a dozen, though the "actually fresh" are somewhat more. As for wages it is not clear what the average for unskilled labor is. But if it be about $4, the toiler can still accumulate eight dozen eggs a day, whereas if it is only $3.50 or thereabout the agile egg is beating him in the race. Skilled labor however, has left the hopelessly distanced egg at the quarter pole, and even half skilled labor has left it far behind.

The Window Cleaners' Union of New York City has formulated its demand for $36 a week, which is equivalent to twelve dozen eggs a day, and the modest ultimatum of drivers of retail milk wagons is for $50 a week, a 2 per cent. commission on sales, a six hour day, with time and a half for overtime, and double pay for overtime on Sundays This would probably figure to something like $56 for the seven days, equal to sixteen dozen eggs, which would keep 192 egg-a-day hens if there is such a productive bird at work throughout the year.

It thus appears that since Diocletian's day wages measured in the necessities of life, have increased about fivefold, and the world is clearly moving toward a state of affairs when the manual workers will have all the eggs and none will be left for the nonproducer—doctor, lawyer, merchant, priest and other physical drones of the human family who work with nothing but their brains—Rocheeted Post Express.

RESPOND GENEROUSLY

Editor Review: It is to be hoped that there will be the usual generous response tomorrow to the appeal ro the Children's Aid Society. There are no paid officers in the society except the inspector and matron who devote there whole time to the work of the society. The results of the work are apparent, to all who have the welfare of little children at heart. The aim of the society is to co-operate with parents and others so as o prevent conditions arising where children are neglected. As a last resort, children are taken from homes where they have been neglected and placed in good foster homes. Let us remember these children when we are tagged tomorrow.

BELOVED SOVEREIGN OF THE BELGIANS

KING ALBERT, THE FIRST RULER TO MEET THE GERMANS IN BATTLE, TOURING THE UNITED STATES

While Canada is entertaining the rehabilitation of Belgium.

Prince of Wales, King Albert, Queen Elizabeth and Crown Prince Leopold of the Belgians are travelling in the United States, the guests of that nation.

King Albert is the first European sovereign to visit this continent while a reigning monarch

The King of the Belgians whose rule has made a little people great needs no introduction to the readers of the Family Herald and Weekly Star.

The war is too recent and the "Scrap of Paper" incident too memorable to be easily forgotten.

There is no more stirring picture in the early days of the war than that of the Belgian King before his Parliament on August 4, 1914, throwing down the gauntlet to Germany. His last words were:

"I have faith in our destiny. A country [illegible] the respect of everybody; that country does not perish. God will be with us in this just cause. Long live independent Belgium!"

Brave and Steadfast.

Tall, of soldiery bearing, strikingly handsome, Albert took immediate personal command of his armies and led them to battle.

David defying a Goliath—but the courage of the man compelled admiration and no amount of propaganda—and the Germans saw to it that there was plenty of it—could shake the allegiance of his followers.

He saw the advance of the invader; his people in chains, his cities ruined, his industries laid waste, but his spirit was unconquerable. Both as prophet and warrior, he never failed.

In the concil chamber as well as on the field of battle, he was the wise leader of his people.

A King without a country, he went from city to city advising evacuation and prophesying the days of the return, until there was left to him only a small unoccupied corner of his kingdom. Yet the Belgian army helped by the allies, fought bravely on and to the very end of the war held tenaciously to its portion of the line.

Meanwhile Queen Elizabeth was doing in a humanitarian way what her consort was doing in a military one.

The Queen, who holds a degree of M.D., first took her three children to England, where she left them safely housed as guests of Lord and Lady Curzon, and then returned to Belgium.

Not content with establishing a hospital at La Panne, in the uniform of a Red Cross nurse she visited the soldiers in the trenches and was on occassions exposed to as much danger as was her husband.

King's Second Visit.

This is the second visit of King Albert to the United States. A year before his accession to the throne in 1909 he toured that country to study its industrial methods.

Unattended except by a personal physician and a military tide, he made a reputation then for indefatigable study and easy democracy that still is remembered by those with whom he came in contact. He spent several weeks of the first visit in the steel mills of Pennsylvania.

He found keen enjoyment in working as a newspaper reporter and actually covered police assignments for a paper in Brooklyn and for a paper in the Middle West.

King Albert came to the Belgian throne because of the deaths of the Count de Hainaut, King Leopold's son at the age of ten; and of Prince Baldwin, his own brother, who was mysteriously killed. His own father was in line for the succession, but renounced his claims. Prince Albert, son of the Count of Flanders, was the only remaing male offspring of the Belgian Coburgs. The Count of Flanders was the younger brother of King Leopold.

On this visit the King will combine business with pleasure, and study educational and industrial methods and seek to establish credits for the

In connection with credit, information in Wall Street is that a group of bankers there are planning to lend $50,000,000 to Belgium as a bit of private business enterprise.

King Albert is forty-four, but looks a hardened veteran and lines of care in his face tell of the strain he has been through.

His custom is to dress simply in the uniform of a general of artillery. He wears no insignia except braided shoulder straps that might distinguish him from the staff officers.

The Scene in Brussels.

King Albert accompanied by Queen Elizabeth, Princes Leopold and Charles, and Princess Marie Jose, entered Brussels in triumph at 10.30 a.m., November 22, 1918. The King rode over flower-strewn pavements. The sound of cheering was incessant. Behind the King were his two sons, the Crown Prince and Prince [illegible] including picked ones from America, participated in this celebration of victory. A correspondent who witnessed the triumphant entry of the King into his capital wrote:

"I have seen many great ceremonies at many places. It is easy to be superlative, but I have never seen so vast and various a crowd so carried away by a tumult of fervor. Put a modern artillery barrage into terms of delight and you have some indifferent measure of the concentrated ecstacy of a people who felt that their release from captivity coincided with the birth of the millenium.

"The royal family stood for the return of peace. The King was at the head of the army which had won that peace by its sacrifice."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FISHERS OF MEN.

Lesson II. October 12, 1919.

The Golden Text.—"Jesus said unto them. Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men."—Mark 1 : 17.

The Lesson Text.—Mark 1 :14-20

The time—A.D. 28. The Place near Capernaum.

Lesson Text Illumined.

14. After John was delivered up to Mark the imprisonment of the Baptist marked a crisis in events. It provided scope and occasion to Jesus for a wider ministry. John, on the contrary mentions it only incidently. John 3 : 24. Jesus seems to have withdrawn from Judea probably to avoid a premature clashing with the official classes. Jesus came into Galilee. This is the beginning of Jesus' Galilaen ministry. Galilee was the richest and most populous and cosmopolitan part of Palestine. The rabbis used to say, "In Galilee they wade in oil." Preaching the gospel of God. Preaching not healing, is here emphasised. In all the four Gospels preaching rather than healing is given preeminence. The message was the good news of salvation.

15. The time is fulfilled. Already in the atmosphere there was a feeling that human history was about to culminate in some wonderful Person! The Kingdom of God. The expression was not a new one; it underlay the teaching of the entire Old Testament, and of the Theocracy, Daniel had deepened its significance. Dan. 7 : 14. Jesus made it still more spiritual. Life and immortality were about to be brought to light. Repent ye, and believe. Two of the fundamental and primary ideas of the gospel. Jesus took up the message of repentance where John left off. The new word belive involved deep spiritual faith both in him as a Person and in his testimony. Later, Jesus preached himself as the object of faith. Paul also preached repentance as well as faith. Cr. Acts 20 : 21.

16. By the sea of Galilee. The sea is about thirteen miles long and seven and a half broad. Its waters are easily perturbed because it lies so low (six hundred and eighty feet below the Mediterannean) among the hills. The Jordan River empties into it and flows out from it. Many varieties of fish not found elsewhere except in the lakes of Central Africa, abound in it. The district of Galilee is appropriately called the birthplace of Christianity." Simon Called also Peter Matt. 16 : 18, and in Aramaic; Cephas; John 1: 42. Andrew. A Greek name. Both had been presumably followers of the Baptist.

17. Come ye after me. Christ needed helpers. Accordingly, he set about choosing the men to follow him. The glory of the teacher is the character of his disciples. Those of Jesus would require training. The word "disciple" does not, however occur till ch. 2 : 15. It is used but once in the Old Testament Isa. 8 : 16, "seal the law among my disciples." Note that Jesus takes the initiative in calling them. And I will make you to become fishers of men. They were summoned to a new kind of work; yea to a work analagous to their present occupation of fishing. As Origen suggests "Their earthly employment was a parable to their divine vocation. As David was taken from the sheepcote to be a shepherd of Israel, and Paul from his tent-making to be a maker of heavenly tabernacles, so they were taken from their boats to be fishers of men." (D. Smith). They were destined to become also apostles; while Jesus lived they remained disciples and learners, but when their three-years' course was ended he commissioned them to go forth as "apostles." The name "apostle" occurs but once in this Gospel, Mark 6 : 30.

18. And straightway. Mark emphasizes the alacrity with which all was dispatched by Jesus and his followers. He conveys the impression and correctly so, that Jesus possessed marvellous magnetic power. These disciples seem to have abandoned their nets "instanter" without giving them another thought.

19. James.....and John. Another pair of brothers, in a boat, preparing their fishing gear for the following night's work. According to Luke 5 :10, they were "partners" with Simon. Note that Jesus called men already busy! In due time these two, with Simon Peter, constituted the inner circle of the Twelve.

20. They left their father Zebedee. Not alone, however, but with the hired servants Salome, their mother, is naturally not mentioned.

THE FEATHER FAN.

It Has Become the Rage In Old London.

The latest and most up-to-date of all novelties in London are the new screen fans, shaped like a dainty hand mirror and composed of five shaded ostrich feathers that are ever so slightly curled at the tips. They are much in request for wedding gifts—indeed, the feather fan reigns supreme this season. It has banished those of gauze, hand-painted with lively Watteau or Condor scenes, while lace fans are equally out of date.

Even for day wear the new brilliant colored single feather fans are carried, a long, bright orange, green, cherry or purple feather mounted in a gold, ivory or amber stick adding in no small way to the smart effect of a lovely race or garden party toilette.

Among other new ideas is that of using white or natural colored eagle feather fans for day wear, several of these having made their appearance at luncheon parties and matinees during the heat wave. The brilliancy of the scene in the Opera House was considerably enhanced this season owing to the use of vivid feather fans that produce daring but most effective splashes of color all over the stalls.

Another lovely new fan design is what is known as the Prince of Wales fan, composed of three enormous white ostrich feathers arranged in imitation of the famous crest adopted by the heir apparent. These are almost invariably carried by debutantes, while women of more mature age are turning their attention to magnificent fans composed of delicately shaded ostrich feathers mounted on mother of pearl or blond tortoise shell sticks, the plumes being long at one end and arranged so that they gradually slope down until they end in a cluster of curled tips on the opposite side.

Where all the money comes from to purchase these extravagant trifles is one of the mysteries of the moment, for $100 to $125 is no uncommon figure to pay for a feathered screen nowadays. Still debutantes who cannot afford to purchase at these prices are cleverly getting around the difficulty by having long, discarded feathers, formerly used as hat trimming, dyed brilliant shades of orange, scarlet, Chinese blue and green and mounting them in the new straight effect.

A favorite fashion of utilizing old feathers of this sort is to dye them and curl the ends ever so slightly and then mount them in groups of threes, so that when closed the feathers lie absolutely one behind the other, imparting a far richer and more luxurious appearance than that achieved by a single plume, no matter how long it may be.

Britain Scraps Old Navy.

The Admiralty, says the London Telegraph, is going to dispose of about 160 men-of-war of various types as soon as the arrangements for their sale can be completed, and others also are marked down for the scrap heap at early dates. For the old Victorian navy is passing — the men-of-war which figured in the great reviews at Spithead in 1887, 1897 and 1902, and those other vessels which were accustomed to fly the British flag in the outer seas before, in preparation for Armageddon, we began to call home the distant squadrons and concentrate our power for the duel with Germany.

It is about fifteen years since Lord Fisher, then recently appointed First Sea Lord, enunciated the principle that a ship which had small chance of fighting successfully against fair odds or of running away from an overwhelmingly superior opponent, should be done away with. They were death traps for the officers and men; they might lower our prestige in war; and they involved heavy annual charges in peace for upkeep. For you cannot keep an old ship without a yearly bill for repairs, and even a skeleton crew costs money. Scores of admirals and captains on the wrong side of the meridian of life shook their heads when it was announced that a number of these obsolete ships were about to be broken up. Now, after the war, we can all be wise, and it is realised that the defect of the policy was that it was not carried out with sufficient ruthlessness; many ships were retained in deference to uninstructed opinion.

Sky Went Along.

A woman was leaving a home where she had been very happy, and, as she boarded the train which was to take her away, the tears came fast. Her little son, anxious to comfort her, tried the effect of a cheering discovery he had just made. "Why, mother," he exclaimed, "the sky is going right along with us." Other faint-hearted people need to make the same discovery. No matter what we leave behind, the best goes with us.

How Nurse Cavell Aided The British Prisoners.

In Escaping From Huns

THE story of the system by which Nurse Cavell was able to help British soldiers to escape from the Germans, is told in an article in the London Daily Mail by Ferdinand Tuohy.

The writer explains that the facts came into his possession at Ypres, 1915, when the British there decided to publish a Christmas paper called "The Salient." Amongst the contributions received was a manuscript entitled "A Modern Scarlet Pimpernel" and across it a general officer had scrawled "Go very carefully with this. We don't want to give anything away." At that time Nurse Cavell had been in the grave but a few weeks and there was danger of making known the facts which might have led to further arrests. Following is the story:

"There are those who affirm that all romance has been stripped from war nowadays and who sigh for the days of Roundhead and Cavalier, of the Red Cap and My Lady Guillotine, or even the days of '70. We would direct the attention of such to the shifts adopted by a certain Belgian nobleman and his sister (the Prince and Princess de Croy) in order to get Allied soldiers out of the country into Holland during the first months of the war. The prince's chateau was in the district of Mons and the big German advance swept up and over it like a tidal wave, leaving behind it a scattered jetsam of detached officers and men, the collection and returning to England of whom now became the self-imposed task of the prince and his sister."

The princess went to Brussels, disguised as a peasant woman, in a cart and saw Edith Cavell, an old friend. To her she outlined her plan.

The chateau at Mons was to be the rallying centre for all Allied fugitives, both wounded and unwounded. The peasants would lead fugitives there by night, and the signal would be sand thrown at a certain window. The princess proposed to establish "forwarding agents" along the line of route to the Dutch frontier, whose duty it would be to give food and shelter to the fugitives as they arrived attended by duly accredited guides. Would Miss Cavell act as one of three such forwarding agents in Brussels?

The Englishwoman, readily agreed. She had, she said, already been sheltering British fugitives of her own accord. Miss Cavell was to keep the men in Brussels till they could safely be got away to the frontiers.

On being reminded that the Germans had threatened to shoot anyone caught harboring Allied soldiers, Miss Cavelle replied: "We must take the risk. We are doing no harm, only helping our own people. A German woman would do the same."

After more details, the narrative continues:

"After the system had been working some time the Germans got much stricter, and only parties of two or three could be got through to Brussels, and these had to have false identification papers prepared. The princess took the men's photographs, while the prince forged the signatures and stamps."

Miss Cavell used, herself, to take the men to the rendezvous. She warded off suspicion by sending her fugitives out into the crowded streets by day if they were French or Belgian, and by giving them work as orderlies in her hospital if they should be British and tongue-tied. So that whenever the Germans called they would find everything in order. Many fugitives, unfortunately, were caught, and when in civilian clothes, or even if still in uniform, were shot out of hand.

All through the spring and summer of 1915 the process of smuggling the fugitives into Holland continued. "Miss Cavell was splendid. She went on with her own work all the time, nursing Germans, French and Belgians. She never made a slip from beginning to end. She was ultimately given away by one or two of the men she had saved writing to thank her. The Germans intercepted these letters."

Events now moved rapidly. "Bourg" was the first to be arrested. Miss Cavell warned the prince, and it was decided that he should disappear to clear the air. The prince, however, would never have gone had he known of the wholesale arrests that were to follow. In effect, a week later the Germans arrested 30 persons, including the princess and Miss Cavell. Few were allowed a lawyer. In order to extract information from the prisoners, none of whom would answer any questions, the Germans introduced agents masquerading as fellow-prisoners into the cells. These bogus prisoners, acting on definite instructions, succeeded in drawing out several of the real prisoners and making them talk, as evidence at the "trial" afterwards showed.

The narrative concludes: "The prince had conceived a great admiration for Miss Cavell. There was no real evidence against her, but she refused to deny having helped our soldiers. To the end she thought of others, and, when seated beside the princess at the trial, pretended not to know her."

We know the rest. At 9 o'clock on the night fixed for the execution of Miss Cavell neutral diplomats hurried to the Theatre Royal, where von Bissing and von der Lancken were enjoying themselves.

"The matter is entirely in the hands of the military governor," said the former.

"Monsieur," said the Spanish Minister, "you are committing more than a crime. You are committing an error."

King Invented Loving Cup.

It is said that the origin of the "loving cup" is traceable to Henry IV of France. While hunting he strayed from his companions, and feeling thirsty called at a wayside inn for a cup of wine. The serving maid, on handing it to him as he sat on horseback, neglected to present the handle. Some wine was spilled, and the king's white gauntlets were soiled. As he was riding home the thought came to him that a two-handled cup would prevent a recurrence of this accident, so he had a two-handled cup made at the royal potteries and sent it to the inn. On his next visit he called again for wine, when to his astonishment the maid, having received instructions from her mistress to be very careful of the king's cup, presented it to him by holding it herself by each of its handles.

At once the idea struck the king that a cup with three handles was the thing needed. The idea was promptly acted upon, for, as his majesty quaintly said, "Surely out of three handles I shall be able to get one."

Settling on the Land In Palestine.

A glimpse of Palestine in progress from past to future is afforded by an account of the little colony of Yemenians, Jewish emigrants from southern Arabia, who began to assemble a few years ago to live by wood-cutting in the neighborhood of the forests of some 100,000 trees that had been planted in the district of Judea. The forests are part of a large plan for the reforesting of Palestine; and to house the woodcutters small cement cottages were built at a cost of about 1,000 francs each, each with its garden and its opportunity for the homekeeper to buy his home by installments. Dwellings now stand which house 130 or 140 families, and the colony of woodcutters is one of several similar groups in which families naturally strongly attached to the soil have been settled in Palestine, cultivating small farms, and progressing toward independent ownership. In some cases the colonies are co-operative; a single large farm is run by several families who share its profits, and at the same time pay wages to additional laborers. The experiments are still too young to be at all conclusive, but they are succeeding in their small way, and they are very likely the beginning of a wide and wholesome development.

Experiments have shown that the average speed of an ordinary snail is at the rate of one mile in fourteen days.

CANADA'S PROSPERITY RESTS WITH YOU

Continued Business Activity and Good Wages Depend on Canada's New Victory Loan

DURING the past four years Canada's prosperity has been due largely to orders from Great Britain and our Allies.

Canada was able to obtain these orders because she advanced credit to these countries.

Canada was able to give this credit only because you bought Victory Bonds.

Great Britain, with France, Belgium, and other Allies, are now prepared to place large orders with us for the products of our factories, farms, forests and fisheries—provided Canada again gives them credit.

Credit must be given if we are to have any guarantee of good times and good wages. But our workers on these orders must be paid their wages in cash; so, much of the money that you invest in Victory Bonds will go out in wages to Canadians.

You will be absolutely protected—you will get a good rate of interest and all of your money will be paid back at the time stated in the Bond.

Every cent will be spent in Canada, and ultimately circulate to the benefit of all.

Canada can give this credit only if you again buy Victory Bonds.

If Canada is not able to give this credit, other countries will.

Therefore Canada's continued prosperity rests with you.

A MILITARY GENIUS

TRIBUTE IS PAID TO SIR HENRY WILSON.

Premier David Lloyd George Tells How the Former Chief of the Imperial General Staff Foresaw the Great German Campaign of 1918—He Was Also Instrumental In Carryying Through Vital War Arrangements.

BUT little is known by the general public of the great services performed in the war by Sir Henry Wilson, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, recently made a field marshal, and therefore on this account the tribute paid to him by the British Prime Minister on the occasion of a dinner in his honor a short time ago will be interesting. Mr. Lloyd George said:—

"We meet to-night to do honor to a great soldier. He rendered essential service to his country at the most critical moment in its great storm, and rendered greater service to his country than is generally known, for among his defects is one of excessive modesty. The first time I ever met Sir Henry Wilson was, I think, in 1911, at the Committee of Imperial Defence. Owing to the arrogance and the arbitarry action of the German Government the peace of Europe was being menaced and the Committee of Imperial Defence was suddenly summoned to consider the situation Under the direction of Lord Haldane he made arrangement with Marshal Foch (then Gen. Foch) for the Expeditionary Force that the Government decided to send in 1914. Those arrangements came into operation as the result of the work done by Sir Henry Wilson, and they came into operation in a way which was very characteristic of him. There was no noise, there was no fuss, there was no advertisement about it, there was no hitch. No one knew that it was done until it had been done, and no one knew that it had been done by him. It was sent with expedition, it was sent with promptitude, and was the most perfect piece of machinery I have seen at work in the course of the war and it was his task.

"I will give you the second service, a section of the [illegible] that he rendered, and that those of us who have been working behind know the value of even more than the general public—because it was one of the things that you did not wish to bring to the notice of the general public—and that was the work he did in smoothing difficulties between allies.

"When you come to the different races, different nationalities, fundamental differences of temperament and outlook, it is exceedingly difficult to get combined action, to remove suspicions which are always lurking about, and which you always get people prepared to foster. We were unable to marshal the whole of our overwhelming forces and often to concentrate them at one point because we were dealing with one great nation and army and because we had four or five different nationalities and nations to deal with. It was one of the essential difficulties, and no man did more to overcome those difficulties, to weld it into one force, to promote good feeling by his tactics, by his adroitness, by his good temper, his good humor—no man did more than Sir Henry Wilson.

"Now I come to the third great service—the part he took in coordinating the strategy of the Allies and getting something like unity of command. He had a great plan in that. The setting up of the great Council of Versailles for the coordination of the strategy of the Allies was due very largely to his inspiration. He was put in charge of the British section there. He set about the task with a good deal of his characteristic ingenuity. He split up the sections there into a British section and a German section. The German section was to devise all sorts of diabolical schemes for the destruction of the Allies; the British section was to do its best to counter all these machinations. By that means there was an attempt to project yourself into the mind of the enemy and find out what he was likely to do next. I gave you an inadequate picture of Sir Henry Wilson's account of the Expeditionary Force in the Agadir days. I can give you another picture. It was in January, 1918, when he unrolled the map—I think Lord Milner was there—in the Hall at Versailles, a map of the great battlefield on the Western front, and he then explained the conclusion he had come to with the aid of very able assistants whom he had there with him, and the view he took of the probable German strategy in 1918. He played what he called a war game, and he showed us how in his judgment the Germans for the first time were going to develop an absolutely new plan of attack. In his judgment they were going to concentrate 100 divisions opposite the British front. They were going to put the whole of their strength into breaking our line on a very wide front in the Cambrai district to the south, in order to sever the French and the British armies. That was his view in January, 1918. Well, it was only too true. There is no greater testimony to the sagacity and to the foresight of the guest of the evening than the fact that he foresaw what would happen upon that occasion. It is one of the most remarkable predictions in the history of military strategy."

Odor.

No substance that refuses to dissolve in water has an odor. It is the actual substance itself floating in particles in the air, as in the case of light and sound. The camper's thing is the more powerful the odor it gives off. A pleasant proof of the fact can be had by walking in a garden after rain. It is the vapor of a liquid that smells and not the liquid in the mass itself.

A Boston paper says tests show a cow will yield 10 to 12 per cent. more milk when milked to a musical accompaniment.

Near Valdosta, Georgia, there is a lake which disappears every three or four years and then comes back again. It is three miles long, three-quarters of a mile wide, with an average depth of 12 feet.

IN EDINBURGH TOWN.

A Visit to the Scottish Royal Botanical Gardens.

The Royal Botanic Gardens and Arboretum form one of the most beautiful parts of Edinburgh, and are situated on the north side of the town. Their highest part, where Inverleith House stands, is one hundred and nine feet above sea level. They are one of three botanic gardens maintained by the state in the United Kingdom, the others being Glasnevin Gardens, Dublin, and the Royal Gardens, Kew, London. To quote from notes written by Isaac Bayley Balfour, M.D., D. Sc., professor of botany and custodian of the gardens:

"In the year 1670 a small portion of ground near Holyrood Palace was occupied by two eminent physicians for the making of a Physic garden. This was the foundation of the Royal Botanic Gardens, which are therefore after those of Oxford, founded in 1632, the eldest in Great Britain. The gardens went through various vicissitudes and were moved about the city until 1820 when the park of Inverleith was purchased by the Barons of Exchequer."

Since then several additions have been made and their present site was completed in 1876. Some people think that they are quite as beautiful as Kew Gardens, London, for, though they are smaller, they have more variety. Kew Gardens are flat, whereas the slowly rising hill in the centre of these gardens lends itself to showing up the beauty of the trees and flowers, and there is also a vividness of color on the landscape, caused by the moist atmosphere of the northern climate, which is not to be seen in the south. Liberty is given to walk on the grass, so that beauty, abundance, and freedom are its keynotes.

Entering at the east entrance, and turning to the right, one is greeted with a delicious perfume, which rises from a large bed of crimson Bourbon roses, for it is the month of June; on the wall opposite hang pink creepers and other flowers. A little farther on there is a pretty pond, shaped somewhat like a horseshoe. Just beyond that, there is a small rose garden, and every year one can see here a marvel of nature, as what looked like bunches of dried sticks in April, are aglow with beauty in June. The rose garden is half encircled by a high border of sweetbrier bushes. At the open side, a large tree spreads out its branches and seems to stand guard there. Just beyond this there is a level piece of ground on which are grown herbaceous plants. On the right is the museum, containing a series of exhibits, both interesting and instructive. Ascending a few steps, the hothouses are reached. One, especially interesting, contains insectivorous plants. In another there is a large collection of orchids (of considerable value), the coloring and form of which are both quaint and beautiful. In the last house there is a large variety of tropical plants and ferns, a lovely bit of green.

On rising ground opposite the hot houses, are large plots of new varieties of rhododendron. The flower is of exquisite shape, with delicate shades of various colors, and in summer they present one of the finest sights in the garden.

Leaving the palm houses behind and keeping to the right one passes some fine trees and beautiful flowers, and beyond them again is the west entrance to the gardens, opposite which is a small forest of very tall trees. A little farther on is what Shelley might have called "a little Paradise of wilderness." Here the groups of trees, deordars, Japanese cedars, Californian big trees, while sheltered beneath them, grow masses of tall ferns and bright-hued flowers, with walks of green turf between the plots. Beside this is the rock garden, where many rare plants are to be seen. A small, artificial waterfall runs through it, and a monument is erected here to Linnaeus, the great Swedish botanist. Crossing the garden, and following a path up the hill, one gets a panoramic view of Edinburgh, with its castle towering in the air, the Pentland hills making a fine background.—Christian Science Monitor.

Valuable Furniture.

Commenting on the fact that a collector of objects that have acquired interest because of some past use recently paid $57.50 for the bed in which the Prince of Wales, afterward Edward VII, slept when he visited Boston in 1860, an American newspaper prints an odd and interesting list of similar purchases. Once $7,500 was paid for a chair in which Washington and Jackson had sat—not together, for in that case it would presumably have been worth even more; $700 was once paid for a bed that had belonged to John Wesley; $4,500 was paid for a letter written by Mary, Queen of Scots; $600 for Marat's bath tub; $440 for the wig worn by Immanuel Kant while meditating his philosophy; and $1,000 for the wig under which Laurente Sterne lucubrated the character of Uncle Toby. One may imagine that this difference in the price of wigs marks a corresponding difference in the human appeal of Uncle Toby and the "Critique of Pure Reason." But who, having purchased George Washington's chair, would dare sit down on it?

Cynical.

Gladys Unger, the playwright, has a cynical kind of wit.

"Lord Ego is so poetical," a chorus girl said to her one day.

"Poetical? I never noticed it. Why do you think Lord Ego poetical?" Miss Unger asked.

"Why, you know," said the chorus girl beautifully. "When I accepted his proposal of marriage last week he said he felt like an immigrant entering a new world." ●

"Oh, I see—just landed," said Miss Unger.

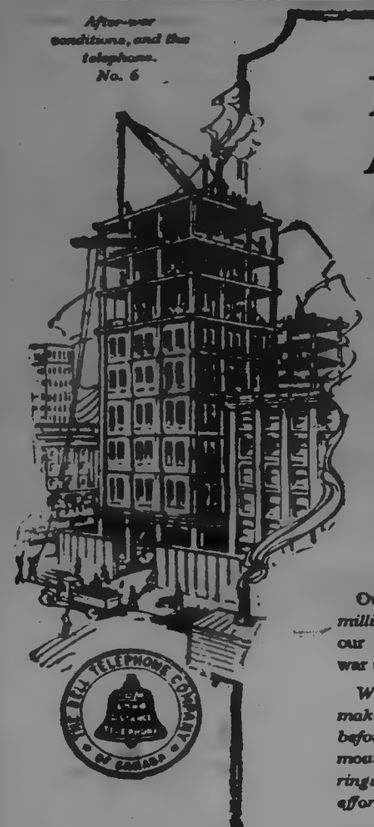
After-war conditions, and the telephone. No. 6



New Buildings Are Necessary!

COSTLY and intricate telephone apparatus must be housed in substantial fire-proof buildings.

Although building material and labor were never more expensive, we must erect in the near future new exchange buildings or important extensions at Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec, Shawinigan, Joliette, London, Chatham, Woodstock, Welland, Pembroke, Oakville, Bowmanville, Renfrew, Trenton, Brampton.

New exchange buildings mean additional underground conduit, underground and aerial cable, switchboards, wiring—and all this in addition to the task of catching up on maintenance and repairs accumulated as a result of the five-year shortage of labor and material.

Our programme for 1919, involving an outlay of seven millions, we hope to complete, while all the time doing our utmost to keep our service up to the best pre-war standard.

We ask the co-operation of all telephone users. To make sure of the number by consulting the directory before calling; to speak distinctly, directly into the mouthpiece; and to answer promptly when the bell rings—these practices are an immense aid in the effort for better service.

OMEMEE VOTERS ARE BEHIND DR. WOOD

CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE HOLDS ROUSING MEETING IN THAT VILLAGE

(Special to The Review.)

Omemee, Oct. 9.—Coronation Hall was packed to the doors on Saturday night, the occasion being the first political meeting for the Conservative candidate, Dr. Wood, to be held in Omemee. Dr. Wood is an Omemee old boy and the fact that the U.F.O. candidate is a life long resident, made things particularly interesting. The Lindsay Citizen's Band, as well as many citizens of Lindsay, accompanied the candidate to the village. The Hon. Finley McDairmid, of Toronto, was to have been the speaker, but in his absence Mr. W. J. McWhinney arrived and was escorted from the train by a torch light and motor parade, headed by the band.

Mr. J. T. Beatty was chairman for the evening, and in his address welcomed Dr. Wood to the place of his birth. Mr. Beatty payed a fine tribute to the work and administration of the Hearst administration and to the ability and character of Dr. Wood.

Sir Sam Hughes.

Sir Sam Hughes, who was ever loved by the Omemee people, was given a rousing reception when he stepped forward on the platform. Dr. Wood, he said, is a man of ability and stability. Premier Hearst has the same qualities which have reflected throughout the present government. I am a great believer in responsible government—government of the people, by the people, for the people. Dr. Wood stands for all the peoples. Hearst Government is being endorsed by a broad-minded men all over the province, including a great many Liberals. Ninety-six per cent. of the men of Canada who occupy public positions were born on the farm. Beware of these fellows who come among you with their smooth talk. The farmers know their own business. They come of good stock and are not so easily hood-winked as some people imagine.

Sir Sam then asked the people to stand solid behind Dr. Wood on October 20th. The election was not a question of personality or class. It was a question of building up the country. It is a united happy country. Roll up a big majority for the people's candidate.

Mr. W. J. McWhinney.

On arising Mr. McWhinney paid a fine tribute to Sir Sam Hughes whom he declared was a great soldier and a man who did things. Sir William Hearst has proved himself a wonderful man. He was called upon to fall into the foodsteps of Sir James Whitney, one of the most courageous and efficient public men ever trusted by the people of this province. Hearst has made good. He assisted the farmers in forming over 400 clubs and societies for agricultural purposes. No fault has been found by the farmers of the Hearst administration the country was never so prosperous. These days we talk in millions when we used to talk in hundreds. Several interruptions by U.F.O. men were made during Mr. McWhinney's speech but he took it all in good part, stating he was glad of the interruption as it saved him of telling a story, singing a song or giving a step dance.

Cheer an cheer resounded through the hall when Dr. Wood appeared on the platform. It was Emily's magnificent welcome to one of her own sons who had gone out into the world and made good. The reception seemed as an inspiration to the speaker and the speech, which followed, was a masterpiece of sincerity and eloquence of launching into a convincing argument as to why the people of Emily should stand by him in the present campaign. He had no fault whatever to find with the U.F.O. candidate, but he denounced in no uncertain way the principals involved in class legislation. He is a staunch friend of the farmer, but does not believe that the farmer is quite so selfish as to think that he is the only man who should be represented by the members of the south riding of Victoria County. All classes are on an equal footing—the farmer, the merchant, the mechanic, the laborer—and every section of the country must co-operate to insure the healthy development of the country. The speaker challenged anyone in the audience to point the finger of scorn at the Hearst Government.

Dr. Wood's address was listened with breathless attention. On concluding he was cheered to the echo.

One farmer called out: "Dr Wood, you may as well quit. You'll never see it," but the remark was just treated as a joke.

Mr. John Carew.

Mr Carew is always well received in Omemee and Saturday night was no exception. His remarks in support of Dr. Wood and the Hearst administration were timely. He characterized the present government as the best Ontario had ever seen and could not understand why any class would oppose an administration that had proven itself so squarely and efficiently during its term of office.

Mr. Carew gave his reasons for not standing as the people's candidate for another term and said he was behind Dr. Wood until the last vote was polled.

During the evening Mr. MacKay, of Lindsay, rendered two vocal numbers, Miss Ethel Devell acting as pianist.

The band rendered several selections and Bandmaster Hefferman rendered a delightful cornet solo.

The meeting closed with three rousing cheers for Dr Wood, followed by God Save the King.

The U.F.O. had a little meeting outside the hall, stump speeches being made by several farmers and three cheers for Mr. Sandy being given.

Dr. Thos. Kelly of Cincinnati General Hospital, carried on a conversation while watching a fellow surgeon remove his appendix. A local anaesthetic was injected into Dr. Kelly's abdomen.

Roy McLeod, aged 55, was run over and killed by a Sydney and Louisville epress at Sydney, N.S.

While on a vacation trip at Danford Lake, Quebec, C. G. Ross, well-known civil servant, dropped dead.

A Boston dentist, who charged $25 for pulling one tooth was fined $50 for larceny.

World's Largest Building.

The Vatican palace at Rome is the largest building in the world, covering enlargements it was several centuries in building. The most extensive building in the world constructed at one time is the Pennsylvania station in New York city, which occupies eight acres of ground and has exterior walls measuring about one-half a mile. The capitol at Washington covers 153,112 square feet, or nearly four acres.

Washington's Advisers.

When Washington formed his cabinet it had but four members, the interior department being unknown, the war and navy departments being under one head, and the postmaster general being subordinate to the treasury. Nevertheless of these four positions, he gave two to Virginians, Secretary of State Jefferson and Attorney General Randolph; one to New York, Alexander Hamilton, and one to Massachusetts, Henry Knox.

Readers.

There are four sorts of readers: hour glass readers, whose reading runs in and out and leaves nothing; sponge readers, who imbibe all but only to give it out again as they got it, and perhaps not so clear; jelly-bag readers, who keep the dregs and refuse, and let the pure run through; diamond readers, who cast aside all that is worthless and hold only gems.

Sympathetic Brothers.

The boys of the neighborhood were anticipating the time when they could go fishing. Everett, noticing his little sister standing inside the yard, watching them wistfully through the fence, and listening to their plans without joining the conversation, remarked in an aside to his companions: "Gee, it must be tough to be only a girl."

Animals and Earthquakes.

One of the mysteries still unsolved is that of the sense by which the lower animals become aware of the approach of earthquakes. Birds and rats become alarmed and try to escape. Super-sensitiveness to faint shocks scarcely gives satisfactory explanation, for modern seismographs are very sensitive.

Cause for Thankfulness.

The first reason for being thankful in the morning is that you have lived to see the dawn of another day, with opportunities to finish something begun the day before and to begin something that you may be able to do better than you have ever done anything before.

Worth Trying.

It is estimated that one pound of nitrogen properly applied to the soil will increase the yield of wheat by at least one-third.

A Schoolhouse.

What a schoolhouse is the world, if our wits would only not play truant!—Lowell.

Daily Thought.

Be calm in arguing; for fierceness makes error a fault and truth discourteay.—Herbert.

If some men were to refrain from telling what they don't know it would be a great surprise to their acquaintance s.

Every cloud has a silver lining—for the umbrella man.

OMEMEE

(Special Correspondence.)

Omemee, Oct 9. Mr and Mrs. Jack Shaw, of North Bay, are renewing old acquaintances in this locality.

Mrs Murphy and daughter were visitors to Lindsay on Saturday.

A number of Omemee citizens attended the Millbrook fair on Friday.

The whole countryside turned out on Wednesday evening of last week to do honor to our returned men in the final reception. Coronation Hall was gaily decorated for the occasion. The address was read by Alderman Harry Lamb, the presentation, of which accompanied by a handsome signet ring, was made by Reeve Wilson of Emily. Many of the boys responded, the speech by Mr Tom Rice, one of our popular veterans, being applauded to the echo.

The following program was rendered under the chairmanship of Reeve Parsons:

Piano duet—The Misses Race.
Address—Rev. Mr. Scott.
Solo—Miss Corbett Peterborough.
Address—Rev. E. Roland.
Solo—Mr. Rix.
Address—Rev. Mr. Herrington.
Duet—Miss L. Parsons, Mr. E Bushnell.
Address—Rev. Mr. Stillman.
Solo—Miss Corbett.
Solo—Mr. E. Bushnell.
God Save the King!

Considerable disappointment was felt at the none appearance of Capt. Garbutt of Oshawa. A telegram was received the following morning stating that his train had been wrecked between Oshawa and Port Hope this making his engagement impossible.

Another disappointment lay in the fact that ver yfew of the boys could be persuaded to come to the platform, they being quite content to remain where they were.

The boys received were:

Emily—Louis Clancey, Newton Brown, George Raines, Earl Lowes, Timothy Donoghue, Walter Schofield, F. Reed, Albert Brooks, George Latchford, Thomas Windrim, Joseph Crowley, Percy Crawshaw, Edward Marsh, Cecil Fletcher, Joseph McAuliffe, William Faulkner, Tom Rice, Walter Harris, Edward Wood, Col. J.J. H. Fee, Lieut. F. Bradley.

Omemee—Cecil Mills, Walter Mitchell, Charlie Toole, Walter Eggleton, Alfred Eggleton, Victor Johnson, Harry Taylor, Lloyd Clement, Jack Bent, Fred Evans, H. Hosnbf, George Ganyne.

Mr. Fred Evans returned to Omemee on Tuesday evening from Kingston where he has been undergoing treatment in the Military Hospital.

Mrs. McFaddyn, of Lindsay, visited her sister, Mrs Stinson, on Tuesday, who has been seriously ill.

The account given in The Lindsay Post, of the Woods political meeting in Omemee Saturday is causing many smiles, U.F.O. shining out of every line of the write up.

Rev. E. Roland, of Brooklyn, Ont., spent a few days of last week in Omemee.

Miss Beatrice Roland has returned to her home here after an absence of several months in Toronto.

Mr. Ross Laidley and bride of Burk's Falls are spneding a few days with Mr and Mrs A. Laidley.

Mrs. Mulligan and Mrs. Arthur McCre awere visitors to Peterborough on Monday.

Mr. George Balfour, of Lindsay, paid a flying visit to Omemee on Monday.

The Misses Anne and Irene Clement, Evelyn and Ida Morton and Miss Gladys Fee attended "His Bridal Night," which was presented at the Academy in Lindsay on Friday night.

Messrs. Earnest Bushnell and Nillis Bradburn left last wek for Toronto where they have secured good positions.

The Rev. Mr. Gilforth, of Toronto preached thanksgiving sermons in Christ Church on Sunday. Special music was rendered by the choir.

Mr. Cecil Mills was a visitor to Peterborough last week.

Mr Everett Jones is spending his vaccation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Jones.

Mrs. (Rev.) James returned home a week ago after a delightful two months' visit with her mother in England.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Jos Hayes, which was held on Saturday afternoon, was very largely attended. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to Mr. Hayes and his.

Mr. William Stillman left last week for Toronto where he will resume his studies at the University.

To the Voter

DO YOU KNOW—that the beer sold in Ontario previous to prohibition ranged up to over 7% alcoholic content by weight measure, whilst the "Beer of the Ballot"—the beer for which you are asked to vote October 20th—has a strength of but 2.51%?

¶ DO YOU KNOW—that such well-known beers manufactured in the United States as Blue Ribbon, Budweiser and Schiltz—always spoken of as "very light non-intoxicating beers"—ranged up to 4.19%—sixty per cent. stronger than the "Beer of the Ballot"—the beer for which you are asked to vote October 20th?

¶ DO YOU KNOW—that in Maine, where prohibition has been in force over sixty years, the courts have held that beer of 3% alcoholic strength, was non-intoxicating—and any beer of under 3% strength was permitted to be sold as freely as ginger ale?

¶ DO YOU KNOW—that in Sweden, Norway and Denmark—as a result of the findings of Government commissions appointed to determine what was an intoxicating liquor—beer of practically the same strength as asked for in the coming Referendum is regarded as non-intoxicating and is sold everywhere, by anybody, without license, and without paying a Government tax?

MILLBROOK

(Special Correspondence.)

Stricken at Church.

The many friends of Mr. W. S. Graham, Mt. Pleasant, will regret to learn that he had a slight stroke while he was at church on Sunday, Sept. 28, and had to be assisted to his home. He is doing as well as can be expected considering his advanced years, 81.

The Great War Veterans of this district held an organization meeting in the Town Hall, Millbrook, on Saturday evening, Mr Lewis of Toronto, being in the chair.

Mr. Lewis, who is an organizer of the Veterans, gave a splendid address and explained the necessary steps in the work of organization.

The following officers were then elected:

Rev Capt. Spencer, President; Fred Deyell, Vice President; Jack Shaw, Sec.-Treas.

Committee were also elected.

Capt. Spencer then took the chair and called on several of the citizens to give addresses. Col. Johnson and Mr. Watley of Peterboro, also addressed the meeting, which closed by the singing of the National Anthem.

Late William Hudson.

The death of William Hudson, which sad event took place on Thursday, Oct. 2, 1919, at the age of 57 years, removes one of the best known and most highly respected residents of Manvers. Deceased was born in Carleton Co., and is a son of the late William Hudson. His wife was Elizabeth Morton. To their union nine children were born, eight of whom survive him, viz: Mrs. Chas Stevenson, Orono; Mrs. Sam O'Brien, Sidney Man.; Mrs. Milton Robinson, Sask.; Mrs. Alfred Godfrey, Toronto, Ont., and Harry Lawrence, Clifford and Misses Ethel home to all of whom and the sorrowing widow we join in extending heartfelt sympahty.

The funeral to St Paul's cemetery, Cavan, was largely attended. Rev. Capt. Spencer conducted the services at the house and grave.

The pall bearers were:—Messrs. Jeff and Wesley Powell, Steve Morton Alfred Godfrey, Melville Bowins and Wesley Glenny.

THORNWICK BAY.

One of the Beauty Spots of English Coast.

Thornwick Bay is not possessed of an international reputation. Indeed it is open to question if the vast majority of people who can lay claim to an intimate acquaintance with the geography of the British Isles would not have to admit that they never heard of it. Thorwick Bay, however, finds abundant compensation for the fewness of its friends in their devotion. It is content that Flamborough Head, the huge promontory on the Yorkshire coast which thrusts itself out several miles into the North Sea, should possess a name learned of every schoolboy, and it seeks no general recognition for the fact that those who know the headland well reckon Thornwick Bay amongst the most beautiful of its many stern beauties.

It is not that there is anything grim about Thornwick Bay. There are days, many of them, when a great calm pervades the bay, when the sun is shining, maybe, out of a blue sky, and the blue sky is reflected in blue waters, and the towering limestone cliffs, shaking themselves free from the deeps, now in a sheer precipice and now in giant bowlders, shimmer in the light like the white walls of some Titanic city. Nevertheless, Thornwick Bay always means business. There may be days of calm, days when the sea seems still and the cliffs seem silent, but it is only an armed truce, for Thornwick Bay bespeaks at all times the Homeric contest between land and water. There is no defeat and no victory about it, just the grand game of Greek against Greek. As Kipling has it:

Where did you refrain from us or we refrain from you?
Ask the wave that has not watched war between us two!

At the North Landing, a quarter of a mile away, a man may draw his boat up on to the white shingles, or, rather, a small but willing donkey may draw it up for him; but Thornwick Bay indulges in no such refinements. There, at high tide, the sea rolls and roars in and out of deep basins, around huge sentinel rocks, and breaks into a cloud of spray on the white bowlers which cover the shore. And even at low tide, the rolling and roaring go on just the same, as the water rush is sent pellmell amongst the seaweed-covered rocks, suddenly surmounting some giant, and pouring a great green waterfall, flecked with white, over his brown sides.

There are all kinds of vantage points from which one may see Thornwick Bay, a thousand different ledges, terraces, and small caves amongst the cliffs. Or, when the sea is in a more than usually tractable mood, one may bargain with a blue-gueriseyed fisherman to row one round from the North Landing in his white cobble, lined with red and blue. But perhaps the best view of all is from the green velvety grass on the top of the cliff, just after sunset, maybe,

When the red and white
Of Flamborough light
Begins to sweep the sea, when the last puffin has composed himself for the night, and the only sound is the muttering of the waters far below.

Human Blood-Hounds.

In the police stations of the Australian outlands, black trackers are employed to run down thieves and other criminals.

According to Mr. Norman Duncan, the author of "Australian Byways," it is largely on account of these black fellows that the fear of the law remains alive in the more remote parts of the country. The best trackers are brought straight from the bush from the half-savage tribes on the other side of the frontiers—arriving young, fresh, eager, proud of the distinction and savagely delighted in the prowess of man-hunting.

Our tracker led his trooper a remarkable chase after a horse stealer who had escaped from jail in New South Wales to the northwestern wilds. They had no real rest night or day. It was a country of wild and stony ground that took meagre impressions of the passage of a traveler, and confusing rains fell. Occasionally the tracker was almost on the heels of the fugitive. At times he lagged, failed, a week and more behind. For in the ranges the ground was so difficult for the tracker that he could not make a mile an hour.

When the tracks were lost the black fellow ran the country like a blood-hound until he had picked them up. Once the fugitive himself came to desperate straits for water; the tracker made out that he was lost and exhausted, that he had stumbled, fallen, and scraped moist mud from a dried-up spring with which to rub himself and cool his skin in that extremity of thirst and weariness. At the end of a chase of fifty-six days, during which the black fellow had tracked the man every yard of the way, they captured the fugitive.—Tit-Bits.

Asbestos Deposits.

In the Kotzebue sound region, western Alaska, there are asbestos deposits said to rival the richest in the world. Asbestos, in its natural or virgin state, is as white as snow, soft as the softest silk and lies in long strings or layers, easily torn apart with the fingers.

Your Cigar and Pipe Will Be Next!

MEMBERS of the Women's Christian Temperance Union did their best to prevent cigarettes being sent to Canadian soldiers in the trenches.

Field secretaries of the Anti-cigarette League have been working all summer organizing a national campaign to banish all forms of tobacco. It is predicted the movies will be the next to be attacked.

Professional reformers are in the ascendancy—and "the Devil loves nothing better than the intolerance of reformers".

Now is the time to check the spirit of rabid intolerance and interference with personal rights. "Hell is paved with good intentions".

Join with the Citizens' Liberty League in its honest, sincere endeavor to obtain a fair and just solution to Ontario's vexed temperance problem—the repeal of the unsatisfactory Ontario Temperance Act and the enaction of new legislation that will permit the sale of light beer and wine generally, and the sale of pure spirituous liquors through Government agencies only.

Start Campaign Against Tobacco

WASHINGTON.—The forces which won prohibition are now about to start a campaign against tobacco. Three independent organizations are working individually to banish the cigarette and the other forms of tobacco. If they cannot do it otherwise, they will strive for legislation.

The three organizations in the campaign to outlaw tobacco after alcohol are: The Anti-Cigarette League of America, the Women's Christian Temperance Union and the Committee of Fifty. Four organization meetings of the founders of this committee have already been held at the Yale Club in this City. Constitution, by laws, and a program of procedure have been drawn up.

Field secretaries of the Anti-Cigarette League have left for various parts of the country to commence an educational campaign against the weed.

DON'T BE A "MISERY-FACTORY"

Stop Headaches, Bilious Spells, Colds and Constipation with "Cascarets"—Ideal Physic!

You men and women who can't go feeling right who have headache, coated tongue, bad taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach and colds.

Are you keeping your liver and bowels clean with Cascarets, or merely shocking your insides every few days with Calomel, Salts, Oil or violent Pills?

Cascarets work while you sleep; they cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels which is now keeping you in constant misery. Cascarets never gripe, sicken or cause inconvenience and Cascarets cost so little too.

TEACHERS IN ANNUAL SESSION TALK ON PROFESSIONAL TOPICS

Inspector Mowat Explains Matters of Interest to the Trainers of Youth—President Downey Says Grants to Urban Schools Are Inadequate.

The Thursday session of the Annual Convention of the Teachers' Institute for the city of Peterborough, met in the Public Library.

Morning Session.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary-treasurer, Miss F. D. Walker, followed by the treasurer's report.

The inspector of the city schools Mr. Mowat spoke briefly of the intended amendments to the School Act, some of which are of much interest to the general public. In reference to the Compulsory Attendance Act, he said that a child of six years, who had enrolled, would be subject to attend school regularly. Blind and deaf children must attend suitable schools. The act for the School Attendance of Adolescents, would provide suitable schools for youths of from 14 to 18 years, who did not wish to attend High School, the municipality bearing only one third the cost.

Speaking of Dental Clinics, Mr Mowat said that this city was to have a dental surgery, and also medical inspection.

Mr. R. F. Downey, the chairman, referred to the heavy grant made by the Government to rural municipalities, (many of them wealthy) for educational purposes. He said that the cities did not receive adequate grants.

Mr. Mowat referred to the tendency in the United States, where the school taxes were felt to be burdensome, to appeal for government assistance in the way of increased grants.

After roll call and some further business, the two splendid reports of the delegates to the O. E. A., Miss Nichol and Miss Buck, were heard with much appreciation.

Afternoon Session.

In the afternoon, Mr. M. R. Clark outlined the Nature Study course for the two Fourth book classes.

Miss M. O'Connell and Mr. Mowat then dealt with Dewey's book, the "Schools of to-morrow." The former gave a most comprehensive resume of the book.

Thoughtful people realized that the schools of yesterday do not meet the needs of to-morrow. Dewey's idea seemed to create a rather flexible educational system, in which the school was an embryo community, and the teacher a mere watcher and helper.

Mr. Mowat pointed out that whereas schools groping for better methods and teachers experimenting, were good signs, the schools depicted by Dewey were open to criticism. The latter did not approve of drill, while Dr. Claxton, an eminent educationist says that the years from 6 to 10 are the years for memory work, and mechanical drill. The schools under discussion had not measured up particularly well, and Mr. Mowat referred to a most salient fact—the very large percentage of failures among United States students in the recent Rhodes scholarships examinations.

Miss E. Eagleson gave a much appreciated vocal solo.

Miss G. McCabe gave a delightful paper on "Art in the Schools." She spoke of the moral and cultural value of art, and the need of it in life; also the effect that the study of the beautiful produced in the life of a child. The love of the material and the sensational was becoming a substitute for the love of the beautiful. The latter would save us from the failure of the age, and make for us a civilization to rival that of Hellas.

In the discussion that followed, Mr. Mowat pointed out that the beautiful and the good must be ever kept together, quoting as a warning against their separation, that in Greece and Rome, when art was at its zenith, morality was at its lowest ebb.

Mr. Mowat told the interesting fact that a picture dealer in the city said that the boys and girls chose the pictures he sold. Children came with their parents, old the stories of pictures they studied in school, and took them into their homes.

WANTED
25 USED UPRIGHT PIANOS

Have You a Piano in Your Home That is Silent Too Much of The Time?

Then sell it to us. We will pay cash for it at a reasonable valuation, based upon the date of its manufacture and its condition. Or if you prefer, you may accept the figure as so much cash to apply towards the purchase of a Player-Piano, or an Edison Diamond Disc. Hundreds of good pianos are silent because the one member of the family that plays is not at home. A modern Player-Piano in its place would bring new life into the home, as it can be played by any member, old or young, who can reach the pedal from a bench.

For dance music, song accompaniment or any kind of piano music, one of our Player-Pianos will bring countless new pleasures into the family circle.

THE SONG ROLLS

There is a great deal of pleasure to be found in playing and singing our new song rolls, with both words and music. There is an extensive selection of the latest popular and standard songs, and any one can play the accompaniments for themselves or others to sing.

OUR OFFER AND TERMS

Come in and tell us what instrument you have that you are not getting full service from. Our representative will go and see it and place a cash valuation upon it. You may then accept this if it satisfies you, or, if you wish to replace your silent piano with one that will give you music at the wish of any member of the family, or a Diamond Disc Edison Phonograph that will give perfect re-creation of every class of music, the amount can be applied toward the purchase of your selection of the new instrumem. The balance, if any, can be arranged on convenient terms to suit you, and make the EXCHANGE AT ONCE, as we are anxious to secure at least 25 USED UPRIGHT PIANOS to fill an immediate need.

If you are unable to come to our store, do not delay investigating this opportunity. Fill in the coupon below, mail it to us, and it will receive prompt attention.

CHARGE AS FAIR A PRICE TO CONSUMER AS I PAY TO THE FARMER, REPLIES GILLESPIE

Liberal Candidate Replies To Mr. Toom's Contention That He Heads a "Budding" Combine—Declares That He Stands for Minimum Wage, Shorter Hours and Share in Profits.

At May's School House, North Monaghan, last night, Mr. G. A. Gillespie M. P. P., and again Liberal candidate in the Provincial elections, replied to Mr. Thomas Toom's charge, made in the same place Wednesday night, that he, (Mr. Gillespie,) is head of a building combine, as follows:

"I have no monopoly of the creamery business whatever, and can say that for the last number of years I have charged as fair a price to the consumer as I pay to the farmer; and I am neither ashamed of the price I pay the farmer for his milk nor of the charges I make to the consumer. And further, the past two winters, I have sold milk in Peterborough cheaper than it could be purchased almost any other city or town in the province in better milk than the farmers' raw product; milk thoroughly clarified and pasteurized to render it perfectly safe even for the youngest of children or the most delicate of adults.

In the course of his address Mr Gillespie said that after five strenuous years in the Legislature he was willing to have the electorate pass judgment on his record, which included doing his duty as he saw it in the light of events. "My policy," he asserted, "has always been, and will continue to be in the future, if elected, to support all measures, whether Liberal or Conservative that appear tained as furthering the best interests of the people as a whole.

Paucity of Legislation.

Continuing, Mr. Gillespie remarked in the paucity of new legislation the past five years owing to the war and was satisfied that both parties had worked harmoniously together in support of the glorious cause in which the nation had been engaged.

Temperance Question

This the candidate declared was not really a political issue in the election. "Tis true it brings forward again to a certain extent the temperance question of 1914, as a political issue, but with this difference: the whole question is in the hands of the people in the shape of a referendum whether a temperance war measure on the statue books shall continue in force or not; irrespective of their vote for a candidate. Mr. Gillespie re-iterated his former statement that he stands just where he did in 1914 in regard to temperance—a temperance man—but both he and his party he said, if elected would put into effect to the letter the mandate of the people as expressed through the referendum.

Labor and Unrest.

He spoke at length on labor and unrest, expressing the view that could not be expected that after a long and strenuous war, thousands of men could be demobilized and re-established in civilian life again without a measure of unrest and disturbance. But, he believes that those brave Canadians who adapted themselves to war circumstances at the front would eventually unite and hold steadily together with all who are working for that national re-construction which will bring about a return to normal conditions. He was convinced that Canada had a better and a brighter future before her than ever before.

Share of Profits.

Talking of labor conditions, Mr. Gillespie declared he takes the stand that labor must and will receive a bigger share of this world's goods in coming years than in the past. After a strenuous war period, working to capacity and long hours on the home line of defence, it is only natural, he said, that a period of relaxation should follow, "and I am," he declared, "for shorter hours and better times generally for workingmen and I expect that manufacturers and mercantile men will be found willing to concede them a shorter work day, better wages and even a share in profits.

Agricultural Interests.

Mr. Gillespie here took up the question of agriculture, which, he said, before the war was not on a fair paying basis. Taking into account salary for a farmer himself, investment, interest and maintenance, he could make no money whatever unless by absolutely grinding and stinting himself and family. Then during the war increased costs demanded increased charges to the consumer, to say nothing of some return for mental application to the science of farming, for a farmer has to use his brains the same as does a merchant or manufacturer.

The speaker at this juncture referred to his activities in parliament in the interests of the farmer. "My first act," he said, "in the house, was to see that I got a place on the agricultural committee. When I spoke to Mr. Rowell on this matter, he said there was nothing doing on that committee, and I replied that is just the reason I have for getting connected with it. At the first session of that committee, I found nothing on the slate of any moment, when I consulted with my colleagues, and we moved for increased activity. An interesting debate followed resulting in a real live Agricultural Committee, which has since then carried out partially what we in the Opposition have advocated."

Mr. Gillespie he declared his policy in regard to agriculture to be the establishment of demonstration farms in community centres all over the province where would be worked out agricultural problems with a view to putting farms on a paying business basis. "In the whole province," he went on to say "I cannot find a commission for enquiry into milk production, and yet milk is a vital question in the country today. Year by year cities, including Peterborough, have to draw from extended areas to meet their milk demand, and this naturally increases the cost. On such demonstration farms, as suggested by me, I would put into practice recommendations to the Agricultural College for the development of profitable milk producing cattle, with a view to increasing the supply of milk from districts nearby to large centres."

Farm Help.

Mr. Gillespie had a kindly thought also for farm help and declared that special houses for married men must be provided together with increased production to afford employment the year round. Re-construcion, he said must consider farm problems as well as those of manufacturers and business men.

Returned Men.

The Liberal candidate pledges himself to do all in his power for returned men and the widows and children of those who have made the supreme sacrifice. It is the duty of all he said, to give preference to returned soldiers, help them to re-establish themselves in civilian life, and even bear with them in that spirit of restlessness engendered by hard service at the front. "Through the soldier, we at home lived in peace and consequently should be willing, in our connection with the partially disabled to share some of his weaknesses now that he is being re-habilitated. I have a number of returned men working for me and not one of them but what I find first class workers. My experience is that they are willing to work and to work well.

Mr. Gillespie declared he would, if elected, support any legislation, irrespective of party, in the interests of the whole people.

Minimum Wage.

An engineer here wanted to know if Mr. Gillespie was in favor of a minimum wage—if a man is, say, out of work for some time, that an employer shall not take advantage of his need to offer him poor wages.

MRS. MAY COULD NOT WORK

Made Well and Strong by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Columbia, Pa.—"I was very weak and run down and had dragging-down pains and pains in my back. I could not get around to do my work and had to sit down and rest often during the day. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the papers and read the testimonials, so I thought I would try it. Now I am healthier than I ever was in my life, and can recommend it to any woman who suffers as I did." —Mrs. ELIZABETH MAY, R.F.D. No. 1, Columbia, Pa.

The reason Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful in overcoming woman's ills is because it contains the tonic, strengthening properties of good old fashioned roots and herbs, which act on the female organism. Women from all parts of the country are continually testifying to its strengthening, curative influence, and the letters which we are constantly publishing from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of this famous root and herb medicine.

NEW SCHOOL LAWS ARE DISCUSSED

MR. BRODERICK AT CONVENTION DEALS WITH COMPUSORY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

CHILDREN UNDER TEN EXCUSED

SHOULD THERE BE NO SCHOOL WITHIN TWO MILES OF THEIR HOME.

The afternoon's session of the County of Peterborough teachers' convention opened at 2 p.m. at the Normal Shchol. The first thing on the program was a discussion of the new school laws by Inspectors Lees and Broderick.

Mr. Broderick dealt with the new compulsory school attendance act, which comes in force in January, 1920. Some of the main clauses are:

"(1) Every child between eight and fourteen years of age shall attend school for the full term, during which the school of the section in which he resides is open each year.

"(2) Where a child over five years of age, but under eight, has been enrolled as a pupil in a public or separate school, the provisions of this Act shall apply during the school term for which the child is enrolled as if he was of an age between the ages of eight and fourteen.

"(3) No child under the age of fourteen years shall be employed by any person during school hours, and any person who employs a child in contravention of this law shall incur a penalty not exceeding $20.

"(4) The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint an officer to be known as the Provincial school attendance officer, whose duty it shall be, under the direction of the minister, to superintend and direct the enforcement of the Compulsory School Attendance Act.

"(5) The public school board in every urban municipality shall appoint a school attendance officer.

"(6) The council of every township shall appoint a school attendance officer.

"(7) A woman shall be eligible as school attendance officer.

"(8) The clerk of the municipality shall furnish to the secretary of every Public and Separate school board in the municipality the particulars recorded in the book prepared by the assessor as to children whose parents or guardians are supporters of the schools under control of the board.

"(10) Children under ten years of age are excused from this Act if there is no school within two miles of their homes and, if over ten years old, if the school is not within three miles from their residence."

Mr. Lees spoke on the Consolidated School Act and referred to the many advantages that would result from consolidated rural schools. The Act has been passed and $100,000 has been voted by the legislature towards this object. The regulations are to be prepared by the Minister of Education and when the Act is firmly established, the Government will pay from $800 to $1200 for each school entering consolidation. A special grant of $2,000 each is to be given to the first ten consolidated schools. These schools will cost more than the old rural ones, but the standard of education will be so much higher, they will be worth more. Domestic science, manual training and agriculture will be taken up in the new consolidated schools and they also hope to have high school departments. The children will be conveyed to the schools in vans and need not stay home in inclement weather as so many do now.

Northern Ontario has two of these schools and they are very successful. There are several in New Brunswick and over seventy in Manitoba.

Miss Robena Carter gave a very interesting paper on her experiences in teaching in a rural community. She spoke of the great importance of the rural teacher getting acquainted with the home life of her pupils and of making their interests hers. She warned the teachers against sensitiveness and gossip and said the three greatest assets of the rural teacher were good health, personality and a strong sense of humor. Rural teachers should enter into the sports of their pupils and give school concerts to get the parents interested. They should have a good school library and lead the children into good reading and a love of books.

The reading course for teachers was discussed by Mr. Broderick and Mr. Lees gave a very interesting talk on history. The question of salaries was touched on. A special grant of a quarter of a million dollars has been voted by the Government for the purpose of enabling boards to pay better salaries and this money is to be distributed this year.

To Have Harmony and Elegance Throughout Your Footwear Must be Immaculate

When we opened our new Shoe Section we discarded many old traditions and started this department new, as it were. The result is obvious. One of the most striking examples is the great variety of widths, ranging from A to D, four in all. Then there are the modish lines of new footwear that have sacrificed nothing in the way of comfort, for they are selected from myriads of samples by one who has studied the problem of foot comfort.

The above statements will mean more than statements if you inspect and fit on our brown calf skin walking boots, for instance. They are made of fine supple stock and have a ten-inch top, an da graceful pointed toe that is patterned with scroll perforations. In one model the heel is square and an inch and a half in height, and the other is Louis pattern. The price is, pair ... $12.00

Then there are those with black patent vamps, dull kid tops, and high Louis heels, and a toe that tapers down to a neat point. Also priced at ... $12.00

There are Pumps of black satin, at ... $9.00

Of black kid and patent, at ... $10.00

We merely mention thes to give you an inkling of the fashionable models to be had in our new section.

WHAT DO ONT. WOMEN THINK?

What do women think of the Government which brought Ontario through the years of the war with honor?

What do women think of the Government which through the war spared no effort in providing for the needs of the men overseas, for the needs of their dependents at home, and at the same time brought about progressive and ever better legislation for the province?

What do women think of the Government that had the pluck to introduce the Ontario Temperance Act at that time in the history of he province when it would have such a vital influence? Do women realize that it was done at a time when every ounce of efficiency was needed if Ontario at home was to produce the munitions and other things so essential for the men overseas?

Do women grasp the fact that by introducing that act men's lives were saved in France? Because it was possible to increase our output here?

Is there a single woman who does not acknowledge that the Ontario Temperance Act was one of the best war acts introduced? And do women realize that now the Premier is fulfilling his promise in taking the referendum on the question, to let the people decide if prohibition shall continue in peace time?

What do women think of "Mothers' Pensions?" Do they know that the Government is now working out in detail, the plan by which these shall become a reality? Mothers' Pensions are assured because the Government recognizes the justice of such legislation.

"MICKEY" KEEPS THEM ALL MOVING

Synopsis of Great Comedy Drama "Mickey" Featuring Mabel Normand at the Grand, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday

Mickey had lost her mother and father when she was a bit of a child in a small mining town, and her father's partner, Joe. Meadows, had taken it upon himself to bring her up. Her only other relations are an aunt and some cousins living on Long Island. Mickey grows up a harem scarem little tomboy — the trial as well as the love of the old man's life. The only mother Mickey has ever known is Minnie, Joe's housekeeper, an old Indian woman, who dutifully cares for her and worships the little impish waif.

Mrs. Drake, Mickey's aunt, is striving to maintain a millionaire establishment, with but little or no funds. Her only real asset is her daughter Elsie, whom she is trying to marry off to a man with money. She has Herbert Thornhill in mind, and the engagement is almost closed when the man is called West.

In the West Herbert Thornhill meets Mickey and falls in love with her, despite the evident distrust of Joe Meadows. Joe then decides that it is time Mickey had some women folks to look after her, and so he writes to her aunt, telling her that Mickey owns a gold mine. This is enough for Mrs. Drake and the girl is urged to come at once to Long Island.

Joe takes her there, and just as he leaves the Drake home for the West, he mentions to her aunt that the gold mine is worthless, and much to his sorrow it has not paid for years. The aunt, greatly disappointed, puts Mickey to work as a servant, where the little tomboy gets into all sorts of amusing and pathetic scrapes.

When Herbert thinks he has lost Mickey, he gives up his search and returns to the East. Very soon after, he becomes engaged to Elsie Reggie Drake, the renegade cousin, meantime makes several unpleasant advances to Mickey, which she repulses.

One evening, during a reception given in honor of Herbert and Elsie, Mickey, the little Cinderella of the household, dresses up in one of Elsie's gowns and escapes downstairs to the ballroom. She does not get very far, however, before her aunt drags her to her room, and locks her in. Mickey is greatly surprised on finding a note on the floor, left by the infatuated Reggie who had evidently been shut in, out of the way, and forgotten about. Mickey uses all her wits to escape. In getting away, she climbs down the porch, into the garden and finds herself face to face with Herbert, who has been watching her escape.

After the renewal of their love, Herbert regrets the proposal to Elsie and the acceptance. His lawyer and friend, Tom Rawline, notices this, and on his own initiative, manages matters perfectly, by informing Herbert that his fortune has been swept away, and then Elsie breaks the engagement.

Reggie, seeing a chance for a good gambling trick, informs Thornhill that if he could get five thousand dollars and place it on his horse, he would win back his fortune. Thornhill manages to scrape together the money and the bet is made. Reggie then fixes matters with his jockey to double-cross Herbert, by pulling his horse and losing the race. Accidentally Mickey overhears the plans. She realizes the full importance of the scheme and plans to take the jockey's place. She is winning the race, when the horse stumbles and throws her. The crowds gaze in amazement when they discover that the jockey is Mickey. She is severely hurt, but recovers shortly afterwards.

Reggie now presses his suit with more vigor than ever. Out riding with her one day he traps her in an old country house and tries to attack her. Thornhill, who has followed, comes to her rescue, but it is only after a long and furious fight that he succeeds. And after that they are married, and to make matters ideal, Rawline informs Thornhill that his fortune was never lost.

THE KISS BURGLAR A MUSICAL PLAY

Direct From the Geo. M. Cohan Theatre Broadway, N.Y.—Positively a Guaranteed Attraction

"The Kiss Burglar," a musical comedy play, produced by Coutts and Tennis for six record-breaking months at the George M. Cohan Theatre, New York, is scheduled to appear at the Grand for on day only, Saturday, matinee and evening.

This is the latest work of Glen MacDonough and Raymond Hubbell, the former having provided the book and the lyrics and the latter the music. The play was staged under the direction of Julian Mitchell, who has no superior in this particular field of producing musical plays. The story of the play is withheld, so as not to mar the interest of the auditor. The chief charm, however, of "The Kiss Burglar," lies in Raymond Hibbell's music, which is said to be far above the quality that is usually found in this class of entertainment. Some of the most popular song hits are: "A Little Class of Broadway," "The Dance of Love," "The Most Wonderful You," "I Want to Learn to Dance," "Shimmering, Glimmering Nile," "Little Black Sheep," "Solitary Lane," "The Rose and the Mantlepiece Tragedy." A big cast is concerned in the exploitation of the play, among the principal Broadway favorites number Patricia O'Hearn, Henry Coote, David Audrada, Max Scheck, San Holden. Not forgetting the famous Peacock Alley chorus, and the original Cohan Theatre production, all of which go to make up the season's greatest musical comedy event.

"OH, BOY"

At the Grand Theatre, Thursday Evening, October 16th.—Next Week

At the Grand on Thursday evening only, Oct. 16th, F. Ray Comstock and William Elliott will present the fourth of the series of the New York Princess Theatre musical comedy successes, "Oh, Boy," with the book and lyrics by Guy Bolton and P. G. Wodehouse and music by Jerome Kern.

The tremendous success of "Oh Boy" is due to its delightful wit and satire, its dainty production and tuneful melodies.

Some of the most popular musical numbers are: "An Old-Fashioned Wife," "Rolled Into One," "Till the Clouds Roll By," "The First Day of May," "Koo-la-loo" and "Nesting Time in Flatbush."

Smart Musical Feature.

"Oh, Boy," the smartest musical offering of the season and the fourth New York Princess Theatre musical comedy success, will be the attraction at the Grand on Thursday evening, October 16th. Each [illegible] success comes here with the strongest endorsement of the metropolitan press. F. Ray Comstock and William Elliott, under whose management the company is touring, will send here a cast of favorites.

Some of the most popular musical numbers are: "An Old-Fashioned Wife," "Rolled Into One," "Till the Clouds Roll By," "The First Day of May," "Koo-la-loo" and "Nesting Time in Flatbush."

KISS BURGLAR ONE DAY ONLY MAT. AND NIGHT

"The Kiss Burglar," the musical offering selected to hold the boards at the Grand, Saturday, matinee and evening, is said to contain more tuneful tunes and more catchy music than any Broadway success produced in years. Seldom is it that a musical offering can boast of a dozen distinct musical hits but this is true of "The Kiss Burglar," all of which appeal to the voiceless because they are distinctly hummable, to the singers, because they can be sung, and to those who can neither sing nor hum because they are sure they have heard them before, and the melody haunts them. So this is why many claim the real smile in "The Kiss Burglar" is the music, because it is one of those sweetly simple and simply sweet scores that spells popularity. While others claim its the wonderful singing and dancing of the Peacock Alley Chorus, which sprang into popularity over night and is pronounced to be the most beautiful en tour, while still others claim it to be the wonderful cast. But we leave it for you to pass judgment and draw your own conclusions, for not in years has such a musical treat been offered the theatre-going public. The book and lyrics were written by Glen MacDonough, who has a score of successes to his credit, while the music is from the pen of Raymond Hubbell, one of America's most popular writers whose works has won celebrity.

A package received through the mail by Mrs. Rodman Wannamaker, of New York, contained a bomb. A former butler admitted sending it in an attempt to injure her maid.

Harry Pennow, Jackson, Mich., prison convict, who escaped, enlisted in the Canadian army, served overseas, and then returned and surrendered, has been pardoned.

Government supervision of coal from mine to bin is advocated by chairman of a Senate sub-committee investigating threatened shortage and present high price of coal.

U. S. War Department is carrying on an inquiry with the object of raising the pay of army officers and men to meet increased cost of living.

Yellow fever has been banished from the earth, says Gen. Gorgas, former General-Surgeon U. S. A., returning from Ecuador to Panama.

PEGGY HYLAND HERE IN "THE REBELLIOUS BRIDE"

Peggy Hyland, in "The Rebellious Bride," will be the attraction at the Empire Theatre next Monday Tuesday and Wednesday. This new William Fox photoplay tells the story of a pretty, happy, bright girl of the Ozark mountain region, who contracts a peculiar marriage. Her old grandfather, with whom she lives, fearing that the child is getting beyond his control, forces her to marry the first man they meet on the country road. This happens to be a wealthy St. Louis man who had dropped into the mountains during an airplane trip.

Of course, in marriage a girl always takes more or less of a chance. Did this girl assume any greater risk in marrying the first man she met than if she had known him for years? "The Rebellious Bride," it is said, answers this question in a delightful way and, according to advance notices, Peggy Hyland makes the girl a thoroughly wholesome and pleasing character.

CRIMES OF POLICE INQUISITION PORTRAYED

"THE THIRD DEGREE," STARRING ALICE JOYCE, AT THE EMPIRE 13-14-15.

Viciousness of the one-time prevalent police inquisition known as the "third degree," under which by physical and mental torture, confessions were wrought from hapless prisoners regardless of innocence or guilt, is most vividly portrayed in "The Third Degree," Vitagraph's big production starring Alice Joyce, and which will be seen in the Empire Theatre on Oct. 13-14-15.

All the tremendous dramatic force of all stage production of this famous Charles Klein drama is retained in its picturization by Vitagraph, under the direction of Tom Terriss, and make it one of the most pretentious and forceful screen productions ever put out.

Miss Joyce takes every advantage of the dramatic possibilities in the role of Annie Sands, waitress, who crushed the power of her millionaire father-in-law and of the police system to free her college husband, doomed to a murderer's death for a crime of which he was innocent, but accused in malice for marrying the girl.

Thuosands of dispossess cases clog the machinery of New York's municipal courts, and many suggestions are made for relieving the housing situation, which is rapidly becoming dangerous.

Mr. Gillespie.—"Yes I am. Labor is a serious problem which will never be solved until all interests are taken into consideration on a basis of what equitable to both worker and employer. I am convinced that hours should be shortened, and that within a short time many factories and business houses will be running on a wage and per cent bonus basis. I believe the workingman is as much entitled to a share in profits as an employer."

Ex-Mayor Duffus

Mr. Joseph J. Duffus, ex-mayor of Peterborough said he was glad to support any man of Mr. Gillespie's calibre, who had carried out his pledges to the electorate and proved himself a real good level-headed representative.

Mr. Duffus contended that the Conservative Government is not consistent on the temperance question. They put into force a measure Liberals fought for day in and day out and are now claiming more that their share of credit.

He spoke highly of Mr. Gillespie as a man from years of experience with him on the city council board and otherwise. Although in opposition to him in business he (Mr. Duffus) had yet to find occasion to consider Mr. Gillespie other than honorable and upright, and a man of strict business integrity. He lauded the candidate, although of moderate means, as generous in the extreme to all patriotic and charity calls. With such men as Mr. Gillespie in power the speaker thought the affairs of the province would be conducted better than under the present regime.

Mr. Duffus credited the Liberal candidate as heartily in favor of good roads and the Hydro-Electric proposition. Hydro-Electric, he said is not a political issue; while the present government are spending millions of dollars on the system, men on the Liberal side are just as strong for Hydro-Electric power facilities as are the Government. Besides this department is now in the hands of a Commission, is in no sense a politicali issue, for whatever party is in power that commision will carry on.

W. J. Byers presided over the meeting. Mr. Joseph Wearing also spoke.

ANOTHER BRITISH LOAN FORECASTED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Oct. 10.—Forecasting another British loan to replace the nation's floating debt, financial editor of The Mail declares it is the opinion of business men that Great Britain is still travelling the "road to ruin" and drifting on without evidence of real reform in the Government's wasteful extravagance.

MURDER TRIALS ARE EXPENSIVE

Before all acounts are settled the murder trials which closed yesterday will cost the County of Peterborough a considerable sum of money. The fees and mileage for the petty jury amounts to $892.06. The grand jury expenses amount to $120.57. The witness fees will amount to a considerable amount when they are finally reckoned. The interpreter for his fee and expenses costs $115.50 and Doctor Thompson charged $108.20 as an expert witness. Besides there are the xpenses of the board and lodging of the juries over several nights and must be paid for.

It is easily seen that it is an expense to the county to have murderers traversing the country and committing crime and then having the greatest possible justice afforded them.

APPLICATION FOR CLEMENCY

Mr. Gordon has sent an application for leniency in the case of the two men in whose defense he appeared and who were sentenced to death last night. His application is in the form of a request to have the sentence of death reduced to one of imprisonment

The two men are Michael Bahri and Alexander Martynuh.

EARLY SOLUTION FIUME TROUBLE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Triest, Oct. 10.—General Grazioli, former commander of the Italian garrison at Fiume, left Triest for Rome last evening on his way from Fiume, where he was sent by Government to confer with Gabriele D'Annunzio. He appeared confident and cheerful, and said that an early solution of fiume difficulty would be reached.

MPLOYES OF FERRY AND TUG LINES QUIT WORK LAST NIGHT

rike in Sympathy With American Longshoremen—New York Harbor Completely Paralyzed—Feared Strike Will Extend to Atlantic Coastwise Traffic—Extension Orders Have Been Issued.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Oct. 11. — Extension the coastwise traffic at every lantic port of the longshoremen's rike, which has completely paralyz- New York harbor, appeared in- itable today.

Increase Refused.

John F. Riley, chairman of the com- ittee directing the strike, announced at orders for such an extension had en issued following the action here esterday of the National Adjust- ent Commission of the United ates Shipping Board, which refused grant an increase in the coastwise ngshoremen's scale from 65 cents $1 an hour.

Harbor at Standstill

Activities in New York harbor this orning were virtually at a stand- till. In addition to the stoppage of eamer sailings, resulting from the ngshoremen's strike, employees of all Hudson River ferry lines and all railroad company tag lines, with exception of the Lakawana, struck suddenly last night, tieing up the tugs and ferry boats.

THE FLYING PARSON OFF FOR THE PACIFIC

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Leading flyers in the transcontinental airplane race between Mineola and San Francisco are today, the fourth of the competition, expected to complete the first half of their journey. Deterred by a minor accident in his plane Lieut. Belvin Maynard, the "flying parson" leader in the great reliability and endurance test, was prepared this morning to take off for the Pacific from Salduro, Utah, his over night stop.

NGLICANS WILL TAKE ADVANTAGE OF GREAT OPEN DOOR IN OUR COUNTRY

Local Clergy and Laity Meet to Adopt Plans For Co-Operating in Great Forward Movement.

Anglican clergy and laity of this city gathered in St. John's Church Guild room last evening to meet Rev. Dr. Seager and R. W. Allin, of Toronto, in consultation on the big forward movement, inaugurated on October 5th in a letter from the House of Bishops.

All local clergy present were Rev. Canon Davidson of St. John's, Rev. R. B. Grobb of All Saints', Rev. W. H. White of St. Luke's and Rev. Jas. Price of St. George's Church.

Dr. Seager explained the origin of this movement in 1918 as a story of the movement of the spirit of God in his church and pointed out that it is an official act of the church formally endorsed, and comes to its people in the form of the Church of England in Canada in action for a definite objective. It is, he said, a big movement of three elements—inspirational, educational and financial—for the extension of the church in Canada by taking advantage of the great open door which lies before Anglicans in their own country.

In the course of an instructive address the reverend gentleman remarked that there are but three Christian churches in Canada organized on a national basis—the Church of England the Presbyterian and Methodist churches. And next to the Roman Catholic Church the Anglican had engaged in more actual social welfare work than any other church in Canada.

The financial objective for this forward movement is, he stated, $2,500,000, of which the diocese of Toronto's equitable share has been figured at $600,000 while $40,000 is expected from the deanery of Northumberland, in which Peterborough is situated. This money is not to be raised by allotment, like missions, but by canvass of special subscription list undertaken by parish lay committees.

He impressed in his hearers the fact that this forward movement is in reality a thank-offering to God for victory and peace, a project to equip his church for larger service.

The reverend gentleman further explained that the forward movement requires to be raised in thank-offerings six times the amount contributed for extra diocesan purposes, from which it stands apart as an additional effort. Giving to this project, he characterized emphatically as spiritual, for anything is spiritual which is dominated by the Holy Spirit of God.

In conclusion, he believed that most of today's unrest is due to animal fear—fear for one's business, one's future, one's prosperity these days of after-war reconstruction, and, he urged, this has at present the choice of animal fear or courage.

Mr. Allin spoke of the coming effort to lift the church up to a higher plane, with a determination that it shall never return to where it is today, and he advocated the need for cleaning up all outstanding debts this year before entering into 1920, when it is hoped the forward movement will be showing the desired results.

The meeting here resolved itself into a committee of ways and means, so to speak, by which Peterborough shall co-operate in the great object now in view by the Church of England in Canada.

THE CONTEST IN EAST PETERBOROUGH

There seems little doubt as to the outcome of the campaign in East Peterborough, where Mr. James Thompson, representative for the past eleven years, is again contesting the riding with Mr. E. N. McDonald, a U. F. O. candidate as his opponent. From the very beginning everything appeared favorable for the candidature of Mr. Thompson. He was nominated at a convention of farmers, a convention of 160 delegates, men and women, and nominated without a shadow of protest from any quarter. If Mr. McDonald is the nominee of the farmers, as much can be said on behalf of Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Thompson's public record is all in his favor. He has been active in the interests of his constituents. No farmer could hope to do more for East Peterborough than Mr. Thompson has done. He secured for the farmers a branch of the Board of Agriculture with the district representative resident in Norwood, and the value of such an arrangement in a farming community cannot be overestimated. He has secured state aid for the roads in the riding, and has lightened the burden of the poor man by helping to secure greater exemption in the imposition of the income tax. This system too, is to be extended so that the married man with a family will enjoy special privileges in this regard.

Mr. Thompson is a supporter of Premier Hearst on his temperance and general policies. He has been tried out and has stood the acid test of eleven years of service. He is a safe man. The electors of East Peterborough will make no mistake in sending him back to the Legislature.

TWO THOUSAND LIVES LOST IN WRECK OF UNARMED BRITISH SHIP OFF NORWAY

While No Confirmation Is Re-Received by Admiralty it is Feared to Have Been Large Troopship From Archangel Bound For England.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Archangel, Oct. 11.— Two thousand lives have been lost in the wreck of an unnamed British ship on the Norwegian coast, according to a wireless despatch received here from Helsingfors.

No Confirmation.

London, Oct. 11. — Neither the Admiralty nor Lloyd's have received any information relative to the wreck of a British ship on the Norwegian coast. At these sources the report is discredited.

Marks New Record.

If the loss of life in the wreck reported in the Archangel despatch is as large as indicated, the disaster will mark a new record in the annals of the sea. It would seem probable the ship which was wrecked was a transport from Archangel from which ing large numbers of men during the last month.

It is known that troop ships have sailed quite recently from Archangel. The largest recorded loss of life in marine disaster occurred when the Titanic was sunk after colliding with an iceberg, south of Newfoundland, on April 14, 1912, the list of deaths showing 1,503 names. The Lusitania sunk by a German submarine, May 7, 1915, carried with her, more than 1,200 of her passengers and crew. When the Empress of Ireland was sent to the bottom in the Gulf of St. Lawrence on May 30, 1914, the loss was 1,027.

Philip E. Curry, general manager International Mercantile Marine at Southampton, Eng., arriving in New York, predicts freight rates will be high for at least two years.

MARKING THE BALLOT

		YES	NO
1	Are you in favor of the repeal of the Ontario Temperance Act?		X
2	Are you in favor of the sale of light beer containing not more than two and fifty-one one hundredths per cent. alcohol; weight measure, through Government agencies, and amendments to the Ontario Temperance Act to permit such sale?		X
3	Are you in favor of the sale of light beer containing not more than two and fifty-one one hundredths per cent. alcohol, weight measure, in standard hotels in local municipalities that by a majority vote favor such sale, and amendments to the Ontario Temperance Act to permit such sale?		X
4	Are you in favor of the sale of spirituous and malt liquors through Government agencies and amendments to the Ontario Temperance Act to permit such sale?		X

The above is a sample of the referendum ballot which will be submitted to the voters on October 20. Any person who is in favor of prohibition for Ontario will be well advised to mark the ballot as above. If this is done, there can be no question as to the intention of the elector.

To make it certain that your wishes in this respect will be given effect, that the Ontario Temperance Act as endorsed by the people, will be rigidly enforced when it comes to voting for one of the three candidates before the people, mark your ballot as shown in the following sample. Women voting for the first time should understand that they have a right to vote both on the referendum and for one candidate. To vote on the first alone, even when noes are recorded, would be a duty only half performed. Vote for the candidate who will support the Premier whose worth has been proved. Vote for R. J. Soden.

OBJECT TO OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

SINN FEIN LEADERS RIDICULE STATEMENT SUGGESTING THEIR LOYALTY TO BRITAIN

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Dublin, Oct. 11.— Sinn Fein leaders here ridicule the statement that they will demand a hearing at the bar of Parliament or are prepared to take the oath of allegiance to Great Britain.

They say their mandate from the Irish people is for the establishment of an Irish Republic and nothing else. "If Ireland had self-determination, and declared for an independent monarchy with George V or anyone else as king, in some way we would accept the decision but there is no such prospect."

REALLY IMPOSSIBLE

"On our line, sir," said the manager of the local—very local—railway, "not only has a collision never occurred, but on our line a collision would be impossible."

"Impossible," exclaimed his friend. "Oh, come! I know that the latest automatic safety devices are excellent things, but impossible is a large word."

"It's literally true with us, sir," replied the railway magnate.

"How can it be?"

"Why, we only own one train!"

GERMAN FORCES CAPTURE RIGA

LONDON WOULD NOT BE SURPRISED WERE UNCONFIRMED REPORT TRUE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Oct. 11.— Confirmation of a newspaper report that German forces have captured Riga is being awaited here. But if disparity of the rival forces is as great as reported in some despatches, success of the attack on the city would not be surprising.

"Germany's new war," is featured reports printed here and nothing of importance to the despatches received by Canadian press.

Where is Goltz?

The whereabouts of General Von Der Goltz continues to be a subject of contradictory rumors, and estimates of the size of the army commanded by Colonel Avaloff-Bermondt also show wide divergence.

Copenhagen, Oct. 11.—German and Russian forces, under command of General Von Der Goltz and Colonel Avaloff-Bermondt have attacked Lettish forces over a wide front in the coastal region, about twenty miles south of Riga. Reports reaching here indicate that German-Russian onslaught has gained ground at least at some points, and that the town of Shlotsk has been captured. Lettish reports however, insist that attacks have failed.

Taken Seriously.

London, Oct. 11.—The reported capture of Riga is regarded most seriously by military experts here. They say that between these German-Russian troops and the city of Petrograd there is no force that would prove effective in stopping an advance upon that city, from which, once it was reached, it would be difficult to dislodge them.

MR. SODEN ADDRESSES MEETING OF THE ELECTORS AT BRIDGENORTH

Receives Flattering Reception in Liberal Stronghold—Discusses Mr. Gillespie's Dealings With the Farmers and His Responsibility For One Item in High Cost of Living

At Bridgenorth, one of the strongholds of the Liberals, Mr. R. J. Soden, Conservative candidate for the Legislature, held a meeting last night and was accorded an attentive hearing and a hearty reception. There was a good attendance despite the unfavorable weather conditions and there was no question as to the interest the audience took in the various matters discussed by Mr. Soden in his address of nearly an hour. Probably about one-third of the audience were women and a number of these signed the nomination papers of Mr. Soden at the close of the meeting.

A significant statement was made by Mr. Noble Kelly, who presided. He stated that in his lifetime he had made it a practice to vote for men rather than for parties. He said that following out this policy now he proposed to vote for Mr. Soden because he is the man behind Premier Hearst, who has given the province the most advanced temperance legislation ever enacted in Ontario. Mr. Kelly's apt expression of his intention was heartily applauded.

MR. SODEN'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Soden explained to the audience every question on the referendum ballot. He also dealt at length with the published election address of Mr. Gillespie, discussing the latter's remarks on the education system of the province, especially as it relates to agriculture. He also showed by figures how the legislative grants to the school of Peterborough County have increased by five times the amount allowed in 1904. Mr. Soden said that if elected he will work for mothers' pensions, for liberal treatment of the soldiers and for all progressive measures that may be brought up by Premier Hearst.

A MILK SHAKE FOR THE LIBERALS.

Discussing the high cost of living, Mr. Soden said that Mr. Gillespie has it in his power to help out some in that regard in the conduct of his own business. By way of illustration, Mr. Soden exhibited two cans of condensed milk both made in Mr. Gillespie's establishment, the one with a Peterborough brand and the other prepared in this city for the Armour people of Hamilton. Both kinds are made of the same material. The one is sent to Hamilton, shipped back here and sold to retailers for $8.75 a case of four dozen cans. The product that bears the local brand, and on which no freight is paid, is sold to the retail dealers for 25 cents a case more than that charged for the other.

Mr. Soden also called attention to the fact that while Mr. Gillespie pays the farmers a fraction over six cents a quart for milk, he retails it at twelve cents, a spread of one hundred per cent. between the buying and selling prices.

Mr. F. H. Dawson, secretary of the Liberal-Conservative Association, who with Vice-President C. S. McClelland, accompanied Mr. Soden to Bridgenorth, made a brief address in which he stated that the Conservative convention had selected Mr. Soden as the candidate because he was the best man available.

The audience dispersed after singing the National Anthem and giving three cheers and a tiger for Mr. Soden.

CHIEF THOMPSON AND BLADE GAVE EVIDENCE YESTERDAY

Blade Swears He Was Never in Stewart's Office After Liquor—Does Not Call Stewart Anything as Complimentary as Gizard—Charges Against Chief of Police Are Emphatically Denied.

Chief Brown of Sudbury was the first witness called at the investigation yesterday afternoon. He was formerly a sergeant of the local police force. In regard to the Bridgenorth liquor he remembered returning some of this liquor to the proper owners after the acquittal of the cases. The other cases, as far as he remembered, were left in the little room of the court room when he left the force. He did not remember of any charge against any certain juryman for breaking in and stealing the liquor made by Chief Thompson.

He denied having told Stewart that the chief knew all about certain liquor.

He denied ever seeing or hearing of any liquor being taken away from the police court for any illegal purposes.

"During your five years on the force did you ever see the chief take liquor or smell it off him or hear any complaints of this kind about the chief?"

"No, I never did."

He remembered the chief going on a hunting trip during the fall of 1916. On the morning the chief went away a car called for him and took with it a sack and a suit case.

"Did you tell Stewart of the presence of that sack?"

"No, did not."

"Did you tell Stewart's son, in Sudbury last fall, of this sack?"

"No, I was talking to him but I did not say anything about the sack."

"Was that sack in sight of members of the force over night?"

"It was."

Sergt. Blade Denies His Charges.

Then Sergt. Blade ascended the box.

"Were you ever in Stewart's office while Mr. Stewart was not there?"

"Never in my life."

"I wrote the Board of Commissioners requesting them to hold an investigation as Mr. Stewart was spreading stories of me rifling his office."

This letter was produced from the files of the Commission and read. It shows that Blade urged the Commission to hold an investigation into these charges as they were damaging to him.

The answer of Mr. Saunders to Blade was also read. It was a request for the police to endeavor to put a stop to the friction between the two departments as it was very undesirable for efficient prosecution of the law.

A letter from the Board to Mr. Stewart was read and it also requested him to establish better feelings between him and the Board.

Mr. Stewart's answer to the Board showed that he was unwilling to act in co-operation with the police force because he refused to sanction anything that was not right.

"Did you ever convict Sullivan with any liquor dealings?"

"No, I never dreamt of it."

"Did you ever hear of any of these men accused of selling liquor?"

"None, only I heard of Hamilton selling liquor."

"When Mr. Stewart said I called him Gizard Stewart behind his back he lied," declared Sergt. Blade.

"Have you any knowledge of anyone else planning to steal whiskey from Stewart's office?"

"None whatever."

"Do you call Mr. Stewart 'Gizard' around the police station?"

"I don't like to put his name into my mouth at all."

Offer $5 for Breach of Duty.

Then Sergt. Daynard was put into the stand. He swore that Stewart had offered him $5 for every information about liquor he would give to Mr. Stewart rather than to the chief of police.

Sergt. Blade swore that Stewart made him the offer of $5 for every information he gave him before he reported it to the chief.

The Chief's Statement.

Then Chief Thompson filled the witness box.

He told of instructing Sergt. Kidd to send the Le Vaneur liquor to St. Joseph's Hospital and remembered Kidd saying he sent it there.

"Was any liquor ever taken from the police station to your house?"

"Never. I don't use liquor myself."

"Did you ever say anything to Inspector Stewart about any jurymen breaking in a room and stealing liquor in the police station?"

"I don't remember any such conversation.

Regarding the hunting expedition the chief swore that neither he nor any other member of his party had taken liquor with them.

"What was in the sack that you took hunting?"

"My hunting boots and some other articles I did not wish to put in my suit case. We always take a sack along with us."

The chief told of an incident in his own office when he asked Mr. Stewart who accused him of stealing 3 bottles of liquor to the License Board. What Stewart said he did not know, the chief answer, that he blamed him (Stewart) of giving them the information.

"Thief and Liar."

Mr. Stewart said to the chief: "Thief and Liar."

The chief stated that he ordered Mr. Stewart never to come back to his office.

Then some correspondence provided by the Board of License Commission, which showed that considerable friction had existed between Mr. Stewart and the police for some time.

Then Mr. O'Connell cross-examined the chief.

"Do you think Mr. Stewart actually prepared himself at the Sullivan trial?"

"I think he was so anxious for a conviction that he did."

The chief told of Mr. Stewart complaining to him that the magistrate had erred in his judgment and threatening to report it to the Government. This was what made the chief think he was so very anxious for convictions.

Mr. Stewart is irritable and follows a certain line of reasoning which leads him to think a party guilty and he thinks the court should be of the same opinion as he whether he produce sufficient evidence or not."

"When was the first friction between you and Inspector Stewart?"

"At the time of the Birgenaw case."

"Do you think Mr. Stewart would come here and prejuce himself what you said to him?"

"I think, in Mr. Stewart's present state of mind, he would do anything to get me out of my position. In fact, I know he has said so to some people."

Chief Calls Hamilton.

The chief told of calling Hamilton into his office after he had heard rumors of his having made a statement in Toronto about obtaining police protection and asked him if he had made that statement. The chief asked him if he had made a statement to the effect that he was getting protection for his own hotel and Hamilton replied that he had not made such a statement. Hamilton also denied ever having any reason for believing he could get police protection, to Chief Thompson.

The investigation now appears to be nearing a conclusion, there only be three witnesses yet to be heard, namely, Detective Newhall, Solicitor Saunders and Adjutant Buntin. These will be heard tomorrow.

ATTACKS ON PROHIHIBITION

Constitutionality of War Time Enforcements to be Debated

Washington, Oct. 11.—Anticipating attacks on the constitutionality of war time and constitutional prohibition enforcement by legislation, attorney-general Palmer will prepare an opinion which will be transmitted to the White House before the bill becomes a law.

SHOULD SUPPORT HEARST.

(Toronto Star, Liberal.)

AT THE SAME TIME, we repeat what we have said before. We conceive it to be the duty of every man who believes in Prohibition to come now to its support and make it safe and sure. The goal towards which men have been striving for long years is within reach. Sir William Hearst is the political leader who brought it within reach and the man who, if strongly supported on October 20, will clinch and secure it. There is an attempt to defeat him. There is a pretty widespread desire in his own party to weaken him to an extent that would discredit him. As we see it, therefore, Liberals who believe in Prohibition should support Sir William Hearst rather than Mr. Hartley Dewart, who does not believe in Prohibition and would never do it any service except where circumstances compelled him to do so.

We would like to say one word of a personal character. In various parts of the Province there are Liberal candidates for whom the Star has done what it could in the past and for whom we now have respect. But Prohibition is the great issue of this election, and the chief contest is between Sir William Hearst and Mr. Hartley Dewart. Each standing for what he stands for on this main issue, we can take no other course but to advocate that the interests of Prohibition be left in the hands of the Prohibition Premier and not transferred by a change of government into such hands as Mr. Dewart's. It is to be hoped and expected that some day under other and more fortunate leadership Liberalism in Ontario will come together again and go forward in the advocacy of progressive causes.

PREMIER HEARST AND EDUCATION.

MR. G. A. GILLESPIE or no other man can make out a case against Premier Hearst on the educational issue. Deficient and capable of improvement as that system may be in Ontario today, it has been marked by substantial progress since 1905, when the Conservative party secured control of the Government of the Province. This advance has been especially noticeable since Sir William Hearst became Premier and since Hon Dr. Cody was placed at the head of the Education Department. Still greater reforms are promised, and with the Hearst Administration a pledge can always be relied upon. At the late convention of teachers in this city, the many recent reforms in school affairs were the subject of discussion, and all of these appear to have met with general expert approval. Changes in the school law have been made in the interests of parents children and teachers alike.

Coming down closer to home, the statistics of the Education Department tell a story of progress. The amount of Government grants to the schools of this county is five times greater today than in 1904, and the same ratio of increase has been maintained throughout the Province. Under the present Government the price of school books has been reduced and maintained at a uniformly low figure, although the cost of production has been increased. The standard for teachers has been raised and greater facilities have been provided for their professional training. Increased Government grants have been made so as to enable school boards to secure a better grade of teachers.

In order to assure a better education for the masses the school age has been raised to sixteen years. Every pupil, whether a resident of city of township, is to be thoroughly grounded in the rudiments. When it comes to the choice of a profession or trade, higher branches of education are provided. Technical schools will fit a boy for the business of life. e will haHve the advantage of experience in his adopted line before he starts out to earn a living for himelf. If he selects the calling of a farmer, there are ways by which he can gain a technical and practical knowledge of that occupation and that without leaving home. The Government has provided a special summer course in agriculture for all teachers in Ontario, and hundreds have availed themselves of this opportunity year after year during the summer vacation. Some of our own city teachers have taken this course. The teacher qualified to give expert instruction in agriculture in the public schools of Ontario is to receive special inducements and rewards.

Really, the educational system of the Province is not at so low an ebb, the matter of rural education has not been neglected to the extent that might be inferred from the election address and the public speeches of Mr. Gillespie.

One of the greatest of all the education reforms started by Hon. Dr. Cody is the provision made for the consolidation of country schools. There is nothing coercive in this measure, but the matter is left entirely to the option of the various municipalities, who are free to abandon the system after a fair trial if it proves unsatisfactory. The future will demonstrate that this is the solution of the problem of the country school. In the days to come, educational advantages will be equal and parents will not be forced, as they so often are now, to move into the city for the benefit of their children of school age.

WHAT DAVID SAID IN HIS HASTE.

READING THE REPORTS of the evidence given in court trials or in quasi-judicial investigations, it is impossible to restrain the suspicion that there are people who are given to hard swearing. Listening to some of the addresses of campaign speakers, whose entire stock in trade is vituperation and misrepresentation of the party in power on a fifty-fifty basis, also tends to jar faith in the moral uprightness of humanity. When David made his celebrated statement, he may have spoken under the stress of excitement, but even if he had not modified his expression later, his words might have stood to this day unchallenged.

MR. GORDON'S PUBLIC SERVICE.

DESPITE THE BIG NOISE that he has made in connection with his resignation as a member of the Board of Education, Mr. G. N. Gordon's retirement to private life is not likely to be regarded as a civic calamity, when the extent of the service which he rendered the city is understood. Since his election as member of the Board at the beginning of the year there have been sixteen meetings, regular and special. Of these, Mr. Gordon attended nine and was absent from seven. This, too, during a period when matters of the utmost importance to the educational interests of the city were constantly coming up.

The first session, the inaugural meeting of the new Board, the one at which Mr. Gordon had hoped to receive the honor of a majority vote for the chairmanship, Mr. Gordon was present. Disappointed in his ambition, he probably developed a grouch. At all events, he appears to have sulked in his tent, for he deprived his colleagues of the benefit of his presence, and did not take his place again until March 4th, an absence of three months, during which he missed two meetings.

The official record of the attendance of the member tells the story. Mr. Gordon was present and absent as follows:

January ninth—Present.
January sixteenth—Absent.
February fourth—Absent.
March fourth—Present.
March eleventh—Present.
April first—Absent.
April twenty-ninth—Present.
May fifth—Present.
May sixth—Present.
May thirteenth—Absent.
June tenth—Absent.
July eighth—Present.
July thirty-first—Absent.
September second—Present.
September ninth—Present.
[illegible]—Absent.

The meeting on the latter date was the one at which Mr. Gordon's resignation was received and accepted.

Mr. Gordon was a member of one of the most important committees, that of finance. This committee meets before every regular session of the Board to pass the bills for the month. At every regular session from which Mr. Gordon absented himself he also missed the committee meeting, a disregard of duty hard to understand, when it is recalled how Mr. Gordon loves to pose as the watchdog of the public treasury.

In the face of this record Mr. Gordon threatens—we use the term advisedly—to become a candiadte for re-election next December. He gives a press of public business as the reason for retiring now, and he must anticipate a slump in his professional affairs that will make it possible for him to again take up public duties. But there are plenty of men in the city willing to devote their services to the cause of education, men too, who will be found in their places at every session. Aside from any other reason that could be cited why Mr. Gordon should not be re-elected to The School Board the record of his desultory attendance should be sufficient.

Referring to The Review, Mr. Gordon is pleased to do so with a sneer—a sure sign of a weak cause—and at the same time to open a page of ancient political history. It can be said right here, however, that Mr. Gordon has within the past year separated himself from two offices, and yet no one has ever heard of over one hundred of the leading business men in the city acting on their own initiative, joining in a petition that he be kept in office on account of the satisfactory service that he rendered the public.

WHY, INDEED?

Sir William Hearst claims to be a follower of Whitney, but why should any politician try to live on the record that another one made?—Globe.

WHY, INDEED? But the insinuation of the Globe notwithstanding, Premier Hearst is doing nothing of the kind. The son who succeeds to the business of his father and expands that business on a safe foundation in every direction cannot be said to be resting on the laurels of his predecessor. Neither does Premier Hearst find it necessary to quote the family record by way of proving his devotion to the temperance cause. He is willing to stand on his own record, and by that record the electors will judge him.

SLANDERING ONTARIO.

IF A FARMER owned a farm worth $15,000 and clear of all encumberance, if he had at the same time debts to the amount of $2,000, with $1,500 cash in the bank, any neighbor who either publicly or in private spread the report that that farmer was insolvent would be guilty of slander. Such a farmer's financial standing would be rated high, and he could face the prospect of a hard winter with tolerable equanimity.

Ontario has resources worth at least six hundred million dollars, liquid assets of seventy-one million, and a nominal debt of seventy-five millions, for every dollar of which full value has been received. Yet there are politicians who represent this Province as on the verge of bankruptcy. The man who spreads false reports to the effect that his neighbor is insolvent can be made to answer in court, but, unfortunately, the campaign speaker who traduces his own Province is able to get away with it.

One of the greatest sources of Ontario's wealth is the timber limits, and these are being carefully conserved. An efficient corps of fire wardens guard the forests from loss by fire during the summer months. The land which produces the best pine in the world is in many cases unfit for agricultural purposes. So long, however, as it can be made to raise timber its value is unimpaired, and this is just what is being done. The pine lands of the north from which the timber is cut today can be cut over again twenty-five years hence.

MARK YOUR REFERENDUM BALLOT NO

Canadians are mustering, hark, hark, their battle cry,
Down with the Demon Alcohol, the country shall be dry;
Long 'neath that cruel juggernaut fair Canada has lain,
But now we vow that over us we will not have him reign;
Is not on our escutcheon bright a dark, unsightly stain
That must be cleansed if we would shun the guilty brand of Cain?
Shame on the callous selfishness that sees on Ruin's brink
Brothers and sons, and passes by, unheeding tho' they sink.
But we will deal that Monster Rum, we trust, a mortal blow,
On the twentieth of October when we mark our ballot "No."

Shall we whose sons have faced the foe on many a distant strand,
That never foot of hellish Hun should tread our native land,
Forget that 'twas for freedom's right some fill lone grass-grown graves,
And bow our necks to this vile yoke, like abject home-born slaves?
Oh, would that I, with pen of flame, might trace the countless sum
Of blighted hopes and prospects bright, wrought by the Demon Rum—
The broken hearts, and ruined lives, fell crimes, Oh, who may tell
Untimely deaths, dishonored graves, the bitter tears that swell?
Then for the love of righteousness, peace and good-will below,
On the twentieth of October, mark, oh mark your ballot "No."

Daughters of Canada, 'tis yours, as erst in days gone by,
To lend your aid, to banish rum, and keep the country dry,
For well ye know the ills that spring from the free flowing bowl,
The wreck of manhood's ideals high, of body and of soul,
The wreck of homes, where his direspell, than Circe's more malign
Changes God's image to worse, may hap, than e'en besotted swine,
Robs of its heritage of joy Childhood's glad careless years,
And dooms, alas, in want and woe, frail age to bitter tears.
Then for their sakes, who hapless mourn, sweet saintly pity show—
On the twentieth of October mark, oh mark your ballot "No."

WHY MOTHERS WILL VOTE FOR HEARST

Mothers naturally have the interests of their children at heart. They know the Government has introduced laws which protect their sons and daughters, whether as little children or as young men and women. They know, or they should know, that the child welfare bureau has been established, throught which they can secure personal advice free of charge with regard to the care of their babies.

Mothers know that their daughters in factory work are protected through laws the Government has enacted.

Mothers know that every effort is being made to insure the good health of the people of the province. They know that the Government is educating municipalities and individuals to the importance of having pure supply, proper disposal of garbage and sewage, etc.

Mothers know that vaccins and serums for the prevention of epidemics are distributed free of charge by the Government.

Mothers know that in education their children are getting the best that can be provided, and that month by month under the direction of the Minister of Education, Dr. Cody, new schemes are being worked out to make even the best, better plans.

Mothers remember how the Government fulfilled its trust of looking after their sons who were overseas. Hospitals for the wounded, clubs, entertainment and tactful guidance for the lads on leave, Christmas presents for the men in France and Flanders.

And for the returned men, re-education so that they may resume civil life at no disadvantage.

Mothers know what the Ontario Temperance Act has meant to their young sons. They know what they feel about the Government that was not afraid to close the bars. They know that this act of the Government [illegible] in her heart what worry she has been spared and she knows deep in her heart that the Government which answered her prayers, is the Government she wants to see in control of the province.

Mothers know that with the vote in their hands they can assist in assuring many wise measures bearing on the welfare of children and they know that the Government gave them the right to vote, realizing that woman's voice must be heard, that cooperation of men and women would be th ebest thing for the province.

Mothers know that the Government is not only pledged to mothers pensions, but that the definite details for working it out are now being arranged. They know what this signifies. They realize how essential it is that the mother should be at home instead of working in the factory or elsewhere while the children uncared for run the streets.

Mothers sum up these and other points, when they think of the vote they will register in the coming election, and there is no room for doubt in their minds as to where their vote goes.

OVER THE WAVES.

(By Leona.)

There by the mournful music of the sea,
A row of crosses white,
Gleams dimly through the light of silent stars;
Of the abssmal night.
Upon each lowly daisy-sprinkled mound,
The winds sink down to sleep
And far above will dark lamenting pines,
Forever sigh and weep.
Young hearts lie here, whose blood with glory dyed,
The lillied fields of France;
Who faced wars sacrifice, nor threw behind
One wavering homeward glance.
They slumber here in peace that knows no dawn;
Near where the wild waves moan,
While grieving hearts at home are wrapped in tears,
Disconsolate and lone.
O you who feel the bitterness of loss,
And seek your own in vain,
Dream of him not as dead, who sleeps in quiet,
Across the restless main.
Vision him always as the day he left
With spirit brave and bright,
Till all his splendid manhood lives again
To fill your heart with light.

RATS JOIN WALKOUT

Steubenville, Ohio.—Even the rats have walked out at the Labelle Iron Works where a labor strike is in effect. The rats stuck it out several days after the men went on strike, but as there were no more scraps of lunch left lying around, the rats decided to leave. They departed in through the main gate of the mill by many persons.

He who boasts that he never kissed a girl may be telling the truth but nobody envies him.

A woman is always anxious to let her husband have his own way providing it's the same as hers.

Mrs. Carey Uses Wiles To Persuade Husband

After a Good Dinner and Some Sound Reasoning Mr. Carey Produces His Cheque Book and Signs.

"Here's a funny thing," said Mr. Carey from behind his morning paper. "A woman succeeds where all men fail."

"Nothing funny in that," answered his wife, as she handed him his third cup of coffee.

Mr. Carey looked up.

"Don't get facetious," he remarked. This story tells about a man who got a bug in his ear, and after vain endeavors by the doctors to get it out, his wife's ingenuity succeeded. She held a light to his ear, and the insect walked out."

"I guess he had a bee in his bonnet, daddy," said the little lad at the end of the table.

"You'd better get your cap and hurry off to school, young man," said his father.

"I begin to wish I had as much originality as that woman you just read about, and could find some means to dislocate some ideas that have got into some people's heads," said Mrs. Carey.

"Meaning me, I suppose?" replied the man of the house as he folded his napkin and rose from the table. "I am always open to reason, my dear. Whatever you want me to do, if you can show me a good reason for it, then I will do it."

"Without any arguments?"

"Without a murmur," was his parting shot.

Mrs. Carey went back to the breakfast table, and picking up the paper glanced carelessly over it.

"Hello! what's this?" She read to herself, "Victory Loan campaign opens October 27."

She laid the paper down on her knee, and thought for a moment.

"I have it," she announced gleefully to no one in particular. "Bob said last year that he would not invest in any more Victory Bonds, no matter how many loans were floated. I will test his morning statement. He said he would do anything I wanted him to if I could show him good reasons."

That night the dinner was particularly good. A fine deep pumpkin pie put the master of the house in an excellent humor. By the time he got his old pipe going, he was at peace with the world.

"How many Victory Bonds are you going to buy this time?" was Mrs. Carey's opening shot.

"I told you last year that I had all I could afford," was the reply from the depths of the old arm chair. "I can't buy another one."

"Now, Bob, you know you could. What about that deal you made last week? You told me you cleaned up several thousand on it."

"Even if I did, I see no reason why it should go into Victory Bonds."

"If I can give you five reasons why you should subscribe to this loan, will you put all that 'clean up' into bonds?"

"I do like to hear you wax eloquent, Mary," smiled her husband. "Go ahead, old girl, and if you put up a real good argument I will buy the bonds and give them to you."

"First, there is the necessity of meeting the enormous expense of demobilization. It took a wonderful pull to manage it in such a short time. But it was done, and now there is a huge expense account to be settled. Canada must pay her debts, and keep her name as shining as those boys of ours kept it over there. Isn't that right, Bob?"

"Yes, that one is all right." This was granted quite willingly.

"Second, there is the obligation we owe the soldiers still in the hospitals. Those men were once well and strong, but for us they took the chance in France and came back shattered in body and mind. We must see that the hospitals are kept equipped, and the medical and nursing staff up to standard. This will take money, and we must supply the money by taking Victory Bonds."

"I certainly think that is right. We must get our boys back to health if possible."

"Third, there is the debt of honor owing the soldiers who came back crippled or blinded, and so unable to take up their old place in life. These men must be trained for positions where they can earn their living as well as they did before war deprived them of their limbs or sight."

"Who can do that?" asked Mr. Carey.

"The Government is doing it through the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment. They are doing more than training the men. They are placing them in jobs, too. Don't you think that is a fine thing for your money to assist?"

"Yes, I would be glad to help do thing like that."

"Fourth, the soldiers who have returned without injury must be shown some consideration. Canada offers to lend money to any returned man who wishes to go on the land and become farmer. Think, Bob, what a chance for some of the fellows to buy a farm and stock it, and not have to pay an exorbitant rate of interest, and be given a long time to pay it back. You will agree to that."

"I do most heartily."

"Fifth Canada must be kept in a state of prosperity. We must have working capital to extend credits to Great Britain and allied countries so that they may buy our surplus products and keep the tide of commerce coming our way."

"Mary, you are too smart for me," said Mr Carey, as he knocked the ashes out of his pipe and rose. "I see plainly that I was wrong. Canada needs my money, and I don't have to give it, as I would have had to do if Germany had won. I only have to lend it at a good rate of interest. I acknowledge it's up to me."

— Confirmed and Vaccinated.

After church parade the padre said:

"I wish to speak to those of you who have not been confirmed. Will the men divide themselves into two parties, please? Those who have fall on the right and those who have not fall on the left."

He heard:

In the huffle this remark was "You been confirmed, Bill?"

"Bet yer life. Got the marks on me arm yes!"

The Real Issue!

Defeat of the Ontario Temperance Act Means Return of the License System

The magician directs his audience to fix its gaze intently upon something else in order that his dexterous fingers may the more easily practise to deceive.

THE APOLOGISTS for the Liquor Traffic loudly protest that they are "absolutely opposed to the return of the old license system." At the same time they ask you to vote "Yes" to question No. 1 which, if carried by the affirmative, means a return to the Liquor License Act.

They have deliberately stated in their advertising that "the repeal of the Ontario Temperance Act does not mean a return to the general sale of spirituous liquors."

Don't be fooled by this camouflage.

As the terms of the old License Act permit the general sale of spirituous liquors, it naturally follows that this statement is a transparent effort at camouflage.

The Bars Must Not Return!

The Temperance Referendum Act, 1919, specifically provides for the return of the old license system. What could be clearer or more to the point than the language of the statute? It plainly states that if there is a majority voting "Yes" on the first question that—

"The Ontario Temperance Act shall be repealed.... and the Liquor License Act....shall be revived and shall be in force in Ontario....and shall have effect until altered or modified by lawful authority as if the Ontario Temperance Act had not been passed." (See any copy of the Act for full text).

In a recent speech, Premier Hearst, the framer of the Act, interpreted question No. 1 as follows:—

"If Question 1 on the referendum ballot is marked 'Yes' by a majority of the voters, Ontario will return to the wide-open bar and liquor store as it was before 1916. If anyone is quoting me as saying anything different, then he is quoting me wrongly."

What will be the Situation after the Referendum?

—If a majority vote "Yes" on question No. 1.

The Ontario Temperance Act will be repealed.

On the day that this Act ceases to exist, the Liquor License Act comes into force.

The Traffic will again be licensed to sell all kinds of intoxicating liquors, as it was before Sept. 16, 1916.

The bars will come back.

The saloons will flourish.

Liquor stores will re-open.

The old "booze" conditions will return. It will be a black day for Ontario.

—If a majority vote "No" on question No. 1.

The Ontario Temperance Act will continue in force.

The danger of resurrecting the old Liquor License Act will have passed once and for all.

The Ontario situation will continue as it exists to-day—except in so far as it may be modified by Dominion legislation, or by an amendment to the Ontario Temperance Act in case a majority vote "Yes" for questions Nos. 2, 3 or 4.

The way to prevent any of these amendments from introducing intoxicating beer or spirituous liquors into Ontario is to vote "No" on every question.

What Will Happen If Majority Vote "No" on Question No. 1, and "Yes" on others?

(a) If a majority vote "Yes" on question 2—then the Ontario Temperance Act will be amended and 5.46% beer (proof spirits) will be sold through Government Agencies.

(b) If a majority vote "Yes" on question 3—Then 5.46% beer (proof spirits) will be sold in standard hotels even in localities formerly under local option where a majority vote favors such sale.

(c) If a majority vote "Yes" on question 4—Then we will have all kinds of liquor sold by Government Agencies.

Don't be fooled! Don't let your attention be distracted from the true issue by the arts of camouflage! Don't be misled into believing that the defeat of the Ontario Temperance Act will merely mean the so-called "light" beer for Ontario. Remember that it actually means bringing back the evil conditions ensuing from the return to the old Liquor License Act. Mark your ballot with

Four X's—One X only under each NO

Be sure you answer every question. Be sure you mark your ballot with an X after each question under the word "No," or your vote will be lost to Temperance.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE WEST RIDING OF PETERBOROUGH

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

Having again received the unanimous nomination of the Liberal Convention of West Peterborough as a candidate for Parliamentary honors at the ensuing Provincial Election, to be held on October 20th, I desire to solicit your hearty support in favor of my election.

WAR WORK

Having represented you for the past five years (war years), I can safely say that during that period, while every effort was being made to win the war—my record is known to you all, and on that record I ask you to judge me on the position I have taken on all measures affecting the war work.

TEMPERANCE QUESTION

When I was elected in 1914 I stated my views on the Temperance question during that campaign; I pledged myself to vote for Temperance legislation on all occasions brought forward by whatever party, and the record in the House will show that I carried out that pledge.

The Referendum vote is to be taken on the same date as the Provincial election, October 20, and if I am again elected your representative I promise to give my whole-hearted support to the Government elected to carry out the will of the people as expressed by their votes on the Referendum ballot.

AGRICULTURAL LEGISLATION.

During the years preceding 1914 every one agreed that the Department of Agriculture was asleep. The very first opportunity offered in the House I introduced the question of a forward movement in Agriculture, and, along with other Liberal members of the House, have earnestly advocated a more strenuous progressive policy in Agriculture.

The shortage of production, the problem of farm help, and the numerous perplexing questions affecting the farmer, cannot be solved unless we seriously consider the cause and apply the remedy.

During the past few years of unrest in the country, due mainly to excessive living costs, I have advocated that demonstration farms be established in different counties, and increased attention be paid to the education to be received in our Agricultural College and Experimental Farms, and that the knowledge gained at the Agricultural College be put into practice on Demonstration Farms, where a profit and loss account would be kept, and the costs of producing 100 pounds of milk or a pound of pork, or any of the many products of the farm, could be ascertained and established, such information being sadly lacking today. By such a system of education the farm would be looked upon as a business manufacturing plant, that would attract the best brains to the development of the greatest asset in Canada today—the farm. Our production is unlimited. The markets of the world are calling for food, and our own citizens living from hand to mouth in [illegible] conditions which this year's months have in store for them.

PROVINCIAL HIGHWAYS

Our highways need much repair. Auto and truck traffic is becoming daily increased, and we must develop a road policy which will make for hauling our produce to market as cheaply as possible. To this matter I promise to give my best thought.

EDUCATION

Education, I am pleased to say, is in the hands of a new Minister, in whom we hope for great things. I believe in a separate education for the city and rural districts. An education in the rural districts to educate the boy and girl in the great lessons of Agriculture, making two blades of grass grow where one grew before, developing the average cow of Ontario today, which gives 5,000 pounds of milk in a milking period of 10,000 pounds, producing a pound of pork or beef at a lower cost, and giving to the world the blessing which we most need—a reduction in the high cost of living.

THE LABOR QUESTION

Regarding the important question of Labor, my own policy has been to treat Labor as I would wish to be treated myself. I have had a good deal of experience with labor of various kinds and conditions, and have never had any trouble along that line, and do not expect to have any.

OUR RETURNED HEROES

To me, the welfare of the returned soldiers and soldiers' wives is one of the most essential duties of our country. Therefore I promise that I will give my hearty support to every movement calculated to promote their very best interests. The soldiers who fought for me for five years deserve, and may expect to receive, my earnest consideration during the remaining years of my life.

THE WOMAN VOTE

I am delighted to know that the women are to enjoy equal privileges with men in the use of the franchise at this election, and in the exercise of this privilege I have the greatest faith in their good judgment and purifying influence. Their power with the ballot on October 20, especially with the Prohibition and Labor problems, will, I feel certain, be of far-reaching effect. I will, therefore, consider the votes of the ladies counted in my favor at the approaching election to be instruction to take high grounds on all matters calculated to elevate the morals of this community as well as of the whole Dominion.

CONCLUSION.

These questions I have dealt with are, to my mind, the outstanding questions of the day. If I am elected again as your representative, I promise to give the best of my ability, my mature judgment on all questions affecting the interests of the West Riding of Peterborough, the Province of Ontario, the Dominion of Canada, and the British Empire, of which we today are so justly proud.

Thanking you, ladies and gentlemen, for your support in the past, and soliciting your support again on the 20th day of October, I remain,

Your obedient servant,

GEO. A. GILLESPIE.

ATTORNEY GENERAL LUCAS MAKES ROUSING ADDRESS AT HAVELOCK

Home of James Thompson, Late Member and Now the Candidate is Scene of Successful Rally Mr. Thompson Reviews His Record in Legislature—Mr. Lucas Given Enthusiastic Reception.

The popular People's candidate in East Peterboro, Mr. James Thompson, M. L. A., held a mass meeting in his home town of Havelock, on Wednesday night last, and was enthusiastically acclaimed as choice of the electors in no uncertain manner by the very large number present.

Mr. C. H. Brewster, of Havelock, acted as chairman, and contented himself with a few brief introductory remarks, in presenting Mr. Thompson and the main speaker of the evening, no less a personage than the Hon. I. B. Lucas, the able and clever Attorney-General of the province.

Mr. Thompson's Address.

Mr. Thompson said that it was over five years since a provincial election had been held, the extra year in office being due to an agreement proposed by the Opposition leader, Mr. Proudfoot, owing to the war conditions at that time, and a proposition which was accepted by the Government as the only fitting course to pursue. He said that he was proud to again appear before his constituents seeking re-election as the Hearst Candidate because of the admirable record of that Government. For the past four years the Government had not thought of politics nor had any Conservative executive or organization meetings been held in this riding. To-day, he said, we are facing an election in which a variety of elements are opposing the Government: socialists, G. W. V. A., U. F. O., Independent Labor Party, and combinations of all these factions. He had, he said suggested to his constituents the advisability of standing aside for some other man if they so desired, but at the recent Liberal-Conservative convention in Norwood, 160 farmers and their wives had unanimously selected him to again be their candidate in the riding as the representative of the Government. His opponent, Mr. E. N. McDonald, was selected as the U. F. O. candidate in June last, and he is appealing for support on the platform of that new political party.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL LUCAS, who addressed large gathering in Havelock on behalf of James Thompson, Conservative candidate.

Mr. Thompson proceeded to take up the planks of the U. F. O. platform, one by one, and discuss them. The preamble of that platform contained the statement that the provincial debt had been increased at an alarming rate. This contention Mr. Thompson disproved entirely, quoting from the provincial financial statement to prove that the so-called debt was in reality almost entirely composed of first class investments, such as forty-four millions to the Hydro Electric, twenty-two millions to the T. & N. O. railway, etc., and showing that the province had liquid assets worth over seventy-one millions and total assets of over six hundred millions. The Government, he said, intends to go ahead and develop Hydro until every farmer and citizen in Ontario will practically have the opportunity to take advantage of this God-given power, and the greater distribution of that power, the greater the industrial expansion and consequent good to all classes. He told of the Government's economical plans with regard to mines and forests, in marked contrast to the policy of past years, showing how, under the present policy, the inestimable timber wealth of the province was being conserved and would ultimately be available for re-selling every twenty years.

U. F. O. plank No. 1, "to cut out all expenditure not absolutely necessary," he said, might mean something or nothing. We are only on the borderland of the development of this great province so as to produce untold wealth to our people. Our revenues are being raised from sources that do not bear on our people, such as from succession duties, taxed corporations, theatres, timber limits, etc.

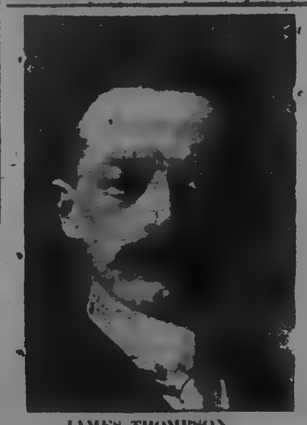
Regarding Plank No. 2, abolishing party patronage he claimed was already accomplished by the Government, who had appointed a commissioner to pass on all applications for the inside service.

Plank No. 3, regarding co-operative efforts, was past history of the Government, who has established co-operative circles and clubs for the farmers many years ago, and which were working out admirably, excepting in such places where politics had been introduced by political tricksters to belittle the Government's efforts to help agriculture. He gave as an instance, the splendid results accruing from the establishment, on his personal solicitation, of the Department of Agriculture at Norwood, and the co-operative egg circles of a few years ago.

Plank No. 4 respecting educational advantages, was another plank that the Government had anticipated by providing machinery for consolidated schools, which would be assisted to a great degree by the government, and referred with pride to the enormous increases the Government had made regarding grants to country schools, [illegible] the rural pupils the advantages that they could not otherwise obtain.

He upheld the Government's Good Roads Policy, and instanced the opposition he had incurred in advocating good roads in Peterboro County, but which had now been overcome to the advantage of all. The county good roads system, he claimed, was just what the U. F. O. were advocating, and such a system had no equal on the continent. Moreover it was the revenue raised from auto taxation that was going to build good roads, so that they were not being constructed for a few to the detriment of the many but vice versa.

He showed convincingly that the Government's policy on forestry and Hydro development was the best policy for the people of Ontario, and right along the lines advocated by the U. F. O.



JAMES THOMPSON, who has represented East Peterborough in the Legislature for the past eleven years and who is again a candidate.

The Referendum, he said, was an honest effort seeking endorsation of the Government's policy regarding prohibition or temperance, and it was for the people to decide what they wanted, and the Government would faithfully carry out their wishes.

He ridiculed the U. F. O. planks for direct legislation by the initiative recall and proportional representation as being unworkable in fact, and said that no country on earth had ever succeeded along those lines.

Mr. Thompson quoted statistics to prove that Ontario is going ahead by leaps and bounds, and that farms increased in value the past few years. Conditions today, he said are particularly bright for the farmer, and he hoped that he would get what he is entitled to for the laborious work he has to undergo. He referred to the new government road from Havelock to Trent River, which is now under construction, and said that it was an experimental road being built by the Government to test out the claim that the trap rock in this section was the best road material in the world for road purposes, with a view to using it for provincial road construction. The road, he said, was no election dodge. His record speaks for itself, he said, and he had never in his twenty years' residence here, put up a bluff on the people and futhermore, he said that if the road did not go through that he would resign his seat rather than take advantage of any support derived therefrom. He referred to his successful efforts in getting the income tax exemption raised for wage earners at the recent session, and said that the Premier states that the exemption will be still furher raised for married men.

Mr. Thompson argued the electors not to allow themselves to be influenced by the campaign against the [illegible] to cast those called sins or acts of the Union Government at Ottawa upon the provincial Legislature. An attempt was being made to confuse the provincial affairs with those at Ottawa for the purpose of injuingr the Hearst administration, and concluded with asking the electors to support his candidature as a Hearst supporter on the record of the Government, especially if they thought his record in the East Riding merited another term in the interests of all the people of the riding, and asked the ladies to use their votes-a gift of the Hearst Government—in his behalf, and to solicit support for him.

Mr. Lucas' Address.

Mr. Lucas, in rising to address the audience, was greeted with hearty applause. He expressed his pleasure at being in Havelock and in being privileged to speak to such a representative audience. He referred to Mr. Thompson's efforts in the Legislature on behalf of East Peterboro, and said that the candidate was a most excellent representative and one who was exceedingly well thought of in the city, and one who was continually seeking to benefit his riding in every way posible. Mr. Thompson, he said, merited support again and he was sure that the people would recognize that fact.

Mr. Lucas acclaimed the Government as a most democratic one, and one that even its worst enemy could find no deinite charge to bring against it. The U. F. O. movement he characterized as but the pin pricks of a vague discontent on minor complaints. He said that the whole point was that anyone who wants to accomplish anything must go with the majority, and that no one can absolutely have their own way. The Hearst Government he claimed could not be equalled on the whole, while conceding the point that it might have certain blemishes, but insisted that it was travelling in the right direction. There had, he said, been 550 election contests in the past 15 years and not a charge of fraud has ever been made, and asked if that was not a sure sign of an honest administration. Referring to the U. F. O. movement, he claimed that it was trying to put farmers out of the Legislature by opposing sitting farmer members, and to replace them with U. F. O. Farmers, which he said was a queer way of trying to place a larger percentage of farmers in the house. The Government had gone the limit in trying to assist agriculture in the province and challenged anyone to bring forward any reasonable fault of the government especially in regard to agriculeure. The U. F. O platform he said, was too narrow, because it only included legislation for the farmer, and not laws for all the people, on the contrary the Government legislates for all classes and not one particular class or party. He referred to the great benefits of the Workmen's Compensation Act, under which ten million dollars had been expended in the past ten years without a cent of law costs of any kind. The Hearst Government have given honest administration, advanced education, assisted agriculeure, and it would be worth while, he said, to return such a government if for nothing else than to retain the services of the Hon. Dr. Cody, the most foremost educationist of the entire country.

Mr. Lucas dealt fully with the wonderful possibilities of Hydro Electric rural telephone lines, good roads, distribution of light, heat and power, consolidated schools, and asked for a better community spirit throughout the province. He defended the principles of party government—belittled by the U. F. O. —which is for the Opposition to criticise the action of the state, and pointed out to the audience that the Liberal press, particularly the Toronto Star, was advising Liberals to support the Hearst Government in preference to the leadership of Hartley Dewart. He referred to the opposition for further gratuities for the returned heroes on the part of the Farmers Sun, the official organ of the party, and at that paper's sneering reference to our returned soldiers.

He said that the Hearst Government would be returned by a good sound majority, and prophested that Mr. Thompson would be one of them. He pins his faith, he said, on the people of Ontario to appreciate sound, sane, stable government and to return the progressive Conservative party to power, and beseeched the electors to do all they could to make rural Ontario a credit to us and a better place to live; not to break up in classes, but to stand shoulder to shoulder in true brotherliness.

In concluding, Mr. Lucas said that the Government could promise no more than it has done in the past, and that its past performance if continued was sufficient to justify the support of all right thinking electors, no matter what their old time political leanings had been.

The meeting closed with hearty cheers for the King, for Mr. Lucas and for the people's candidate, Mr. James Thompson.

RHEUMATIC PEOPLE

Can Only Find Relief by Enriching the Blood.

Rheumatism is a disorder of the blood. It attacks people when the blood is overcharged with acid and impurities, thus setting up inflammation in the muscles and joints. Wet weather or cold weather of autumn may start the tortures of rheumatism, but is not the cause. The cause is in the blood and the blood only. Victims of this malady have every reason to fear the first dull ache in the limbs and points, followed by sharp pains through the flesh and muscles; these are the symptoms of poison in the blood which may shortly leave the victim painracked and helpless.

There is only one way to cure rheumatism, and that is through the blood. Liniments, hot applications, and rubbing may give temporary ease but cannot possibly root the trouble out of the system. That can only be done by the rich, red blood which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make. This new blood drives out the poisonous acids and impurities, and the rheumatism disappears. If you are sufferer from this painful malady begin curing yourself today by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and see how soon the pains and stiffness of the joints fade away, leaving behind new energy and new health.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Double Bottoms Put To Work.

For many years a few steamships from the far east have brought fuel oil back to Britain in the ballast space between their inner and outer hulls. The practice never became general, however, and "tankers" continued to handle the bulk of the trade. But in June, 1917, increased submarine activity and the expansion of the allied fleets made immediate additions to tank tonnage so imperative that not a few, but hundreds, of British and American "double bottoms" were fitted for this auxiliary cargo. Apart from its war-time results this new practice has taught marine engineers many lessons that will guide them in designing the oil-burning ships of tomorrow.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

A Fortune From Shells.

Sir Marcus Samuel, who has purchased from the Earl of Berkeley for the sum of $25,000,000 a parcel of the fashionable residential section of London, known as Berkeley Square, started in business life keeping a little shop in one of the poorer quarters of the British metropolis, where he made and sold for a shilling or two ornamental boxes made of shells from the seashore. Later he invested his savings in oil, made money and started a company, called the "Shell," thus identifying his big new venture with his original struggling business.

A Professional Attitude.

More Farms - Good Times

How it Affects You

Among our returned soldiers there are thousands of practical farmers. Still other thousands are studying farming under Canada's supervision, by hiring out to farmers, and by taking courses in agricultural colleges. These men want to "go on the land," but they have no capital. So, through the medium of the Soldiers' Land Settlement Act, Canada says to them "If you are fully qualified to farm, I will lend you money to purchase land, stock and implements. You may pay it back within a stated time, and for the loan of it, I will charge you only a moderate rate of interest."

Canada makes this offer, not only because men who have fought deserve well of their country, but because it is of prime importance that more land should be cultivated.

The love of outdoor life and the resourcefulness of our soldier citizens are just the qualities to make them successful farmers, and upholders of the best Canadian tradition.

As evidence of the value of the Land Settlement Act, the following figures were available on August 15:--

Number of applications from soldiers	29,495
Number of applications investigated and approved (not all placed)	22,281
Number of soldiers actually farming this year	9,043
Average amount of loan to each soldier	$2,960
Total amount of loans	$26,767,304
Average size of farm	160 acres
Total amount of homestead lands—that is, virgin soil placed under cultivation	1,000,000 acres

This million acres was divided among 3,768 soldiers, 160 acres each being the original allotment; but 2,512 soldiers availed themselves of the privilege open to all soldier-homesteaders to obtain an additional 160 acres, making their [illegible] 320 acres each.

In addition to a million acres of virgin soil already placed under cultivation, more than 6,000 other farms are now being worked, many of which would have been less productive if returned soldiers had not taken them over.

It is just as true to-day as it was before the war that big crops favorably marketed mean general prosperity for Canada.

The more wheat and farm products Canada grows and sells, the more money will be spread through all classes of the community. Not only the farmer, but the merchant, the manufacturer, the industrial wage earner and the professional man will benefit.

Here is where YOU come in.

$24,000,000 of the forthcoming Victory Loan will be used to make loans to soldier farmers.

By purchasing Victory Bonds you will help the soldier who is starting life anew on the farm as well as sharing in this national investment in farm development. You will not only get good interest on your money with the best security, but you will participate in the increased general prosperity which greater farm production brings.

Get ready to join in the promotion of greater national prosperity, therefore, by subscribing to the British Manufacturers Form Gigantic Combine To Develop Industries

THE British have a strange habit of getting things done without publicity. In fact, the greater the scheme the more privately it is put into operation.

In the past three years, for instance, a most stupendous organization has been formed consisting practically of all the manufacturers of "The Federation of British Industries."

It represents 16,000 firms and more than $20,000,000,000 of capital; yet it has never had a half-page of publicity in any British or American paper. It is trust of trusts—probably the largest industrial body in the world, yet the average Britisher has never heard of its name.

This F. B. I., as it is called for short, comprises 184 trade associations and 852 large firms. This makes 1,035 members and the subscription is $500 a year.

None but all-British firms are admitted to membership—no Germans, no French, no Americans.

The main object of the F. B. I. is to protect, consolidate and develop British industries—to restore Britain as the workshop of the world.

This is to be done by simplifying the processes of labor; by cheapening the cost of patents; by protecting trade marks; by gathering data for the use of members; by establishing a library and an industrial museum; by holding expositions in foreign countries; by scientific research; by assisting inventors; by abolishing state control and by the extension of foreign trade.

It is organized in a two-fold way—by trades and by districts. It has its headquarters in London, at 39 St. James street, S. W., 1; and it has 16 branch offices in England, Scotland and Wales. There are three members in Ireland.

It aims to prevent the waste of competition by an efficient organization of trades. It treats a trade as a unit, and it includes labor as well as capital in its definition of a trade.

It is not anti-labor. On the contrary, it has declared in favor of "the promotion of free discussion between masters and workmen, with the avoidance of strikes and all other forms of industrial warfare."

Above all, it is a private association, run for the benefit of its members. It has no connection in any way with any government department. It is teaching the British manufacturer to depend on self-help.

A member of the Government, Sir Auckland Geddes, has recently announced that the Government has prepared a spick-and-span trade policy, but has it locked up in a box because of the unsettled condition of industry.

But the F. B. I. is not waiting for the opening of this Pandora's box. It is not only shaping its own trade policy, but putting it into effect as well.

It has a special "overseas department," to promote foreign trade.

Already, the F. B. I. has divided the world into 21 districts and has appointed a commissioner for each district — a well-paid, competent business man.

Already it has arranged to hold a British Exposition — for British goods only, at the Zappelon, Athens, from October 13 to November 14.

It is now bringing groups of foreign buyers to Britain. A Brazilian delegation is now being conducted on a tour through 21 industrial towns.

It has already booked large orders from Serbia, Morocco, Switzerland, Bohemia and the Dutch East Indies. To reach foreign markets it has printed booklets in six languages. Also, it has compiled an "export register" — a directory of British manufacturers.

The F. B. I. is governed by a grand council of 211 members. This council has full powers to borrow money or issue bonds. It is virtually an industrial parliament. All ownership of property is vested in five trustees.

At the head is a president, elected annually. This year's president is Sir Vincent Caillard, the head of Vickers, Ltd.

The founder and central figure of this vast organization is a man without title and almost without fame—F. Dudley Docker, of Birmingham.

Mr. Docker is the British Rockefeller. He works silently. He is a business builder. As an organiser, he stands second to no one except Lord Leverhulme. And now that he has organised one-eighth of all British wealth into a single federation, he is in some respects without an equal as a brigadier-general of industry.

Knight of the Atlantic.

As an example of the rapid progress of the modern airman, the record of Captain Sir John Alcock, the first man to fly the Atlantic direct, would be hard to beat. Fifteen years ago he was working as a shop boy in a Manchester motor works, and six years later was only a mechanic at Brooklands Aerodrome. Then he qualified for an aviator's certificate and won third place in the London-Manchester air race.

The war gave him his great opportunity, and from the rank of flight sub-lieutenant in the Royal Navy he rose to chief instructor of the Aerobatic Squadron, winning the D.S.C. for his successful attack on three enemy seaplanes off Mudros.

GOVERNMENT WILL AID ALL NEEDY VETERANS

Ottawa, Oct. 10. — The Government committee on Soldiers' Re-establishment is expected to report in a few days. What its recommendations will be is not at present known, but is fairly certain that neither of the bonus schemes proposed by the United Veterans' League and the Great War Veterans will find favour in its report.

However many friends the two schemes may have in the committee and they are not many, it is fairly clear from the evidence given by Sir Thomas White and Deputy Minister of Finance, Baville, that the financial condition of the country precludes the possibility of further gratuities either of four or eight hundred millions. It is a matter of ability to meet the demands quite as much as it is a matter of advisability.

The committee, generally speaking, does not favor any scheme which proposes to bonus members of the expeditionary force regardless of need, or of length of service. The proposal which is most likely to be adopted is one which was mooted before the committee was formed. That constitutes the formation of a fund, to be administered by committees at various centres, and which will be available in needy cases to tide men over the winter. This will be a Federal fund but otherwise similar in its application to the Patriotic Fund. It may run as high as fifty millions but will be distributed only in case of unemployment and actual need.

Unemployment insurance has also been talked. While steps may be taken to enable disabled men to secure life insurance.

Apart from this, the committee will make certain recommendations in regard to civil re-establishment proper. But it may safely be predicted that further cash bonuses of any sort will be discouraged as impractical.

CANNOT OVERFEED THE GROWING BOYS

Mothers catering to growing boys are often worried over the possibility of their eating too much—they have such large appetites. They may be reassured, however, for Dr. Clement Dukes told his fellow practitioners at a recent symposium on diet that it was almost impossible to overfeed rapidly growing young folks, between the ages of thirteen and nineteen, provided the food was not too rich.

Dr. Dukes, as reported in the Medical Journal, said that an adult should rise from the table hungry, but a youth should not rise until he has attained a sense of repletion. A healthy appetite in adolescence, not the caterer's own appetite or desires, is the surest guide, so long as the food is plain and wholesome.

A larger quantity of all the essential kinds of food is demanded than at any other time of life, and a relative excess of proteins is indispensable if the highest state of growth and development is to be attained. Milk is the standard growth food. Children who have milk for breakfast and supper grow nearly four times as fast as those who have tea and coffee. Meat should be eaten twice a day, about three-quarters of a pound for the younger ones, a pound for the older. Some adolescents have an antipathy to meat and to them cheese is invaluable.

Soup is beneficial; and fat in some form is a necessity, but it is required in less quantity than sugar. At certain periods some adolescents have an instinctive dislike to fats, especially if they are tired; at other times they will eat it with avidity. The best forms in which it can be supplied are milk, butter, margarine, bacon, and suet puddings, for they will eat animal fat in that form when they will not touch the fat of meat in any other.

Green vegetables are needed to insure the best health, but there is difficulty in getting young people to eat any of them; their places can be taken by fruit, which is much appreciated. Finally Dukes maintains that the chief cause of indigestion in healthy adolescence is not overeating or bolting food but is the drinking of tea and coffee too strong, too much, or too frequently.

Sensational Discovery of Misleading Tactics by Referendum Committee

House-to-House Canvass, Distorting the Issue, Confusing and Misleading the Women Voters

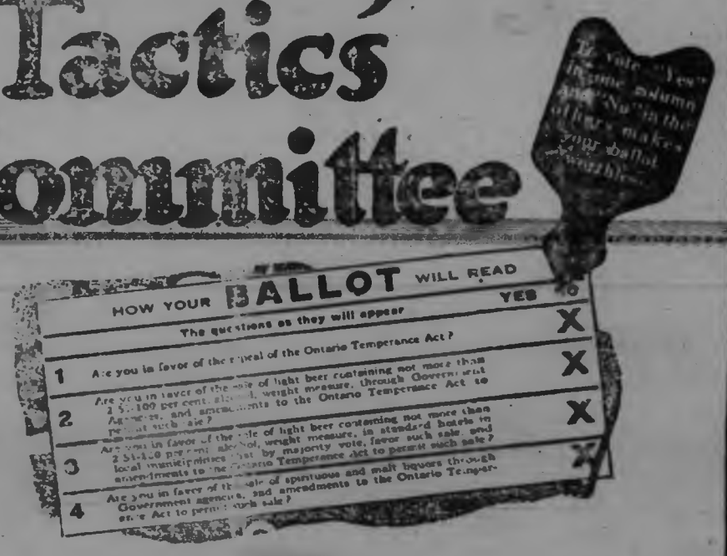
EVIDENCE is accumulating of a widespread campaign of distortion and confusion by the Referendum Committee in an effort to stampede and dragoon the women voters to vote according to the wishes of the Referendum Committee.

Canvassers have been going from door to door all over the Province spreading two absolute untruths—confusing and misleading the innocent—utterly nullifying the effort of the Government to obtain an honest, straightforward, well-advised vote of the people. Independently-minded women who disagreed with them were subjected to tirades of abuse.

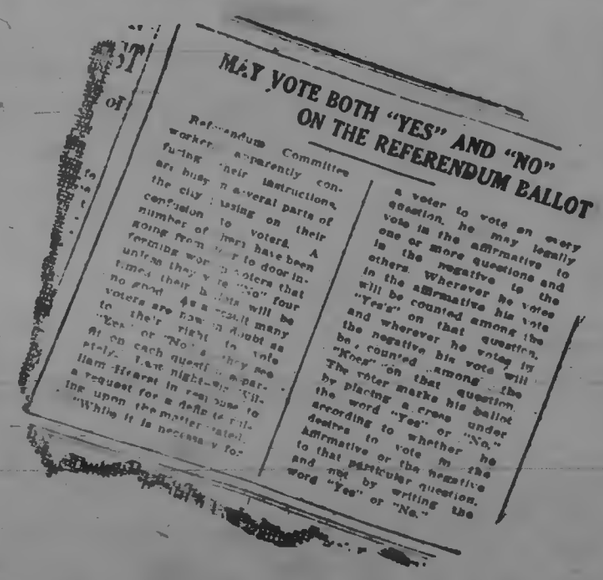
It is one of the greatest scandals in the political history of Ontario—a sensational development in the campaign—a grave reflection on, and indictment of, the honesty of purpose of the entire Referendum Committee.

FIRST.—Flamingly colored and sensational circulars have been sent broadcast over the Province in which it is claimed that—in the words of the advertising as shown in the copy reproduced to the right—"To vote 'Yes' in one column and 'No' in the others makes your ballot worthless." Further, self-constituted advisors to the electorate have gone from house to house solemnly making the same declaration—that if you vote "Yes" in one column and "No" in the others, your ballot will be spoiled. That statement by the Referendum Committee is an absolute untruth, and has been publicly branded as such in the columns of the "Mail and Empire," October 4th, by Sir William Hearst, the Premier of the Province. The Premier's statement is reproduced to the right,

SECOND.—These demagogues and representatives of the Referendum Committee have distributed wholesale a distorted ballot in which it is claimed the man or woman who votes "Yes" to Questions 2 and 3 votes for intoxicating beer. That is an absolute untruth.—The beer for which you will vote on October 20th, the Beer of the Ballot, is not intoxicating, has been proven non-intoxicating by scientific experiments and thorough research by a board of fourteen qualified experts.



By vote "Yes" in the columns marked "No" in the others makes your ballot worthless
HOW YOUR BALLOT WILL READ
The questions as they will appear
YES
1 Are you in favor of the repeal of the Ontario Temperance Act? X
2 Are you in favor of the sale of light beer containing not more than 2 5-100 per cent. alcohol, weight measure, through Government and Government agencies, and amendments to the Ontario Temperance Act to permit such sale? X
3 Are you in favor of the sale of light beer containing not more than 2 5-100 per cent. alcohol, weight measure, in standard hotels in local municipalities that by majority vote favor such sale, and amendments to the Ontario Temperance Act to permit such sale? X
4 Are you in favor of the sale of spirituous and malt liquors through Government agencies, and amendments to the Ontario Temperance Act to permit such sale? X



MAY VOTE BOTH "YES" AND "NO" ON THE REFERENDUM BALLOT
Referendum Committee worker apparently contrary to their instructions, are busy in several parts of the city issuing on their own to voters. A number of voters that they have been going from door to door informing voters that "No" four times will be taken as a result many voters are now in doubt as to their right to vote "Yes" or "No" on each question. For instance, Premier Hearst in response to a request for a definite ruling upon the matter stated: "While it is necessary for a voter to vote on every question, he may legally vote in the affirmative to one or more questions and in the negative to the others. Wherever he votes in the affirmative his vote is counted among the "Yeses" on that question, and wherever he votes in the negative his vote will be counted among the "Noes" on that question. The voter marks his ballot by placing a cross under the word "Yes" or "No," according to whether he desires to vote in the affirmative or the negative to that particular question, and not by writing the word "Yes" or "No."

Vote "Yes" to all four questions and support the broad-minded men and women of the Citizens' Liberty League in their efforts to obtain sane, moderate temperance legislation.

The Citizens' Liberty League hereby calls upon the Referendum Committee to make a public explanation, retraction and apology that will set the people right—or stand condemned of trickery unworthy of public men and women.

Vote "YES" to All Four Questions

Mark your ballot with an X. Any other marking will spoil it. Remember also—every voter must vote on every question or his ballot will be spoiled.

ONLY TABLETS MARKED "BAYER" ARE ASPIRIN

Not Aspirin at All without the "Bayer Cross"

For Colds, Pain, Rheumatism, Aching Joints, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuritis, and for Headache, Neuralgia, Toothache, Earache, take Aspirin marked with the name "Bayer" or you are not taking Aspirin at all.

Handy tin boxes containing 12 tablets cost but a few cents. Druggists package which contains complete directions. Then you are getting real Aspirin—the genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over nineteen years. Now made in Canada.

Accept only "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" in an unbroken "Bayer" also sell larger "Bayer" packages.

There is only one Aspirin—"Bayer"—You must say "Bayer"

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assist the public against imitations, the Tablets of Bayer Company will be stamped with their general trade mark, the "Bayer Cross."

THE MERCHANTS' COLUMN

Edited by
MANSFIELD F. HOUSE
(Copyright.)

In this column, which appears every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, will appear news and short articles of special interest to merchants, their salespeople and business men and women in general.

Hear the Ad Manager Really "Manages"

Filene Brothers, in Boston, are not afraid to do some things a little differently.

For instance selling plans are controlled by the advertising department, and not by the buyers. In place of a buyer loading up and then to get rid of the goods, the publicity director works it the other way. He creates a demand and then tells the buyers to find the goods to supply the demand. Five buyers are kept busy all the time in New York picking up merchandise for the automatic bargain basement, and their ready check book (for they pay cash for everything) has brought them many a choice lot of goods.

Every employee in this store is given a fifteen minutes "recess" in the forenoon and the afternoon to do just as they please. It is all arranged by schedule so that a few are gone at a time.

During the flu epidemic last winter there were only four deaths from that disease among Filene employees. This is attributed to the admirable hospital and medical service maintained exclusively for the help. If a girl gets a pin scratch she is rushed off to the head nurse, who attends to the wound to prevent blood poisoning. If she sneezes she is hurried into a room for breaking colds, and required to breathe a mixture that will kill a cold before it can turn around.

When the flu epidemic was in full swing the moment a Filene girl showed any sign of not feeling well she was examined by the nurse, and if she had flu symptoms she was sent home at once. If something else was ailing her she was given proper treatment and told to forget all about the flu. In this way out of over 3000 employes there were about forty cases of flu and only four deaths. The showing was so remarkable that the government asked the Filenes how it was done.

The hospital was a problem when it was first started. The girls kept away from it, because they were afraid of being "cut up" by a surgeon. Finally after feeling about to find out why the girls were afraid, the name was changed to "clinic." That did not sound quite so horrible as hospital, and the patronage was increased.

But still the manager was not satisfied. Some of the girls kept away because they did not like to have an official record made of their ailments. Then the record books were thrown out, and no records kept except th se required by law. Now the girls think the clinic is a lovely place, for they can go to the nurse and get fixed up without it being marked down so some man can read about it afterward in a horrid record book.

And yet the clinic is exactly the same as when it was a hospital. It is all in the way the idea was presented, which after all, involved a lot of real salesmanship to "sell" the hospital to the help.

Indifferent Clerks Lost Most Customers.

"Why do my customers insist on leaving me and dealing with my competitor?" is a question asked many times by retailers in all lines of business.

A prominent department store in the Middle West recently investigated the problem and compiled a table of statistics showing the reasons advanced by individuals for changing their trade. Letters were written to a number of persons of both sexes, asking why they changed stores. One hundred and ninety-eight replies were received states the house organ of the firm which made the investigation, and the reasons advanced were tabulated as follows:

Indifference of clerks	47
Attempts at Substitution	24
Errors	18
Tricky methods	18
Slow deliveries	17
Over insistence of salespeople	16
Insolence of salespeople	16
Unnecessary delays in service	13
Tactless business policies	11
Bad arrangement of store	9
Ignorance of clerks concerning goods	6

Sales Go Up While Locality Goes Down.

Paul J. Devitt has a retail hardware business at Second street and Washington avenue, Philadelphia. The neighborhood is running down. The business is running up.

In fact, Devitt has one of the three largest hardware businesses in Philadelphia, and the other two are jobbers.

Second street and Washington avenue is totally removed from the big business quarter. There isn't even a good neighborhood trade to be had there. It's a dismal dilapidated section of the city and getting more drab all the time. It is not even on a main traffic line. It's the last place in the world in which one would seek a fine hardware store.

The store is not there for any particular reason. No strategic advantage marks its location. It's there because it just happened there in the old days, forty-two years ago, when the neighborhood was better than it is now.

But Devitt has 27,000 customers.

They come not only from all over Philadelphia, but from Bristol, Jenkintown, Fox Chase, Norristown and other outlying communities. To his store in the evenings and on Saturday afternoons, come mechanics from every trade in droves.

Devitt says he brings them there by two things advertising and service.

Difficult Customers.

There's no more particular customer in the world than a mechanic when he's buying a saw, or a wrench, or a vise, or a plane, or, in short, any kind of tool under the sun. He studies the problem of the purchase probably for two weeks before he decides. He devours catalogues. He asks his friends what their experience has been with this, that or the other brand, size and shape. Then he studies it some more, and finally, having wondered over every possible phase of the problem, he decides definately and in detail just what he wants.

If the store he enters doesn't carry that brand, or doesn't happen to have within 1-32 of an inch the size he wants he's sore—sore with a capital "S". The fact that the store may lower its stock-turn possibilities by half as a result of carrying 25,000 other items in stock for his benefit is nothing in his life. He wants what he wants when he wants it.

Devitt operates on the principle of taking no chances on not having it. It is his reputation for this sort of service, carefully advertised, that brings them to Second street and Washington avenue from all over the surrounding country.

Brooms Sell Well in Millinery Section

The Palace Store, in Spokane, Wash., recently placed brooms on sale in the millinery section, as well as all other parts of the store. Each salesperson was instructed to call attention to the "broom bargain" ("Spokane made") and a small commission was awarded to each clerk, with a grand prize to the clerk who sold the greatest number per day. On the first day of the sale more than 1000 brooms were sold at no added trouble to the firm, and a neat sum in the way of commissions for the energetic salespeople was earned.

Toys and Beer Combine Well

Over on the North Side of Pittsburgh Leo Dorfsaum has demonstrated that he can sell alarm clocks even if he handles tobaccos almost exclusively. He tried it out the last week, putting in a line of toys as a business-getter, with the "you must get up" timepieces on the side. He so arranged his window that any one needing an alarm clock could hardly resist the temptation to buy, at the same time suggesting that "if you want to begin the day's work or time take this home." The toys attracted the eyes of the youngsters to his shop at 923 Federal street, and they in turn called "dad's attention to what was going on down at Leo's smokeshop.

"A Joan of Arc Machine"

SHE withstood everything in the field and above all was, and still is, the last and only car to survive until the cessation of hostilities"—Extract from letter received by Ford Motor Company from a British Soldier, in Africa.

Over shell-torn roads, through water soaked fields, second only to the tanks in its power to climb debris and crater holes, the Ford car made a world famous record in the fighting area of the great war. In press despatches, in field reports, in letters, in rhyme and song the praises of the Ford were sounded.

In France	-	700 cars out of 1,000 were Fords
In Italy	-	850 cars out of 1,000 were Fords
In Egypt	-	996 cars out of 1,000 were Fords
In Mesopotamia		999 cars out of 1,000 were Fords

The Ford power plant that established this world-wide record in every theatre of the war remains the same. It will be in the Ford you buy.

Father went home with his latest purchase the other evening. It was a shirt tastefully adorned with wide orange and purple stripes.

Proudly he displayed it to his stunned wife, who could only gasp.

"Look at daddy's pretty!" he said proudly to his little daughter.

The youngster gazed wide-eyed at the screaming combination, then, rubbing her hand over the shirt-front, inquired:

"What kind of a flag is that, daddy?"

LIMOUSINE AS PIGSTY

Woodbury, N. J.—A $3,000 limousine was used as a pigsty here, probably the only instance of a pig enjoying such luxurious quarters. Former Councilman Amos Wick won a pig at a carnival in a nearby town and was notified that the prizes were ready for distribution. Driving to the town Wick was surprised to find that his prize was not even crated, so he tossed the animal in the limousine and hurried home.

Wick put the pig in an old chicken coop, preparatory to taking it to a farm today for fattening. The pig broke out during the night and in the morning was found huddled under the limousine, evidently preferring the car to its other quarters.

GUARD THE CHILDREN FROM AUTUMN COLDS

The Fall is the most severe season of the year for colds. One day is warm, the next is wet and cold and unless the mother is on guard the little ones are seized with colds that may hang on all winter. Baby's Own Tablets are mothers best friend in preventing or banishing colds. They act as a gentle laxative, keeping the bowels and stomach free and sweet. An occasional dose will prevent colds or if it does come on suddenly the prompt use of the Tablets will quickly relieve it. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cts a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Heads were broken on fifth ave., New York, when mounted police charged a mob of several thousand radicals who attempted to parade without a permit. A number of arrests were made.

New York Board of Aldermen adopted a report recommending $1,600, $1,800 and $2,000 salaries for three grades of policemen and firemen, and substantial increases for other city employes.

Houston Thompson, of the U. S. Federal Trade Commission, declared the public would be swindled out of $500,000,000 a year unless Congress erects proper safeguards against "wildcat" investments.

Strike of printers at New York may seriously impede election machinery, delaying lists of registrants and printing of ballots.

Walker D. Hines, Director-General of U.S. Railroads, has suggested that the lines, when restored to private ownership, increase their rates.

Three persons killed, 20 injured and property damage of $300,00 was the toll taken by a tornado which struck the little town of Hoisington, Kas.

During the trial of two men indicted at New York under anarchist law, it was learned that the talesmen had been "sounded" by mysterious agents.

Rounded up by a sheriff's posse at Wierton, W. Va., 119 I.W.W.'s, Bolshevists and anarchists were forced to kiss the flag in the public square, and then driven out of town.

The Name of Ye Olde Firme of Heintzman & Co., Limited Is Your Guarantee

WHY A HEINTZMAN & CO. PIANO?

The compelling force in buying a piano bearing the name of "Ye Olde Firme of Heintzman & Co., Limited," is its tone.

Other reasons, of course.

All through the sixty-five years that this piano has been built the skill of the most capable craftsmen and the wisdom of the most musicianly artists have contributed to keep it in the front rank.

For long years it has been the standard in piano building. But above all else that gives it a distinctive place is its Tone. And when Tone is wanting nothing else counts

"Surpasses in beauty of tone and delicacy of touch any piano I have used anywhere."—De Pachmann.

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY OF PETERBORO DISTRICT IN CONVENTION

Gathering Honored by Presence of Miss Jessie Howard, Returned Missionary From the Orient.

The loving words of welcome, extended by Mrs. J. H. Sherin on behalf of the Lakefield auxiliary, only in part prepared, the delegates for the kindly hospitality with which they were met and entertained. Mrs. (Rev.) Chapman made a suitable and gracious reply.

An unusually large delegation of representative women met in the Methodist Church at Lakefield on Monday, October 6th, where much subject matter of importance was dealt with. The business of the past year, and prospects for future work were presented by the various societies.

Mrs. J. K. Moore, district superintendent, presided with her usual grace and tact.

Rev. Mr. Dixon, pastor of the convention church, led the opening devotional exercises. The Bible reading, which was very helpful and appropriate, was given by Mrs. J. Stubbs, whochose Matthew 28 chapter, verses 8 to 20, and the 1st chapter of Acts, verses 8 to 12, as the basis for her lesson.

After a short resume of her work for the year, Mrs. Moore called the roll, to which eight auxiliaries, four circles and seven bands responded with most encouraging reports. An increase in members, finances and spirituality was the testimony of almost every delegate.

Papers of Interest.

Several papers of great interest to auxiliary, circle and band workers were given during the day.

Mrs. R. F. Downey in an excellent paper treated the missionary question from the standpoint of the "Home Base," and to point her story, made use of o the following sarcastic: Home, offspring, missionaries, enthusiasm, field, investment, enlistment, love, duty

She emphasized the fact that three-quarters of all Methodist communicants were doing nothing at all for missions, and made a special plea for Canadian women to both "invest" and "enlist" in this greatest of all work, and not be "slackers."

"Things we need as missionary workers" was the theme of the very interesting paper read by Mrs. (Rev.) Dixon while "The Study of the Annual Report" was presented in a five minute paper by Mrs. E. J. Wagar.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Convention Honored.

The convention was greatly honored by the presence of a beloved missionary, Miss Jessie Howie, who gave a vivid account of her work among the Orientals of Vancouver where she has been working under the direction of the W.M.S., for over five years.

Miss Howie is eminently fitted for this work, having spent twelve years in the foreign field (Japan).

We have a Japanese population in Canada of about 13,000 of whom from four to five thousand are women In Vancouver alone there are over 4,000, 1,200 being women and children. Although only 400 are allowed to enter Canada annually, the birth increase is double that, so we will soon have a large Oriental population.

The come here because it is hard for them to make a living at home They like our country and many desire to remain here. They are eager and industrious.

"Canadians are slow," said Miss Howie. Slow to awake to facts We have not yet awakened to what those people in the West mean to us. Unless we accept the big upndertaking of making them Christians and good citizens, we will have little colonies of Japanese and Chinese in our midst who will undermine our own people. If you should find your way into Powell street, Vancouver, which is in the Japanese settlement, you would not realize you were in Canada. And, although so many of them are settled here and are happy, they require constant care and supervision. We must give them our higher ideals and the standards which have come to us through Christianity.

Miss Howie described the methods of teaching the Japanese women, and explained how difficult it was to make them understand the necessity of doing their work as Canadian women do it. For instance they have never known the use of mop or broom as we know it. They know nothing of the need of ventilation. Their beds are made of heavy quilts which are simply folded and laid away during the day. These are no beds, only a block or hard cushion under the head.

Many of the brides who come to Canada from Japan are known as "picture brides." These are arranged as follows: The young Japanese man when he is in a position to take a wife, writes to some friend in his own country, sending his own picture. The friend looks about for as many likely girls as he can find, secures a picture of each and sends them to his friend in Canada. At leisure he decides which one he will marry and again writes hto the friend who arranges everything, and the girl starts out upon her long lonely honey-moon to come to the husband she has never seen.

Opportunity With Young.

Our greatest opportunity is with the very young, and the Canadian-born Japanese. They take quickly to our ways and language, and many of them become citizens of whom we may well be proud. Among these might be mentioned one young girl who passed from our kindergarten to Public school, through High school and University, becoming a teacher on our Canadian prairie. In her district there was no church, and no Sunday School. This young Japanese girl, who was a Christian, opened a Sunday School and is doing a great work Another, a boy, came to the home as a house-boy at the age of fourteen. He, too, passed through the various schools to the Chicago University of Medicine, and is now a recognized doctor of medicine in Vancouver. He has recently bought an $8,000 home. He has a Christian wife, and stands for everything that is good and right and true, and is in every way a credit to Vancouver.

Miss Howie closed her splendid address with the assurance that though this work was one that called for self sacrifice, we were rewarded, for these foreigners always responded to every advance of sympathy and love.

Rev. and Mrs. Ross delighted the convention with their sweetly rendered duets, and Mrs. Widdess also contributed two beautiful solos.

Two conferences for auxiliary workers and circle and band workers brought out many new ways and means for increasing membership, raising money and increasing the spiritual and social side of missionary work. Mesdames Thomas, Sherin and many others took part in the circle and band conference which seemed to be the more important. The auxiliary conference was led by Mesdames Bookhout, Speer, Downey, Parker and others, while Mrs. Kendry conducted a question drawer.

Mrs. T. N. D. Kelly gave a reading which was both interesting and suggestive, entitled, "God's Might Box." This reading brought the value of the mite box prominently before the workers.

Mrs. J. K. Moore was unanimously re-elected as district superintendent, and Mrs. E. J. Wagar was appointed secretary-treasurer for the coming year 1919-20.

The offerings for the day were exceptionally good which, together with the proceeds from the dinner, provided by the Lakefield ladies, netted the entertaining auxiliary the goodly sum of $41.80.

The quiet half hour, conducted by Rev Mr. Dixon, was a fitting close to a very successful convention.

JEAN WAGAR,
District Secretary.

FIRST FLYLESS TOWN

Saranac Lake, N. Y.—The health authorities here claim that the town is the first to be "flyless" in the world.

Despite the unusually hot weather during the summer there were hardly any more flies than most places have in January, and the prediction is confidently made that next year there will be none at all.

It cost the town about $1,000 to eradicate the fly nuisance, which was accomplished by requiring that manure be screened and frequently removed.

ATE A $40,000 CHECK.

New York.—A cheque for $40,000 Percy Bristol, a negro bank messenger, who joined the ranks of New York's "wandering" messengers last August.

The police say that Bristol admitmitted that after his arrest in Stamford he tore up the check and swallowed the pieces rather than be caught with it in his possesion. Bristol's first story, the police said, was that he had been robbed in a saloon.

TORONTO COUPLE BOTH GRATEFUL

HELMAN SAYS HE BELIEVES TANLAC SAVED HIS LIFE AND WIFE JOINS IN PRAISING IT.

"I actually don't believe I would be alive today if it hadn't been for Tanlac," said John Helman, of 163 Chestnut St., Toronto, Ont.

"I had suffered from nervousness and stomach trouble for about two years," he continued. "I had no desire to eat and was wasting away to nothing. I suffered terribly from indigestion, my nerves went all to pieces and I became so weak that I couldn't do a lick of work. Many a night I would be unable to sleep a wink and would get up feeling so weak and nervous I could hardly drag myself around.

"I tried all kinds of medicines but got no better. Finally my wife induced me to try Tanlac, so I got me a bottle and it has certainly done me a world of good. My appetite is great and I can now eat anything without having indigestion afterwards, my nerves are stronger and I sleep fine all night and feel better and stronger than I have in a long time I have gained some in weight too, and my wife and I both feel so grateful for what Tanlac has done for me that we want everybody to try this wonderful medicine. Why, I simply wouldn't be without it for anything."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. H. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock, by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowler's Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert, by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle & Son.

TALKING POLITICS OVER THE TEA CUPS

There was a little tea party of half a dozen neighbors in progress and over the teacups all kinds of things were being discussed. What do you suppose was the chief topic of conversation?

Babies? Pickles and jams? Somebody's new dress?

Not at all. But let us listen to them.

"Vote? Of course I'm going to vote Aren't you?"

"Oh, I would but I never thought much about politics" said one.

"That's how I feel" added another I don't seem to have much idea WHY I should vote for anyone in particular" and she stirred her tea and then took an appreciative sip of the "cup that cheers and invites confidences."

"Hold on Jean" what are you stirring your tea for?" asked the first speaker.

"Why do you think?" asked Jean looking amused and amazed.

"There's something good at the bottom of that cup, but if I don't stir it up, then I scarcely know it's there."

"You've given me a text" said number one who had expressed her determination to vote. "Now I'm going to tell you something. There are lots of good things in the Conservative cup, wise good things that the Government has done in the last several years, especially the war years, but they are things that often we forget about because they are not stirred up for us. Now I'm going to do the stirring and let you test a few. Plenty of them" went on the enthusiast. "You have probably never even heard about, because when women didn't have the vote we didn't pay much attention to these things.

"Alright promise not to be tiresome and we'll listen to you" laughed the one addressed.

"Well" she began "did you ever hear of the Workmen's Compensation Act?

"Um—yes, but I don't know much about it."

"Then suppose you were the wife of a man working in a factory, and you had three children and had not been able to save any money. Then your husband is injured while at his work. There must be a doctor, nurse ment that makes medicines, and so on? How would you feel with your husband incapacitated for months, but the rent, appetites, need of clothing all goning on just the same."

"I'd go crazy" declared Jean, something of horror in her brown eyes.

"No you wouldn't, not now. Because you see through this work men's compensation act which the Government brought in, your husband would go on drawing salary. That is a law now you see And doctor, nurse, medicine and that sort of thing would all be provided free. So you see you could keep the pot boiling and you wouldn't have to worry yourself sick in the meantime.

"I'm ready to vote for the Government that makes a thing like that possible" chimed in one of the group silent up to that moment.

"Since that act come into force in 1915 there has been over nine million dollars paid out in this sort of thing," added Number One.

"Goodness we don't have that here, surely?" exclaimed another member of the tea party.

"We don't only because the Government has made laws for the protection of the children explained the enthusiast. "You just ought to read over all the laws they've made on that. No child under fourteen years can work in a factory, no boy under sixteen or girl under eighteen may work more than a certain number of hours in the day. Children have to be kept in school until they are fourteen In mines they can't work underground until they are seventeen, and there are other laws just as good."

"Now" she continued "what do you think about Mothers' pensions?"

"Oh, they have to have them" came the chorus.

"That's exactly what the present Governmentthinks too" was her glad announcement. "They are not only pledged to it, but the definite details of the plan are now being worked out. And no mother is to think it's charity, say these who are bringing it to pass. It will be a state grant. The state knows how important it is to have the mother stay at home and look after the children instead of leaving them to get along any old way whileshe has to go out working to earn money to support them."

The eyes of the other women were bright with interest and appreciation, for women's hearts are tender where their less fortunate sisters are concerned.

"But I can't wait to tell you any more this time," exclaimed the enthusiast, only there is heaps more just as fine to stir up in that cup, if you are to know just how the Government has carried out its trust, and what its plans are for the future.

THAT HOUSING SCHEME

Applications for Loans to Build Under the Plan Invited.

The City Council Housing Committee met last night when Commissioners the Mayor and ex-Aldmen Dobbin and Finnie were authorized to spend $10 on advertising for applicants for loans with which to build homes under the Government housing scheme. This course is to test the popularity of the project, as some members of the Council are not satisfied that the plan commends itself to residents in this community.

FREED AFTER SERVING 10 YEARS PUNISHMENT

MAN CONVICTED OF NEGLECT IS EMANCIPATED AFTER NEW TRIAL.

A case which deserves much thoughtful consideration is that of Wm. H. Barron, 103 Morgan Street, Bennington. For ten years Mr. Barron suffered the agonies caused by Rheumatism. At times he was bound hand and foot by the grip of Rheumatic pains. On the advice of a friend he stood for a new trial and used T.R.C.'s.

Read what he has to say:—

"I have been a sufferer from Rheumatism for ten years. Have been so bad at times I could not move hand or foot for months. A friend advised me to try Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules and I have been thankful ever since. They worked wonders for me, and I have never felt any return of the disease."

It is practically impossible to obtain evidence stronger than this testimonial, and a word to the wise is always sufficient. If you suffer, have a new trial—use T.R.C.'s.

Ask your Druggist or write us for our new booklet, it is interesting and costs you nothing (T. Templeton, 142 King West, Toronto) We prepay on receipt of $1 ea.

FLED NAGGING WIFE.

London—John Woodmans was sentenced to six week' imprisonment for leaving wife and family chargeable to the parish of Camberwel. He told the magistrate that he had nothing but "nagging" night and morning for two or three months before he left home "My head," said he, "was going round and round, and it fairly shook up my nerves."

WOMAN DOG CATCHER.

Denver, Col.—Denver now boasts of having the only woman dog catcher in the world. There may be one or two others in unknown parts of the world, but experts here have not been able to find any after extensive investigation. She is Mrs. Laura Dittrich, deputy pound mistress. She has been praised repeatedly for her work.

INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes Disordered Stomachs feel fine at once!

Lumps of undigested food causing pain. When your stomach is acid, and is gassy, sour or you have heartburn, flatulence, headache or dyspepsia here is speedy relief—no waiting.

Eat a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin and instantly your stomach feels fine. All the indigestion pain, gases, acidity and misery in the stomach caused by acidity ends.

Pape's Diapepsin tablets cost little at any drug store but there is no surer or quicker stomach antacid known.

SILK HAT EXCHANGED

A silk hat bearing the initials E.P. exchanged by mistake Wednesday p.m. last at Dr. Robertson's, 397 Reid street, may be had by the owner in return for the hat taken.

Any man can make a fool of himself by trying to act smart.

Many a woman walks on her pride because she has small feet.

And every man has a right to his own opinion so long as he remains a bachelor.

The fewer confidential friends a woman has the happier she is bound to be.

When a man gets lonesome he begins to realize what poor company he is.

START TOMORROW AND KEEP IT UP EVERY MORNING

Get Into the Habit of Drinking a Glass of of Water Before Breakfast.

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath?" you say. Well, it is guaranteed to perform miracles according to hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver kidneys and intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day become food for the million of bacteria which infest the bowels, the quick result is poisons and toxin which are then absorbed into the blood, causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath, bad taste, colds stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and badly the next, but who simply can not get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

OBLIGED TO WORK

WHY WILL BUSINESS WOMEN VOTE FOR THE HEARST GOVERNMENT.

Business women appreciate the establishmen of Employment Bureau by the Government. Hundreds, indeed thousands of girls and women have found employment through those bu-

Busniess women, know that those engaged in clerical positions in an industrial concern, have the same protection which the Workmen's Compensation Act affords to those engaged directly in the industry.

Business women and girls have appreciated the benefits which resulted from the Ontario Temperance Act, as far as there business relations are concerned. Not only has it worked for improvement, as far as their actual work was concerned, in many but women necessarily in the downtown sections of towns and cities and on the streets in the early evening have felt safer from even any slight suggestion of insult when alone.

Business women appreciate the enactments of Government towards the protection of the public health.

Business women have the protection of the laws enacted by this Government in safeguarding their salaries; in stipulating that women may not be for longer than ten hours a day; and in enacting that they must be allowed at least an hour for their meal at noon.

Business women who are married, appreciate the law which does away with an ancient injustice, and which gives men the complete control of their own earnings and the control of their personal property.

Business women like all other women realize that the Government is dealing fairly with the returned man, in educating him along whatever professional, industrial or business lines he may prefer, in equipping him to return to civil life.

Business women know that brains wise judgment, honesty and business ability are required in the successful conduct of any business, and when they realize the great advancement and development which has taken place in the province within even the years of war, they readily understand that the men who have done so well, are the men who should be entrusted with the further handling of the affairs of the province.

Business women, like all other women know that they owe a debt of gratitude to the Government for having been the means of extending the franchise to them, and thus giving them the full privileges of citizenship.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW

BOARD OF TRADE CONGRATULATED AS A REAL LIVE AND PROGRESSIVE BOD

Mr. Kenneth J. Dunstan, of Toronto, Gives Interesting and Instructive Talk.

The local Board of Trade held another successful luncheon meeting at the Empress Hotel yesterday noon with about sixty members present. The get-together movement was particularly noticeable in the conversation which took place among those present during luncheon, the various topics of the day being discussed.

The luncheon having been enjoyed by all, President J. J. Turner introduced the speaker of the day, Mr. Kenneth J. Dunstan, manager of the Ontario department of the Bell Telephone company, and president of the Toronto Board of Trade.

The speaker, on opening the address, on behalf of the Toronto Board of Trade congratulated the local body as a live and progressive organization. He then commenced on his special subject, "The Telephone," speaking of the evolution of the telephone from the time it was classed as a scientific toy to the present telephone and exchanges. He then spoke of the later inventions, the multiplex and wireless telephones. He produced a very suggestive four page pamphlet which proved to be the Toronto telephone directory for 1879, and mentioned that at the present date Toronto had 81,000 telephones in service aggregating 700,000 originating calls per day. He remarked that the company he represented could obtain better results by co-operation than by competition, and it was the aim of the company to have a comprehensive, universal service. He next spoke of the local service. At the present time the company were installing two more trunk lines from Toronto to Peterborough and one from Malone via Peterborough to Toronto, which will practically give the city a total of eight trunk lines, also direct circuits are being installed from the city to Smith Falls, Havelock and Campbellford, and additions were being made to the present switchboard in the near future. To cover all future additions to telephone exchanges in the towns and cities, there was a special department in the company which dealt with this matter exclusively, anticipating conditions as far as twenty years hence. Mr. Dunstan concluded his address by wishing the Board and the city every prosperity and growth.

A hearty vote of thanks was moved by Mr. J. Wells Fraser and seconded by Mr. A. W. Cressman, which was unanimously carried with loud applause.

GRATIFYING RESULTS FOR REFERENDUM COM.

CHURCHES WILL GIVE THREE-MINUTE ADDRESSES ON PROHIBITION SUBJECT TOMORROW

In the general work of the rousing up of the Referendum the Centre Ward has been in the hands of an energetic committe which reports most gratifyng results in the canvas The propositions on the ballot that call for assent to the retention of the Act and the elimination of the other propositions have been supported, so far as promises are concerned, beyond all expectations. In addition the canvas of men of the men's committees is closing up all over the city. The forehander work devised and instituted has borne fruit in that objections likely to turn up have been forestalled and met.

The several churches of the city will take up the subject in brief three minute addresses prefacing each service, morning and evening on Sunday, 12th and Sunday 19th. A strong appeal will be made to support the temperance cause and bold to the principles for which the fight is being made in the cause of temperance

During the week will be made a liberal distribution of literature, the statements in which will cover possible objections and answer any appeals that may or may be made to support the side of liquor.

It has been suggested that the medical men of the city might in their capacities as advisers to men, women and indeed to families in general, make statement from their own knowledge of the feebleness of the general contention by some that liquor has large medicinal value. The largest number of the profession decry this theory and now is the time to drive it home So far the profession has not taken anything like the position it could, take in this regard.

With regard to the use of cars and vehicles on voting day, Mr. Andrew Brown has charge of this detail, and will be glad to have those willing to assist to advise him of such intention. A large number of cars wil be needed as many women should reach the polls and many of whom are unable to walk for any distance. During the day of polling the Y. M. C. A. will be headquarters for cars and transportation, and needs for service can be phoned in and will receive attention.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE T

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful aperance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, nobody can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

"OH BOY!"

...RE SPARKLING, TINKLING MUSICAL HITS THAN IN ANY OTHER COMEDY.

...midnight supper, a dashing and ...ing actress, and a good fel..., accidentally meeting in the ...ments of George Budd one eve..., figure in the story of "Oh, ...," the pretty, dainty and refresh... New York Princess Theatre mu... musical comedy which F. Ray Comstock and William Elliott offer at the Grand Thursday evening only. The story of "Oh, Boy," hinges on one George Budd, who has secretly married Lou Ellen Carter, the only daughter of Judge and Mrs. Carter. The former is a judge not only in a court of law but also of feminine faces and figures, and at a cabaret he makes eyes at Jackie Sampson, an actress who plays "Modesty" in "Experience."

There is a mix-up with a country constable over a speech being delivered by one "Toodles," and in order to protect herself Jackie blackens the constable's eye and makes her getaway by climbing up a fire escape from which she enters an apartment and fortunately meets Jim Marvin, who is waiting for the return of George Budd, the owner of the apartment.

Jim Marvin proves a true friend to Jackie Sampson and introduces her to the bewildered Mrs. Budd. From then on the complications accumulate and the arrival of George Budd's Quaker aunt and the bride's father and mother only serve to complicate matters.

With the assistance of Jim Marvin, George Budd manages to put matters straight and all ends happily.

The score contains more sparkling, tinkly musical hits than any other musical comedy in the past 20 years. Guy Bolton and P. G. Wodehouse are responsible for the book and lyrics, and Jerome Kern for the music. They have written a musical comedy which has become a standard for excellency, and time will refuse to rob it of its novelty, dull the richness of its tuneful melodies or blue the charm of its delightfully pretty and fascinating story.

"THE KISS BURGLAR" AT THE GRAND TODAY

"The Kiss Burglar," with a big metropolitan cast, including the famous Peacock Alley chorus, is the musical comedy at the Grand today. This latest musical success, which proved so lastingly popular at the George M. Cohan Theatre, in New York, where it ran through nearly an entire season, is the joint work of Glen MacDonough, who wrote the book and lyrics, while Raymond Hubbell composed the score.

"The Kiss Burglar" is said to be a veritable riot of catchy music, clean, spontaneous humor and dancing of a kind that makes the world feel young. A large, specially chosen chorus, attractively gowned, numerous ensembles and original effects, staged under the able direction of Julian Mitchell, are a few of the features that have won popularity for this charming musical romance, and capacity houses attest the public's appreciation of a play of real merit.

An enormous company, including the famous Peacock Alley chorus, and the original Cohan Theatre production as seen at the George M. Cohan Theatre, New York, will be offered here.

"DUMBELLS" COMING TO THE GRAND THEATRE

HAS A RECORD OF OVER FIVE HUNDRED PERFORMACES BEHIND FIRING LINE

Here is a record that makes the usual "Six months in New York and four weeks in Boston" look like a repetition. This one reads: "Over Five Hundred Performances Immediately Behind the Firing Line in France," and it is held by the "Dumbells," a purely Canadian troupe of soldier-actors, all of whom had served at least sixteen months in the trenches before being chosen for the entertainment corps. At the Grand Friday and Saturday, Oct. 24 and 25. After the 500 run in France they played forty performances under the royal patronage of King Albert and Queen Elizabeth in Brussels. That, and one solid month of two-a-day in London, two weeks of which were put in at the famous Coliseum, where they played to 21,200 people in 24 performances, ends their record to date. But not for long. They have just arirved in Canada and will play a home-coming tour of all the principal cites of the Dominion.

PEGGY HYLAND

He dropped right out of the sky—not at her very feet, but in front of an angry old man's loaded and pointed gun. After he was married he was introduced to his wife. Odd experience are both sides—but hardly more odd than a bride breaking from the altar and diving through an open window for a rapid getaway. These are only samples of the sensational incidents that abound in the new photoplay, "The Rebellious Bride," the romance of a maid of the mountains. A comedy of rippling laughter and thrilling situations—fast fun and sizzling sensation—social barriers smashed.

At the Empire Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, October 13, 14, 15.

Bill before Congress proposed a new department for U.S air forces, providing an organization of 66,000 men, and would encourage commercial aeronautics.

MESMERIC STUNT OF COLLEGE DAYS SAVES YOUTH FROM CHAIR

The amazing instance of a mesmeric stunt of college days saving a youth forced by police "third degree" torture to confessing a murder of which he knew nothing, is vividly portrayed in the big Alice Joyce production, "The Third Degree," at the Empire Theatre Oct. 13, 14, 15.

The youth had been mesmerized by his chums who used a paper cutter. The police tortured him by light flashed from the steel of the pistol used in the crime. It was his young bride who accidentally learned of the earlier incident, and impressed its significance on his lawyer.

The "third degree" scene is only one of many big dramatic situations in this splendid screen version by Vitagraph of the late Charles Klein's most famous stage success.

Miss Joyce, as Annie Sands, has what undoubtedly is the most convincing role in her screen career and is supported by a strong cast, including Gladden James, Anders Randolf, Miss Hedda Hopper, Herbert vans, George Backus, J. T. Wade, L. Rogers Lytton and Edward McGuire.

The picture is splendidly directed by Tom Terriss, who has made the dramatic headlights stand out with strength and boldness.

RETURN ENGAGEMENT OF "MY SOLDIER GIRL"

BIG MUSICAL SPECTACLE, REPLETE WITH GORGEOUS SCENERY AND CLEAN COMEDY.

Presented by a big company of nearly fifty people, the brilliant musical spectacle, "My Soldier Girl," coming to the Grand on Saturday matinee and evening next, offers three hours of the most novel and entertaining musical show presented the theatre-going public in the past decade. A smashing hit from its first performance, playing to capacity houses night after night, goes to prove that this clever musical comedy offers something different. There are two acts—the opening is laid at Miami, Fiordia, Col. Stone's home overlooking Biscayne Bay, where an evening of gayety, a fete is in progress in honor of "overseas" boys and girls. The last act shows a grand production of the Follies in rehearsal on the roof of a New York theatre with a gorgeous production and the change of costume and scene is bewildering in its frequency. Some have said it was the book—others the music, still others declare it's the combination of the book, score, costumes, scenery and the excellent company working in harmony that makes "My Soldier Girl" the success it really is. There are some twenty musical numbers, of which "My Soldier Girl," "Just for You," "Jasper's Ragtime Band" and "That Dixie Wedding Tune" are the most popular.

This big musical spectacle, with its gorgeous costumes, elaborate scenery, clean, wholesome comedy, haunting melodies, a splendid cast and a brigade of bewitching girls, is the work of J. Lorch Baber, and that he has succeeded in his efforts is attested by the remarkable hits scored by this brilliant musical comedy. William Moore, the leading comedian, is the bright particular funmaker in this new musical show.
